The House approved for a proposed new constitution a 54-member Senate and a 205-member House as at present. The only change was to write in specifically the intent that the House should be based on geography and the Senate on population. The lawmakers hope that may help in warding off federal court attacks seeking two houses based on population.

Describes Legislators

Sponsors of the secret ballot election of a speaker said there never could be legislative independence until this method is adopted. One said that in reality there are now only two branches of government, tre executive and the judicial. He describes legislators as puppets of the governor's office.

Proponents of the present system said that unless it is continued, any governor would have extreme difficulty getting his program and platform planks written into law. Some said a secret ballot speaker could get up a political machine and dictate to governors.

"We have never had a speaker who was not appointed by the governor," said Rep. George Brooks of Oglethorpe, leader of the losing faction. "The speaker appoints every committee so I leave it to you whether the governor really names all legislative committees.

"It is now very difficult if not impossible to pass any bill not approved by the governor. Adoption of this amendment will give more legislative independence than any proposal that has ever been made."

Referring to the open activity of department heads and executive aides in working to defeat his measure, Brooks said, "The governor can move a more powerful lobbying force into action than all the utilities in Georgia—he had them out in the corridor yesterday."

Rep. Mac Pickard of Muscogee, a big city legislator, was a member of the losing faction. He said, "It makes me sick to see governors running around the state and saying they are for legislative independence."

Rep. Mitchel P. House of Bibb said, "The people's business should be conducted in the public eye, including the election of the speaker."

"Any governor should have some voice in the selection of his speaker so he will have some chance of making good on the campaign promises which won him election," House said.

Are Georgia Democrats Afraid Of Republicans?

Atl. Sphd. 5-20-64

The extra session of the General Assembly seemingly is concerning itself more about ways to "protect" Democratic office-holders from Republicans, and other opposition, than with its real business—drafting a new State Constitution that will be effective and fair to all.

The General Assembly—dominated and controlled by Democrats—proposes, for one thing, that names of twice as many voters as before be required on a petition to get a candidate listed on the ballot where the candidate isn't chosen in a party primary or convention. The provision would cover mostly independents.

Democrats nominate by the primary, for which candidates pay entrance fees. There is no proposal to double the amount of the primary entrance fees.

The Democrat-controlled legislative session also proposes that Superior Court Judges and Solicitors be elected on a statewide, rather than on a circuitwide basis. Courts have held that State Senators can be elected only on the latter basis. The ruling is applicable to all state or federal offices.

The Georgia Bar Association, the courts by inference, and drafters of the skeleton form of the Constitution the lawmakers are working on favor election of Superior Court Judges and Solicitors, to quote Richard Jones of the Bar Association, by "people within the circuit they serve" because, these people "are in the best position to choose them."

This, the Democrats won't stand for. Such of their spokesmen as Rep. Marion T. Pope of Cherokee County speak amateurishly of 'This is still a Democratic State,' meaning 'controlled by Democrats'; and shockingly that, were Judges elected exclusively by voters in the circuits they serve, voters 'would throw some Judges right off the bench.'

This is a remarkable, implied confession. It is saying that Democrats have put into some judgeships—and intend to keep them in office—persons whose own neighbors don't want and wouldn't have, if allowed to choose their own public servants.

And, talked only in private is another proposal of the Democrats in this General Assembly: They must also "protect" against possibility that a non-white candidate is elected to a judgeship, or solicitorship.

Sen. James Wesberry, perhaps sick of this kind of carrying-on, and doubtful that the special session intends to work only for the good of all Georgians, of whatever creed, color and faith, proposes that the entire legislative session be scrapped, and that the business of forming a Constitution be returned to its rightful owners—the people of Georgia.

The legislature, to this point, seems far more concerned with blocking non-Democrats and perpetuating certain Democrats than with the welfare of all Georgians. The interesting question is:

Are Georgia Democrats, finally conscious of some shortcomings and glittering weaknesses, now thoroughly scared to death? Aren't Georgia Democrats now displaying—not pride and resoluteness, but desperation?

The scared and desperate usually have reasons. Are the Georgia Democrats scared of Republicans?

Provisions put into a constitution must be based on fairness and justice, regardless of race, creed, color or political party.

Sanders, Senators Work Out Compromise on Vote Board

A compromise was hammered out Wednesday between Gov. Carl Sanders and senators who favor giving a proposed State Election Board jurisdiction over vote frauds in primaries.

Sanders has vigorously opposed allowing the board to have such jurisdiction. He, Lt. Gov. Peter Zack Geer and others contend this should be left up to the state executive committees of political parties.

Floor leader Milton Carlton said an amendment will be offered Thursday to give the election board a limited amount of jurisdiction.

COULD APPEAL

The proposal would allow the board to intervene in a local primary if a state executive committee failed to act with in a specified number of days after a complaint had been filed concerning alleged vote frauds or other irregularities.

Earlier, Sen. John Gayner of Brunswick had drawn up an amendment to allow an appeal to the State Election Board from a party's state executive committee in connection with vote irregularities in primaries.

However, after lengthy conversations with Geer, Gaynor apparently decided to change his amendment to conform with the proposal finally supported by Sanders.

PRIMARY DATES

In another matter, Carlton said it is likely a new amendment will be proposed Thursday to change the provision for primary dates.

The code as now written calls for all party primaries to be held within the first two weeks of September. This is referred to as a "floating primary" in contrast to the present requirement that the state primary be held on the second Wednesday in September.

TRIBBLE OPPOSES

Carlton said the new proposal would provide that the political party which last elected the governor would hold its primary on the second Wednesday in September and the other party (the Republicans) on the second Wednesday in August.

GOP Sen. Joseph Tribble of Savannah strongly opposed the proposal because the August date would disrupt GOP plans for September primaries.

Carlton said the principal reason for the dates is to allow time for resetting voting machines, which must stay locked for a certain period after a primary in case of an appeal on the vote.

Senate Votes for Ousting Of Convicted Officials

The Georgia Senate voted unanimously Wednesday to prohibit a state or local official from holding office after he has been convicted and sentenced.

The proposal was offered by Sen. Robert Smalley of Griffin as an amendment to the proposed new election laws code.

The code as introduced in the Senate would have allowed an official to continue in office during any appeals in a case.

Proponents of the Smalley amendment said there are instances in Georgia counties where convicted officials are continuing to serve in office.

"It may take years for some cases to go through all the appeal courts," one senator said, "and in the meantime the convicted official is still in office."

Smalley's amendment, in effect, would suspend a convicted official from his duties until the case is finally adjudicated.

The Smalley amendment passed by the Senate would not only affect election law frauds, but also crimes involving moral turpitude, felony and malfeasance in office.

Senate Reduces Voter Test Questions From 30 To Six

Atl. World 5-21-64

By AL KUETTNER
United Press International

The Georgia Senate Wednesday voted to change from 30 difficult questions to six easy ones on the test put to voter registration applicants.

The Senate with only two dissenting votes approved an Amendment to a proposed state election code after it was accepted by administration forces who had previously opposed tampering with the questionnaire.

Sen. Leroy Johnson offered the Amendment which would require applicants to answer only four out of six questions asking for the names of the President, the vice president, the two U. S. senators from Georgia, the governor, members of the legislature representing the applicant and the sheriff of the applicant's county.

The current law, which is carried over in the proposed new election code, was described by Sen. Robert Smalley of Griffin during earlier argument as a measure adopted in the "hysterical age" when the Georgia legislature was sitting up roadblocks against all out non - white registration.

DEFEATED RECOMMENDATION

The Senate defeated by two votes Smalley's recommendation that the whole question of a voter test be given to an election board.

Administration floor leader Milton A. Carlton argued against the Smalley Amendment saying it would be in conflict with a section of the proposed code already adopted.

After a lunch recess during which administration forces and those pushing a change in the examination process apparently got together, Johnson introduced his amendment and without argument asked that it be adopted.

In a 30 - second statement, Carlton told the Senate that he agreed "some of the 30 questions are too difficult and somewhat unreasonable and I have no objection to the amendment."

It was then adopted by a vote of 35 to 2.

CAN CHANGE ANYTIME

The proposed new state constitution, now being considered by the House, specifies that the legislature can change the questionnaire at any time it sees fit.

"Man's right to vote should not be determined by whether he has the mentality to answer 30 questions," Johnson told the Senate during the debate on Smalley's amendment.

"I submit that a man's right to vote can be determined on whether he knows the name of the presiding judge of the Supreme Court ... we have moved forward in Georgia, let us continue to move forward."

Senate Slaps Geer, Drops Vote Barrier

Atl. Const.

5-21-64

By SAM HOPKINS

Lt. Gov. Peter Zack Geer Wednesday suffered a personal defeat at the hands of the Senate which stripped the election laws code of 30 difficult questions now asked of prospective illiterate voters.

Geer had vigorously opposed deleting the 30 questions.

The Senate first defeated an amendment by Sen. Robert Smalley of Griffin to give the proposed new State Election Board the authority to draw up 30 questions instead of the legislature doing so. The vote was 21-23.

6 QUESTIONS URGED

Then Atlanta Negro Sen. Leroy Johnson offered an amendment to require only six relatively easy questions, and with strong support from Sen. Smalley, Sen. Ben Johnson of DeKalb and Sen. Taylor Phillips of Macon, the proposal was approved 35-2.

Only Sen. Kyle Yancey of Austell and Sen. William Zorn of Jesup voted against it.

Sen. Smalley declared the set of 30 questions was "adopted in 1958 in an hysterical age" and were designed "to deprive citizens of their franchise." He had reference to limiting Negro voter registration.

NOT RACIAL MATTER

"It's not a racial matter with me," Sen. Phillips said, "and I don't think it should be" with the Senate.

Phillips called the set of questions a "farce." He said he submitted the test to two judges, three college professors and four school teachers and none of them could pass the test by correctly answering two-thirds (20) of them.

He added that since the 1958 Voters Registration Act was passed some 500 prospective voters in Bibb County had taken the test and none could pass it.

'GOOD, HONEST'

Sen. Leroy Johnson told the Senate, "A good, honest person of good character ought to be able to vote" without having to answer 20 of the present 30 questions.

Sen. Smalley took time to read the entire list of 30 questions to the Senate and noted their difficulty. He expressed doubt that the senators themselves or a college graduate could pass the test.

Even Floor Leader Milton Carlton, who fought the elimination of the questions initially, aid many of them were "unreasonable."

Lt. Gov. Geer, at a recent meeting of the Senate Rules Committee, pointed out that he was the author of the 1958 Voters' Registration Act, which includes the 30 questions. He opposed taking out the questions or letting the Election Board set up questions. Geer said he felt the Legislature itself ought to write the questions.

Sen. Leroy Johnson said the 30-question requirement "has prevented more persons from voting than any other criteria."

"These questions," he added, "were made part of the election laws during a period when there was a concerted attempt to prevent some citizens from registering to vote."

He predicted the elimination of the 30 questions would have "a tremendous effect" on voter registration this summer after the registration section of the code goes into effect.

The Negro senators' six questions which were approved by the Senate include:

1. Who is the President of the United States?
2. Who is the Vice President of the United States?
3. Who are the two United States Senators from Georgia?
4. Who is the Governor of Georgia?
5. Who are the members of the General Assembly who represent you?
6. Who is the sheriff of your county?

An illiterate person could be registered to vote if he correctly answered four of the six questions.

Senate Moves to Lower Voter Qualifications

ATLANTA (AP)—The Georgia Senate, on motion of its lone Negro member, Wednesday moved to drastically lower voter qualifications.

The action, which must be approved by the House, would add thousands of Negro voters to registration rolls.

Senate administration leaders, working on a proposed revision of the state's election code, also planned a new move to give a proposed state election board jurisdiction over party primaries, as well as elections, in some cases. One amendment to accomplish that was beaten down Tuesday.

Move Planned

Also in the planning stage is a move to revise a section dealing with primary dates and make joint Democratic-Republican primaries possible if the parties agree.

Sen. Leroy Johnson, Atlanta Negro senator, won adoption of an amendment, 35-2, that would permit registrars to approve as voters any who answer correctly four to six comparatively easy questions. The amendment was substituted for a section that called for 20 correct answers from illiterates of 30 questions.

Johnson said less than one per cent of the Negroes applying under the 30 question standard have been able to register as voters.

Six Questions

The six questions under his amendment: Name the president of the U.S.; the vice president; the two U.S. senators from Georgia; governor of Georgia; members of the General Assembly who represent you; the sheriff of your county.

Sen. Robert H. Smalley Jr., of Griffin offered a similar amendment but under his proposal the new set of questions would be provided by the new state election board with authority to change the questions from time to time.

Senate floor leader Milton Carlton of Swainsboro, opposed the Smalley amendment but supported Johnson's substitute because it permitted the legislature, not the election board, to provide the questions.

Criticizes Law

Smalley criticized present law as setting a standard that college professors and members of the legislature could not meet. The questions now used include:

On what day and how often is the general election held in Georgia at which members of the General Assembly are elected; what is a republican form of government; in what state senatorial district do you live and what are the names of the county or counties in the district; what is the name of the state judicial circuit in which you live and what are the names of the counties or county in such circuit; how does the Constitution of the United States provide regarding the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus; how does the constitution of Georgia provide that a county site may be changed.

Senate debate over the new election code has brought considerable argument over giving the proposed state election board jurisdiction over primaries, in the matter of investigating vote fraud.

Opponents of giving the state board power over primaries content that county solicitors (prosecutors) and grand juries can handle vote fraud cases.

Drawing Amendments

Carlton said today a new amendment is being drawn that would permit intervention by the board in a primary if a complaint is filed with a state party executive committee and the latter fails to act within a specified time.

The floor leader also said the administration would propose revision of a section of the code dealing with primary dates. He said it probably would provide that the party that won the last election for governor have its primary on the second Wednesday in September. Other parties would hold primaries on the second Wednesday in August.

This section also would provide for joint Democratic-Republican primaries on the same date if the state executive committees of the two parties agreed.

Sen. Joseph Tribble, Savannah Republican, said an August date for a Republican primary would be a definite disadvantage.

Both Democrats and Republicans have set primaries for Sept. 9 on the basis of the present statute. Tribble pointed to several states where opposing parties hold primaries on the same date and added:

"This would be preferable because it would make primary expenses lower. It also would simplify problems of getting out the vote by non-partisan groups. In addition one date would not tie up polling places in public buildings.

Many of the election code sections were approved after being read by the clerk but debate on amendments slowed progress on the bill. Only 67 pages of the 235-page bill had been approved when the Senate quit for the day.

Statewide Election of Judges, Solicitors To Be Another Case for Federal Courts?

Dalton—May I take the opportunity to thank you for your fine editorial in opposition to statewide election of judges and solicitors. If many people would vote the straight Republican ticket in protest of this outrageous conspiracy — which insures Democrats of being elected judges and solicitors whether they carry their home circuits or not—they would soon change the law. In my opinion, no honorable solicitor or judge would want to be sworn in if he weren't well enough thought of to carry his own circuit.

Realistically, it appears this will be another case for the federal courts to decide because of the complete misuse of "states rights" to deprive the local communities of the right to decide whom they will have as a judge or solicitor.

High Court Ruling Forcing Apportioning Seen in June

Sen. James Wesberry of Atlanta predicted Friday night that the U. S. Supreme Court will hand down within 17 days a decision that shows unmistakably that Georgia must reapportion its House.

That is the date for the end of the present court term. speculation that the court definitely will rule on one of the legislative apportionment cases by that time.

Wesberry, speaking before the southeast Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce, predicted the General Assembly will still be in its special session at that time and will be forced to take action.

"The choice will be whether to reapportion the House or give up all thoughts of a new constitution," Wesberry said.

Wesberry added that Gov. Carl Sanders cannot call a halt to constitution revision because to do so would cause him great embarrassment. Wesberry predicted, however, that the legislature will not agree to reapportion itself, as the court rule will demand. He said Sanders then would have to call a constitution convention to complete the revision job.

Here's Story Of How Georgia's Governor Sanders Tossed Wrench Into Wallace Speech In Atlanta

EDITOR'S NOTE: An unusual situation developed when Gov. Carl E. Sanders blocked a Georgia House speech by Governor Wallace of Alabama. Here is a close-up of Sanders and the controversy.

By DON McKEE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Gov. Carl E. Sanders, a nonconformist politician, has been busily slapping traditions around with both hands since taking office two years ago.

Sanders describes himself as a "conservative progressive" — and he often gives the jitters to the more conservative and less progressive of his advisers and friends.

His latest shocker was to slam the Capitol door, figuratively, in the face of Alabama's segregationist governor George C. Wallace.

Sanders opposed Wallace's making a speech to the House on invitation of several rural lawmakers. He said Wallace, an avowed candidate for president, should not politic in the legislature and that an incident involving demonstrations might result.

The legislators finally agreed to a compromise. They would give Wallace breakfast at a downtown hotel in exchange for his civil rights speech.

That was fine with Sanders. He said he would not attend the breakfast, but would be most happy to see Wallace if he dropped by the Capitol.

Then Wallace ended the problem by canceling the visit.

Most of the speculation about why Sanders snubbed Wallace has centered on the Georgia governor's political ambitions.

Some observers, including backers of the governor, think he will run in 1966 against Sen. Richard B. Russell, formidable senior senator from Georgia.

Others speculate that Sanders is in line for an appointive post in Washington if President Johnson is returned to the White House.

The state's only Negro legislator, Sen. LeRoy Johnson of Atlanta, says Sanders is the most progressive governor in the South and that he is headed for national office.

Sanders himself is noncommittal.

Of the proposed Wallace trip, Sanders mainly was concerned about being identified with the Alabama states rights champion. He also feared an eruption of demonstrations by pro or anti-Wallace groups.

Sanders has never agreed with Wallace's defiance of federal courts or his independent elector campaign. While Wallace was vowing to stand in the schoolhouse doors, Sanders was campaigning on a law-and-order platform after leading in the fight that kept Georgia schools open despite integration.

The Georgia governor is on record as opposed to the civil rights bill and integration, but he has not waged a fight against either. His friends call him a racial moderate.

Another source of emnity was Wallace's lending aid to former Gov. Marvin Griffin, a bitter political foe and campaign opponent of Sanders in the governor's race.

Sanders has closely aligned himself with President Johnson and the Democratic Party. Both Johnson and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., had praise for Sanders on recent rips to Georgia.

In taking this course despite the strong sentiment against the civil rights bill, Sanders shows the gambling instinct that made him jump into the governor's race.

He was a young, not very well known state senator then. But his campaign was professional. He got the votes.

Sanders took a chance in the open - schools fight. And the people agreed. He beat the odds and pushed through reapportionment of congressional seats by the legislature.

His advisers almost panicked when the governor recently took part in a nationaly televised program on school desegregation with Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy and Roy Wilkins of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Tennis-trim and well groomed, Sanders does not look his 39 years. There are no marks from the fierce battles of his political career.

A non-drinker and non-smoker Sanders has only one habit—success.

Single Primary Date Restored in Election Code

ATLANTA (AP)—House committeemen restored to a proposed elections code Tuesday a requirement that all primaries be held on the same date, tightened voter qualifications and threw out plurality-vote elections.

With these major changes, the House Judiciary Committee reported out the lengthy elections code for floor consideration today. It already has passed the Senate.

"This is basically fair," said Rep. Mitchel P. House of Bibb in arguing for a single primary date instead of two as approved by the Senate.

"This is a convenience to the voters," said House. "And it will preserve the purity of parties by preventing cross-voting. It will encourage joint use by the parties of polling places and voting machines and allow the cost to be shared."

A special commission had included this provision in its original draft of the new code. Although administration leaders backed separate primaries in the Senate, there were some indications that Gov. Carl E. Sanders might go along with the one-primary provision.

The question, of course, was whether the House would.

Under the House committee version, all primaries would be held on the second Wednesday in September—traditional date of Democratic primaries.

Rep. J. Willis Conger of Decatur County sought to restore to the code a list of 30 questions for illiterate voter applicants. This list, in existing law, was replaced in the Senate by six relatively easy questions drawn up by the only Negro member, Sen. Leroy R. Johnson of Atlanta.

"I move we reincorporate the old questions—and any others you can think of," said Conger. Protested Rep. Jack Etheridge of Fulton: "There's no sense in any of these questions—even a lawyer can't answer some of them."

Rep. Maddox Hale of Dade, a respected tactician, spoke up.

"It seems to me that the list of questions we have in the law now are really more stringent than we need," Hale said. "And perhaps the questions in this new elections code do not adequately cover the ground. It would be better for some of us to get together on a compromise."

The committee then defeated 7-5 Conger's motion to restore the 30 questions and later approved a subcommittee amendment requiring 20 questions, including the six from the Senate version.

If an applicant could answer 15 of the questions, then he would be qualified to vote.

Georgia's Negro Senator Is Surprised at Success

ATLANTA (AP)— Tall, quiet-spoken Leroy R. Johnson is a minority of one in the Georgia Senate but his success has surprised him.

Johnson, the first Negro elected to the Senate in 92 years, has won approval of such things as an anti-poll tax resolution and a measure drastically reducing voter qualifications.

"I am convinced this state has moved farther than any other Southern state in the area of changing toward first - class citizenship for all," Johnson said, lighting a long cigar at his Senate desk.

He was interrupted several times during the interview.

A fellow senator stopped by to introduce his two daughters to the Negro legislator. A House member from a rural county wanted Johnson to meet some friends.

This typfies the unusual camaraderie that exists between Johnson and many of the members of the otherwise white General Assembly.

Eloquent emphasis to his assessment of the rapidly changing mood in Georgia was given when the Senate approved Johnson's proposal to throw out a long, difficult questionnaire for illiterate voter applicants.

He said less than 1 per cent of the Negroes applying could pass this test. The Senate voted 35-2 for Johnson's amendment which substituted much easier and fewer questions.

"This will have a tremendous effect on the total citizenry, both Negro and white," the 35-year-old Atlanta attorney said. "Under the law now, the questions can't be answered by even college professors or lawyers."

Questions now asked of illiterate applicants include such sticklers as "What is a republican form of government?" and "What does the Constitution provide regarding the suspension of the privilege of habeas corpus?"

Johnson's amendment cuts the questions from 30 to 6 and merely requires the applicant to identify such office-holders as the President, vice president, U.S. senators from Georgia, governor and sheriff.

He said he believed it would also pass the House.

Asked how he was able to get Senate approval, Johnson replied that a large majority of the 54 senators "are men that recognize a new day is here—they are for what is basically right."

In his brief but busy tenure, the Negro senator has been successful in defeating a House-passed anti-picketing bill and an attempt to strike an old state law requiring hotelries to accommodate persons who affirm good character and abide by rules of the establishment.

He introduced and the Senate approved an anti-poll tax resolution amending the U.S. Constitution. This action was attacked by Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of the Southern opposition to the civil rights bill.

"Some of the Georgia senators said Sen. Russell was out of tune with the times," Johnson said.

Another indication of the new look in Georgia, Johnson said, was his reception at a recent state AFL-CIO convention. The delegates were not segregated.

"And we met in a newly desegregated hotel in Savannah," he said. "But the revealing thing was the reaction of the white delegates. They rushed up after my speech and shook my hand and said, "We're with you."

He had called for labor to join with the Negro in the civil rights push and had drawn a parallel in his speech between the unions and integration organizations.

"One of the surprising things," he said, "was when I came to the part of my speech where I said, 'The face of America is not the face of George Wallace, Barry Goldwater or Dick Russell,' and the delegates applauded."

Johnson said he does not represent only his Negro constituents who comprise 45 per cent of his district's population.

"I have spoken to white groups, met with them and talked with my white constituents," he said. "And I have appointed white page boys."

Johnson, an unassuming man, has proved himself accurate in one political prediction. He said last year that Negro Democrats would soon be recognized by the state party.

Less than three months later, in May 1963, Johnson and A. T. Walden of Atlanta were appointed as the first two Negroes ever named to the State Democratic Executive committee.

"Politics," said the practical Johnson, "are based on the ability to win friends and influence people."

Johnson has done that. He is obviously and easily accepted by most of his white colleagues, serves on four important Senate committees and has not heard segregation mentioned in that body.

His calendar is full of speaking engagements all across the country and Johnson gets considerable mail from the North and East. A precinct captain in Chicago asked for an autographed picture.

Johnson said Gov. Carl E. Sanders, a racial moderate elected over a segregationist, represents the face of the New South and is headed for national office "if he maintains the present state of progressiveness."

The senator's chief critic is Mrs. Johnson, a school librarian. They have a son, Michael, 13.

Sanders Fulfills Expectations

Carl E. Sanders may well be one of the best and most effective governors Georgia has ever had. Make no mistake about that.

Disagree with him, if you please, and we do at times, but give him credit for wanting to forge a record as governor that will be a challenge to those who follow him.

Two years ago, The Enquirer supported Sanders unreservedly, and described him as the kind of leader Georgia had long been waiting for. He has not failed that expectation, and in some ways, he has excelled it.

GRIMES

Sanders is presently at a critical juncture in his term. The bloom is off the rose, so to speak, and some discordant murmers are arising where before there was only praise.

No governor is flawless, of course, but in the undramatic realm of building a better state government, and a better education system, Carl Sanders has performed exceptionally.

The inevitable comparison of Sanders with his gubernatorial neighbor, George Wallace, has damaged him in some quarters, and the unfortunate incident of last week over a Wallace visit to Atlanta magnified the situation.

Wallace has become a national figure —perhaps, even a force—during his year and a half as governor. Many Georgians, myself included, have admired and cheered Wallace's forays into Yankee-land.

But in this same period, the governor of Georgia has busily concentrated on the job of running the state and making it a stronger and better place in which to live.

His crowning achievement will be the new state constitution. In his inaugural address, Sanders pledged to rewrite the cumbersome document from which Georgia government is now derived.

The legislature has been diligently at the task for nearly five weeks. The House produced a better version than could have reasonably been anticipated.

It is vastly superior to the present document, in ways that will affect every Georgian.

Primarily, the House-approved constitution gives additional power to city and county governments, while reducing the power of the legislators in local affairs; it eliminates local constitutional amendments; it allows a local option vote on the industry-penalizing inventory tax; it clears the way for consolidation of multiple school districts in the same county or in neighboring counties; and it will require that gasoline tax money allocated to counties be used only for roads and streets.

Any one of those provisions would almost be worth the trouble of updating the constitution.

Carl Sanders is the man most responsible, just as he was responsible earlier in the year for pushing through a massive educational reform program, and a tax increase for schools.

His intense desire to produce a new constitution undoubtedly was a decisive factor in his coolness last week toward a visit by Gov. Wallace. Sanders did not want any intrusion at this critical time in the deliberations.

Wallace has made his mark on the great national issue of the day.

Sanders is concentrating at present on providing Ga. with a better state government. Let's appreciate that.

House OKs Single Date For Voting

Col. Eng. 6-6-64

ATLANTA (AP) — Rural House members favoring an even start for all politicians voted overwhelmingly Friday for holding all primaries on the same date, defeating efforts to exempt races for county offices.

"We're trying to pass a code for the convenience of the public," said Rep. Arthur Bolton of Spalding, floor leader for Gov. Carl E. Sanders.

The administration won 108-6 on the one-date primary.

Rural backers of the single primary proposal emphasized in the debate that this would prevent county politicains from getting an unfair advantage.

Rep. Roy McCracken of Jefferson tried to get through a change allowing primaries for county offices to be held on any date not earlier than six months before the general election.

"This will leave the authority of calling and holding a county primary in the hands of the county executive committee," he said.

Rep. Thomas Murphy of Haralson asked: "They could hold county elections in May and that would give them June, July, August and part of September to shoot at you and me, wouldn't it?"

McCracken lost 98-15 on his amendment.

Then the House killed 80-39 a similar proposal by Rep. Denmark Groover of Bibb. Groover sought to include nomination of House members in the McCracken any-time primary.

As the elections code arrived from the Senate, it provided separate primaries for Democrats and Republicans. The House fixed one primary date for everybody—the second Wednesday in September, date of the Democratic primary.

Common Primary Date Is Best

The Georgia House last week improved considerably on the election code sent over from the Senate, demonstrating anew that all wisdom is not inherent in bodies completely based on population.

In the Senate version, separate dates were established for the Democratic and Republican primaries, with the Republican primary set for August, one month before the Democratic.

The House restored the common primary date for both parties, which is the rule in most states that have a two-party system. Not only is the single primary date convenient for the voters, and less costly, but it discourages cross-over voting.

Perhaps more important was the House decision that all Democratic primaries must be held on the same day throughout the state.

This will eliminate the practice by some counties of holding certain elections during the spring, or at any other time that strikes the fancy of the local Democratic committee.

One date — the second Wednesday in September —for all voting will eliminate such situations as arose earlier this year in Quitman County, when there was confusion over the qualifying deadline for an April election.

Voter interest and participation is usually stimulated by having multiple contests on the ballot.

Looking toward the day when a real two - party system may evolve in Georgia, a common primary date is only logical. A period of transition will be necessary. But consider Kentucky, a one-party stronghold for decades. It now has two Republican senators. Arizona is another example. Democrats are still in a large majority but some prominent Republicans hail from that state.

Like the proposed constitution, the proposed election law changes represent a solid advance for the people's voice in state and local government.

GOP Leader Makes Joint Primaries Bid

Col. Enq. 6-10-64

ATLANTA (AP)—State Sen. Joe Tribble, Georgia's top Republican, made a bid Tuesday for his party to plan joint primaries with the Democrats in as many cities and counties as possible.

"Joint, cost-sharing primaries would save a great deal of money for both parties and we are doing considerable planning in this direction," Tribble, the Republican state chairman, said after a meeting of the party's executive committee.

The committee moved a step in the direction of joint primaries by setting primary qualifying fees at the same figures as the Democrats.

The committee also chose Tribble to lead the Georgia delegation at the Republican National Convention opening July 13 at San Francisco.

Twenty-two of the 24 delegates are pledged to vote for Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona at the convention, including Tribble, who has worked before in Goldwater's behalf. The other two delegates are uncommitted but Republican sources expect that they, too, will vote for Goldwater.

Tribble in supporting the idea of joint primaries, said that such a plan was used successfully in Chatham County two years ago. He would not speculate, however, on how many county or city Democratic organizations would join in such a move.

Candidates have from June 15 until July 24 to qualify for the primary scheduled now on Sept. 9. Should the legislature, now in session, decide on a different plan, the Republicans will deal with the problem when it arises.

The qualifying fees include $1,000 for statewide offices, $750 for congress and superior court judges and $500 for solicitors general and state senators.

The executive committee also decided to operate two headquarters offices—one in Atlanta, and a new one in Savannah, Tribble's hometown.

Tribble said the committee adopted the largest Republican budget the party has ever had in Georgia. Part of the money will be used to conduct a vigorous presidential campaign in the state, he said.

A BILL

To be entitled an Act to amend an Act effecting a complete revision of the laws of this State relating to the qualification and registration of voters, approved March 25, 1958 (Ga. Laws 1958, p. 269), as amended, so as to provide for additional places for registration; to authorize registration by deputies; to provide the procedure connected therewith; to repeal conflicting laws; and for other purposes.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF GEORGIA:

Section 1. An Act effecting a complete revision of the laws of this State relating to the qualification and registration of voters, approved March 25, 1958 (Ga. Laws 1958, p. 269), as amended, is hereby amended by striking Section 10 in its entirety and inserting in lieu thereof a new Section 10 to read as follows:

"Section 10. In those counties where the registrars have an office separate from the office of the tax collector or tax commissioner, the registrars shall keep the completed registration cards in such office which shall be in the courthouse or other publicly owned, or publicly rented, or publicly leased building. If no such office exists, the registrars shall keep the completed registration cards in the office of the tax collector or the tax commissioner. For the purpose of taking applications for registration and for the purpose of registering voters, such number of registrars or deputy registrars as shall be designated by the chief registrar shall be stationed at the office where the completed registration cards are kept at such times as said office is open during regular office hours. The chief registrar or the governing authority in any county, in addition to the office referred to hereinbefore, may designate other places in the county to be used for the purpose of receiving applications for registration and for the registration of voters, but there shall not be more than one such place in each militia district in the county. Blank registration cards shall be kept in the office referred to hereinbefore and may be kept in such other places as shall be designated as places for registration as provided for hereinbefore."

Section 2. Said Act is further amended by striking Section 14 in its entirety and inserting in lieu thereof a new Section 14 to read as follows:

"Section 14. All cards shall be turned over to the registrars and examined by them within 10 days from the date of the application. If the answer to the question propounded to the applicant relating to the offenses enumerated in Paragraph I of Section II of Article II of the Constitution is answered in the affirmative and the applicant has not been pardoned, the registrars shall reject the application. If such question is answered in the negative, the board shall notify the applicant in writing to appear before it on a day and time certain. At that time, the applicant shall be subjected to an examination as to his qualifications. Such notice shall be given within 5 days after the date of the examination of the card. The examination of the applicant shall be conducted in accordance with the procedure hereinafter prescribed.

"In lieu of the above, if additional places for registration have been designated, the Chief registrar shall designate one or more registrars or one or more deputies, or any combination thereof, to act as a board of registrars for the purpose of taking applications for registration, examining applicants and registering persons to vote. All of this may be accomplished at the time of the application or within the time limitation specified hereinbefore in this Section. While so acting, such registrar or registrars, or deputy or deputies, or combination thereof, shall have all the rights and powers and shall be subject to all the limitations as are applicable to the board of registrars. All completed registration cards shall be turned over to the board of registrars and shall be kept in the office provided for elsewhere in this Act."

Section 3. All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed.

GOP Figures Cite Fraud Chance at Poll

At least 36 Georgia counties in one way or another had more registered voters than over-18 residents in 1960, according to statistics released Saturday by state Republican officials.

The statistics were prepared for the use of Republican gubernatorial candidate A. Edward Smith, a Columbus lawyer.

THEY ARE DESIGNED to show, officials said, that a state law requiring a petition of 5 per cent of the voters registered in 1960 to get Mr. Smith on the general election ballot means using as a basis an inflated, partly illegal total.

Another point that Republicans are expected to make is that top-heavy registration lists—laden with the names of dead, nonresidents and criminals—are an open invitation to election fraud.

Some of the lists cited by the GOP may have been purged since 1960. The 1960 figures must be used, however, in figuring the number of petition signatures needed to place Mr. Smith's name on the ballot.

Long County was the most extreme example among the 36. It had a 1960 over-18 population of 2,162. Voter registration was 3,470, or 160 per cent of the over-18 population.

(Georgians may register to vote at the age of 18.)

IN SEVEN OTHER counties for which no racial breakdown on voter registration was available, the ratio of 1960 voter registration to over-18 population was as follows:

Bryan, 104 per cent; Dawson, 101 per cent; Franklin, 146 per cent; Rabun, 118 per cent; Telfair, 107 per cent; Towns, 119 per cent, and Union, 143 per cent.

Registration figures by race were available for the other 28 counties cited by the GOP. In 10 of the 28, both the white registration individually and total registration—Negro and white combined—exceeded the over-18 population in each category.

These 10 and the ratio of registration to over-18 population are as follows: Appling, 124 per cent; Bacon, 132 per cent; Brantley, 116 per cent; Butts, 107 per cent; Candler, 106 per cent; Dodge, 124 per cent; Fannin, 103 per cent; Greene, 114 per cent; Montgomery, 102 per cent, and Pauding, 102 per cent.

(In 17 of the remaining 18, it is the white registration that exceeds the over-18 population; in the [illegible] registration of both

THE 17 COUNTIES in which white registration exceeds white over-18 population are: Calhoun, 101 per cent; Clinch, 104 per cent; Early, 102 per cent; Elbert, 111 per cent; Harris, 114 per cent; Heard, 104 per cent; Macon, 100.8 per cent; Marion, 111 per cent; Miller, 102 per cent; Pulaski, 100.1 per cent; Seminole, 131 per cent; Taliaferro, 109 per cent; Taylor, 106 per cent; Treutlen, 106 per cent; Turner, 103 per cent; Washington, 115 per cent, and Wheeler, 102 per cent.

Negro Vote Strength Shifts Little

As Georgia gets ready for its big quadrennial political marathon, latest registration figures available by race show 163,535 Negroes among the state's 1,293,231 voters.

The figures are not exact, for the practice of reporting voter statistics by race is fading away in Georgia. But they give a fairly accurate picture of the situation.

They indicate that, despite various and vigorous integration activities in the last two years, including federal efforts to end alleged discrimination against Negro voters, Negro registration has not increased very much.

In Macon and Albany, where Negro integration movements have been at a high pitch in recent months, a pickup in Negro registration has occurred.

But Negro leaders say it is the result of the first stirrings of a Negro voter registration campaign, and not a spontaneous outgrowth of other activities.

THE REGISTRATION campaign is statewide, coordinated by Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.'s Southern Christian Leadership Conference and headed by Atlanta businessman J. H. Calhoun, a longtime NAACP and Negro Republican leader.

The bulk of the Negro voting strength in Georgia today went on the books in 1946 after the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed the white primary. Registration then was about three-fourths what it is now, 16 years later.

A compilation of statistics from official sources shows that, in the 118 counties on which information was available, Negro registration has increased in 65 of the counties since 1958, has decreased in 44 counties and has not changed in nine counties. Statewide, it is up about 5,000 from 1958.

But neither the gains nor the losses have been spectacular on a percentage basis or in relation to white registration.

AS MATTERS stand now, the Negro vote appears to be of greater potential influence in the Democratic primary under the county unit system than in the general election under the popular vote.

Negro registration is 12.8 per cent of the state total. In 61 counties with a total of 172 unit votes—almost 42 per cent of the unit vote total of 410—the proportion of Negro voters equals or exceeds the state proportion.

These include 6 six-unit counties, 13 four-unit counties and 42 two-unit counties.

Negro registration is 20 per cent or more in 23 counties with 60 unit votes. Two of these are six-unit counties, 4 are three-unit and 18 are two-unit.

ACCORDING TO the 1960 census, Georgia has 34 counties in which nonwhites (the census term) outnumber whites. These predominantly nonwhite populations range from 50.3 per cent in Jones County to 74.8 per cent in Hancock County.

But registration in these counties is erratic. No pattern is discernible. Baker and Webster counties have no Negro voters. But the Negro percentage of total registration goes as high as 46.6 per cent (in McIntosh County).

In eight of the 34 counties, Negro registration is 20 per cent or more of the total registration, and in six others it exceeds the statewide average of 12.8 per cent.

Liberty County, according to available figures, is the only county in Georgia in which Negro registration exceeds white. The difference is so slight, however, that the margin could switch easily from one race to the other. A federal report has Liberty nonwhite registration outnumbering white by 2,014 to 2,000, or 50.2 per cent to 49.8 per cent.

THE HEAVIEST Negro registration in numbers is in big-city counties.

In numerous counties, in the event of close state races, the Negro vote could hold the balance of power in determining how the counties' unit votes go.

For all the talk about the heavy Negro vote in Atlanta, there are 15 counties in which Negro percentage of total registration is greater than in Fulton, where overwhelmingly white areas outside the city bring the Negro percentage down to 24.7.

Aside from the big-city counties, the heaviest Negro registration is in counties scattered along a line from Greene, in east central Georgia, to McIntosh, on the coast. These are counties with large Negro populations.

In southwest Georgia, where there is also great concentration of Negro population, the registration picture is quite different. There are comparatively few Negro voters.

THERE ARE not many in north Georgia, either, but the reasons are different. Negro population is sparse there.

The historic background of sizeable Negro registration in east central Georgia is explained by a politician from the area. It is recent history, dating back to 1946, and brought about, he says, by three factors — the end of the white primary, the hot governor's race between Eugene Talmadge and Jimmy Carmichael (Ed Rivers also ran) and long-time anti - Talmadge sentiment in the section.

After the white primary was outlawed, Negroes began to register and officials didn't raise any objections, largely because they figured the Negroes would vote against Ol' Gene, the politician recalls.

Negro registration has held up in the counties, and candidates in local races now seek the Negro vote, he said.

He was referring to counties like Greene, Hancock and Taliaferro, where in 1960, Negro voters accounted for 36.1 per cent, 45.8 per cent and 45.4 per cent, respectively, of the total registration.

CONCERNING Liberty County, a federal report says that Negroes there attribute their high registration to a 1946 sheriff's race in which their votes were sought.

In McIntosh County, where 1958 registration was 46.6 per cent Negro, the Negro vote has long been a big factor in races for sheriff and other local offices.

In such counties, there is the inevitable question of whether or not white leaders who get the

In Bibb and Dougherty counties (Macon and Albany), the drives for more Negro voters already are under way.

Rev. E. B. Paschal, the Negro Baptist minister who has led the integration movement, is heading the registration drive in Bibb.

The ambitious goal is to add 20,000 Negro voters to the Bibb list, which in 1961 had 5,829 Negroes and 31,284 whites. It is possibly too ambitious a goal, for there may not be that many more Negroes of voting age living in the county.

THE MOVEMENT has new confidence since the Macon bus boycott. "We bluffed on the boycott and it worked," Rev. Paschal said. "We didn't know when we called the boycott how it would turn out."

He sounded a theme that dominates the Negro voter drive: "All of our people realize that the real power behind any of these movements is at the ballot box."

He expects Negro registration to stimulate white registration. "The other side is not asleep on this, either," he added.

In Albany, the coordinator for the Negro voter drive is Dr. William J. Reese Jr., an osteopath. There the goal is more modest—to put 5,000 new Negro voters on the lists by the May 5 registration deadline. Dougherty registration in 1960 was 12,161 whites and 2,858 Negroes.

In February, more Negroes than whites registered, Dr. Reese said. But he is not wildly excited about prospects, for the news of increased Negro registration pepped up white registration, he said.

"Unfortunately, the tradition is that we don't vote," Dr. Reese said. "There is an apathy all the way around toward participation in government. It pertains even now. Voter registration has not kept pace with other civil rights activities."

THE NEGRO vote has been a balance of power factor in some elections, but "We have never been able to achieve a mass vote," he said.

"I wish we could," he added.

This year, for the first time, Albany and Dougherty County polling places will not be segregated by race. For many years, Negroes voted at the city auditorium and whites at the courthouse and the boxes were counted separately.

U.S. District Judge W. A. Bootle, ruling in a suit brought by Negroes, in January ordered this to end. Registration officials now are dividing the lists by sex on the premise that this is the most discreet way to handle the change.

The Dougherty registrar's office has noted a heavy registration of Negroes lately. All registration is likely to pick up before May 5, however, as various civic clubs get their campaigns going.

Registrar J. L. Bacon said representatives of a woman's club visited his office not long ago and found that 13 members were not registered.

Telfair Files Voter List With Court

Atl. Con. 8-11-62 p.5
V-R - Georgia

The Telfair County registrars have filed a list of registered voters with the Telfair Superior Court clerk and the secretary of state, removing the necessity of a hearing on a petition to force the filing.

A petition to force compliance with a law requiring registrars to supply a "perfected" list was filed in Superior Court at McRae Wednesday.

The secretary of state's office reported Friday that the Telfair list had arrived.

The petition was filed against three members of the Board of Registrars and Tax Commissioner Henry B. Williams, deputy registrar, who last year was accused by a federal grand jury of failing to register properly voters and purge the voters' list.

The petition was filed by attorney Willy W. Walker for Dr. Frank Mann Sr., McRae physician, and Mallette Smith of Milan, candidate for Democratic committeeman.

Salinger Party

6. Q.—Mr. President, what did you think, sir, of the rather harsh things that Republican Congressman Joel Broyhill of near-by Virginia had to say about you and your press secretary because Mr. [Pierre] Salinger [White House press secretary] gave a party last night for his Democratic opponent?

A.—Well, I can see why he'd be quite critical of that and — but I will say I've never read as much about a Congressman who's in the paper as I do about that Congressman and see less legislative results.

7. Q.—Mr. President, Martin King has telegraphed you asking for Federal action against anti-Negro terrorism in the South and at least one Negro organization has threatened to picket you with the allegation that the Federal Government has not done enough. Could you tell us whether you have answered Dr. King and give us the though that you gave him? And whether you can say that or not, can you give us a comment on the problem?

A. — We're in contact with Dr. King and others who have communicated to us about it. I don't know any more outrageous action which I've seen occur in this country for a good many months or years than the burning of a church — two churches — because of the effort made by Negroes to be registered to vote.

The United States Constitution provides for freedom to vote, and this country must permit every man and woman to exercise their franchise. To shoot, as we saw in the case in Mississippi, two young people who were involved in an effort to register people, to burn churches as a reprisal with all of the provisions of the United States Constitution — at least the basic provision of the Constitution guaranteeing freedom of worship — I consider both cowardly as well as outrageous.

The United States now has a number of FBI agents in there and as soon as we are able to find out who did it we'll arrest them, and we'll bring them before a jury, and I think that—I'm sure they'll be appropriately dealt with.

But let me say that nothing, I think—and I'm sure this is the view of the people of the states—the right to vote is very basic. If we're going to neglect that right, then all of our talk about freedom is hollow, and therefore we shall give every protection that we can to anybody seeking to vote.

I hope everybody will register in this country. I hope they will vote. I commend those who are making the effort to register every citizen. They deserve the protection of the United States Government, the protection of the states, the protection of local communities, and we'll do everything we possibly can to make sure that that protection is assured.

And if it requires extra legislation, and extra force, we shall do that.

7 Counties Get 33 Pct. Of Voters

By JACK NELSON

Since Marvin Griffin last ran for governor in 1954, the state's seven most populated counties have gained 113,034 voters. The counties — Fulton, DeKalb, Chatham, Bibb, Cobb, Richmond and Muscogee—now comprise 33 per cent of Georgia's total registration.

New registration figures released Thursday by the Secretary of State's office show the state now has 1,367,917 voters.

Fulton and DeKalb counties account for 82,963 of the additional voters since 1954.

Griffin, who won election under the county unit system with 36.3 per cent of the popular vote, failed to win a majority of any of the seven most populous counties in 1954. He polled 25 per cent of the total vote in Fulton County and carried it by a slight margin.

(Fred Hand won DeKalb with 29.68 per cent of the votes, followed by Charlie Gowen with 29.52

Mrs. Wilson also said she did not know why the night riders had picked on the house where she lived. She said neither she nor any members of the family had been engaged in any integrationist activities or other actions which might arouse segregationists.

Mrs. Wilson said if she is not detained by officers she plans to leave Georgia immediately after she gets out of jail.

She said she is going to Indianapolis to join her husband.

Quivering with fright as she spoke, Mrs. Wilson refused to be photographed and said she feared for her own life and those of her family as a result of the shooting.

Mrs. Philpot and her nine other children vacated their home early Thursday and moved into a house with relatives.

Mrs. Wilson is a native of Paulding County and is employed by a local white physician.

Paulding County officials expressed surprise at some of the members of prominent families involved in the shooting. They said the dead man, Parks, was very quiet, had never been in any trouble and was known as a "good family man."

A reporter who went to the Philpot home Thursday afternoon found a loaded, cocked .32-20 nickel-plated revolver and a flashlight in a ditch.

Perren said the flashlight and pistol apparently were left behind as the night visitors dashed to safety.

DOOR BLASTED

The door facing on the Philpot home had been blasted at close range with No. 6 shotgun pellets. Shotgun shell wadding was scattered over the porch.

Many window panes in the house had been shattered, apparently the result of previous shootings.

An open Bible lay on the ledge of one of the bullet-shattered windows.

Officers said the shotgun blast was a "parting shot" and may have been fired by the fatally wounded man as he slumped to the floor of the porch. They said the man managed to roll down an embankment to the edge of the highway.

According to the youth's confessions, the night riders left the dying man in a ditch and drove away. However, they returned shortly afterward and picked up his body.

Humphreys and Gamel took the dead man to the Paulding County Hospital where Sheriff Clay was summoned. Clay said when he arrived Humphrey and Gamel said they had never seen the dead man before and that they only brought him to the hospital when he drove up to them and said he had been shot.

Thirty minutes later, the sheriff said, Humphreys and Gamel broke down and told of the night ride.

Two of the other arrested men confirmed their stories and two others refused to make statements, the sheriff said.

Solicitor Perren spent most of Thursday poring over law books trying to decide what charges he would bring against the six.

SIGN CONFESSIONS

Humphreys and Gamel signed confessions implicating the other men in the night ride that ended in death, Sheriff Clay said.

Parks, father of one son, was employed as a mechanic by Billy Joe Jones, a candidate for Paulding County representative in the General Assembly and head of Marvin Griffin's campaign for governor in Paulding.

CHILDREN SCREAM

Mrs. Wilson said she opened fire through the door while her mother, Mrs. Philpot, and nine smaller children screamed and cried.

After she fired five shots, Mrs. Wilson said she heard a shotgun blast, then men running.

When the smoke cleared, LeRoy Parks, 25, lay dead, a pistol bullet through his heart, and Gene Ables, about 30, a clerk for the City of Dallas, was wounded in the arm. Sheriff Clay identified the other men as Franklin Parker, 26, son of the owner of the Dallas New Era; Hoyt Prather, about 25, an automobile mechanic; M. A. Nichols, about 40, an automobile manufacturing plant worker, and Jimmy Humphreys, 19, and Billy Gamel, 18, all of Paulding County.

The arrested men refused to say whether they are members of the Ku Klux Klan, the sheriff said.

LACK REASON

Both Clay and Perren were at a loss to explain why the night riders picked the Philpot residence. Sheriff Clay said windows had been shot out of the same house about 60 days ago and Mrs. Philpot said a white man attempted to abduct her in an automobile several weeks ago. She said she was forced to jump from a moving car to escape him.

Sheriff Clay said other Negro homes have been fired on in Paulding County and a Negro restaurant was destroyed by an explosion last January. Another Negro cafe has been damaged by fire within the past 12 months.

"But I think this is the end of it," Sheriff Clay said. "This is a terrible thing, but I don't think it will happen again."

Mrs. Wilson also said she did not know why the night riders had picked on the house where she lived. She said neither she nor any members of the family had been engaged in any integrationist activities or other actions which might arouse segregationists.

Thousands Remain Jobless As Incomes Climb to Records

By JIM MONTGOMERY

Not all of Georgia, nor by any means all Georgians, are sharing alike in the state's 1962 economic upsurge—its biggest in seven years.

Jim Montgomery

While Georgia's total and per capita personal income are advancing rapidly to new highs, thousands of individual Georgians remain unemployed—and even unemployable—or underemployed, dependent on subsistence wages, welfare or charity.

And though statewide nonfarm employment continues soaring to ever-higher new record levels, nearly a dozen Georgia counties are rated by the U.S. Labor department as areas of "substantial and persistent unemployment."

Even after discounting seasonal or temporary factors, this means that these counties have unemployment that:

1. Now equals or exceeds 6 per cent of the work force.
2. Has averaged from at least 50 to 100 per cent higher than the national unemployment rate for from one to four years.

Georgia areas so classified in the Labor department's September bulletin, issued this month, on labor market trends throughout the nation are:

Alamo (Wheeler County), Blakely (Early County), Buena Vista (Marion County), Calhoun (Gordon County), Carrollton (Carroll County), Cedartown-Rockmart (Paulding and Polk Counties), Statesboro (Bulloch County), Pembroke (Bryan County), Soperton (Treutlen County), and Warrenton (Warren County).

These certainly are not the only counties in Georgia burdened with substantial and persistent unemployment.

Too many others also have severely depressed economies.

But the counties listed above are the only ones in Georgia with high unemployment which have either been recommended for consideration under the Area Redevelopment Act or received individual certification as to their jobless rates to qualify for special consideration in connection with federal procurement and other area assistance programs.

Four other Georgia counties are included in the Labor department's latest list of areas of "substantial" unemployment; that is, where joblessness in September amounted to 6 per cent or more of the work force.

These are Walker County (as part of the Chattanooga area), and the Waycross area counties of Ware, Atkinson and Pierce.

What's more, despite this year's almost steadily rising employment and declining unemployment, none of Georgia's five major metropolitan areas are classified as areas of either "over-all labor shortages" (meaning an unemployment rate of less than 1½ per cent) or even "relatively low unemployment" (meaning a jobless rate of 1½ to 2.9 per cent).

Atlanta, Augusta, Columbus, Macon and Savannah are all classified as areas of "moderate unemployment" (meaning that from 3 to 5.9 per cent of the work force is jobless).

But of the nation's 150 major labor market areas (a list which includes Georgia's five largest metropolitan areas), none are now ranked as areas of "over-all labor shortages."

And only 10 enjoy "relatively low unemployment."

The great majority, 96 including the five in Georgia, are classified as areas of "moderate unemployment."

And the remaining 44 are described as areas of "relatively substantial unemployment," 35 of them with jobless rate of 6 to 8.9 per cent, six with 9 to 11.9 per cent of the work force unemployed, and three with unemployment rates of 12 per cent or more.

While Georgia is by no means hindmost among the 50 states in any economic respect, it is clear that even its most rapid rate of economic growth in seven years is inadequate.

Too many Georgians in too many areas of the state remain enfeebled by poverty.

And they suffer uncounted consequences.

So, as a result, do all Georgians as long as so extravagant a waste of Georgia's most valuable resources—its people, all of them—persists.

But Georgia can bring all of its human resources into effective participation in life and society only by redoubling, and then constantly accelerating, its already unprecedented investment of money and effort in educational and economic development.

With so many needs yet to be fulfilled, Georgia cannot afford to relax in the glory of its progress to date.

Sixty-three Georgia counties and 10 cities receive money from the federal government under P.L. 874, the school maintenance and operation law. Three counties receive a total of $1,189,124 under P.L. 815, which provides for construction and planning. These figures, from the state education department, reflect money earmarked for the districts during the last academic year; in most cases, final adjustments will be made. The total, however, will remain between $6,500,000 and $7,000,000 for the year.

8 AREAS IN SOUTH EYE NEGRO BALLOT

N. Y. Times 10-30-62

Vote Could Tip the Scales in Close House Races

By CLAUDE SITTON

Special to The New York Times

ATLANTA, Oct., Oct. 29 — As a result of their drive for political power, Negroes in the Southeast are expected to exert an important influence in half of the area's serious Congressional races.

Their support, centered largely in cities, is committed to President Kennedy's domestic program. The only defections from the Democratic party are expected in contests where its candidates are stanch conservatives.

The effect of this support will be negligible in national terms. Because of the absence of a two-party system in the region as a whole, there are only 15 spirited races between Democrats and Republicans.

Nevertheless, a spot check indicated that this quickening of the Negroes' political pulse has important future implications for the area. It consists of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi.

Negro leaders were interviewed in person and by telephone in the eight districts where races are considered close enough for their support to be a potentially decisive factor.

They expressed these general conclusions:

¶A two-party system would be advantageous to them but they have done little to bring it about because of the ultraconservatism of most Southern Republicans.

¶They are still concerned principally with increasing their strength at the polls and developing new leadership.

¶The average voter is growing more aware that his ballot can bring about economic and social change.

¶No true politics of protest has developed and Negroes are willing to support Democratic candidates who favor the Kennedy Administration's proposals on health, education and labor.

¶Equal job opportunity is the prime issue.

Viewpoint Epitomized

The hope that underlies the Negroes' campaign for an effective political role in the region was summed up by Dr. Reginald A. Hawkins of Charlotte, N. C.

"We can gain more in one day at the ballot box than we can gain in one year in the courts," he asserted.

The devotion to the Democrats goes back to Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal. "Roosevelt in the minds of many people is a god and he's a Democrat," an Atlanta Negro said.

But this loyalty is also attributable to the actions of the Kennedy Administration, according to Dr. R. C. Bell, an Atlanta dentist.

"I strongly believe that the Democratic party with the New Frontier has more to offer the country than the Republican party ever will," Dr. Bell said.

Two Chattanooga, Tenn., leaders agreed that the Kennedy Administration had won new respect there as the result of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity. Three plants have opened skilled jobs to Negroes under that program.

All of those interviewed said that the Administration's advocacy of medical care for the aged under Social Security and Federal aid to education were overwhelmingly popular.

Favors 2-Party System

Some praised Mr. Kennedy's use of troops to enforce court-ordered desegregation at the University of Mississippi. Others contended that he had no choice.

A Columbia, S. C., leader who is a Republican, said that Negroes had been discouraged from supporting Republican candidates by two factors.

One is the belief that most of the new Republican strength there and in many other Southern states is made up of Democrats who switched allegiance because of the national party's stand on civil rights.

The second is the ultraconservative approach of most Republican candidates, who by and large oppose all of the social and welfare legislation that Negroes favor.

The Republicans may feel the bite of the Negroes' growing power at the polls most sharply next week in the Eighth and Ninth Districts of North Carolina.

In the Eighth, a newly gerrymandered district that includes populous Charlotte, Representative A. Paul Kitchin, a Democrat, and Representative Charles R. Jonas, a Republican, are in a close contest.

Both are staunch conservatives and have little appeal for Negro voters. Nevertheless, an effort is being made to turn out 10,000 of them in the district. If successful, this could bring a Kitchin victory.

Those behind the campaign say that because Mr. Kitchin is a Democrat he would be more likely to support the Kennedy program, particularly if Negro voters provided the winning margin.

Loyalty May Play Role

An almost identical situation exists in the adjacent Ninth District, where Representative Hugh Q. Alexander, a Democrat, faces serious opposition from James T. Broyhill Jr., a popular young Republican. Here again both men are conservatives and virtually the only motivation for Negro voters is their loyalty to the national Democratic party.

The chances of a pro-Kennedy Democratic Congressional candiate in Tennessee's Third District (Chattanooga) appeared to depend largely on Negro backing. He is Wilkes T. Thrasher Jr., who defeated Representatives James B. Frazier, a conservative Democrat, in the primary.

Mr. Thrasher is opposed by William Brock 3d, scion of a wealthy candy-manufacturing family and an advocate of the ardent conservatism espoused by Senator Barrc Goldwater of Arizona.

Another narrow Tennessee race may also be determined by Negroes. It involves two independents, Representatives J. Carlton Loser, whose record reflects little support for the President's program, and State Representative Richard Fulton, a pro-Kennedy candidate.

Mr. Loser emerged from the Democratic primary with a 72-vote margin over Mr. Fulton. But a dispute developed over some of the ballots cast for him and he agreed to run in the general election as an independent against Mr. Fulton.

Charles L weltner, the Democratic nominee in Georgia's Fifth District (Atlanta), is considered to have a slight edge now over his Republican opponent, L. J. O'Callaghan. However, political observers contend that Mr. Weltner, who has adopted a middle-of-the-road position, cannot win without strong Negro support.

May Back Republican

The one heated race in which Negroes may back the Republican candidate is in South Carolina's Second District (Columbia). A Democratic loss here would have little effect on President Kennedy's legislative proposals.

Both candidates are ultraconservative. State Representative Albert Watson, a Democrat, is an outspoken segregationist who bolted the party in 1960 to head a Democrats for Nixon-Lodge faction. He faces State Representative Floyd D. Spence, another conservative Democrat who changed his party allegiance only last summer.

Observers predict that many Negroes will vote for Mr. Spence because of his opponent's racism.

A similar protest may cost two Virginia Democratic candidates Negro votes. Representative Porter Hardy, an ultraconservative member of Senator Harry F. Byrd's political organization, faces Louis B. Fine, a somewhat more liberal Republican, in the Second District (Norfolk).

Representative J. Vaughn Gary, another Byrd Democrat, is running against two ultraconservatives in the Third District (Richmond). They are Dr. Louis H. Williams, a Republican, and Alfred T. Dudley, independent.

Although both Democrats are now expected to win, the defection of Negro voters to the Republicans could make the races uncomfortably close.

People in Trouble

What is a "case?" A social worker in any of the United Hospital Fund's member hospitals will tell you that a "case" is a patient in trouble. It might be a mother of nine, overworked and emotionally disturbed. It might be a convalescent teenager who needs a home with understanding foster parents. It might be a chronically ill person who can be sent home is a homemaker is found to help.

Shorter hospital stays, meaning less expense and better morale, can be arranged with the help of hospital social workers. Their work is made possible by the United Hospital Fund campaign. Contributions may be sent to the United Hospital Fund, 3 East 54th Street, New York 22.

Buck's head Opinion

Much of the enjoyment and fun of watching and listening to poloitical returns is being eliminated from the traditional election day 'wakes' of past years.

There is a certain amount of anticipation on election night as the returns begin to pour in trying to predict whether the early returns are indicative and will show the final results. Now-days, however, with all the new electronic brains and gadgets the net works put into operation as soon as the first few votes begin to trickle in, they almost immediately begin 'feeding' the results into the 'brains' and they in turn come out with predictions on the results.

There was a day when the final results were indicated only when the final votes came in and people sat up far into the night as they guessed and predicted what would happen when returns from certain precincts came in.

We are of the opinion that the networks are slowly but gradually and certainly destroying their position of attention getters on election night by the practice of trying to be the first to predict "what the first few votes show will be the final results".

Funny though, come to think about it, while they rush on the air to make flat-footed statements as to which sandidates "are elected on the basis of the early returns which have been fed into the XYZ machine", we can't recall hearing, after the election, how many of them were right and how many were wrong.

The assumption on the part of most of us is that these new-fangled machines are infallible. But we wonder just how they have been coming out the last few elections, are they actually

Undefeated Northside Tigers Meet Murphy Eagles In Milk Bowl Game Friday Night At Grant Field For City, Region 3AAA Football Championship

The unbeaten Northside High Tigers of Coach Wayman Creel will meet the Murphy Eagles of Coach Lawrence Thompson, defending city champions, in the annual Milk Bowl game at Grant Field on Friday night. Pre-game ceremonies will begin at 7:30 and the kickoff is set for 8 o'clock. To the winner will go the city and Region 3-AAA championships.

Proceeds from the advance tickets sales will go to the Ira Jarrell Milk Fund for underprivilged school children.

The Milk Bowl game will feature two of the finest offensive teams to play in the city in recent years. The Tigers have scored 220 point in 10 games while giving up only 80 points. The Eagles scored 205 points in nine games, allowing only 59 points.

The two teams met in the regular season and Northside was the winner, 13-12, in one of the closest games of the season. Charles Mason's 65-yard run late in the game gave the Tigers the win.

Mason, Buz Bonner, Nory LeBoun and Pete Holland have sparked the Northside attack throughout the season. Roy Jarrett, Jimmy Berry and Terry Moon have been the Eagles top scorers. Jarrett and Mason are considered two of the top college prospects among the many backfield stars in the city.

Last year the Eagles won the Milk Bowl game over Southwest, 6-3, before some 28,000 fans at Grant Field. The defending city champions returned only three starters from that team. They are Roy Jarrett, halfback; Tommy Yates, and Mac Perry, a starting end who was shifted to halfback just before the 1962 season opened. Five of the graduating Eagles signed grants-in-aid scholarships to Southeastern Conference schools.

Downtown Connector Said 37% Complete, 27.9% Time Used

Construction of the Atlanta Expressway "Downtown Connector" was 37 per cent completed as of November 1, according to the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. The contractor had used 27.9 per cent of his allotted time.

The Chamber reported also that another contractor had used 24.8 per cent of his time in completing 35 per cent of the so-called "Airport Connector" highway.

The downtown project advanced 9 per cent toward final completion during the month of October, and the airport road 2 per cent.

The Chamber's Expressway Committee, headed by Rawson Haverty, has been keeping a month-by-month check on the two vital highway links. Mr. Haverty said the findings are based on figures supplied by State Highway officials.

Westminster Wildcats To Meet Gainesville For Championship In Gainesville Saturday Night

The Westminster Wildcats will meet Gainesville Elephants in Gainesville on Saturday night for the Region 5-AAA championship. This is the Wildcats first season in AAA competition.

Coach Charlie Brake's eleven goes into the championship battle with an 8-2 record and a state ranking of No. 5. The Wildcats lost a close battle to Gainsville, 19-14 during the regular season, but closed out the season with an impressive 14-13 comeback win against Marietta last weekend.

In fullback John Martin, the Wildcats have one of the finest power runners in the state to go with a well balanced attack and a stout defense. In ten games Westminster has scored 193 points while allowing their opponents only 57 points.

THE OTHER SIDE

8TH Ward Definitely Republican As O'Callaghan, MacIntyre Win, Negro Vote Split In House Race

The main points in the election of Tuesday were missed by the local analysts.

Charles Weltner, contrary to comments made Tuesday night on the NBC election broadcast, was NOT elected entirely because of the Negro vote in the District.

Examination of the returns by precincts show that for the first time in the memory of local politicians, the colored vote DID split. There are eleven precincts which are predominately colored. They are 3-A, 3-B, 3-E, 3-H, 3-K, and 3-N; 4-I; 6-H, 6-I; 7-A and 7-D.

The results in these eleven precincts gave Weltner 10,307 and O'Callaghan 4,293. This was less than the margin by which Weltner won. Of course the switch of the 10,307 Negro votes from Weltner to O'Callaghan woud have changed the results and elected the Republican candidate.

So, while the Negro vote was in Weltern's favor, the colored votes that he obtained were not entirely responsible for his victory.

Actually, the same tactics were used to split the Negro votes away from the Republican candidate that have so successfully been used in elections throughout the country in swinging the tide toward the Democrats. In other words they actually were the "balance in power" in Fulton County and the Fifth Dstrict instead of the "deciding factor".

One other salient fact had, through Wednesday morning been overlooked by local seers. It was definitely proven in this election that there ARE MORE REPUBLICANS in the 8th Ward and in the 40th District than there are Democrats. Whether this is a temporary sit-

O'Callaghan. The strategy was to beat Davis, using all the splinter factions in the effort, combining them with the solid Negro bloc vote, in the belief that O'Callaghan could easier beat Weltner than Davis.

In this effort apparently some of the individuals used to accomplish the first part of the scheme got too enthusiastic in support of Weltner and in the final round, instead of then switching their efforts behind O'Callaghan, they stayed put with Weltner.

Too, the almost unrecognized political power of Solicitor Paul Webb was underestimated. The member of his staff, Negro LeRoy Johnson, who was put up as Democratic Senatoral candidate, was ta have been offset by offering T. M. Alexander, colored real estate man and banker, as his opponent.

Alexander, long time associate in political strategy with other of the old time Negro political leaders, was figured to be able to make a much better showing than he did. Thus, by pulling Alexander votes away from the Democrats, it was apparently figured the colored vote would swing along with him. If this had worked out as planned and the 10,307 Negroes who voted for Weltner had swung over to O'Callaghan the election would have been different.

As things now stand, there will be much figuring among the "political king makers" in com-results.

There was a day when the final results were indicated only when the final votes came in and people sat up far into the night as they guessed and predicted what would happen when returns from certain precincts came in.

We are of the opinion that the networks are slowly but gradually and certainly destroying their position of attention getters on election night by the practice of trying to be the first to predict "what the first few votes show will be the final results".

Funny though, come to think about it, while they rush on the air to make flat-footed statements as to which sandidates "are elected on the basis of the early returns which have been fed into the XYZ machine", we can't recall hearing, after the election, how many of them were right and how many were wrong.

The assumption on the part of most of us is that these new-fangled machines are infallible. But we wonder just how they have been coming out the last few elections, are they actually that accurate or is it that we just don't get informed later, whether or not they were right?

There used to be cases when there were national election returns coming in that most folks went to bed not knowing just how the election would come out because the far western votes were still being counted when they retired.

Of course it's nice for the candidates to be able to watch the networks and know before midnight how they came out but it sure does take some of the excitement and pleasure of watching and listening to the returns for the average citizen.

Then too, even our local daily press has gradually assumed the position where they can look at a few returns and then tell you who won the election. Here again there is something lacking. Naturally, if you know what precincts are in it's much easier to make a prediction than when you can only guess.

On the local scene, if a candidate, who is being opposed by the powers that be, is leading by a slim margin and you know the Negro precincts are still out, you can pretty well rest assured his lead won't hold.

On the other hand, if only eleven precincts are in and they are the predominately colored ones, unless the candidate is ahead, the schemers know the cause is lost.

But, there are other faults in this world of ours and the ever increasing problems are too over te trivial political matters. over the trival political matters. After all why should we be interested in politics, all the politicians do is to absolutely control your affairs, business, social, financial and political from the cradle to the grave.

Of course, less we forget, if you think all the numerous elections you have been complaining about take so much time from business, it might be well to take a look at the calendar. This has become a holiday conscious country and you may be startled when you discover just how many days most things will be shut down completely between now and January 2, 1963.

There is a custom now that if a holiday falls anywhere near the weekend, you just add another or two and take off. Many folks will shut up shop from Friday until Tuesday next week for Armistice Day. Then Northside has won four city championships and one state crown during Coach Creel's Tiger regime. Many of his stars have won fame on the college gridiron during the past decade. Under Coach Creel Northside has won 106 games, lost 17 and tied eight games.

Neither Northside nor Murphy has given more than 14 points in any game this season and the top score for both teams is 35. Comparative scores mean little but they are about even. The Tigers whipped Grady 27-14 while Murphy won over the Knights, 14-7. Northside won over Sylvan 6-0 as the Eagles

Georgia Boats Must Be Re-registered Or Lose Present Numbers

Thirty five thousand Georgia boat owners must re-register their boats during the next two months or lose their present numbers, the Game and Fish Commission said today.

Commission director Fulton Lovell said existing registration numbers will not be held open later than Dec. 31. Boaters who do not wish to be assigned another number should re-register before the deadline.

Georgia's motorboat law requires re-registration of all boats with motors in excess of 10 horsepower every three years. Dec. 31, 1962, is the upcoming deadline.

Lovell said all boats originally registered in 1960 must reregister before Dec. 31. Boat owners who registered their craft in 1961 have until Dec. 31, 1963, to reclaim their present numbers.

Applications for re-registration may be obtained from hunting and fishing license dealers throughout Georgia, or from the Game and Fish Commission's boat registration division, 401 State Capitol Building, Atlanta, Georgia.

Lovell said all applications and money orders should be mailed to the Commission's boating division.

It was definitely proven in this election that there ARE MORE REPUBLICANS in the 8th Ward and in the 40th District than there are Democrats. Whether this is a temporary situation or is destined to become a recognized fact will require results from a few more elections.

Now that the elections for 1962 are finally over one can look back over the events of the last few months of campaigning and draw some set conclusions.

In the beginning there was a strong feeling that a deep plot was being hatched to over throw the Democratic control of the District through a series of political maneuvers.

First, many believed the same crowd which was determined to beat Davis with Weltner in the Primary were partly the same bunch who were anxious to elect support of Weltner and in the final round, instead of then switching their efforts behind O'Callaghan, they stayed put with Weltner.

Too, the almost unrecognized political power of Solicitor Paul Webb was underestimated. The member of his staff, Negro LeRoy Johnson, who was put up as Democratic Senatoral candidate, was ta have been offset by offering T. M. Alexander, colored real estate man and banker, as his opponent.

As things now stand, there will be much figuring among the "political king makers" in coming elections to try and determine just which of the Negro leaders will be able to "deliver" their votes in the future.

C. A. Scott, publisher of the Atlanta Daily World, along with the more prosperous Negro civic leaders supposedly were to go along with O'Callaghan but they DID NOT carry enough weight on election day.

Getting back to the 40th District and the 8th ward, unless the election laws are changed before the next election for either city or county officers and elections are decided on a Ward and District vote instead of city-wide and county-wide,

House Colleagues Pay High Tribute To Cong. James C. Davis

Near the closing date of the recent session of Congress, members of the House of Representatives, in a rare move, interrupted their regular proceedings to pay high tribute to Fifth District Congressman James C. Davis, who was defeated for re-election in the recent Democratic primary. The Herald is endebted to Georgia's Third District Congressman E. L. (Tic) Forrester for copies of these tributes. Limitations of space prevent printing in full all the tributes, but excerpts from them are printed below.

Mr. Forrester of Georgia: "Mr. Speaker, when this session adjourns it will mark the end of the magnificent service of our friend and colleague, Hon. James Curran Davis, in the Congress of the United States.

"The services of this great patriot and legislator have seldom been equalled, and that is conceded by everyone familiar with his record.

". . . . There is no such thing as a self-made man, but he personally contributed greatly to his development and, as always, he used good material in the making. He never had any patience with anyone complaining that they were "second class citizens", for he thought anyone whomsoever was exceedingly lucky to live in the United States. He thought the right to pursue happiness and good fortune was all that anyone was entitled to, and that the one who deserved higher status could, with that right, obtain it.

". . . Probably no Congreeman was ever more honored by his southern colleagues. I am certain that no Congressman ever rendered more ardent and magnificent service to his southern colleagues. In the many fights on the floor involving the rights of the States, constitutional government, and so forth, he was the Parliamentarian and handled that high responsibility with a dedication and ability that gained national recognition.

"This country needs men like James Davis as never before. He will be missed in this Congress as few have ever been msissed. We have lost a valiant man, and this is a blow to good government and to the world. We have this consolation however. James Davis will fight on and on. Who knows but what there is a great work for him to do back home or with the National Government. He will certainly be found fighting in the ranks trying to lead us back to the Government and the ideas that we, in our better moments, know are imperative, though sacrifice and devotion are required. . . . ."

Mr. Whitener of North Carolina: "I have had the privilege of working rather closely with Judge Davis on the floor of the House and more particularly on the Committee on the District of Columbia of the House of Representatives. Everything the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Forrester) has said about our distinguished colleague, Judge Davis, is supported by the record. Judge Davis has at all times been in the public eye with his views. He has not hidden his views and impressions of the right course to follow. I think those of us who have had the privilege of serving with him can take a great lesson from his legislative life of courage, character and hard work. . . ."

Mr. Albert of Oklahoma, the majority leader: ". . . Jim Davis and I sat side by side on the House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, where he was a tower of strength and ability, during my first term in the House. He has since become one of the finest legislators ever to have served on that great and important committee.

"Jim Davis is a man of rare judgment and of great ability with unswerving loyalty to his country and to his convictions. His departure is going to leave a void among us who know him. He has served his district and his country with distinction. He is my friend—one of the finest friends I have made in this House. . . ."

Mr. Rivers of South Carolina: ". . . I want to congratulate the gentleman for taking this time to eulogize a man whose indefatigable energy and unimpeachable character and dedication to duty will last as a hallmark in this Congress as long as representative government exists on this earth. The vicissitudes of politics are many and they attack us in various ways. Jim Davis is paying the price of defending the Constitution and States rights, and defending the law against expediency and the pressure groups. If one has to be defeated, I think I would rather be defeated on the grounds by which Jim Davis has been defeated because his defeat is not really a defeat, it is a defeat for the principle which he espouses and the convictions which he possesses. We who know him love him for his unswerving allegiance to those things for which he has given his illustrious life. We will miss him, as the majority leader has said, and this void will not be filled in the distant future either in Georgia or in Washington, D. C.

"As the days come and as the days go and as time comes and as our problems wax more and more vexing, we will miss Jim Davis' counsel and his inspiration whose band—our band—grows smaller and smaller each day in the fight for those causes in which we believe. But his work and his dedication to those principles of States rights will inspire us to carry on the fight which he has waged. I want to thank the gentleman for taking this time. We will miss Jim Davis and the country will miss him, and mark you this word—Atlanta, Ga., will miss him."

Mr. Flynt of Georgia: "I personally shall miss Jim Davis when he leaves the House of Representatives. He has been thhe living exemplification of courage, of loyalty, and of devotion to duty. He has been a dedicated member of the House of Representatives just as he, during his entire lifetime, has been a devoted and dedicated patriot who believes in this country, who believes in the basic instrument of our Government, the Constitution of the United States. . . .

"Since his election to the House of Representatives he has remained staunch and steadfast in adhering to those principles in which he believes. He has held fast to those things in which he believes, knowing, but not fearing, that the position which he should take might bring about his defeat for renomination to this body. . . .

"There is no bitterness in the heart of James C. Davis. He is a big man, he is truly a great man, he is a courageous man. He has a heart, a mind and a soul dedicated to this country which we love and which we cherish, and to the principles which have caused it to grow to a position of leadership among the nations of the world. . . ."

Mr. Colmer of Mississippi: ". . . I want to emphasize one of the things that has been said, and that is Jim Davis never counted what the popular side of an issue was. He decided rather what was for the best interests of his people whom he had the honor to represent, and of his great country that he served so well.

". . . Jim Davis to me symbolized a virtue that I must confess I have found to be too rare in political life, and that is political courage. I worked with Jim Davis throughout his stay here in an effort to preserve this Republic to which he was so dedicated and its institutions.

"Many, many times, when we met informally to discuss the approach to certain assaults that were being made upon the Constitution of the United States, and when a question was raised about the impracticability of doing anything about it, when someone would suggest, "That's fine, but we cannot get anywhere with it." his favorite reply was: "Well, if George Washington had sat down on the front porch in his rocking chair at Mt. Vernon instead of going to Valley Forge, we might not have had this Republic.

"This Chamber and this Nation have lost the services of a true patriot."

Mr. Landrum of Georgia: ". . . James Davis served with absolutely no fear of the political consequences. He was a thorough student of all the legislation with which we are confronted here in the House of Representatives. If he did not have all of the information concerning a particular bill of a particular matter then pending before the House, he would search out a Member whom he thought might have that information and discuss it with him. If the one with whom he was discussing the matter took a position with which he disagreed or interpreted a matter of legislation in a different fashion from his interpretation, he could challenge that position with the grace, the ease, and the knowledge rarely found in an individual today. Associating with one who demonstrates such qualities as these which I have tried to enumerate is always pleasant. But to me it has gone beyond being a mere pleasant association, for I can say that his example as a thorough student, as a sound defender and a courageous defender of his own convictions, has been a reward for me in the form of a friendship that I shall not forget."

Mr. Pelley of Wasington: "I would not want the Record to indicate that the admirers of our colleague, the gentleman from Georgia, Jim Davis, all come from one State of this Nation or from one section of the country or indeed from one side of the aisle.

"I have served with our colleague for 10 years, and I think while he might not recognize it, I have always looked upon him as a person of the highest integrity. In some respects at times I may have differed as far as convictions were concerned, but never once have I ever failed to recognize that our colleague was motivated by the highest integrity and the utmost integrity.

"Certainly it comes to me that this House will be losing something we need very much when in the next session of Congress Jim Davis will not be here. We will be losing that something that has made this a great deliberative body. That Too Many Elections Cause Of Light Vote?

It can be understood why the vote in Atlanta, Fulton County and the Fifth Congressional District was so much smaller than in most of the recent important races for similar offices. After what seemed like dozens of trips to the polls in recent weeks, there were many people who were just plain, disgusted and tired of voting every other week.

Nevertheless, this is a most serious matter when less than 50% of the qualified, registered voters go to the polls to select the man who will represent them in Washington. It is time that serious thought be given to the problem of stirring up interest in naming the men who will decide so many important matters for them.

Regardless of what happens in Washington, we believe that the Fifth District voters, as a whole, should have little reason to gripe during the next two years if things don't go to suit them in Washington.

Check Other Officials' Expense Accounts

Revelations of the "expense voucher" amounts filed by Civil Defense Director Elliott Jackson over a period of the last few years, covering trips made under the heading of 'official business' probably shook up the public considerably.

This series of stories running in the Journal concerning the operation of the Metropolitan Civil Defense office, it is to be hoped, is only the forerunner of more to come relative to trips made by other appointed and elected public officials.

There is reason to believe that if similar checks were made of the expense accounts of other city, county, state and national officials the public would be appalled at the amount of money the taxpayers spend to enable our elected and appointed officials to travel about the country and yes, the world, attending "conferences" and "conventions" where they can live in luxury at plush resort hotels while they "confer".

Why stop with just one department even though that particular one was the target of the "powers that be"?

Atlanta Made Laughing Stock By Hold-ups

The continuing hold-ups of financial institutions in our city is making Atlanta the laughing stock of the nation.

Yet, these armed hold-ups are certainly not a laughing matter. If you think so just ask an officer, staff member or customer of one of these institutions.

There is no way our law enforcement officials nor officials of these institutions can escape some responsibility for these continued hold-ups. There have been too many and still they continue.

It is so easy to forget and many people have already forgotten that one bank guard has already been killed by one of the bandits. Despite the murder and almost forty hold-ups, none of the criminals have been apprehended.

This is one record in which no one in Atlanta has reason to be proud. In fact it is a disgrace and brings discredit to our fair city.

Death Rules Streets, Expressways Here

Fifty-seven people have been killed in traffic accidents in Atlanta thus far trians have caused most, if not all, of these deaths.

Looking Ahead

Some times things get rather disgusting.

Take for instance the recent press releases and the accompanying, usual follow-up in the local daily press over an incident that occurred down at Mercer University in Macon.

As is generally known, Mercer which has operated in the middle Georgia City for over a hundred years, is the leading Baptist institution of higher learning in Georgia. It has turned out some of the leading individuals in the State, South and Nation. Among them are Jack Tarver of the Atlanta Newspapers, Inc.

Many of the State's leading ministers are graduates of Mercer. Many of the State's leading attorneys are graduates of Mercer. In fact there are literally hundreds of prominent people in various walks of life, playing a big part in the affairs of the State, who are Mercer graduates.

Most Mercerians are pretty dogmatic in their opinions. One thing for sure though, you can't belittle the courage of most of the folks who went through the halls of the old Baptist College on their way toward an education.

Most of the time they speak their mind and do not fear to be identified with any opinion they express. One day recently the local daily press carried a story to the effect that the Lawyer's Alumni Senate of the Mercer University School of Law had taken a vote and gone on record as not favoring integration of the University.

Almost simultaneously a letter appeared in the "Letters to the Editor" column of the daily press in which the writer lambasted everyone connected with Mercer for the action of the Lawyers. The letter was signed "A Nauseated Mercerian".

Now in the first place, the average newspaper has one set place where they put all anonymous letters, the waste basket. In the second place anyone has a right to his own opinion, but if he is to express it in public print only a coward or a faker hesitates to sign his name to the epistle. Secondly, we were rather surprised that the daily press would print the letter, that is unless it was the opinion of the editors as well as the unnamed writer of the letter, which we doubt.

That just doesn't sound like the kind of Mercer Alumni we have known down through the years. We can assure the anonymous writer that while he might have been nauseated, his letter had the same effect on the thousands of Mercer alumni who resented, not his right to his own opinion but, the lack of GUTS in his not being willing to sign his name to the communication.

His was not a new trick in the seemingly current popular propaganda push.

"PROBLEMS"

This week let us discuss somethings which we all have in common . . . problems. Ministers, writers and psychologists spend the majority of their career advising people what to do about their problems. Sometimes their suggestions work, and sometimes they don't. Yet, whatever, the misunderstanding of problems is said one of the most frustrating elements of life. Certainly no one can give the one sure fire method of solving all problems. . . . I can't even solve my own; moreover, if we look at it from our usual, unusual views, we might find our usual, unusual answer.

Perhaps the greatest mistake we make in looking at our problems is the fact that we don't believe we should have them. As an example, after worrying over a trivial matter how many times have we thought I shouldn't be worrying about this . . . I must be losing my mind. Sound familiar? For some unknown reason even though every one else has problems it's abnormal for us to have them. As strange as it seems, the fact we do have problems is the surest sign that we still possess our sanity. The person who has completely lost his mind has no problems. The fact that we are suposed to have problems doesn't imply that we aren't supposed to strive to find the answers. There are reasonable and workable answers to every problem and by using certain logical methods we can find these answers. The other day I was just sittin around worrying about my own problems and I discovered a great truth which I want to more or less kick around. When we worry about problems it's not the actual problems which bother us, rather it's the circumstances which surround it. If my typewriter should suddenly stop, it would be a problem. I would not worry about it for we would take it to IBM and have it fixed. I would start wondering . . . how much is it going to cost? How long is it going to take? I don't have any extra articles to carry me over while this typewriter is beig repaired . . . what shall I do? The problem and answer is heart talks-and having him stick by me all these years. God just doesn't do it for one person. . . He is eager to perform this miracle for any one. The only thing we must do is ask for it. . and

Traveling Through Georgia

Buck Fever
By: Charles E. Hooper

Just as the leaves have reached their peak in Autumn colors and the persimmons have received their mellowing brush with Jack Frost, many Georgians are heading for the north Georgia counties for the wonderland of the forest and deer hunting. The deer season opened November 1 and continues through November 19th in most North Georgia counties. Be sure to check the reverse side of your hunting license for particular dates in areas.

This year there will be managed hunts in some management areas, and information on these special hunts should be obtained from a Georgia Game and Fish Department representative. Hunting deer in North Georgia's Chattahoochee Forest requires more than just shooting a rifle at a deer, for hunting in the rugged, wooded mountain pit the sportsman against the elusive buck. . . . but maybe you'll lose your shirt tail!

Guns for hunting deer must be shotguns, loaded with slugs or numbered one buckshot or larger, or rifles using center fire cartridge 22 caliber or above with these exceptions: 25-20; 32-20; .30 Army Carbine; .22 Hornet and .218 Bee.

Many sportsmen in Georgia have started using bows and arrows, and this method has become increasingly popular in the mountains. Bows are legal during the regular season and must have a minimum recognizd pull of 40 lbs. Bows must be unstrung while being transported in a motor vehicle. . . in fact they must be unstrung except while actually being used in hunting.

The use of dogs in hunting deer is unlawful.

There are many management areas in the Chattahoochee, comprising more than 170,000 acres. Thes areas include Blue Ridge, Chestatee, Chattahoochee, Lake Russell, and Cohutta. In this North Georgia area you will find an abundance of campsites for those who like to "rough it". And for those desiring more comfort, practically every town and hamlet in North Georgia offers fine motel and hotel accommodations.

If you've never been on a deer hunt, why don't you try it? Plan a November week-end in the wilds of the Chattahoochee Forest. In any event take the family on a sightseeing tour this month in North Georgia. Be sure to bring the camera. It will give them a wonderful outing and give you an opportunity to pick out a campsite in advance.

Just ask your local service station operator to give you the best and most direct route to the "deer trails" in North Georgia. He's always glad to assist you.

Local Camp Fire Girls Plan Annual Sale Of Candies Nov. 16

The Camp Fire Girls of Greater Atlanta will begin their 14th annual Candy Sale on Friday, November 16 to last through Monday, December 3.

Announcement of the Candy Sale plans was made by Mrs. J. Edwards Lantz, chairman of the 1962 Candy Sale Committee.

Over 1,500 Atlanta girls between the ages of 7 and 17 will participate in the sale, with the proceeds being used to support the organization's outstanding summer camping program, Mrs. Lantz said.

The girls will have an opportunity to earn their way to camp by reaching certain quotas in their selling, Mrs. Lantz explained. About 300 girls are expected to earn a free week at Camp Toccoa or Camp John Hope, and many more will earn awards for their participation.

The girls will sell, for $1.00, including tax, a box of asorted chocolates manufactured especially for Camp Fire by Russell Stover Candies.

The Camp Fire organization provides a leisure-time, educa-

Metropolitan Civil Defense office, it is to be hoped, is only the forerunner of more to come relative to trips made by other appointed and elected public officials.

Why stop with just one department even though that particular one was the target of the "powers that be"?

Atlanta Made Laughing Stock By Hold-ups

The continuing hold-ups of financial institutions in our city is making Atlanta the laughing stock of the nation.

Yet, these armed hold-ups are certainly not a laughing matter. If you think so just ask an officer, staff member or customer of one of these institutions.

There is no way our law enforcement officials nor officials of these institutions can escape some responsibility for these continued hold-ups. There have been too many and still they continue.

It is so easy to forget and many people have already forgotten that one bank guard has already been killed by one of the bandits. Despite the murder and almost forty hold-ups, none of the criminals have been apprehended.

This is one record in which no one in Atlanta has reason to be proud. In fact it is a disgrace and brings discredit to our fair city.

Death Rules Streets, Expressways Here

Fifty-seven people have been killed in traffic accidents in Atlanta thus far in 1962 and we still have over eight weeks left in the year including those dangerous days during the Christmas season.

This useless loss of life on our streets, walkways, and expressways shows a wanton disregard for the lives of others.

Few, if any, accidents can be truly classified as unavoidable. Circumstances may make these accidents seem unavoidable, but not in reality. Carelessness, speeding, faulty mechanisms, running red traffic lights, making wrong turns, driving under the influence and complete disregard of traffic by pedestrians have caused most, if not all, of these deaths.

Every Atlantan, from Mayor Allen to the latest newcomer, has a responsibility to do everything possible to reduce this death toll. If every motorist and pedestrian would do his or her very best not to violate any of our traffic laws, show proper consideration to the other fellow and drive or walk as if our very life depended on our own action (as it really does), then this shameful death rate would be quickly reduced.

We need an all out individual drive to do everything possible to make Atlanta streets and expressways safer for all of us.

Huge Investment Necessary For Big Dailies

We continue to hear expressions from many Atlanta residents regarding their desire for another daily newspaper in the area.

For those who would rush in to establishment of a new daily we would call their attention to a recent development in the daily newspaper field.

Omaha, Nebraska which was credited with having a population of 301,598 in the 1960 census listed its metropolitan area density as 457,873. At the same time the last census gave Atlanta a population count of 487,455 and the Atlanta Metropolitan Area a population of 1,017,188.

Keep these figures in mind and hold on to your hat!

Recently the World Publishing Company, listed owners of the Omaha World Herald, turned down an offer from an out of state investor reputed to amount to slightly over $40 million for the paper.

So, if you are considering the possibility of going into the daily newspaper field in Atlanta do a little comparing.

Here are the circulation figures for the three Atlanta editions and the three Omaha paper editions:

World-Herald:	morning	127,434
	evening	124,562
	Combined Sunday	251,966
Atlanta:	Constitution	200,558
	Journal	257,966
	Combined Sunday	458,252

Guess, from these figures, how much money is involved in printing and operating a daily newspaper in Atlanta.

Conform With Law Or Pass New Legislation

Once more the ridiculous situation in the liquor traffic has come to the attention of a local Grand Jury.

Judge George P. Whitman in charging the incoming Grand Jury brought out the fact that the continued sale of mixed drinks under pseudo-legal local law, designed to sidestep the state regulations should be looked into by this Jury.

Not that we oppose sale of mixed drinks (if people are going to drink they'll do it one way or the other, regardless of the law), but because the hypocracy of the situation is disgusting, we agree with the Judge.

The time is way past due when we should either amend the state liquor laws to conform with the local city statutes or enforce the State Laws.

With the incoming state administration apparently in harmony with the Atlanta 'rulers' it would seem an ideal time to bring the liquor laws up for revision in the upcoming Session of the Legislature and revise them so that respect can be restored for law in general.

Senate of the Mercer University School of Law had taken a vote and gone on record as not favoring integration of the University.

Almost simultaneously a letter appeared in the "Letters to the Editor" column of the daily press in which the writer lambasted everyone connected with Mercer for the action of the Lawyers. The letter was signed "A Nauseated Mercerian".

Now in the first place, the average newspaper has one set place where they put all anonymous letters, the waste basket. In the second place anyone has a right to his own opinion, but if he is to express it in public print only a coward or a faker hesitates to sign his name to the epistle. Secondly, we were rather surprised that the daily press would print the letter, that is unless it was the opinion of the editors as well as the unnamed writer of the letter, which we doubt.

We can assure the anonymous writer that while he might have been nauseated, his letter had the same effect on the thousands of Mercer alumni who resented, not his right to his own opinion but, the lack of GUTS in his not being willing to sign his name to the communication.

GEORGIA IS A GOOD STATE

Curtis Tillman in Waycross Journal-Herald

Our state of Georgia is a good state. It is rich in natural resources and populated with fine people.

You remember, of course, how our state was settled. Good men and women and children came from England under the leadership of James Edward Oglethorpe.

They came to escape unemployment and punishment for debts they could not pay in England.

They came to find a new home and a new start in a new land.

And England was anxious to have Georgia settled for several reasons.

First, the new colony would expand the area and the population of the British Empire.

Second, it would relieve the heavy expense of relief rolls in the cities of England.

Third, it would protect other English colonies in America from the French and Spaniards.

Fourth, the new colony would be able to produce many of the things England needed.

Fifth, the new colony of Georgia would become a buyer of the things that England produced.

Sixth, the Protestants of England hoped that the new colony would be a haven for people who were suffering religious prosecution in Catholic countries at that time.

So Georgia was a bold adventure. It required a lot of faith and courage.

But the people who settled Georgia had plenty of those qualities. They believed in God, in their fellowmen, and in themselves.

They built churches. They built family altars. They cultivated integrity. They practiced brotherly love.

They believed in freedom and square-dealing. They believed in thrift and hard work and honest wages.

Most Georgians of today believe in these Christian principles.

But some do not. And the number who do not believe these things grows larger day by day.

And if the day ever comes when the number of non-believers is greater than the believers, then our state will be in a bad way.

reason even though every one else has problems it's abnormal for us to have them. As strange as it seems, the fact we do have problems is the surest sign that we still possess our sanity. The person who has completely lost his mind has no problems. The fact that we are suposed to have problems doesn't imply that we aren't supposed to strive to find the answers. There are reasonable and workable answers to every problem and by using certain logical methods we can find these answers. The other day I was just sittin around worrying about my own problems and I discovered a great truth which I want to more or less kick around. When we worry about problems it's not the actual problems which bother us, rather it's the circumstances which surround it. If my typewriter should suddenly stop, it would be a problem. I would not worry about it for we would take it to IBM and have it fixed. I would start wondering . . . how much is it going to cost? How long is it going to take? I don't have any extra articles to carry me over while this typewriter is beig repaired . . . what shall I do? The problem and answer is quit simple, yet the surrounding circumstances are rough. What can be done about circumstances? Very simple. . try positive thinking. Certainly it is easier to think negative, yet, it doesn't work. For every circumstance we must make a decision. We often use the old excuse. . it might not be correct. This is all wrong, we know we can make the correct decision but we might doubt whether or not we can carry it out. There is a wonderful thing about positive thinking, if you can do it a few times it grows into a great science. By learning to face circumstances in apositive manner we can take a victorious approach toward any problem.

Without a doubt, one of the most important weapons against the worry which is caused by problems is having someone with whom we can freely discuss. This is a necessity, however, at the same time it could be a tremendous danger. In the first place, it is hard to find anyone who has the answer. Even if they do, there is just one person in a million who can see your problems as you do. Yet, we can't keep worry bottled up inside us.

I'll bet my last nerve pill that over half of our ailments are caused by worry. Perhaps some of you have had the same experience as I. . needing someone with whom you can talk. . . but who? You go to your doctor who is kind enough to sit down with you and listen out your problems. But even their very assuring suggestions — don't worry, forget it—doesn't always click. I thank God that I have a cousin who can see my problems as I do. This word of advice, before you share your problems with anyone be very sure they are all there. The practice of frequently talking with someone you trust about your problems is a welcome way of relieving your worried mind and often solves the situation for you.

The final and most constructive approach toward our problems is sharing them with God. Is this logical? Can God solve our problems? God does two things. . . first He shares them. Then He guides us to the solution. Earlier I mentioned my cousin who has been a life saver for me. . . . I firmly believe that God answered my prayers by sending Bob for our heart to heart talks-and having him stick by me all these years. God just doesn't do it for one person. . . He is eager to perform this miracle for any one. The only thing we must do is ask for it. . and believe. God hears our prayers of request just as He hears our prayers confirming our faith and giving thanks for what He has done for us. Any problem can be solved with God as our Guide.

Problems are things which no normal person can live without. As we learn the solution to our problems, whatever they may be we gain a faith so strong that it it indestructible.

EVEN MORE IMPORTANT than the outcome of the Milk Bowl game at Grant Field on Friday is the fact that hundreds of underprivileged school children will be provided milk in the various school cafeterias during the months ahead because of the game. Advance ticket sales to the contest will provide funds for this worthwhile project. Last year a record crowd saw the Milk Bowl game and school officials hope that a new record will be established Friday night.

TOP PLAYERS ARE TOP SCHOLARS. City Athletic Director Sid Scarborough has every reason to be proud of the scholastic records being made by football players in the Atlanta schools. Each year the Atlanta Touchdown Club presents a trophy to the senior football player with the highest scholastic record. Last year there were two players who tied for the honor with a record of all A's through their high school career.

THIS YEAR three players tied for the top honor with straight A's and three others had all A's with the exception of one B and all six players have been among the most outstanding on the gridiron.

A TOP COACHING JOB by Calvin Hartness at North Fulton has been overlooked by the experts thus far. However, the popular coach, who became head man of the Bulldogs when Frank Jernigan was named principal at O'Keefe in the summer, did a remarkable job. Graduation had depleted the Bulldog ranks of most experienced players and Hartness was faced with a tough rebuilding task. After a slow start in which North Fulton was defeated by Grady and Murphy, the Bulldogs began to roll and at season's end was one of the best teams in the city league as the Northside Tigers well know. It took all kinds of breaks against the Bulldogs before the Tigers finally scored the one touchdown of the game.

REGION PLAYOFFS in North Georgia this weekend should see two very close games and perhaps one so close. The Northside-Murphy battle and the Westminster-Gainesville games should be extremely close but the Avondale-Decatur playoff doesn't shape up much of a battle, Avondale having whipped Decatur 24-0.

University Marks 29 Buildings As Fallout Shelters

Parents of students on the Northside attending the University of Georgia will be interested to know that President O. C. Aderhold has signed the Civil Defense Fallout Shelter License which will allow 29 buildings at the university to be marked and stocked for use in case of national emergency.

The buildings will provide shelter for more than 11,000. Several buildings completed since the U. S. Corps of Engineers made its survey and several now under construction will provide more shelters in the future.

President Aderhold said, "The University in cooperation with the civil defense effort is making preparations for the safety of our student body and faculty in any eventuality. We hope and pray that the need for these shelters will not arise, but we do not propose to be unprepared in the event of national emergency."

"In the meantime, the University will continue to go about its normal functions, providing the best possible educational opportunities for a student body which must live and offer leadership in a crisis-ridden world."

Parents, Officials Urged To Cooperate In Local CD Plans

Parents and school officials must cooperate, calmly and constructively, to work out plans to protect school children in the event of an enemy attack upon the United States, John Lewis, Fulton County School System CD Coordinator, told some 250 PTA CD representatives Friday morning.

A statement from Mr. Lewis, who could not attend the meeting, was read by E. E. Baker, director of attendance and transportation for the Fulton County schools. The statement from Mr. Lewis explained:

"The Fulton County Board of Education has adopted the policy that it will close the schools in case of an enemy attack and dismiss students who can walk home in thirty minutes. Special provisions must be made for those children who cannot walk home in that time. These provisions must be by agreement between parents of these children and the prinicpals of the schools."

Mr. Lewis emphasized the urgency of parents seeing that these arrangements are completed promptly. He also pointed out that parents can join together in "preparedness pools" to insure safety of their children after they leave school.

Added Mr. Lewis:

"The Board of Education has directed each principal to work out and make operational plans to fit the particular situation of his or her school.

"We deeply appreciate the concern and sincere desire of the PTA to build preparedness. These fine people can be of important help to the principals of our schools."

After reading Mr. Lewis' statement, Mr. Baker went on to explain in detail what is planned in the event there is insufficient time for children to be dismissed and sent home.

Duck and cover exercises are being held regularly in all schools and students are taking them in stride along with regular fire drills.

General Carl T. Sutherland, interim CD director, was introduced to the meeting and commended the strong volunteer force of the PTA in CD activities. He further said:

"Many people have believed that attack could not happen here. The Cuban crisis has shown us the necessity for all-out preparedness, and we must all pull together to achieve this."

M. F. Wiedl, Metropolitan CD public information and education deputy, addressed the meeting, emphasizing the need for adults to receive training in shelter management and medical self-help. These two important courses are being made available through local PTA groups as well as the Metropolitan CD organization.

Mrs. Roy Bishop, Fulton County PTA CD Council chairman, presided and outlined the work goals of PTA in the various phases of CD, in cooperation with the school system and Metropolitan CD.

Numerous questions asked in the question and answer period which followed, indicated strong interest in learning all details of how to care for children in any emergency. It was brought out clearly that although group action can provide the guidelines, the ultimate responsibility rests with the individual and with the family unit.

HAVE YOU LOOKED AT YOUR CHILD'S TEXTBOOKS LATELY?—A lot of talk was stirred up by the Harper's magazine article THE TROUBLE WITH TEXTBOOKS by Martin Mayer. The thesis was that many textbooks are dull, dreary and without depth and dimension. Georgia puts about 3½ million dollars a year into textbooks for your children. State law says the amount must total $3 a child, at least. This works out for 1962-63 to $4.15 per child for grades 8 through 12, $3.05 per child for grades 4

"Despite the many responsibilities imposed upon him by the work of his committees, he has always taken the time to inform himself of every important piece of legislation under consideration. Although he has assumed great responsibilities, he has always been most considerate, kind, and helpful to anyone who came to him regarding problems of government, legislation, or politics.

"He leaves the House of Representatives a better legislative body because he served in it, and his record is one which deserves the emulation of every Member of Congress."

Mrr. Libonati of Illinois: ". . . He was unswerving in his loyalties to the philosophies and traditions of the South. His conservative attitudes in Government fiscal problems marked him as a keeper of the taxpayers' purse. His tight rein on legislation involving the expenditures and increased cost reforms of the District of Columbia's government earned for him both commendation and criticism.

"He was a valued legislator in the economy bloc and frowned upon loose spending on new Government service that meant added funds.

"He was uncompromising in any position that he took that he felt was right. . . ."

Mr. Gross of Iowa: ". . . It has also been my privilege to serve with him on the Manpower Utilization Subcommittee of which he is the chairman and I the ranking minority member. Through this service and association I became intimately acquainted with him and I wish to say that there is no Member of Congress whom I hold in greater respect and esteem.

"Judge Davis has those rare qualities of courage, conviction, capability, and integrity. His word is his bond. Having taken a position, having reached a conviction, he does not waver nor succumb to pressure and blandishment.

"It has been both a privilege and a pleasure to serve under the chairmanship of James C. Davis for he was fair at all the Board of Aldermen or the State Senate who will be elected in a long, long time by the votes of the residents of the Ward and District.

It must be assumed that the "schemers" and the "fixers" will start some careful planning between now and the next election day to assure the continued election by the groups which can be controlled instead of by the PEOPLE.

From a distance, it appears that there is a new group emerging as the king makers, or some additions must be made to the list which has controlled things in the immediate past.

There is a rumor that gradually, the king makers are shoving long-time king pin William B. Hartsfield into the background although many of Mr. Hartsfield's critics of the past bit the dust in recent elections, the rumor goes that his advice and counsel is being sought less and less as the 'young Turks', lead by the 'new breed' plan their plots.

The most dangerous angle to the situation is the fact that an increasing number of substantial citizens, many of whom have long been identified with most progressive moves in the area, are taking the attitude, "to h--l with politics, why should I be interested?" That is a bad thing. When the more substantial, more civic minded folks in a community decide to eliminate themselves from the political arena, it can only be a matter of a short time until local governments are completely taken over by the less desirable characters.

Many are searching for the answer as to how they can revive the interest of these individuals whose advice and counsel will be so badly needed in coming years as the city and area continue to grow.

Many World Experts On Transportation At Sessions Here

World transportation experts will converge on Atlanta November 7 for what could set off an historic event: the standardization of airborne cargo loading equipment in national and international trade.

This step will be comparable to track gauge standardization by railroads at the turn of the century.

Sponsored by the Institute for the Aerospace Sciences (IAS) and the Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) the conclave will be opened by a keynote address by Clarence D. Martin, Jr., U. S. Undersecretary of Commerce for Transportation.

The transportation leaders will make two field trips during the forum. One will be to inspect Lockheed-Georgia Company and its Marietta, Ga., facilities — world's largest aircraft plant under one roof—and the family of jet age airlift transports produced there. A world center for design, study and manufacture of airlifters, the Georgia Company, a division of Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, has put more than 450 of its famed Hercules prop-jets into service around the globe.

Currently, the world's newest type airlifter—a turbofan craft designated the C-141 StarLifter —is being manufactured there. The first cargo-carrying giant will fly next year.

The other field trip will be to Atlanta's new, ultramodern airport. There cargo-type aircraft, terminal operations, loading facilities and a variety of related equipment will be inspected.

This first "International Forum for Air Cargo" will have Paul W. Cherington, professor of business administration, Harvard University Graduate School, as chairman of the opening, stage-setting session.

The unique parley will continue for three days—Nov. 7, 8 and 9—at Atlanta's Dinkler Plaza Hotel. The list of participants reads like a blue book of the leaders of all modes of transportation: air, highway, rail and sea.

Representatives of the U. S. military services will take part, headed by Lt. Gen. Joe W. Kelly, commander of the worldwide Military Air Transport Service. General Kelly will be the luncheon speaker the opening day, with C. E. Woolman, president of Delta Air Lines, Inc., as toastmaster.

Transportation writers from overseas have already announced plans to cover the forum. IAS/SAE will operate a news room for those reporting the conference.

Overseas experts already listed on forum panels are from Australia, West Germany, England and Holland and others are expected.

Basic idea of the international huddle on standardization is that all air cargo begins, or completes, its journey by some form of surface transportation. Thus, the starting point of the standardization effort will be the airborne items in loading equipment. This will give air cargo added "intermodal compatibility"—that is, the cargo can be readily transferred from truck, rail and ship to plane because of standardized handling equipment and practices. Since all cargo originates on the ground and returns to the ground, standardized pallets, containers, loading systems, etc., serving the four major modes of transportation will be a big step forward.

Noted participants in the forum, besides those mentioned, will include Stuart G. Tipton, president, Air Transportation Association of America; Alan S. Boyd, chairman, Civil Aeronautics Board, and Wayne Parrish, president, American Aviation Publications.

William E. Dunn, Glenn Sandberg, Washington, D. C., Executive Vice President of American Society of Association Executives; Tom Murray, Decatur, Secretary and Treasurer of GSAE; Benson L. Skelton, Vice President of GSAE.

It is told that when his child Mary married Josiah Tattnall, avenues of trees were planted to honor her in the form of initials M and T. Another story recounts that in later years, a fire was discovered one evening as the Tattnalls were entertaining guests for dinner. Seeing that flames were beyond control, the imperturbable host had the table removed to the garden where, in the light of destroying flames, he regaled his nervous guests with witty conversation as his home was consumed.

At the time of the Revolution, the new state government confiscated the estate of the royalists Tattnalls, who had left the country. But their 18-year-old son, Josiah, embraced the patriotic cause, returned to Georgia and joined General Nathaniel Greene's army. Later the state restored to him his father's estate as a reward.

Bonaventure was converted to a cemetery in 1869. The oldest graves are those of the Tattnall family and of the French soldiers who fell in an attempt to take Savannah from the British during the Revolution.

"Stranger's Tomb," at the entrance, was erected in memory of William Gaston, who was widely known for his hospitality. Because of his kindness to strangers, the people of Savannah honored him by building in his memory a receiving vault. Any stranger who died in Savannah could be placed there temporarily.

Bonaventure . . . while a historic cemetery . . . is most famous for its gardens, flowers, shrubs, and towering oaks. The next time you are in South Georgia, a trip to Bonaventure will be most rewarding. The view from the bluff overlooking the Wilmington River and marshes at sunset is an experience you'll long remember, and this view has earned the title of "rainbow point."

Children come into his benign presence, and go out a little gentler, a little kinder, a good deal wiser. (Who is the most interesting teacher in your town? At that time they were only names. This man pointed out Jim Davis, of Georgia, and he said to me then that Jim Davis is one of the very few Members of the House of Representatives whose principles are so steadfast that he would rather go down in defeat than compromise his position. I think that is what happened to him in the present situation.

"I would like to express one final thought about the Honorable James C. Davis. Knowing the pressures that were placed upon him, and knowing the pressures that are placed upon a Member of Congress, the deepest inspiration to me in my first term in the House of Representatives came from the way that he was able to withstand those pressures and to say stanchly that he would not compromise doing what he thought was right. That is the way I characterize him and shall always characterize him; he always did what he thought was right."

Mr. Hagan of Georgia: ". . . To the many statements that have been made about his personal integrity and his political courage, and these other fine comments about Jim Davis, I can say that I personally know that he is a man of great character and great ability. I wish it were possible to add up in sums of money the amounts that Jim Davis has been personally responsible for in savings to the taxpayers of this Nation while serving on that particular committee as chairman of the Subcommittee on Manpower Utilization, as well as his other actions on that committee and as a Member of this body. . . ."

Mr. Rhodes of Arizona: ". . . He is a man who has the courage of his convictions and the ability to articulate his convictions and, better than that, to stand up for them. We have too few people like that. I think on both sides of the aisle, whether or not we agree with everything said by the gentleman from Georgia, the Honorable James C. Davis, we agree that this House will be the poorer because he will not be here. The reason this is so is that we will have lost a man who has the kind of courage which is becoming altogether too rare in this country. He combined this courage with the ability to point out the defects in our Government and laud those parts of it he thought praiseworthy. He has the quality of being not only a fine Congressman but a good citizen."

Mr. John W. Davis of Georgia: ". . . I do not think I ever saw a man more dedicated to his job, more conscientious in him both commendation and criticism.

"He was a valued legislator in the economy bloc and frowned upon loose spending on new Government service that meant added funds.

"He was uncompromising in any position that he took that he felt was right. . . ."

Mr. Gross of Iowa: ". . . It has also been my privilege to serve with him on the Manpower Utilization Subcommittee of which he is the chairman and I the ranking minority member. "It has been both a privilege and a pleasure to serve under the chairmanship of James C. Davis for he was fair at all times. Although of different political affiliation, I can say without fear of contradiction on the part of my colleagues on the subcommittee that Chairman Davis was never unfair to the minority members; never did partisan politics enter into the work of the subcommittee.

"It may not be realized, but I want to say here and now that the retirement of James C. Davis is a loss the Fifth District of Georgia, the State of Georgia, and the House of Representatives could ill afford."

Dan MacIntyre will be the first and last representative on either most progressive moves in the area, are taking the attitude, "to h--l with politics, why should I be interested?" That is a bad thing. When the more substantial, more civic minded folks in a community decide to eliminate themselves from the political arena, it can only be a matter of a short time until local governments are completely taken over by the less desirable characters.

Many are searching for the answer as to how they can revive the interest of these individuals whose advice and counsel will be so badly needed in coming years as the city and area continue to grow.

Citywide Elections Due Test in Albany

By FRED POWLEDGE

An Albany Negro defeated in Tuesday's runoff election for a city commission seat said Wednesday he will file suit to have future voting conducted on a ward basis, rather than citywide.

Thomas C. Chatmon, 33-year-old operator of a beauty supply firm, was defeated 6,705 to 2,656 by former Commissioner B. C. Gable in the Democratic primary runoff.

Mr. Chatmon was the first Negro to offer for the seat in modern times.

His candidacy followed a lengthy voter registration campaign conducted by the Albany Movement, a civil rights organization. It has been estimated that the Negro registration of six months ago, which stood at about 2,000, was doubled in time for this fall's elections. About 15,000 persons, Negro and white, are registered in the city.

MR. CHATMON said Wednesday that "we will file a suit within the next few days" to force the election of commissioners on a ward, rather than citywide, basis. He likened the situation here to the situation in Atlanta, where a state judge ruled in favor of districtwide, rather than countywide, elections for state senator.

"We think it is very unfair, the way it is now, just as the people in Atlanta thought it was unfair," said the defeated candidate.

THE ONE predominantly Negro ward in Albany's five-ward election setup gave Mr. Chatmon 1,912 votes, to 185 for Mr. Gable, a television dealer. In the predominantly white ward, Mr. Gable got 2,918 votes to Mr. Chatmon's 98 votes.

Politics and People

Honest Voting Bill Should Come First

By REG MURPHY
Constitution Political Editor

There has been so much talk in Georgia about the "floating vote" and the bought vote and the uncounted vote that people may not listen any more.

But the incoming governor and the new Legislature should listen for a moment to what a very distinguished Georgia observer said the other day:

Reg Murphy

"If I were Carl Sanders, I would come to the Legislature with an Honest Elections bill patterned along the same lines as Gov. Vandiver's Honesty In Government law.

"I would make it House Bill One, and I would give it all the push I could muster. I would try to guarantee that everybody in Georgia participated in an honest election. And the penalties for holding crooked elections should be awfully tough.

Analysis and Comment

GLOWING GAIN

"If he did that, and the people all over this state knew they could count on honest elections every time, it would be the most glowing accomplishment of an administration."

It would, indeed, be a glowing accomplishment. The state has been plagued for years with questionable elections. This year alone, there has been evidence accumulated of vote buying in Gilmer County, ballot stuffing in Quitman County, a "floating vote" for sale to the highest bidder in Towns County.

It is a permanent blot on the record of elections in a state which is beginning to pride itself on honest government. It could be erased only by very tough laws to penalize vote fraud.

A CLEAR MANDATE

To go along with the stiff penalties, however, there needs to be a clear mandate in the law for the state to intervene in vote frauds in local elections.

Governors traditionally have been leery of moving into such situations. They have tried to leave things to be worked out by local governments.

Such a system simply does not work. The people elected locally are in power. They are not about to punish themselves in some masochistic self-regulating system. There needs to be an agency (one already in existence) with the power and responsibility to move in.

PETITION, TOO

That done, there would be one other need. People should be able to govern themselves through petition on occasion.

"House Bill Two should provide for a referendum on any state or local issue on petition of 25 per cent of the registered voters," said the state official.

Initiative and referendum on vital questions is an important part of government in other states. It should be in Georgia. This would encourage more active citizen participation.

Sanders does, of course, have his own legislative program and his own headaches. He may not, at this moment, choose to take on more.

But he could literally gain the praises of people all the way from the mountains to the sea by guaranteeing them honest elections. And what better way to guarantee a fair count for himself and the legislators in the future elections?

15,000 Face Purge From Voter Rolls

More than 15,000 Fulton voters are being notified they will be purged from registration rolls unless they apply for continuation of their registration by April 1.

Fulton Registrar Leon G. Hay said the voters are being purged in accordance with a state law which requires that a registered voter must vote in either a county, state or national election every three years.

60 PCT. CAN SIGN

He estimated that 60 per cent of the voters will be reinstated by signing the oath on the back of the notice which says that the voter's personal and residential qualifications remain unchanged. Reply envelopes are included in the notices, he said.

Hay said that it will take very little time for voters who apply for auto license tags at the Fulton Administration Building, 165 Central Ave., SW, to stop by his office and bring their applications. He suggests that voters have their latest addresses registered.

9 PCT. INCREASE

During the record registration year of 1962 (because there were so many elections) voter registration increased nine per cent over 1961. Negro voters showed an 11 per cent increase in registration, with 4,614 new registrants. White voter registration increased seven per cent with 8,765 voters more than in 1961.

The year's total registration was 177,475 compared to 164,096 registered in 1961.

Negro Seeks Senate Seat From District 3

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UPI)—Eugene H. Gadsden, Savannah Negro attorney running for the third senatorial district seat in the state Legislature, pledged Sunday that if elected he would represent all the district residents "without fear or favor."

The 50-year-old Negro also pledged to serve Chatham County "without regard to geographical boundaries . . ."

Gadsden noted that about two-thirds of Chatham's County's population is white and about 1-third Negro. He said two senators now serving the county are white and he felt the voters would best be served by his election to represent the "minority citizenry."

Gadsden said the Political Guidance Committee of the Chatham County Crusade for Voters, a Negro organization, had endorsed his candidacy.

The Negro candidate has been active in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and is currently representing about 35 Negro parents in a federal court suit seeking to desegregate the Chatham County public schools.

He is one of four candidates seeking the third district seat in the special Feb. 13 election.

His opponents, all white men, are Democrat John Baker, Democrat Spence Grayson, and Republican Joe Tribble. Gadsden identifies himself as a Democrat.

Okay Registrar Visits

A bill by Rep. Joe Mack Wilson of Cobb County to allow county registrars to register voters in each militia district instead of just at the courthouse passed the House Judiciary Committee Thursday.

Voter Bill Is Passed By House

The Georgia House did a short one-and-a-half hours' work Friday, then adjourned for the weekend. The Senate went home Thursday.

Before taking off for the two-day break, the representatives passed a bill by Rep. Joe Mack Wilson of Cobb to increase voter registration. It would permit registrars to send deputies into each militia district of a county.

Legislature Votes Eased Registering

file Ga V-R

The General Assembly Tuesday completed passage of a bill that will make it mandatory for counties of 100,000 population or more to have places in addition to the courthouse for registering voters.

The bill passed the Senate Tuesday and now goes to Gov. Carl Sanders.

Sen. William Searcey of Savannah frankly told the Senate Rules Committee earlier Tuesday morning that the bill is designed to get "more white voters" registered.

Floor Leader Charles Pannell commented that if that were the case, shouldn't the smaller counties also make it easier to register voters?

Meanwhile, the House Judiciary Committee approved a bill requiring that absentee ballots be voted in person between three and 30 days before election and that they be sealed and deposited in a container in the ordinary's office in the voter's presence.

Rep. Tom Murphy, chairman of a sub-committee amending the bill, said the purpose of in-person absentee voting was to prevent "anybody from getting a bunch of blank ballots and mailing them to all their kinfolks here in Atlanta and other places."

Personal Income in Georgia Counties

CLIO CROSBY NORRIS

PERSONAL INCOME reflects all of the income-producing activities of all of the people and is usually conceded to be the most comprehensive measure of the economic well-being of an area. The Office of Business Economics of the United States Department of Commerce publishes annually an estimate of personal income in each state as part of a series that goes back to 1929. For six of those years Georgia's total estimated income has been distributed to the state's 159 counties.[1] The 1958 and 1960 county estimates are published here for the first time.[2]

Personal income in the counties can be examined to better advantage if state trends are noted first. In 1929, the first year for which personal income estimates for states are available, Georgia's per capita income was less than half that of the national average (Table 1 and chart). During the depression years Georgia's relative position was bettered; a decline that started between 1935 and 1936 was stopped by the re-armament program. By the end of World War II, the state's per capita income had risen to more than 70 per cent of the national average, and the Korean incident again gave the state an increasing share of the national income in 1951 and 1952. Since that time Georgia's share has not increased. The gradual bettering since 1955 of the state's per capita position relative to that of the nation is due not to an increasing share of the nation's income but to a decreasing share of the nation's population.

TABLE 1. PERSONAL INCOME IN GEORGIA AND THE STATE'S SHARE OF CONTIGUOUS UNITED STATES INCOME, POPULATION, AND PER CAPITA INCOME: SELECTED YEARS 1929-1961

[1]Estimates for 1939 and 1947 were made by the Bureau of Business Research as a member of the Conference on the Measurement of County Income and were published in County Income Estimates for Seven Southeastern States (John L. Lancaster, ed., University of Virginia, 1952). The methodology developed by the Conference has been followed in large part in the 1958 and 1960 estimates presented here and in the 1954 and 1956 estimates published by John L. Fulmer in Analysis of Georgia Personal Income Payments, by Counties (Georgia Institute of Technology, 1959).

[2]A monograph, scheduled for later publication by the Bureau, will present the estimates, analysis, and methodology in more detail.

Georgia is currently more dependent than is the average state on federal spending, on trade wages and salaries, and on proprietors' income; and is relatively less dependent on manufacturing wages and salaries and on property income (Table 2). The five income items with the lowest rates of gain in Georgia from 1929 to 1961 have been farm, railroad, and personal-household wages and salaries and farm- and nonfarm-proprietors' earnings. The five with the highest rates of gain have been transfer payments and wage-and-salary payments in the following industries: banking and other finance, transportation other than railroads and highway freight and warehousing, business and repair services, and state and local government.

There is a heavy concentration of personal income in the metropolitan and other urban areas of the state. Only 2 of Georgia's 159 counties (Chattahoochee and Fulton) have surpassed the national average in per capita personal income in the six years for which county estimates have been made, and only 9 counties have consistently surpassed the state average. Another 22 counties have been sometimes above, sometimes below, the state average. Per capita personal income in all other 128 counties has been below the state average in all six years.

The concentration of income in urban counties is not evidence that "the poor are becoming poorer". In the six-or-seven-year periods from 1947 to 1954 to 1960, the number of counties where per capita income was less than half of the state average dropped from 38 to 20 to 6.

The increased dispersion of income throughout the state is also apparent in 1939 and 1960 cumulative frequency distributions of the 157 and 156 counties where per capita income was below the national average:

State's New Political Era Gives More Citizens a Say

By HAL GULLIVER

It is almost impossible to estimtae the precise number of Negro voters in Georgia.

The highest estimates range up to 225,000, while more conservative estimates fall as low as 175,000.

But there is no doubt on one point. Whatever the exact figure, Negro voting in Georgia is more significant now than at any time in this century.

The day is probably past in Georgia when a serious candidate for statewide office can run solely on a segregationist platform, ignoring the Negro vote.

One sign of the growing awareness of this new political situation came last September after the election of Georgia's first Negro state senator since 1907, Sen. Leroy R. Johnson, a 34-year-old Atlanta attorney.

Shortly after the votes were all in, Sen. Johnson was invited by Sen. Herman Talmadge to visit the Talmadge farm at Lovejoy, where Georgia's junior senator congratulated Johnson on his election.

Last in a series.

Talmadge, an outspoken advocate of segregation in the past, is generally considered the state's most astute politician.

GEER CORDIAL

Lt. Gov. Peter Zack Geer, also identified as a strong segregationist, was equally cordial to Georgia's only Negro legislator. Geer later named Sen. Johnson to four of the most important committees in the Georgia Senate.

But there are other indications that a new political wind is blowing through Georgia. Increased Negro voter registration is only part of it.

"We are in a better position today to offer some leadership in getting our people to register and vote than we have been at any other time in the history of our state," J. C. Reese, principal of Center High School in Waycross and president of the Georgia Teachers and Education Association, told 3,000 Negro school teachers meeting in Atlanta last month.

And, Reese added frankly, "Just three years ago I would not have thought it wise to stand here and tell you my feelings of the teacher's role in politics."

SOME OPPOSITION

There are still some counties in Georgia where Negro citizens are actively discouraged from registering and voting. But these have always been a small minority.

The U.S. Justice department continues to observe approximately a dozen counties in Georgia for voter registration violations. The U.S. Civil Rights Commission also keeps current registration figures on 15 Georgia counties.

Yet the chief reason for low voter registration in most ever, also been rapid.

Fulton County Negro registration is currently estimated at 45,300 by Jesse Hill Jr., co-chairman of the All-Citizens Registration Committee. This would mean an increase of 10,000 in less than three years.

Savannah has increased its Negro registration to approximately 14,000 under the leadership of Hosea L. Williams and the Chatham County Crusade for Voters, an increase of nearly 50 per cent in two years.

The most accurate figures and estimates available indicate that Georgia's Negro voter registration is now between 185,000 and 190,000.

This would be less than 15 per cent of the state's total voter registration, not enough certainly to elect a candidate without a good many other votes. However, this increasing Negro vote is simply too large for any candidate to ignore altogether.

In two congressional races last fall, Fifth District Rep. Charles Weltner and Eighth District Rep. Russell Tuten were both elected with substantial Negro support. Both men were considered comparatively moderate on racial questions and segregation was not the major issue in either campaign.

Current Negro voter registration campaigns could push the Negro vote as high as 25 per cent of the state's total registration. The growing Negro vote may eliminate specifically racist issues from future statewide political campaigns in Georgia.

Yet the chief reason for low Negro voter registration in most areas in the past has been apathy.

That apathy is vanishing almost as quickly as did the county unit system. There are few counties left in the state where Negro leaders have not already begun an intensive drive for increased Negro registration.

"MORE OPPORTUNITY"

"The death of the county unit system meant more opportunity for all good Georgians," William P. Randall, a Macon Negro leader, commented. "We're working to double the Negro voter registration in the state," Randall said.

Randall, head of the Bibb County Coordinating Committee, led a voter registration drive here last year that sent Negro registration soaring from 5,800 to 12,000 in just 90 days. The current total for Bibb County, Randall said, is above 13,000 Negro voters.

The Bibb County drive was unusually successful, winning a national award from the NAACP. The growth of Negro registration in other urban areas has, however, also been rapid.

THE NEGRO VOTE DRIVE

Students Leading Registration Push

By HAL GULLIVER

Constitution Staff Writer

ALBANY—The "shock troops" of the Negro voter registration drive in Georgia are the members of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee.

The greatest Negro registration gains have come in urban areas, such as Atlanta, Macon, and Savannah, and in rural counties where local apathy was the only real obstacle to increased Negro registration.

The SNCC field workers have, by comparison, added few new Negro voters to the registration lists. But they have chosen deliberately to conduct voter registration drives in areas where few Negroes vote at all.

Fourth of a series.

"Someone has to go into the hard-core areas," James Forman, executive secretary of the Atlanta-based group, said.

More than a year ago SNCC workers launched intensive voter registration campaigns in Mississippi and southwest Georgia. SNCC members have since that time been beaten up, arrested, and wounded by shotgun blasts.

The interracial group set up one headquarters in Albany (shortly before the Albany Movement demonstrations began) to undertake voter registration campaigns in nearby Lee, Sumter, and Terrell counties.

FOR 3 YEARS

SNCC field secretaries also cooperated with the Albany Movement in a successful Dougherty County vote drive, though here Negro voter registration was already comparatively high.

SNCC was first organized just three years ago at a meeting of student sit-in leaders in Raleigh, N.C., who planned to continue "non-violent" protest against racial discrimination in all its forms.

The organization has grown rapidly, from only six full-time staff members one year ago to almost 60 now. Most of the staff workers ars college students or recent college graduates.

The southwest Georgia project currently involves about 10 SNCC workers who in turn recruit local volunteers in each county. The regular staff members are paid very little, barely enough to cover living expenses, and some of them live in Negro homes in the various counties.

SNCC workers hold mass meetings at least once each week in counties where voter registration campaigns are under way. In Dougherty, Lee, and Sumter, these meetings are held in Negro churches, and in Terrell in a tent near the site of a Negro church which burned last September.

The fervor and energy of these mass meetings are approximately that of an enthusiastic church revival meeting.

MINISTERS JOIN

At a recent Sumter County meeting, three local Negro ministers took part in the program. There was an opening prayer and a Scripture reading, and rhythmic hand clapping and singing of "freedom songs." Most of the songs could apply to, say, voter registration, but they also have an evangelical flavor.

"This little light of mine, I'm going to let it shine," goes one song, "All over Sumter County, I'm going to let it shine, Down in the courthouse, I'm going to let it shine."

Negro leaders from the local community often take part in these meetings, but the real spotlight is on the student leaders, even on local high school students who are old enough to register and who have become active in the voter registration campaign.

The greatest response from older Negro citizens comes, however, not when voter registration is mentioned but at the suggestion that some of the minor humiliations of segregation may be eliminated.

"A lot of you are willing to accept things," a Negro minister told a Sumter County audience a few days ago. "You 50-year-old men are willing to accept a 20-year-old white man calling you 'boy'. These kids aren't going to accept that."

There are at present at least three white girls and one young white man working full time for SNCC in southwest Georgia. The other field workers are Negro, and the interracial composition of the groups seems to create more resentment among local officials.

But the drive goes on, though Negro voter registration has increased only very gradually in Sumter, Terrell, and Lee counties. Additional SNCC workers are expected to join the project this summer, possibly extending the drive to other counties.

The disadvantage of SNCC activities in any county is the deep resentment created by a militantly integrationist group, made up of "outsiders," in a strongly segregated community.

"Our greatest problem is ourselves," Charles Sherrod, a 26-year-old Negro minister and head of the SNCC southwest Georgia project, recently warned a group of SNCC workers.

"Each of us is part of the system," he continued. "Some of us hate. Some of us admit it, and some of us don't admit it."

And in all cases, Sherrod pointed out, the desires of the local Negro community must be the guidelines for any program.

"The people have aspirations," he said, "and we must have confidence in the people or go back home."

The Negro Vote Drive ... No. 3

A Peaceful Baker Signs Up 300 Negroes in Months

By HAL GULLIVER
Constitution Staff Writer

NEWTON — There was not one registered Negro voter in Baker County 18 months ago, even though Negroes make up almost 59 per cent of Baker's 4,600 residents.

Only white citizens voted in Baker County, as tradition had it, and as recently as March of this year there were just 24 registered Negro voters in the county.

But traditions fade swiftly sometimes, and today there are nearly 300 Negro voters in Baker, most of them added to the registration lists in the last month. In fact, an estimated 200 new Negro voters balloted without incident in a special election held here last Thursday.

Third in a series.

"If you'd said five or six years ago," a local official commented, "that this would have happened by this time, why, people here would have laughed in your face."

Baker lies in a primarily agricultural area in southwest Georgia.

The sharp change in voting pattern here came voluntarily, if reluctantly, after a U.S. Justice department attorney persuaded Baker County officials that there was really little choice.

HARD CHOICE

Yet it was a hard choice to make. A court suit would almost certainly mean federal court injunctions against local officials and even, conceivably, an appointed federal referee to administer voter registration.

But, on the other hand, any substantial break with tradition was certain to meet with strong local criticism. There seemed also a possibility of racial incidents.

Jerome K. Heilbron, a Southerner himself and an attorney with the Civil Rights Division of the Justice department, carefully explained to the three-man Board of Registrars the probable result of whatever course of action they chose.

At one point, he showed local officials a copy of the kind of court suit that would be filed if no changes were made in voter registration practices.

NONE REGISTERED

"As you know, there are at the present time no Negroes registered to vote in Baker County," said a Justice department letter to the incoming Board of Registrars, W. E. Rooks, R. B. Tabb and Luther Timmons, to sign an agreement to correct "registration abuses" or face court action.

The registrars signed the agreement and began registering Negro voters in Baker County for the first time since the abolition of the Democratic Party white primary in 1945.

But Negro registration moved slowly for more than a year, and on March 4, 1963, the Justice department took a further step.

Burke Marshall, assistant U.S. attorney general and head of the Justice department Civil Rights Division, wrote a detailed letter to the Board of Registrars outlining "suggested corrections" in voter registration procedures.

Some Negro applicants, Marshall said, contended they had never received notification of the scheduled time for their voter registration tests.

OBSERVER CALLED IN

It would be necessary, the letter continued, for a Justice department observer to be present at the next testing of Negro applicants.

The Board of Registrars requested that Heilbron be named to act as observer.

"He was just as helpful as his position could make it," one official said of Heilbron. "The board acted in good faith with him, and he did with them."

"We gave the same test to everybody," R. I. Hudson, tax collector and deputy registrar, declared. "We were strictly following Georgia law and federal law."

There has been a good deal of discussion in Baker County about the sudden surge in Negro registration, a local man commented, adding, "A lot of people hate to see it, even though they knew it was coming."

Negro leaders think Negro voter registration will continue at a steady rate in Baker, though more slowly now that the initial surge is over.

Local officials agree, however, that there might have been incidents if members of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee had conducted a voter registration drive in Baker, as the SNCC group has done in four nearby counties.

In fact, a Justice department official specifically asked SNCC workers to stay out of Baker County while negotiations were under way.

The Justice department continues to observe several counties in Georgia where Negro voter registration is unusually low, and Terrell County provides evidence that the Civil Rights division of the department will seek federal court injunctions against local officials when necessary.

However, a Justice department spokesman said last week, Baker County will help provide a pattern for less bitter, voluntary solutions in other counties.

THE NEGRO VOTE DRIVE . . . NO. 2

Terrell Registration Gains Slowly Amid Tension

By HAL GULLIVER
Constitution Staff Writer

DAWSON — Terrell County now has a reported 128 registered Negro voters out of a Negro population of approximately 8,300.

This doesn't seem a very high figure, especially when compared with more than 2,900 registered white voters and a white population of 4,600.

But there were only 51 Negro voters in Terrell two years ago, and this seems genuine progress to Negro voter registration workers.

Chief impetus for the Negro voter drive here has come from members of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, an interracial civil rights group, working in cooperation with local Negro citizens.

Terrell is a predominantly agricultral county in southwest Georgia, one of 33 Georgia counties with more than 50 per cent Negro population. Some 20 of these so-called "black belt" counties are located in the southwest corner of the state between Macon and the Georgia-Alabama line.

Negro voter registration in Georgia tends to be lowest where the Negro population is high.

This is not a hard-and-fast rule, and there are notable exceptions, such as McIntosh, Liberty, and Greene counties. But the rule applies generally in the area surrounding Terrell.

Terrell was, in fact, the county named in the first federal court suit on voting under the 1957 Civil Rights Act. In September 1960 a federal court enjoined the Terrell Board of Registrars from discriminating against Negro voter applicants.

Local officials have abided by terms of the injunction but a series of racial incidents have made Terrell's Negro voting situation as difficult as any in the state.

Three Negro churches were burned in Terrell County last September.

Negro voter registration meetings are now held near Sasser, in a tent erected close to the site of one of the burned churches.

Another church, which was not used for voter registration meetings, was rebuilt by Terrell County white citizens after three white men confessed to setting the fire. Dedication services at the new I Hope Baptist Church were held on April 21.

"We've got good people here," former Dawson Mayor Carl Rountree said recently. "You just can't indict a whole community for an isolated incident." Rountree headed the committee which raised funds to rebuild the I Hope church.

Exact cause of the burning of the other two Negro churches has never been determined.

Rountree, however, as editor of the Dawson News, has expressed belief that the Negro voter registration workers had more to gain from the burning of the churches than anyone else.

There have been no serious racial incidents in Terrell since last fall, but the situation remains tense.

"They've been voting more and more since 1960," a prominent Dawson man said of Negro voter registration. "Nobody stops them, and nobody molests them. Of course, they look on them like you would a rattlesnake, but they let 'em vote."

Most Negroes who have registered to date are "either students or older people," according to Mrs. Carolyn Daniels, a Negro beautician active in the voter registration drive.

Several SNCC field workers were staying in Mrs. Daniels' home last summer when unidentified persons fired a shotgun through the front door of the house. John H. Chatfield, a 20-year-old Trinity College student from Vermont, was wounded by shotgun pellets.

"People around here are afraid they'll lose their jobs if they register to vote," according to Mrs. Daniels, a lifelong resident of Terrell. This is why, she contends, the Negroes willing to register so far have been chiefly 18-year-old high school students and elderly people who no longer have jobs.

Perhaps the most significant omen for the future is the growing interest on the part of Negro high school students, barely old enough to vote themselves, in the voter registration drive.

Terrell County's situation on Negro voter registration remains a difficult one, a "very vexing problem," editor Rountree calls it.

"There's no solution to it in the student activities," Rountree argues. "All they can do is aggravate the situation."

The real spark behind the Negro voter drive in Terrell has come from the SNCC workers. At the same time, the deepest resentment against the drive has been aimed less at Negro voter registration itself than at the interracial nature of the SNCC group.

"In a small community like this," one man said, "there's bound to be resentment when people see a young white boy and a Negro girl walking down the street together in Dawson. There are plenty of local Negro leaders just as enthusiastic for the movement as outside people. SNCC and the others should leave it to the local Negroes."

Whether left to local leaders or not, there seems little doubt that Negro voter registration in Terrell and other "black belt" counties will continue to grow slowly.

Tuesday: Sharp increase in Negro voter registration in Baker County.

Students to Retrace Slain Postman's Trek

The student Non Violent Coordinating Committee announced Sunday night it will stage a "Freedom Walk" to Jackson Miss., Wednesday along the route planned by postman William L. Moore who was killed near Attalla, Ala.

Julian Bond, administrative assistant, said he received a telephone call from executive director James Forman reporting the SNCC executive committee voted in Norfolk, Va., to stage the walk.

It will start at either Chattanooga, Tenn., or Attalla, and about 10 Negroes and white persons will take part, Bond said.

SHARP VARIATIONS IN REGISTRATIONS

The following table shows, county by county, the sharp variation in Negro voter registration in Georgia counties.

Registration figures filed in either 1960 or 1962 are available by race for 104 of Georgia's 159 counties and were supplied by Secretary of State Ben Fortson's office.

Figures for other counties come from 1958 registration figures or from more recent estimates of the number of Negro voters in a county.

Population figures are those of the State Health Department's 1962 estimate.

THE NEGRO VOTER DRIVE—NO. 1

Growth in Registrations Parallels That of Whites

By HAL GULLIVER

Georgia's Negro voter registration has soared in some urban areas during the past year, but for the most part the increase has been about the same as the growth in white voter registration.

This is true, despite the concentrated efforts of at least one statewide registration committee ot coordinate Negro voter registration campaigns, all over the state.

This committee is affiliated with Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which is also pushing Negro voter registration in other Southern states.

In April, 1962, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., president, named Atlanta businessman J. H. Calhoun, longtime Negro Republican leader, chairman of the Georgia committee.

"We now visualize the doubling of the number of Negro registered voters within the next 2 years," Dr. King said at that time.

The results in Georgia in a year have fallen far short of approaching that ambitious goal.

Exact voter registration figures by race are available for less than half of Georgia's 159 counties, since many counties have abandoned the practice of reporting to the secretary of state separate totals for Negro and white voters.

Only 42 of the 73 counties for which 1962 figures are available, however, showed any increase at all in Negro registration since 1960.

And in most cases, the increase was slight and roughly equivalent to the growth in white voter registration.

MAJOR SPURTS in Negro registration came chiefly in the larger cities such as Savannah, Albany, Columbus, Atlanta, Macon and Augusta. But there were also rural counties with low Negro registration which more than doubled their total number of Negro voters last year.

In an annual report last month, Mr. Calhoun gave the following approximate figures for the 1962 increase in urban registration: Savannah, 1,000; Albany, more than 2,000; Columbus, 3,640; Atlanta, 6,000; Macon, 6,000; and Augusta, 3,500.

The effect of the Negro voter registration drive on local politics in some areas as well as the active interest of the U.S. Justice Department in voter registration in certain Georgia counties, will be discussed in later articles.

EUGENE COOK

ATTORNEY GENERAL

Honorable Joe Mack Wilson
Representative, Cobb County
General Assembly of Georgia
306 Northcutt Street
Marietta, Georgia

Dear Mr. Wilson:

Recently, you referred me to Act Nos. 36[1] and 51[2], adopted at the last session of the General Assembly, which amended the Voters' Registration Act of 1958[3], and inquired as to whether these amendments empower a registrar or a deputy registrar to register a person to vote when such official mans an additional registration place as provided for in the amendments.

Prior to the enactment of these amendments, the Voters Registration Act[4] authorized any registrar or deputy registrar to take applications for registration[5], but directed that all applications be referred to the board of registrars for the purpose of conducting the appropriate examinations to determine whether such applications should be approved or rejected.[6]

Turning now to the amendments, we find that Act No. 36 amends the Voters Registration Act to read as follows:

> Section 10.[7] In those counties where the registrars have an office separate from the office of the tax collector or tax commissioner, the registrars shall keep the completed registration cards in such office which shall be in the courthouse or other publicly owned, or publicly rented, or publicly leased building. If no such office exists, the registrars shall keep the completed registration cards in the office of the tax collector or the tax commissioner. For the purpose of taking applications for registration and for the purpose of registering voters, such number of registrars or deputy registrars as shall be designated by the chief registrar shall be stationed at the office where the completed registration cards are kept at such times as said office is open during regular office hours. The chief registrar or the governing authority in any county, in addition to the office referred to hereinbefore, may designate other places in the county to be used for the purpose of receiving applications for registration and for the registration of voters, but there shall not be more than one such place in each militia district in the county.[8] Blank registration cards shall be kept in the office referred to hereinbefore and may be kept in such other places as shall be designated as places for registration as provided for hereinbefore.

Section 14.[9] All cards shall be turned over to the registrars and examined by them within 10 days from the date of the application. If the answer to the question propounded to the applicant relating to the offenses enumerated in Paragraph I of Section II of Article II of the Constitution is answered in the affirmative and the applicant has not been pardoned, the registrars shall reject the application. If such question is answered in the negative, the board shall notify the applicant in writing to appear before it on a day and time certain. At that time, the applicant shall be subjected to an examination as to his qualifications. Such notice shall be given within 5 days after the date of the examination of the card. The examination of the applicant shall be conducted in accordance with the procedure hereinafter prescribed.[10]

In lieu of the above, if additional places for registration have been designated, the chief registrar shall designate one or more registrars or one or more deputies, or any combination thereof, to act as a board of registrars for the purpose of taking applications for registration, examining applicants and registering persons to vote. All of this may be accomplished at the time of the application or within the time limitation specified hereinbefore in this Section. While so acting, such registrar or registrars, or deputy or deputies, or combination thereof, shall have all the rights and powers and shall be subject to all the limitations as are applicable to the board of registrars. All completed registration cards shall be turned over to the board of registrars and shall be kept in the office provided for elsewhere in this Act.[11]

Act No. 51 amends the Voters Registration Act by adding a new Section to read as follows:

Section 10A. In all counties of this State having a population of more than 100,000, according to the United States Census of 1960[12] or any such future decennial census, the chief registrar shall designate, not later than six months prior to the closing date for registration, other places in the county which shall be used for the purpose of receiving applications for registration and for the registering of voters. The chief registrar shall authorize one or more registrars or one or more deputies, or any combination thereof, to act as a board of registrars for the purpose of taking applications for registration, examining applicants, and registering persons to vote. All of this may be accomplished at the time of application for registration. While so acting, such registrar or registrars or deputy or deputies, or any combination thereof, shall have all the rights and powers as are applicable to the board of registrars as provided in this Act. Blank registration cards shall be kept in the places designated for registration and completed registration cards shall be kept in the main office of the registrars.

These amendments, if consistent with constitutional requirements, unequivocally authorize the establishment of additional places for voter registration within Cobb County and the manning of each place, at the minimum, by a single registrar or deputy registrar having all the powers of the board of registrars and, hence, empowered to register a person to vote without action by the full board or a quorum thereof.

11. This Paragraph is entirely new.
12. This provision is applicable to Cobb County because it has a population of 114,174 according to the United States Census of 1960.

Furthermore, it is my opinion that these amendments, if constitutional, authorize the registering of persons to vote, who apply at the registrars' office in Marietta, by a single registrar or deputy registrar, if and when additional voter registration places are established in Cobb County. Obviously, it would be an inconsistent and unreasonable construction to require board action to register applicants appearing at the Marietta office, and to dispense with such a requirement for applicants appearing at other registration places in the County.

The question of constitutionality is presented because Section I of Article II of the State Constitution of 1945 vests the administration of the registration procedure in the "registrars". Does the term "registrars", in the constitutional sense, refer only to the presently existing three member board of county registrars, or is the term broad enough to include those officials, outside of such board, who from time to time are authorized by the legislature to administer the registration procedure? Does the term "registrats", being plural, preclude the vesting of their authority in a single official?

In resolving these questions and in determining the constitutionality of the 1963 amendments, we will begin by reviewing the principal State laws governing voter registration for the past eighty-five years.

Article II of the Constitution of 1877 dealt with the elective franchise. Section I of such Article, in its original form, required the use of the ballot in all elections by the people, established the sex, citizenship, age, residence and tax payment qualifications of an elector, and prescribed the oath required of a challenged elector.

In 1894, the legislature adopted a general registration law (Ga Laws, 1894, p 115) making registration a necessary preliminary step to voting in Georgia.[13] This law required the tax collector of each county to carry a voters' book when he made his rounds through the militia districts, and to maintain voters' books in his office at the county courthouse.[14] When an applicant for voter registration had paid the required taxes and taken the prescribed oath and was otherwise qualified, he signed his name in the voters' book.[15] The books remained open until the time prescribed for their closing prior to each general election. Upon their closing, the tax collector was required to furnish the county registrars with an accurate and complete list of all the names of the electors signed in his books who appeared qualified to vote.[16]

13. Ga Laws, 1894, p 120, Sec X.
14. Id, p 116, Sec II.
15. Id, p 116, Sec III.
16. Id, p 117, Sec V.

The tax collector, ordinary and clerk of the superior court of each county were required to periodically prepare and file with the county registrars and tax collector a complete list of all persons living in the county who were disqualified from voting by reason of tax delinquency, insanity, or conviction of a crime bearing the penalty of disfranchisement undissolved by pardon.[17]

Prior to each general election, the registrars were required to examine the lists of voters and disqualified persons filed with them and to prepare therefrom the lists of voters for use in the election. In preparing the lists, the registrars were authorized to add names to or delete them from the lists in order to correct errors made by the tax collector, ordinary or clerk.[18]

At or prior to the opening of the polls, the registrars were required to distribute to the election managers at each voting precinct copies of the appropriate list.[19]

The 1894 Act was the first registration law to provide for the establishment of a board of registrars for each county. The Act directed the judge of each superior court to appoint three registrars to serve two-year terms.[20]

Under this program of registration, the tax collector actually registered persons to vote in his county. The duties of the registrars were confined to preparing the voters' lists to be used in elections and to correcting any errors made by the tax collector in administering the registration procedure or by the officials preparing the disqualification list.

On October 7, 1908, the people ratified an amendment striking Section I of Article II of the Constitution and inserting in its place a new Section requiring the use of the ballot in all public elections and registration prior to voting, prescribing the sex, citizenship, age, residence and tax paying qualifications of an elector; and providing in part that:

> Par. IV. Every male citizen of this State shall be entitled to register as an elector and to vote in all elections in said State who is not disqualified under the provisions of Section II of Article II of this Constitution, and who possesses

Any person who has been once registered under either of the sub-divisions 1 or 2 of paragraph IV shall thereafter be permitted to vote; provided, he meets the requirements of paragraphs II and III of this Section.

ground that he lacks the qualifications set forth in the five subdivisions of paragraph IV, shall have the right to take an appeal, and any citizen may enter an appeal from the decision of the registrars allowing any person to register under said sub-divisions. All appeals must be filed in writing with the registrars within ten days from the date of the decision complained of and shall be returned by the registrars to the office of the clerk of the Superior Court to be tried as other appeals.

Par. VII. Pending an appeal and until the final decision of the case, the judgment of the registrars shall remain in full force. (Emphasis supplied.)

This constitutional amendment for the first time injected the term "registrars" into the Constitution of 1877. However, after the amendment's ratification, no change was made in the 1894 Act for the purpose of statutably implementing any provision of the amendment. In fact, the 1894 Act continued as the primary registration statute until the adoption of the Voters' Registration Act of 1949 (Ga Laws, 1949, p 1204) which, of course, postdated the ratification of the 1945 Constitution.

Under these circumstances, it is clear that the tax collector, in performing his role in the registration procedure, determined whether an applicant to sign his voters' book fell within any of the five classifications established in Paragraph IV of the constitutional amendment. This would, of course, include the administration of the literacy test to those applicants seeking to qualify under the fourth classification, irrespective of the fact that the amendment assigned such duty to "one of the registrars".

In 1941, the legislature adopted an Act (Ga Laws, 1941, p 413), applicable to counties having a population of 200,000 or more according to the 1940 census or any future census, which abolished the board of county registrars[22] and provided that "the tax collector or in counties which do not have a tax collector, the tax commissioner shall be ex-officio county registrar of such county and required to perform in such county all the duties now or hereafter required by law to be performed by county registrars."[23]

The 1941 Act is significant because it delegated all the powers of the board of registrars to a single county tax official, irrespective of the fact that the 1908 constitutional amendment

22. Ga Laws, 1941, p 413, Sec 2.
23. Id, p 414, Sec 3.

vested the administration of the registration procedure in the "registrars". However, such a legislative construction of the term "registrars" is consistent with the rule of construction providing that the "singular or plural number shall each include the other, unless expressly excluded." Code Sec 102-102(4); 82 CJS, Statutes, Sec 337, p 675; 50 Am Jur, Statutes, Sec 256, p 251.[24]

On August 7, 1945, the people ratified the Constitution of 1945. Section I of Article II of the Constitution of 1877 corresponded to the same Section and Article of the new Constitution which continued the requirements as to the use of the ballot in all public elections and registration prior to voting, prescribed the citizenship, age and residence qualifications of an elector; and provided in part that:

> Paragraph IV. Qualifications of electors. Every citizen of this State shall be entitled to register as an elector, and to vote in all elections in said State, who is not disqualified under the provisions of Section II of Article II of this Constitution, and who possesses the qualifications prescribed in Paragraphs II and III of this Section or who will possess them at the date of the election occurring next after his registration, and who in addition thereto comes within either of the classes provided for in the two following subdivisions of this paragraph.
> 1. All persons who are of good character and understand the duties and obligations of citizenship under a republican form of government; or,
> 2. All persons who can correctly read in the English language any paragraph of the Constitution of the United States or of this State and correctly write the same in the English language when read to them by any one of the registrars, and all persons who solely because of physical disability are unable to comply with the above requirements but who can understand and give a reasonable interpretation of any paragraph of the Constitution of the United States or of this State that may be read to them by any one of the registrars.

24. In this connection, it should be noted that the general principles governing the construction of statutes apply also to the construction of a constitutional provision. City of Valdosta v. Singleton (1944) 197 Ga 194, 210, last par, 28 SE 2d 759; DeJarnette v. Hospital Authority of Albany (1942) 195 Ga 189, 204, 2d par, 23 SE 2d 716.

> Paragraph V. Appeal from decision of registrars. Any person to whom the right of registration is denied by the registrars upon the ground that he lacks the qualifications set forth in the two subdivisions of Paragraph IV shall have the right to take an appeal, and any citizen may enter an appeal from the decision of the registrars allowing any person to register under said subdivisions. All appeals must be filed in writing with the registrars within ten days from the date of the decision complained of, and shall be returned by the registrars to the office of the clerk of the superior court to be tried as other appeals.
> Paragraph VI. Judgment of force pending appeal. Pending an appeal and until the final decision of the case, the judgment of the registrars shall remain in full force. (Emphasis supplied.)

Obviously, the framers of the 1945 Constitution lifted the above quoted provisions from the 1877 Constitution. This "lifting" indicates no intention to cure some defect, remedy some evil, or in any manner change the existing law. Where the language does not indicate an intention to declare some new principle, sound construction requires that it be construed to have intended no more than merely to state the law as it existed at the time. Griffin v. Vandegriff (1949) 205 Ga 288, 293, last par, 53 SE 2d 345.

The legislature construed the above quoted constitutional provisions in the same manner that it had construed their counterparts in the 1877 Constitution. Several acts illustrate this consistency.

In 1947, the legislature adopted an Act (Ga Laws, 1947, p 70), applicable to counties having a population of between 81,000 and 82,000 according to the 1940 census or any future census, which abolished the board of county registrars and vested its duties in the designated county tax official. This Act was phrased in substantially the same language as the 1941 Act considered above. Obviously, these Acts, delegating the powers of the board of registrars to a single county tax official, are analogous to the 1963 amendments which authorize the vesting of the powers of such board in a single registrar or deputy registrar.

The 1894 Act, as amended, was repealed by the Voters' Registration Act of 1949 (Ga Laws, 1949, p 1204) establishing a comprehensive program governing voter registration. Section 17 of the 1949 Act (Id, p 1210) authorized a deputy registrar to administer the literacy test prescribed by Paragraph IV of Section I of Article II of the 1945 Constitution, although such Paragraph places such duty on "one of the registrars".

The 1949 Act was repealed by the Voters' Registration Act of 1958[25] which placed the duty of administering the literacy test on the board of registrars.[26] However, a 1960 Act (Ga Laws, 1960, p 947), applicable to counties having a population of between 114,000 and 400,000 according to the last or any future census, empowers the board of registrars to authorize one of its deputies to administer the literacy examination to an applicant for registration and to report the result to the board.

In 1961, the General Assembly adopted an Act (Ga Laws, 1961, p 162) similar to the 1963 amendments. The Act applied to counties having a population of 500,000 according to the last or any future census and provided that the governing authority of each affected county shall designate the city hall of each municipality therein, other than the county seat, as a place for voter registration and that "Any combination of any three of the registrars or deputy registrars or other registration authorities when so designated or directed by the chief registration authority or chief registrar shall receive applications, conduct examinations and otherwise provided for the registration of voters at such city hall or city halls and shall constitute among themselves a board of registrars while so acting, with all the rights and powers and subject to the same limitations as provided for boards of registrars elsewhere in this Act amended.".

This review of the principal laws governing voter registration which have been enacted since 1894, clearly reflects the consistent legislative construction of the term "registrars", in the constitutional sense, as a generic term defining those officials, whether they be entitled as tax collectors, registrars, deputy registrars or otherwise, who, from time to time, are empowered by the legislature to administer the registration procedure. Actually, a word is but a symbol which may stand for one of an innumerable number of objects. It is only as custom and usage and agreement attach a particular meaning to a particular word that it has any significance in relation to either a tangible or an intangible object. Griffin v. Vandegriff (1949) 205 Ga 288, 292, 53 SE 2d 345.

Neither the 1877 or the 1945 Constitutions created any office or specified any term or otherwise provided for the "registrars" and, therefore, such cursory treatment indicates an intention of the framers to vest a liberal discretion in the legislature in determining the official or officials who shall discharge the duties of the "registrars" in the constitutional sense.

25. Ga Laws, 1958, p 269; Ann Code Ch 34-1.
26. Ga Laws, 1958, p 27[illegible], Sec 17; Ann Code Sec 34-117.

Through the years, we have seen the legislature authorize tax collectors and deputy registrars to administer the literacy test when this duty was assigned by both Constitutions to be performed by "one of the registrars". Moreover, we have seen the legislature, through population acts, assign the entire administration of the registration procedure to a single tax official, or authorize its assignment to a combination of non-registrars, when both Constitutions vested such duty in the "registrars". This legislative construction was fully developed under the 1877 Constitution, but, nevertheless, the provisions here considered were incorporated virtually verbatim into the 1945 Constitution. The 1947, 1960, 1961 and 1963 Acts demonstrate unequivocally that the legislature still construes the constitutional term "registrars" with the same elasticity that it did under the 1877 Constitution.

It is an established rule of construction that, where a constitutional provision has received a settled legislative construction, and is afterwards incorporated into a new or revised constitution, it will be presumed to have been retained with a knowledge of the previous construction, and the courts will feel bound to adhere to it.[27] The legislative interpretation presumably shows the meaning intended by the framers of the present Constitution,[28] and a provision of the Constitution is to be construed in the sense in which it was understood by the framers and the people at the time of its adoption.[29]

Furthermore, a long continued and unquestioned construction of a constitutional provision by the legislature and the public officials whose duty it is to obey and carry into effect the provision is a weighty argument in favor of such construction.[30]

In measuring the consistency of the 1963 amendments with constitutional requirements, we are faced also with the postulate that all presumptions are in favor of the constitutionality of an act of the legislature and that it cannot be lawfully set aside by the courts unless the alleged conflict with the Constitution is

In view of these authorities, it is my opinion that the provisions of Act Nos. 36 and 51, adopted at the last session of the General Assembly, do not conflict with the provisions of Section I of Article II of the Constitution of 1945.

EUGENE COOK

ATTORNEY GENERAL

Honorable Joe Mack Wilson
Representative, Cobb County
General Assembly of Georgia
306 Northcutt Street
Marietta, Georgia

Dear Mr. Wilson:

Recently, you referred me to Act Nos. 36[1] and 51[2], adopted at the last session of the General Assembly, which amended the Voters' Registration Act of 1958[3], and inquired as to whether these amendments empower a registrar or a deputy registrar to register a person to vote when such official mans an additional registration place as provided for in the amendments.

Prior to the enactment of these amendments, the Voters Registration Act[4] authorized any registrar or deputy registrar to take applications for registration[5], but directed that all applications be referred to the board of registrars for the purpose of conducting the appropriate examinations to determine whether such applications should be approved or rejected.[6]

Turning now to the amendments, we find that Act No. 36 amends the Voters Registration Act to read as follows:

> Section 10.[7] In those counties where the registrars have an office separate from the office of the tax collector or tax commissioner, the registrars shall keep the completed registration cards in such office which shall be in the courthouse or other publicly owned, or publicly rented, or publicly leased building. If no such office exists, the registrars shall keep the completed registration cards in the office of the tax collector or the tax commissioner. For the purpose of taking applications for registration and for the purpose of registering voters, such number of registrars or deputy registrars as shall be designated by the chief registrar shall be stationed at the office where the completed registration cards are kept at such times as said office is open during regular office hours. The chief registrar or the governing authority in any county, in addition to the office referred to hereinbefore, may designate other places in the county to be used for the purpose of receiving applications for registration and for the registration of voters, but there shall not be more than one such place in each militia district in the county.[8] Blank registration cards shall be kept in the office referred to hereinbefore and may be kept in such other places as shall be designated as places for registration as provided for hereinbefore.

Section 14.[9] All cards shall be turned over to the registrars and examined by them within 10 days from the date of the application. If the answer to the question propounded to the applicant relating to the offenses enumerated in Paragraph I of Section II of Article II of the Constitution is answered in the affirmative and the applicant has not been pardoned, the registrars shall reject the application. If such question is answered in the negative, the board shall notify the applicant in writing to appear before it on a day and time certain. At that time, the applicant shall be subjected to an examination as to his qualifications. Such notice shall be given within 5 days after the date of the examination of the card. The examination of the applicant shall be conducted in accordance with the procedure hereinafter prescribed.[10]

In lieu of the above, if additional places for registration have been designated, the chief registrar shall designate one or more registrars or one or more deputies, or any combination thereof, to act as a board of registrars for the purpose of taking applications for registration, examining applicants and registering persons to vote. All of this may be accomplished at the time of the application or within the time limitation specified hereinbefore in this Section. While so acting, such registrar or registrars, or deputy or deputies, or combination thereof, shall have all the rights and powers and shall be subject to all the limitations as are applicable to the board of registrars. All completed registration cards shall be turned over to the board of registrars and shall be kept in the office provided for elsewhere in this Act.[11]

Act No. 51 amends the Voters Registration Act by adding a new Section to read as follows:

Section 10A. In all counties of this State having a population of more than 100,000, according to the United States Census of 1960[12] or any such future decennial census, the chief registrar shall designate, not later than six months prior to the closing date for registration, other places in the county which shall be used for the purpose of receiving applications for registration and for the registering of voters. The chief registrar shall authorize one or more registrars or one or more deputies, or any combination thereof, to act as a board of registrars for the purpose of taking applications for registration, examining applicants, and registering persons to vote. All of this may be accomplished at the time of application for registration. While so acting, such registrar or registrars or deputy or deputies, or any combination thereof, shall have all the rights and powers as are applicable to the board of registrars as provided in this Act. Blank registration cards shall be kept in the places designated for registration and completed registration cards shall be kept in the main office of the registrars.

These amendments, if consistent with constitutional requirements, unequivocally authorize the establishment of additional places for voter registration within Cobb County and the manning of each place, at the minimum, by a single registrar or deputy registrar having all the powers of the board of registrars and, hence, empowered to register a person to vote without action by the full board or a quorum thereof.

11. This Paragraph is entirely new.
12. This provision is applicable to Cobb County because it has a population of 114,174 according to the United States Census of 1960.

Furthermore, it is my opinion that these amendments, if constitutional, authorize the registering of persons to vote, who apply at the registrars' office in Marietta, by a single registrar or deputy registrar, if and when additional voter registration places are established in Cobb County. Obviously, it would be an inconsistent and unreasonable construction to require board action to register applicants appearing at the Marietta office, and to dispense with such a requirement for applicants appearing at other registration places in the County.

The question of constitutionality is presented because Section I of Article II of the State Constitution of 1945 vests the administration of the registration procedure in the "registrars". Does the term "registrars", in the constitutional sense, refer only to the presently existing three member board of county registrars, or is the term broad enough to include those officials, outside of such board, who from time to time are authorized by the legislature to administer the registration procedure? Does the term "registrats", being plural, preclude the vesting of their authority in a single official?

In resolving these questions and in determining the constitutionality of the 1963 amendments, we will begin by reviewing the principal State laws governing voter registration for the past eighty-five years.

Article II of the Constitution of 1877 dealt with the elective franchise. Section I of such Article, in its original form, required the use of the ballot in all elections by the people, established the sex, citizenship, age, residence and tax payment qualifications of an elector, and prescribed the oath required of a challenged elector.

In 1894, the legislature adopted a general registration law (Ga Laws, 1894, p 115) making registration a necessary preliminary step to voting in Georgia.[13] This law required the tax collector of each county to carry a voters' book when he made his rounds through the militia districts, and to maintain voters' books in his office at the county courthouse.[14] When an applicant for voter registration had paid the required taxes and taken the prescribed oath and was otherwise qualified, he signed his name in the voters' book.[15] The books remained open until the time prescribed for their closing prior to each general election. Upon their closing, the tax collector was required to furnish the county registrars with an accurate and complete list of all the names of the electors signed in his books who appeared qualified to vote.[16]

13. Ga Laws, 1894, p 120, Sec X.
14. Id, p 116, Sec II.
15. Id, p 116, Sec III.
16. Id, p 117, Sec V.

The tax collector, ordinary and clerk of the superior court of each county were required to periodically prepare and file with the county registrars and tax collector a complete list of all persons living in the county who were disqualified from voting by reason of tax delinquency, insanity, or conviction of a crime bearing the penalty of disfranchisement undissolved by pardon.[17]

Prior to each general election, the registrars were required to examine the lists of voters and disqualified persons filed with them and to prepare therefrom the lists of voters for use in the election. In preparing the lists, the registrars were authorized to add names to or delete them from the lists in order to correct errors made by the tax collector, ordinary or clerk.[18]

At or prior to the opening of the polls, the registrars were required to distribute to the election managers at each voting precinct copies of the appropriate list.[19]

The 1894 Act was the first registration law to provide for the establishment of a board of registrars for each county. The Act directed the judge of each superior court to appoint three registrars to serve two-year terms.[20]

Under this program of registration, the tax collector actually registered persons to vote in his county. The duties of the registrars were confined to preparing the voters' lists to be used in elections and to correcting any errors made by the tax collector in administering the registration procedure or by the officials preparing the disqualification list.

On October 7, 1908, the people ratified an amendment striking Section I of Article II of the Constitution and inserting in its place a new Section requiring the use of the ballot in all public elections and registration prior to voting, prescribing the sex, citizenship, age, residence and tax paying qualifications of an elector; and providing in part that:

> Par. IV. Every male citizen of this State shall be entitled to register as an elector and to vote in all elections in said State who is not disqualified under the provisions of Section II of Article II of this Constitution, and who possesses ground that he lacks the qualifications set forth in the five subdivisions of paragraph IV, shall have the right to take an appeal, and any citizen may enter an appeal from the decision of the registrars allowing any person to register under said sub-divisions. Par. VII. Pending an appeal and until the final decision of the case, the judgment of the registrars shall remain in full force. (Emphasis supplied.)

This constitutional amendment for the first time injected the term "registrars" into the Constitution of 1877. However, after the amendment's ratification, no change was made in the 1894 Act for the purpose of statutably implementing any provision of the amendment. In fact, the 1894 Act continued as the primary registration statute until the adoption of the Voters' Registration Act of 1949 (Ga Laws, 1949, p 1204) which, of course, postdated the ratification of the 1945 Constitution.

Under these circumstances, it is clear that the tax collector, in performing his role in the registration procedure, determined whether an applicant to sign his voters' book fell within any of the five classifications established in Paragraph IV of the constitutional amendment. This would, of course, include the administration of the literacy test to those applicants seeking to qualify under the fourth classification, irrespective of the fact that the amendment assigned such duty to "one of the registrars".

In 1941, the legislature adopted an Act (Ga Laws, 1941, p 413), applicable to counties having a population of 200,000 or more according to the 1940 census or any future census, which abolished the board of county registrars[22] and provided that "the tax collector or in counties which do not have a tax collector, the tax commissioner shall be ex-officio county registrar of such county and required to perform in such county all the duties now or hereafter required by law to be performed by county registrars."[23]

The 1941 Act is significant because it delegated all the powers of the board of registrars to a single county tax official, irrespective of the fact that the 1908 constitutional amendment

22. Ga Laws, 1941, p 413, Sec 2.
23. Id, p 414, Sec 3.

vested the administration of the registration procedure in the "registrars". However, such a legislative construction of the term "registrars" is consistent with the rule of construction providing that the "singular or plural number shall each include the other, unless expressly excluded." Code Sec 102-102(4); 82 CJS, Statutes, Sec 337, p 675; 50 Am Jur, Statutes, Sec 256, p 251.[24]

On August 7, 1945, the people ratified the Constitution of 1945. Section I of Article II of the Constitution of 1877 corresponded to the same Section and Article of the new Constitution which continued the requirements as to the use of the ballot in all public elections and registration prior to voting, prescribed the citizenship, age and residence qualifications of an elector; and provided in part that:

> Paragraph IV. Qualifications of electors. Every citizen of this State shall be entitled to register as an elector, and to vote in all elections in said State, who is not disqualified under the provisions of Section II of Article II of this Constitution, and who possesses the qualifications prescribed in Paragraphs II and III of this Section or who will possess them at the date of the election occurring next after his registration, and who in addition thereto comes within either of the classes provided for in the two following subdivisions of this paragraph.
> 1. All persons who are of good character and understand the duties and obligations of citizenship under a republican form of government; or,
> 2. All persons who can correctly read in the English language any paragraph of the Constitution of the United States or of this State and correctly write the same in the English language when read to them by any one of the registrars, and all persons who solely because of physical disability are unable to comply with the above requirements but who can understand and give a reasonable interpretation of any paragraph of the Constitution of the United States or of this State that may be read to them by any one of the registrars.

24. In this connection, it should be noted that the general principles governing the construction of statutes apply also to the construction of a constitutional provision. City of Valdosta v. Singleton (1944) 197 Ga 194, 210, last par, 28 SE 2d 759; DeJarnette v. Hospital Authority of Albany (1942) 195 Ga 189, 204, 2d par, 23 SE 2d 716.

Paragraph V. Appeal from decision of registrars. Any person to whom the right of registration is denied by the registrars upon the ground that he lacks the qualifications set forth in the two subdivisions of Paragraph IV shall have the right to take an appeal, and any citizen may enter an appeal from the decision of the registrars allowing any person to register under said subdivisions. All appeals must be filed in writing with the registrars within ten days from the date of the decision complained of, and shall be returned by the registrars to the office of the clerk of the superior court to be tried as other appeals.

Paragraph VI. Judgment of force pending appeal. Pending an appeal and until the final decision of the case, the judgment of the registrars shall remain in full force. (Emphasis supplied.)

Obviously, the framers of the 1945 Constitution lifted the above quoted provisions from the 1877 Constitution. This "lifting" indicates no intention to cure some defect, remedy some evil, or in any manner change the existing law. Where the language does not indicate an intention to declare some new principle, sound construction requires that it be construed to have intended no more than merely to state the law as it existed at the time. Griffin v. Vandegriff (1949) 205 Ga 288, 293, last par, 53 SE 2d 345.

The legislature construed the above quoted constitutional provisions in the same manner that it had construed their counterparts in the 1877 Constitution. Several acts illustrate this consistency.

In 1947, the legislature adopted an Act (Ga Laws, 1947, p 70), applicable to counties having a population of between 81,000 and 82,000 according to the 1940 census or any future census, which abolished the board of county registrars and vested its duties in the designated county tax official. This Act was phrased in substantially the same language as the 1941 Act considered above. Obviously, these Acts, delegating the powers of the board of registrars to a single county tax official, are analogous to the 1963 amendments which authorize the vesting of the powers of such board in a single registrar or deputy registrar.

The 1894 Act, as amended, was repealed by the Voters' Registration Act of 1949 (Ga Laws, 1949, p 1204) establishing a comprehensive program governing voter registration. Section 17 of the 1949 Act (Id, p 1210) authorized a deputy registrar to administer the literacy test prescribed by Paragraph IV of Section I of Article II of the 1945 Constitution, although such Paragraph places such duty on "one of the registrars".

The 1949 Act was repealed by the Voters' Registration Act of 1958[25] which placed the duty of administering the literacy test on the board of registrars.[26] However, a 1960 Act (Ga Laws, 1960, p 947), applicable to counties having a population of between 114,000 and 400,000 according to the last or any future census, empowers the board of registrars to authorize one of its deputies to administer the literacy examination to an applicant for registration and to report the result to the board.

In 1961, the General Assembly adopted an Act (Ga Laws, 1961, p 162) similar to the 1963 amendments. The Act applied to counties having a population of 500,000 according to the last or any future census and provided that the governing authority of each affected county shall designate the city hall of each municipality therein, other than the county seat, as a place for voter registration and that "Any combination of any three of the registrars or deputy registrars or other registration authorities when so designated or directed by the chief registration authority or chief registrar shall receive applications, conduct examinations and otherwise provided for the registration of voters at such city hall or city halls and shall constitute among themselves a board of registrars while so acting, with all the rights and powers and subject to the same limitations as provided for boards of registrars elsewhere in this Act amended.".

This review of the principal laws governing voter registration which have been enacted since 1894, clearly reflects the consistent legislative construction of the term "registrars", in the constitutional sense, as a generic term defining those officials, whether they be entitled as tax collectors, registrars, deputy registrars or otherwise, who, from time to time, are empowered by the legislature to administer the registration procedure. Actually, a word is but a symbol which may stand for one of an innumerable number of objects. It is only as custom and usage and agreement attach a particular meaning to a particular word that it has any significance in relation to either a tangible or an intangible object. Griffin v. Vandegriff (1949) 205 Ga 288, 292, 53 SE 2d 345.

Neither the 1877 or the 1945 Constitutions created any office or specified any term or otherwise provided for the "registrars" and, therefore, such cursory treatment indicates an intention of the framers to vest a liberal discretion in the legislature in determining the official or officials who shall discharge the duties of the "registrars" in the constitutional sense.

26. Ga Laws, 1958, p 277, Sec 17; Ann Code Sec 34-117.

Through the years, we have seen the legislature authorize tax collectors and deputy registrars to administer the literacy test when this duty was assigned by both Constitutions to be performed by "one of the registrars". Moreover, we have seen the legislature, through population acts, assign the entire administration of the registration procedure to a single tax official, or authorize its assignment to a combination of non-registrars, when both Constitutions vested such duty in the "registrars". This legislative construction was fully developed under the 1877 Constitution, but, nevertheless, the provisions here considered were incorporated virtually verbatim into the 1945 Constitution. The 1947, 1960, 1961 and 1963 Acts demonstrate unequivocally that the legislature still construes the constitutional term "registrars" with the same elasticity that it did under the 1877 Constitution.

It is an established rule of construction that, where a constitutional provision has received a settled legislative construction, and is afterwards incorporated into a new or revised constitution, it will be presumed to have been retained with a knowledge of the previous construction, and the courts will feel bound to adhere to it.[27] The legislative interpretation presumably shows the meaning intended by the framers of the present Constitution,[28] and a provision of the Constitution is to be construed in the sense in which it was understood by the framers and the people at the time of its adoption.[29]

Furthermore, a long continued and unquestioned construction of a constitutional provision by the legislature and the public officials whose duty it is to obey and carry into effect the provision is a weighty argument in favor of such construction.[30]

In measuring the consistency of the 1963 amendments with constitutional requirements, we are faced also with the postulate that all presumptions are in favor of the constitutionality of an act of the legislature and that it cannot be lawfully set aside by the courts unless the alleged conflict with the Constitution is plain and palpable.[31] Furthermore, the legislature is conclusively presumed to know the provisions of the Constitution,[32] and all statutes are presumed to be enacted by the legislature with full knowledge of the existing condition of the law and with reference to it, and are to be construed in connection and in harmony with the existing law.[33]

In view of these authorities, it is my opinion that the provisions of Act Nos. 36 and 51, adopted at the last session of the General Assembly, do not conflict with the provisions of Section I of Article II of the Constitution of 1945.

Easier Voting Requirement To Aid Negroes, City Folks

By REG MURPHY

Watch for voter registration to jump much higher in Georgia in 1964, and look for it to include more in-migrants and city dwellers as well as Negroes.

Reg Murphy

It will happen because there will be a move under way for easier registration for both Negroes and whites as the Democratic Party moves to broaden the franchise.

State Democratic Chairman J. B. Fuqua said almost as much Wednesday when he noted "the residence requirements need careful study" by an election laws study committee which begins meeting next Wednesday.

Those residence requirements now are rather tough: The would-be voter must have lived in Georgia a full year and have resided in the same county for six months.

Further, the registration books close a full six months before the election now—well in advance of the time interest really builds in a presidential campaign.

"The law should make it easy for people to vote," Fuqua believes. He pointed to one significant step taken by the last Legislature which requires registrars to provide for community registration.

It also is instructive to listen to Fuqua talk about the registration of Negroes.

"We must welcome registration regardless of color," he said, commenting on the appointment of Negro Sen. LeRoy Johnson of Atlanta as director of a Southeastern Negro voter registration drive.

The fact that Johnson is a Democrat and that the Republicans are losing the pull they once had for Southern Negro votes certainly figures into the picture.

Fuqua also took another step calculated to win over some of the Negro votes which have gone Republican. He appointed Johnson and Atlanta Negro Leader A. T. Walden to the State Democratic Executive Committee—the first of their race to be included.

Everybody in the heirarchy of the Georgia Democratic Party expected some public resignations from the party and many more complaints.

Instead, not even a protesting letter was received.

That was the most solid indication thus far that the Democrats have gotten wiser politically. They see the growing Republican strength, and know that every Negro vote they pick up offsets the trend.

Republicans also stand to profit from the easing of registration requirements. Many persons moving into the state from the Midwest, Far West or East vote Republican, but have not established residence and gotten qualified to vote in past years.

But the Democrats still have the legislative power, and by broadening the franchise they will profit most in the immediate future.

The law changes can be made in January in plenty of time for more participation in the 1964 presidential election.

Thus, Georgia's voter registration could take a rather phenomenal jump of close to a quarter of a million voters over the current 1,350,000 before the presidential vote.

It's Time for Georgia To Strip Away The Unreasonable Shackles on Voting

Action aimed at ripping down nonsensical barriers to voting ought to be one of the first orders of business when the election laws study committee swings into action Wednesday.

The present set of antiquated regulations includes such absurdities as requiring citizens to be residents of the state for a full year before being eligible to vote. Furthermore, six-months' residency in the same county is necessary in order to get to the ballot box.

Newcomers to Georgia start paying taxes in one way or another to state and local governments upon arrival. It is unfair to make them wait a full year before being eligible to vote. Both the 12 and 6-months' requirements should be lowered.

One of the most glaring faults in present procedure is the closing of registration books a full six months before election time. That is far too early. At that stage interest in candidates and issues is a mere flicker compared to what it will flame into as political campaigns develop.

The study committee ought to come up with recommendations to modify overly severe requirements. Then the General Assembly in January should make the changes necessary to untie the hands of a large segment of would-be voters.

In connection with the latter, one source of past confusion already has gone by the boards. The unpledged electors law expired last year. May it never be revived. People are entitled to vote on candidates, with their names squarely before them on the ballot, instead of a list of electors without direct obligation to carry out the wishes of the majority of voters.

Negro Voting Bill Offers Upheaval

By TED LIPPMAN
Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — While the heat and thunder across the South is being concentrated on the public accommodations section of President John F. Kennedy's civil rights bill, a recent study of Negro voting and population has indicated that another civil rights measure might have a far-reaching political effect.

The public accommodations section of the Kennedy bill (Title II) is the one that would outlaw racial discrimination in such businesses as hotels and restaurants. Hearings are being held on that measure now by two committees of Congress.

Last week Sen. Richard B. Russell of Winder told a Jasper audience that such a bill "levels an all but mortal blow at the right of a man who owns property to decide how the property shall be used."

CALLED SOCIALISTIC

Earlier the Georgia senator and leader of the Southern group in the Senate had called Title II "socialistic and communistic."

However, more and more interest is being shown in Washington about another civil rights proposal. That is the voting rights section of the bill the President sent to Congress in April, before the Negro demonstrations around the country had reached the fever pitch of today.

Part of that bill would allow the federal government to go into counties where fewer than 15 per cent of the adult Negroes were registered to vote and put them on voting rolls.

COULD GET ORDER

Here is how it would work: In Miller County, Georgia, no Negroes are registered to vote. The Justice department would file a suit charging that there is a "pattern of discrimination." If a federal district court agreed, then any Negro in that county could get an order declaring that he was entitled to vote, if the judge found that he was qualified under state law and that he had been denied the opportunity to register.

The county officials or the state could contest this court ruling, but meanwhile Negroes would be allowed to register and vote. The court could register them or it could appoint federal referees. If an election came along before the case had finally been settled, the Negro votes would be impounded until there was a decision.

261 COUNTIES INVOLVED

A somewhat similar provision was written into law in 1960. The important difference was this: Negroes could not register or vote until after the case had been decided.

According to a study just completed by a non-government organization, there are 261 counties in the South in which less than 15 per cent of the adult Negroes are registered to vote.

the state's counties. In Louisiana the "pattern" is seen in over a third of the counties. In Mississippi 76 of the 82 counties have registered less than 15 per cent of the adult Negroes. In South Carolina less than 15 per cent are registered in over half of the counties.

Those 36 counties in Georgia represent less than one fourth of the state's 159.

If Negroes were suddenly registered to vote in relatively large numbers in counties and congressional districts where they had not participated before, what would the result be?

TO LIBERALIZE POLITICOS?

Some Southern politicians think it would be to "liberalize the politicians from many of the areas—in economic matters if not in civil rights matters. The reasoning behind this seems to be that most of the Negroes thus registered would be those who are interested in minimum wage legislation, welfare programs and the like.

Their votes, together with whites similarly interested, would be a power in congressional districts and probably to a greater extent, statewide.

It is unlikely, according to several Georgians in Congress, that these Negroes would have the numerical strength to insist on congressmen who would vote for or champion civil rights laws.

IN MISSISSIPPI

If the result in Georgia would be most heavily felt in only two districts, contrast that with Mississippi: in four of the five districts every county has registered less than 15 per cent of the adult Negroes. In the other district, less than 15 per cent of the Negroes are registered to vote in 10 of the 16 counties.

A majority of the counties would be affected by the new law in all but one South Carolina congressional district. Most of the counties in two of Louisiana's eight districts would be affected.

One Georgia congressman believes that the impact of registering Negroes would be less than expected. He says that most of the counties where the abuses have occurred are rural and that a majority of the Negroes in such counties would not be qualified to vote even if the registrars were fair. This is because of low education standards, he says.

IN URBAN AREAS

But he, too, concedes that congressmen would have to take the wishes of the newly registered Negroes into account. He thinks the state's two senators would be more likely to feel "pressure"

According to a study just completed by a non-government organization, there are 261 counties in the South in which less than 15 per cent of the adult Negroes are registered to vote.

Thirty-six of those counties are in Georgia, mostly in south Georgia. If federal referees were to be allowed to register Negroes to vote in all those counties, it could very well have a decided impact at the polls on local races though probably not in congressional races, with two possible exceptions.

The exceptions are the Second District (southwest Georgia) represented in Congress by J. L. Pilcher of Meigs and the Third (southwest central) represented by E. L. (Tic) Forrester of Leesburg.

WHERE THEY'RE FEW

The Second District has 14 counties. In half of them less than 15 per cent of the Negroes are registered to vote. The Third District has 24 counties. In 14 of them less than 15 per cent of the Negroes are registered to vote.

In Georgia's other districts, the situation is this: First—In only three of 18 counties are less than 15 per cent of the adult Negroes registered. Fourth — two of 15 counties. Sixth—four of 16. Eighth —two of 20. Tenth—four of 17.

In Atlanta (Fifth District) and the two north Georgia Districts (Seventh and Ninth) there are no counties in which less than 15 per cent of the Negroes are registered.

The Georgia situation compares favorably to several other Southern states. In Alabama there are less than 15 per cent of the Negroes registered to vote in half the state's counties. In Louisiana the "pattern" is seen in over a third of the counties. In Mississippi 76 of the 82 counties have registered less than 15 per cent of the adult Negroes. But he, too, concedes that congressmen would have to take the wishes of the newly registered Negroes into account. He thinks the state's two senators would be more likely to feel "pressure" from any drive to register Negroes.

His reasoning here was that there is already a substantial Negro vote in urban areas in the state. That plus "a little here and a little there" from elsewhere in the state would, he says, "add up to a real force in statewide elections."

Another congressman sees the most important result of a new voting law as being its contribution to the early death of whatever two-party system may be developing in the South. He points out that Negroes are going to vote Democratic more and more in the South because they are mostly in the lowest economic level and the Republican appeal to the poor is very slim.

The only reason that Negroes voted Republican in the South in the past is that the "aura of Lincoln" according to this congressman, lingers on. That is being replaced, he says by the "aura of Bobby and Jack."

Meeting the Potential Voter Halfway

County Registrar Leon Hay says there are 380,000 potential voters in Fulton County. Of these more than half are not registered to vote.

With this many names missing from the Fulton registration books, a proposal recently advanced by Mr. Hay is both timely and sensible. Mr. Hay suggests that the county buy a mobile registration unit and put the unit into operation next January.

The unit would visit such locations as shopping centers, schools and businesses throughout the county to register voters.

Fulton is a large county—in area as well as in population. The mobile unit would spare thousands of Fulton residents the time and trouble of driving through downtown Atlanta traffic and contending with downtown Atlanta parking problems in order to register. Students and working people would be able to register at their schools and places of employment with little loss of time.

The cost of the mobile unit would be small. The service it would perform would more than justify the expense. Fulton County commissioners should begin planning now to set aside the necessary funds.

Fortson Unit Asks Ban on Ballot Aid

By BILL EGER

Removal of all questions and qualifications from registering to vote in Georgia was recommended Wednesday in a "revolutionary" move by the State Election Laws Study Committee.

The committee has Secretary of State Ben Fortson as chairman. It voted unanimously to recommend that the General Assembly pass laws requiring only that voters be 18 years old, of good character and a citizen of the state one year and of the county three months.

In the same motion, as proposed by member Joe Underwood of Montgomery County, the committee recommended the General Assembly make it a felony to assist anyone with his ballot, except in the case of physical disability certified by a physician.

The removal of assistance was seen as a blow to alleged ballot box stuffing which has been charged in some counties.

IF PASSED by the General Assembly there would also need to be some revision of the State Constitution, according to Mr. Fortson.

The secretary of state said the action would create the most "liberal voting laws" of any state in the Union.

He said that, if the measure is understood, he thinks it stands a good chance of passage in the General Assembly.

Gov. Sanders said he had not seen the committee's resolution and would prefer not to comment specifically until given a chance to study it.

He said however anything the committee does to make it easier to vote and to guarantee honest elections would be along the lines he recommended to the committee.

"We ought to make it possible for everybody who can and will to vote," the governor said. He said he had always taken the stand the state should eliminate all possibilities of any type of fraudulent elections.

Committee member Charles King Jr. of Covington said the move is "revolutionary."

ALL MEMBERS voted in favor of the measure which was first raised in the committee's meeting Tuesday.

Secretary Fortson said he thought about the idea for three hours Tuesday night and awoke Wednesday morning completely in favor of it.

Committee Vice Chairman W. J. Richardson Jr. of Savannah said he favors most of the measure but feels there is a "dangerous trend in this country to let everybody do everything."

Secretary Fortson defended the idea, saying the concept of the American is that of the free man who can choose his own government.

He said the measure, if approved, would give poll managers the right to tell persons in polls they could not give help to other persons.

THE OBJECTION to qualification removal through testing was also answered by some members who said voters who did not understand the ballot would be unable to mark it properly and would most likely refrain from voting.

Member King said, "It increases the responsibility of the voter at the poll."

All committee members expressed some degree of satisfaction with the motion. Secretary Fortson said it proves Georgia is a "thoroughly democratic state."

The committee repeated an action of Tuesday in again tying on a vote to reduce the required 5 per cent of registered voters on petitions to get candidates on election ballots.

The vote Wednesday was 4 to

4. Tuesday the vote had gone 3 to 3.

THE MOTION was changed at Wednesday's voting to ask for a change from 5 per cent to 3 per cent of registered voters.

The only Republican member on the committee, William J. Schloth of Columbus, said it was his experience that it was nearly impossible to get 5 per cent of the registered voters on a petition.

The committee scheduled a public hearing on its work in Columbus Nov. 7 in the Superior

The Editors: I am in full accord with the proposed changes in the state's voter registration laws as set out by Mr. Ben Fortson and the election laws committee.

Each time the election and registration laws have been changed it was to make it harder for the Negro to vote. About this literacy test: I can't for the life of me see how a white registrar can make a test of another person when he or she could not pass the test in the first place.

We in the state of Georgia have registrars with less than six grades of school who have turned down Negro applicants with college degrees. Now let us be fair with ourselves and back this recommendation before the courts have us whites being registered by Negro registrars (which I believe would be fair, anyway).

If you want better participation in elections, we should make the opportunity to vote available to all the people over the age of 18. If these people don't do their duties each two years by voting at least one time, then their names should be taken off the voting list and in order to get their names restored they should have to pay a small tax.

Voting in Georgia

ALMOST overlooked during more dramatic action in Congress and on some sidewalks, Negro voter registration in the South has proceeded at an impressive pace.

Some parts of the region continue to successfully prevent Negro registration, and the gains in those areas are very small. But elsewhere there is a different story.

The Atlanta-based Voter Education Project now reports that during a 21-month period ended Dec. 31 the organizations cooperating with its registration program added 327,588 names to voter lists in 11 Southern states. Most of these are Negroes.

In Georgia 46,347 people were registered under the project's auspices. That brought Negro registration in Georgia to almost 222,000 —15.7 per cent of Georgia's total registration.

In five other Southern states the percentage of age-eligible Negroes who are registered is higher than in Georgia. But the day obviously is passing when Georgia can be correctly accused of depriving Negroes of the right to vote.

In no other Southern state is the Negro registration as high a percentage of the total.

We may see from this latest report that those portions of the civil rights bill designed to speed the end of voter discrimination would be much less applicable in Georgia than in Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana. In those states, as a whole, the most formidable barriers remain when a Negro seeks to register.

Georgia will have come a long way when the last of its local obstacles are gone and voter registration—though limited by a reasonable literacy requirement fairly applied—is not limited by race.

COLUMBUS, Ga. — Erle Cocke, Jr., U. S. Representative of the World Bank and former National Commander of the American Legion, has announced his candidacy for Congress from the Third Georgia Congressional District.

Cocke became the third candidate seeking the post as nominee in the forthcoming Democratic primary. Others include:

State Sen. Garland Byrd, former Lt. Gov. and Stephen Pace Jr., a prosecuting attorney for Southwest Georgia who lives in Americus.

The three seek the seat made vacant when Rep. E. L. (Tic) Forrester announced retirement because of illness.

Cocke Moves Registration To Muscogee

Erle Cocke Jr. moved his voter registration and official residence to Muscogee County Friday in a step paving the way for his entry into the 3rd District congressional race.

Cocke spent about 15 minutes in the county voter registrar's office, transferring his registration from Terrell County to Muscogee.

Later, he told reporters he will resign as U. S. representative to the World Bank to make a "vigorous, active" campaign for Congress this summer.

Cocke, a native of Dawson, has been a long-time resident of Terrell County, which was shifted from the 3rd District to the 2nd District under the congressional redistricting plan adopted by the General Assembly earlier this year.

His move to Columbus enables him to retain residency in the 3rd District, which he hopes to represent in Congress as a successor to retiring Rep. E. L. (Tic) Forrester of Leesburg.

Deputy Registrar John Ingram, who accepted Cocke's certificate of transfer, told Cocke he would be eligible to vote in the November general election, but not in the Sept. 9 Democratic Primary under present laws.

Ingram added that the law regarding residency requirements "could be changed" during the special session of the General Assembly.

Cocke will have established residency here for at least six months before November—but not six months before September.

He said Friday that he feels there will be no problem about his eligibility as a candidate, although the state law requires that a candidate must have lived in the district for one year.

Cocke said that many other candidates in all districts of the state, except the 7th (which was unchanged) are affected in a similar manner.

Cocke—

Unless such candidates are permitted to run, he said, a candidate "could be gerrymandered out of position anytime."

In reply to questions about the possible candidacy of W. H. Young Jr. of Columbus, Cocke said that Young is "a very capable and learned lawyer."

He said that when he discussed his (Cocke's) candidacy with Young, the Columbus attorney "gave no indication that he planned to run . . . I would like to talk to him further about his own candidacy," said Cocke.

'Not Be Active'

As for a letter written by Forrester saying that he would support Young as his successor—if Young runs — Cocke commented: "As far as I know, Mr. Forrester has indicated he would not be active in the campaign."

He added :"I have always supported Mr. Forrester."

In transferring his voter registration, Cocke listed his occupation as "farmer - banker," and said his address is now "Post Office Box 164."

He said he has been looking at apartments, houses and lots, but has not yet found a place to live. And he said his family will probably wait until school is out in June to move to Columbus. Cocke has two daughters, The elder is in school in Washington.

Sets Rules

As for his campaign plans, Cocke said that he will know more after the State Democratic Executive Committee sets the election rules, but added that "he is not going to waste any time" between now and election day.

He said he would like to meet as many voters as possible in the Third District, but admitted that it may not be possible to greet every one of an estimated 100,000 voters.

Although Cocke said that he has been active in political campaigns for other candidates, and is a former national commander of the American Legion, this will be his first campaign for elective political office.

State Gains Votes but 80 Counties Lose

Suff. Ga.

By SAM HOPKINS

Although the number of registered voters in Georgia increased 91,195 from 1954 to the 1962 elections, 80 counties lost voters.

Figures compiled by Secretary of State Ben Fortson's office also show that six counties in the Atlanta area gained 104,593 registered voters over the eight-year period — more than 13,398 more than the gain over the entire state.

Fulton and DeKalb — the two largest counties in the state— by far registered the most new voters. Fulton picked up 52,519 for a total of 177,497 and DeKalb gained 29,494 for a total of $84,143.

OTHER INCREASES

Other Atlanta area increases and their totals in 1962 include:

Cobb, 6,712 and 33,375; Gwinnett, 5,389 and 21,929; Coweta, 5,327 and 10,702; and Clayton 5,188 and 15,638.

The losses in the 80 counties came about through a purge of the voter lists due to deaths and people moving away.

The biggest loser was Dougherty County, which had 22,400 registered voters in 1954. Two years later the number had been cut to 12,182, which steadily rose to 16,729 in 1962.

Chattahoochee, the county with the fewest registered voters, rose from 288 to 355.

Some of the other counties with the largest gains were Bibb, 14,644; Chatham, 6,063; Richmond, 6,256; Houston, 3,504; and Henry, 3,040.

Muscogee County dipped 2,604. Other significant losses occurred in Carroll, 3,341; Clarke, 3,020; Floyd, 7,025; Hall, 2,804; Laurens, 3,610; and Mitchell, 3,357.

Crawford County remained about as close to the status quo in the number of voters as possible. It lost seven voters over the eight-year period for a total in 1962 of 1,563.

The number of Georgia voters listed in 1962 was 1,364,988 as compared with 1,273,793 in 1954.

Georgia Voter Registration Isn't Restricted -- Sanders

(Special to The Telegraph)

MONTEZUMA—Gov. Carl E. Sanders said here Wednesday the right to vote is one of this state's proudest heritages. He denied that voter registration is restricted in Georgia.

"Too often in the past we have been stoned with the criticism that Georgia's voters constitute a closed society," Sanders told the Montezuma Kiwanis Club.

"This is simply not so, and I challenge those citizens who have not yet let their presence be felt in government to register and find out for themselves."

There are approximately a million eligible Georgians who have not made the decision to register, Sanders said. He commended a DeKalb high school project of registering all the county's high school seniors.

"We are approaching a crucial election, and it is a source of pride to all Georgians that many of our young people have realized the importance of our participation," the governor said.

He noted that Macon County's registered voters increased from 2,126 in 1954 to 2,544 in 1962, but added, "I think that in Macon County, as is true all over the state, we can do better."

Sanders said this year witnessed the most productive session of the General Assembly in the state's history. He said he was confident the legislators, at a special session, would approve a new state Constitution which would "effectively modify and bring our governmental structure into line with the present, and more importantly, into line with the future."

Vote Registration Report Clarified

Fifteen Georgia counties named by the Associated Press Tuesday as being involved in Justice Department investigations of alleged discrimination in voter registration practices were given clean bills of health by U.S. Attorney Floyd M. Buford at Macon yesterday.

The Associated Press said Burke Marshall, assistant attorney general, civil rights division, told a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee in January that the FBI had photographed 250,000 pages of records in voting cases during the past year for analysis by attorneys in the civil rights division.

Marshall reportedly told the subcommittee the list of Southern counties included those in which Negroes were being denied the right to vote.

The list included Bibb, Bleckley and Houston Counties.

Buford said yesterday the "Department of Justice records do not indicate that voting records have been photographed in the following counties as the news report may have indicated: Ben Hill, Bibb, Bleckley, Chattahoochee, Colquitt, Dooly, Dougherty, Echols, Harris, Houston, Jones, Marion, Quitman, Schley and Stewart."

Buford said, however, in nine counties in the Middle District of Georgia such records have been photographed. These counties are Early, Lee, Sumter, Webster, Terrell, Baker, Macon, Seminole and Miller.

"Furthermore," Buford said, "available evidence does not indicate that at this time discriminatory practices are being followed in the registering of voters or in the voting processes in Bibb County."

Buford's statement supported earlier reactions from James E. McMahon, special agent in charge of the FBI, Atlanta, and Cecil Whitaker, chief of Bibb County registrars.

McMahon said he did not recall any photographing of records in Bibb County.

Whitaker said "In the 15 or 20 years that I've been associated with the board of registrars, we've had practically no trouble."

31 Georgia Counties Noted In FBI Vote Check

Ga State wide

WASHINGTON The Justice department says the FBI photographed voting records in 189 counties in eight Southern states in connection with federal vote discrimination cases.

The figures were made public Tuesday by Burke Marshall, head of the Justice department's civil rights division.

Marshall described the extensive work of the FBI in such cases last year during testimony before a House appropriations subcommittee Jan. 28.

He said the FBI photographed a total of 250,000 pages of voting records during the year. At the time there were 58 cases pending under the 1957 Civil Rights Act which covers denial of voting rights for racial reasons.

As an example, Marshall showed the subcommittee a 1,500-page analysis ov voting records and statistics in 23 Mississippi counties, which was prepared for a court case.

He said the FBI experts do the physical work of photographing the voting records, then they are analyzed in Washington by teams of lawyers in the civil rights division. The division employs 52 lawyers, he said.

The list of counties, submitted by Marshall at the request of Rep. Frank T. Bow, R-Ohio, included:

Georgia — Baker, Ben Hill, Bibb, Bleckley, Chattahoochee, Colquitt, Dooly, Dougherty, Early, Echols, Fayette, Gwinnett, Harris, Houston, Jeff Davis, Jones, Lee, Lincoln, Macon, Marion, Miller, Quitman, Schley, Seminole, Stewart, Sumter, Terrell, Toombs, Treutlen, Webster, Wilkes.

Alabama—Autauga, Baldwin, Barbour, Bibb, Bullock, Butler, Chambers, Choctaw, Clarke, Conecuh, Crenshaw, Dallas, Elmore, Etowah, Geneva, Greene, Hale, Henry, Houston, Jefferson, Limestone, Lowndes, Macon,

"The cultivated mind is the guardian genius of democracy and while guided and controlled by virtue, the noblest attribute of man; it is the only dictator that free men acknowledge, and the only security which free men desire."—Mirabeau B. Lamar, founder of The Enquirer, in a message to the Congress of Texas on Dec. 21, 1838, a few days after his inauguration as the second President of the Republic of Texas.

Deadline!

Six months is too long a period between the registration deadline and the election. And four months is too long a period between the qualifying deadline and the primary.

The new state election code, which will be worked on at next week's special legislative session, may move the registration deadline forward — but for this year, the deadline for registering to vote is today. The deadline for qualifying as a candidate in the county Democratic primary is also today.

The final qualifying day often brings out a number of candidates who have held back. Today should be no exception. Several offices are uncontested as of this writing.

However, our guess is that by this afternoon, there will only be a few posts that don't have at least two aspirants.

Political office is a responsibility today more than a "plum." Those who venture into the troubled waters of local politics will find that they are more the servants of people, than their masters.

The spotlight of fame is invigorating but also relentless. The satisfactions of public office are not as bountiful as the outsider might think, and are found most often in doing the job well and thoughtfully, than in material gain or personal esteem.

There are many who are quick to criticize officials but slow to expose themselves to the combat of the political arena.

The books close today, and hesitant candidates can hesitate no longer. Those who are now unopposed will undoubtedly be watching with mixed emotions. Most of them relish the opportunity of a race but are grieved at the potential cost, not to speak of the chance of losing.

Residents who are not yet voters will forfeit their citizenship for this year if they are not at the courthouse today.

Are Fifth of State's Votes, Negroes Say

By The Associated Press

A Negro spokesman said Thursday Negroes will be in a position to cast about 20 per cent of the vote in future Georgia elections.

J. H. Calhoun, chairman of a statewide registrative drive for Negroes, said approximately 275,000 members of his race had registered when books closed May 2 for the September Democratic primary and the November general election.

The estimate of registered Negroes given by Calhoun would be an increase of more than 118,000 over the number registered in 1956.

The law now does not require a breakdown of white and Negro registrants. Secretary of State Ben Fortson's office reported total registration for 1962, the latest figure available, shows 1,364,988 Georgians eligible to vote.

Calhoun said a statewide, nonpartisan group sponsored by the Georgia Voters League and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference conducted citizenship clinics in eight cities. The clinics, he said, held workshops on "bread and meat" objectives and how to get out the vote.

Clinics were held in Columbus, Griffin, Greensboro, Waycross, Moultrie, Savannah, Cedartown and Macon.

Committee volunteers and field workers were active in more than 75 of the 159 counties this year, Calhoun said.

Democrats will nominate candidates for 10 congressional seats, members of the Legislature, justices of the State Supreme Court and circuit court judges in the September primary. The next race for governor and U.S. senator will be in 1966.

A Negro, C. B. King, is a candidate for Congress in the 2nd Georgia district where six white candidates are running.

Another Negro, Donald L. Hollowell, has offered as a candidate for judge in the Atlanta judicial circuit. He is opposing Judge Durwood T. Pye, incumbent, and attorney Paul Webb Jr.

Right to Pay Taxes Comes Much Sooner In Georgia Than the Right to Cast a Vote

Atlanta—I believe I know a little of the frustration, anger and futility a Mississippi Negro must feel when he is denied his right to vote. Because of my age, I have only been able to vote in one election—in Tennessee in 1962. Just this past week I was ready to exercise my civil right and privilege again, but I could not because of an unreasonable Georgia law.

I was born a citizen of the United States 22 years ago. I am mentally sound, and I believe my college degree will certify that I am literate. I am not a convicted felon. I have never sworn allegiance to any other country or supported any group trying to overthrow the United States government. If you want to be selective, I am Caucasian. I was legally registered on March 14, 1963, in the Fulton County Courthouse.

Yet, I could not vote last week. Why? Because I had lived in the state of Georgia only 10 months and 28 days. Because of a voting residence law I need to live here one more month and two days to be able to think clearly enough to vote.

I can see a need for a reasonable residence requirement for these local elections and referendums, but I had fulfilled this county residence requirement. Still I could not vote because I had not lived in Georgia long enough. To go a step higher than state elections, I could not vote if the presidential election were tomorrow although I am registered in two states. I am no longer a legal resident of Tennessee, and—yes, there it is again—I have not lived in Georgia a year. Probably several thousand new residents will be in such a situation this November.

In these times of much talk about civil rights, some consideration should be given to changing the voting residence laws. My suggestion is to lower the county residence requirement to three months to be applied only in county and city elections and referendums, to lower the state residence requirement to six months for statewide elections, and to set up a reciprocal agreement between states so that otherwise legally qualified voters will be allowed to vote in national elections.

The state of Georgia would not let me vote last week; yet, no one hesitated in collecting Georgia income withholding tax from my paycheck these past 11 months. I am required to pay this tax for the whole year in which I have lost my vote. Perhaps I should stage my own private "Georgia Tea Party."

PAULA BALL.

cars. Why? Because the car dealers got together and decided this law would be good for their industry. It would keep the citizens from buying "foreign" cars.

I make a motion as a private citizen of Georgia that this law be repealed. Do I hear a second?

State's Voter Total Estimated At 275,000

Atl. World 5-16-64

According to a report released this week by J. H. Calhoun, chairman of the Statewide Registration Committee, approximately 275,000 Negroes are registered to vote in Georgia elections.

This figure represents a fifth of the registered voters in the state. Secretary of State Ben Fortson's office reported that some 1,364,988 Georgians were eligible to vote in the 1962 statewide races.

The present number of Negroes registered to vote marks an increase of 118,000 over the number of persons registered in 1956.

The massive statewide registration project, a non - partisan and non - political group, is joint sponsored by the Georgia Vot League and the Southern Christi Leadership Conference.

"No longer is the hope for pu ic office futile for the Georgia N gro citizen," Calhoun said, "sever successful an near - successf campaigns have been conducted i reecnt months."

Calhoun cited the successful ra ces made by Atlanta Sen. Lero Johnson and Atlanta Board of Ed ucation member Rufus Clement. He also pointed out that in 1963 a Negro candidate lost in Liberty County by 150 votes with 300 votes disqualified.

This spring in Ft. Valley five Negro candidates ran and were unsuccessful, but two of them lost by only 16 and 11 votes, respectively, the report stated.

"In several counties like Peach, Liberty, Taliaferro and Greene, Negro voters now outnumber or have become about equal to the number of whites. With a majority population in some 30 to 40 counties, increased citizenship education at both local and state levels will make the Negro votes more potent," the registration leaders said.

NEGRO CANDIDATES

Negro candidates already qualified to participate in the Sept. 9 primary election include C. B. King, Albany, 2nd Congressional District; George W. Ford, Columbus, County Commissioner and John W. Evans, Crawfordville, County Road Commissioner; Horace Ward, Atlanta, 39th Senatorial District; Donald L. Hollowell, Atlanta, Fulton Superior Citizenship clinics were held in Columbus, Griffin, Greensboro, Waycross, Moultrie, Savannah, Cedertown and Macon, supported by the Voter Education Project.

Calhoun said workshop discussions centered around county reports and problems, organization procedures, "bread and meat" objectives, canvassing film, roles of public officials, public relations, citizenship training and how to get out the vote.

Resource persons and staff participating in the clinics were:

Rev. Fred C. Bennette, field secretary; Rev. Andrew Young, voter-education and citizenship training driector; Rev. Daniel Harrell and Mrs. Juanita Harrell, Hosea Williams and Rev. Samuel Wells, field workers. Mrs. Barbara Whitaker, Voter Education Project; G. C. Williams of Madison, Rev. Clarence Tuggle, Rome; Slater King, Albany; Elijah Jackson, Greensboro; the Albany Singers and field workers of the SNCC.

Others working in the drive included NAACP branch presidents and field workers. Ralph Quarterman, Liberty County; A. R. Hubbard, Early County; George Ford, Muscogee County; Theodore Appling, Peach County; Raymond Head, Spalding County; C. G. Turner, Taliaferro County.

Re: Registration Extension

Last night (May 20, 1964), I talked with Senator Leroy Johnson, who gave me a list of the thirty (30) questions which were originally asked prospective voters and a list of the questions, six in all, that he was able to get the Senate to approve.* (Four have to be answered correctly in order to pass.) The Senator thinks these questions will also be approved by the House.

Johnson told me that he is very optimistic that the General Assembly will approve the extension of the registration deadline, and it will possibly be passed by the end of the session. The new deadline would be 45 days prior to the election.

Because of this turn of events, not only can we look forward to additional registration in Georgia, but we should start planning additional programs in Georgia. Even if the Georgia Assembly does not extend the deadline, it will still be physically possible to register, and we should continue programs. However, it might be psychologically bad to launch massive programs in advance of the actual passing of the law by the House, and we should wait until the law is actually passed.

year-old New Deal Democrat with 38 years in Congress, narrowly escaped defeat by James D. Martin.

Mr. Martin, 44, a Gadsden oil dealer and former president of Associated Industries of Alabama, campaigned against the Senator as the "Number One Kennedy Man" in the South. He urged Alabamans to "show the Kennedys we will not be kicked around any longer" on the segregation issue.

Mr. Martin rolled up heavy majorities in the Black Belt counties of Central and South Alabama and carried Birmingham, Montgomery and Mobile. But Senator Hill picked up enough votes in the populous, less-conservative areas north of Birmingham for a small margin.

Republicans have increased their support in the state because of a number of factors 8rising economic conservatism, an influx of persons from outside the South and anti-Democratic sentiment stemming from Federal pressure for a racial change.

The 1960 G.O.P. candidate against Senator John J. Sparkman received approximately 40 per cent of the votes cast.

But it was considered doubtful that Mr. Martin could have mounted a serious threat against Senator Hill had it not been for reaction against President Kennedy's use of troops to enforce desegregation at the University of Mississippi.

Reaction Intensified

That reaction was intensified by the disclosure that Negroes would seek admission this winter to the University of Alabama, by Federal efforts to protect Negro voting rights in the Black Belt and by disputes over segregation in Birmingham.

Despite pockets of right-wing sentiment, voters generally spurned ultra-conservative candidates of the Republican faction headed by Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

William D. Workman, a newspaper columnist and Goldwater supporter, made a respectable showing but nothing more against Senator Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina. The Democratic incumbent campaigned for medical care to the aged financed through Social Security and other welfare legislation.

Senator J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, the Democratic Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, easily put down a right-wing attempt to unseat him. His Republican op-p9nent was Dr. Kenneth G. Jones, a Little Rock bone surgeon. Both Senator Goldwater and Sen. John G. Tower, Texaa Republican, spoke for Dr. Jones in Arkansas.

Evidence of more lasting Republican advances came in the House races, where the party captured additional seats in North Carolina, Florida, Texas and Tennessee.

In North Carolina's Ninth District, James T. Broyhill Jr., a conservatixe furniture company executive, defeated Representative Hugh Q. Alexander, the Democratic incumbent and also a conservative.

Negroes Widen Political Role; Georgians Elect State Senator

By LAYHMOND ROBINSON

Negroes widened their political influence across the nation in Tuesday's election as members of their race scored significant victories in state and local races.

In Massachusetts, Edward W. Brooke, 43-year-old Republican lawyer, was the only candidate on his state party ticket to survive the Democratic sweep. He won the office of state Attorney General.

In Connecticut, a Negro Democrat, Gerld A. Lamb was elected State Treasurer. Mr. Lamb, a 37-year-old dental technician, defeated another Negro for the post.

Mr. Brooke and Mr. Lamb made political history by becoming the first of their race to win statewide elective offices in these two states. Before their victories, in only one other state in the North had a Negro been elected to statewide office. He was Otis M. Smith, who was elected state Auditor General of Michigan in 1960.

Georgians Pick Negro

A number of Negroes were elected to state office in the South during the Reconstruction period following the Civil War. Several states elected United States Senators and three states—Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina—elected Negro Lieutenant Governors.

In Tuesday's election, Leroy A. Johnson of Atlanta, a Democrat, became the first Negro in half a century to win a State Senate seat in Georgia. He defeated a Negro Republican, T. M. Alexander.

Negroes also gained a fifth member of Congress when Augustus Hawkins of Los Angeles was elected to the House of Representatives. He is California's first Negro member of Congress. Four other Negro Representatives, from New York City, Detroit, Chicago and Philadelphia, easily won reelection in the heavily Negro districts they represent. All five Negro Representatives are Democrats.

In Houston, Mrs. Charles E. White, only Negro member of the city's Board of Education, retained her seat in a race against five opponents.

Dudley Turned Back

But there were Negro defeats as well as victories. In New York, Edward R. Dudley, Manhattan Borough President, was turned back by Louis J. Lefkowitz in his attempt to capture the Attorney General's office. A Democrat, he was the first Negro ever nominated for a statewide office by a major political party in the state.

Negroes also lost in bids for state office in Ohio, Colorado and Oklahoma. In Cleveland, a Negro, Leodis Harris, lost in an apt to unseat Democratic Representative Charles A. Vanik.

Another Negro candidate for State Senator from Atlanta, Rod Harris a Republican, lost to a white Democrat. In Little Rock, scene of racial integration disorders in 1957, the only Negro candidate, William H. Townsend, failed to capture a seat on Little Arock's City Board of Directors.

Across the nation, Negro voters generally stuck to their traditional allegiance to the Democratic party. However, some individual Republican candidates made inroads in the Negro vote.

Increase for G.O.P.

In New York Governor Rockefeller and Senator Jacob K. Javits, both Republicans, showed a slight improvement in their standing with Negroes in New York City.

On the basis of unofficial figures, Mr. Rockefeller polled about 35 per cent of Negro vote as against 33 per cent in 1958 and Mr. Javitz received about 42 per cent as against 39 per cent when he last ran in 1956. Their showing was better in such middle class areas as Queens and the suburbs than it was in the tenement districts of Harlem and the Bedford-Stuyveant section of Brooklyn.

As the first Negro on a major party ticket, Mr. Dudley showed strong pulling power among Negroes. However, his presence on the Democratic ticket failed to raise the total Negro turnout significantly above what it was in 1958.

In five Negro Assmbley districts in Manhattan and Brooklyn, for example, the total number of Negroes voting was about what it was in 1958—about 100,000. However, Mr. Dudley apparently drew a greater number of middle-class Negro voters to the polls who otherwise might not have voted. In many parts of the country the Negro turnout was relatively low.

In some Southern cities, Negroes apparently split their vote between Democratic and Republican Congressional candidates.

Foreword

This voters guide has been published as a public service by the League of Women Voters Education Fund. The material for this guide was prepared by the League of Women Voters of Georgia. The League of Women Voters is a non partisan organization devoted to the promotion of political responsibility through informed and active participation in government. The League never supports or opposes candidates.

Qualifications for Voting

To Become a Voter You Must Be

18 years of age
A citizen of the United States
A resident of Georgia for one year
A resident of your county for six months
Of good moral character, and not under conviction of a felony Mentally sound.

TO REGISTER

You appear in person at the office where the registration cards are kept (the office of the Tax Collector or Board of Registrars). Hours are not set by law, so you must determine what time the Board is in session to receive registrations. (Exceptions: armed forces personnel and their dependents may register by mail.)

You will furnish information to fill all blanks on the registration card; but individual Registrars may require additional information which you must give. You will then take the oath and sign the card.

You will be asked under which constitutional classification you desire to make application:

(1) On the basis of literacy:

The Board will submit a section of the Constitution (State or United States — at their discretion) which you will read aloud and write in English. If this is done "intelligibly" and "legibly" the card is marked approved and you are considered a registered voter.

(2) Or, on the basis of good character and understanding of obligations of citizenship:

You will be given an examination based on a standard list of questions, twenty out of thirty of which you must answer correctly. A list of questions may be obtained from the Registrar in your locality.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR VOTING

You may be examined at the time you make application if the official Registrars are present (or, in certain large counties, by the Deputy Registrar), or, you may receive a notice in the mail to return at a specified time for the examination (which may be from sixteen to thirty days later).

If you are registered in one county of Georgia and move to another—

Apply to the Board of Registrars of the county where you last lived for a transfer certificate and take this in person to the Registrars of the county where you now live at least ten days before an election at which you wish to vote. You must sign a statement that by the election date you will have resided in the new county six months.

Except for members of the armed forces, registration books close six months before the day of the General Election, which is held the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November in even-numbered years.

REGISTRATION IS PERMANENT IF YOU VOTE AT LEAST ONCE EVERY THREE YEARS IN A FEDERAL, STATE OR COUNTY ELECTION OR PRIMARY. Otherwise, after notification, you are dropped from the list and must re-register, unless you apply in person to have your name kept on the list.

When, Where and How to Vote

WHEN: For all General, Special and Primary Elections: 7:00 A.M. to 7:00 P.M.

WHERE: Towns, cities and counties determine own polling places. Check with Board of Registrars.

HOW A.—By Machine: (1) Identification: Give name and address to checker. Name will be checked against official list of registered voters. You will be given a numbered slip of paper which should be handed to attendant in charge of voting machine. Enter and vote. Cards of instructions for guidance of voters are displayed in three prominent places at polling places on election day. No person other than voter himself may occupy booth during act of voting.

(2) Voting: On entering voting booth, pull red handle of curtain lever to the right as far as it will go and leave in this position. This closes the curtain. Pull down the pointers immediately above the names of the candidates for whom you wish to vote. Then pull red handle of curtain lever back to the left. This registers your vote, returns all pointers to original position and opens curtains. While curtain handle is at right side, you may make as many changes in your vote as you wish.

(3) To Write in a Candidate: Push up the pointer over the candidate you do not want. This releases a slide in the same column at the top of the machine. Push back slide and on paper thus exposed write in name of candidate you want.

(4) To Vote on Questions: Turn down pointer over the "Yes" or "No" of each question to be voted on.

B.—By Ballot. (1) Hand Ballot: Give name and address to checker. Name will be checked against official list of registered voters. You will be given a ballot with a numbered slip of paper. Enter voting booth alone. Mark ballot exactly according to instructions and deposit in a locked ballot box, after presenting attendant detached numbered slip.

The Absentee Ballot

(2) Absentee Ballot. TO VOTE BY ABSENTEE BALLOT YOU MUST BE:

A member of the armed forces who is a qualified voter and absent from district in which he is registered.

A qualified civilian voter who is required to be absent from the district on election day.

A qualified voter who is unable to vote in person because of physical disability.

APPLICATION FOR ABSENTEE BALLOT:

The elector desiring to vote by mail, or some member of his immediate family, must give written notice to either Registrars or Ordinary not less than three nor more than sixty days prior to election day. (There is no time limit for members of the armed forces). He will receive prior to election a letter containing (1) a certificate of registration filled in by Registrar and an attached coupon with blanks to be filled in by postmaster or other witness; (2) a ballot in a sealed envelope marked "ballot within"; (3) an envelope called "voucher" for resealing the marked ballot; (4) a return envelope addressed to the Registrars; (5) a printed slip prepared by Ordinary or party executive committee giving instruction on marking ballot.

PROCEDURE FOR VOTING:

Upon receipt of letter from Registrars, the elector opens sealed envelope marked "ballot within" in presence of postmaster or his assistant, or any person qualified to attest deeds, or an American Consul or his assistant. The elector marks his ballot in the presence of this witness, places his ballot in envelope marked "voucher" and signs on back of this envelope. The witness signs the voucher, fills in certificate of identification and mails.

Provisions for absentee voting apply to primary and general elections. Check with Registrars regarding local elections.

Political Parties

A political party is an organized group of voters whose function is:

To nominate candidates
To formulate party policy and rules
To carry out platform through elected officials
To provide organization through which the citizen can assume political responsibility.

Democratic Party in Georgia: At top of Democratic structure is the State Convention, held every fourth year following the Primary Election. Each gubernatorial candidate is entitled to delegates from each county he carries in number equal to the county's unit vote, but, in practice, the Primary losers usually forego the sending of delegates. The convention adopts the platform, elects permanent officers of the State Executive Committee, adopts rules for the next four years, and reviews contested races.

The State Executive Committee formulates rules for conducting primaries, fixes entry fees for statewide offices and sets up the form of the ballot. It also names the Democratic Presidential Electors whose names appear on the ballot in the General Election.

Members of the County Democratic Committee are elected in the party Primary. There is at least one member from each militia district and/or city ward or precinct. County committees have the same functions at the county level as the State Committee has at the state level.

There are ten Congressional District Committees appointed by the successful nominees and having similar functions at their level.

The National Democratic Executive Committee has no jurisdiction over the State Committee. Georgia has two members on the National Committee, a man and a woman, recommended by the delegation to the National Convention.

Republican Party in Georgia: Republican Party structure is pyramidal, resting on the base of its County Conventions. Starting with the County Convention, open to all registered voters, it elects officers and members of the County Executive Committee and dele-

Elections

Primary Elections: Any political party holding a primary election for nomination to state and congressional offices must hold the election on the second Wednesday in September of each year in which there is a regular General Election. However, county primaries for nomination of members of the General Assembly may be held as early as March 1 of the year of the General Election. Every candidate must qualify by complying with the rules adopted by the State Executive Committee of the political party holding the Primary. The law does not require a party to hold a Primary Election and nominations may be made in party convention. There is no party registration in Georgia.

General Elections: Representatives to Congress, state and county officers are chosen in the General Election, which by law must be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in even-numbered years. Candidates for national and state offices must file notice of their candidacy with the Secretary of State at least forty-five days before the General Election; for district and county offices, with the Ordinary at least forty-five days before.

Referendum Elections: The purpose and results of all special elections provided for by local or special law must be certified immediately to the Secretary of State.

State Officers Elected in General Elections:

Office	Term
U. S. Senators	6 years
U. S. Representatives	2 years
Governor	4 years
Lieutenant Governor	4 years
Supreme Court Justices	6 years
Court of Appeals Judges	6 years
Public Service Commissioners	6 years

gates to district and state conventions. Each county is entitled to one delegate to those conventions plus one additional delegate for each 500 votes cast for the Republican ticket in the last General Election. District Conventions nominate representatives to the State Executive Committee, elect delegates to the National Convention, and nominate district representatives to the State Central Committee. The State Convention elects the State General Committee, delegates-at-large to the National Convention, and nominates one man and one woman to the National Republican Committee.

The State Central Committee is in charge of state party affairs, nominates all candidates except for local offices, nominates Presidential Electors, calls party conventions. In order for the candidates nominated by this Committee to have their names placed on the General Election Ballot, the party must have polled 5% of the vote cast in the last General Election for the offices for which the candidates desire to run in the area concerned; or each candidate must file with the Secretary of State a petition signed by 5% of the registered voters of the area for each candidate. Any party which nominates in a primary does not have to file petitions.

The National Committee forms the top of the pyramid. Its members and chairmen are elected at National Convention. They are responsible for policy, calls to Convention and for running Presidential campaigns.

Writing Your Representatives in Government

As a voter, your opinions help determine how your elected official may vote on a given issue, or what kind of policy decision he may make. In letting him know your views, a card, letter or telegram is suitable. Be brief. State who you are and give your reasons for believing as you do. Sign your name and address legibly. If he votes as you wish, write and thank him.

Negro and GOP Elected To Fulton Senate Seats

Leroy Johnson Wins; MacIntyre Beats Lokey

By WALTER RUGABER

Fulton County voters have ended Georgia's historic political isolation of Negroes and Republicans, electing one of each to the state Senate.

The Republican, Dan I. MacIntyre III, upset Democrat Hamilton Lokey by 408 votes in a close 40th District battle. The unofficial count was 8,976 to 8,568.

The Negro, Leroy R. Johnson, swamped another Negro, Republican T. M. Alexander, by more than 4,000 votes. The unofficial count in the 38th District was 7,372 to 3,291.

In two other races in the county, Democrats swept Republican opponents. James P. Wesberry Jr. downed George C. Lundquist in the 37th District and Oby Brewer Sr. beat Rod Harris in the 39th.

Mr. MacIntyre is a 45-year-old insurance executive whose only other political experience was an unsuccessful race for the Atlanta Board of Education last year.

Mr. Johnson, who conducted his very first bid for office, is a newly established attorney who was formerly Sol. Gen. Paul Webb's first Negro investigator.

BOTH MEN promised to cooperate with their colleagues when the General Assembly gathers next January. Both indicated an interest in gaining some attention for urban problems.

Mr. MacIntyre said he wants to help rapid transit legislation for the area and promised he will work to obtain "a fair share of the taxes" back from the state for big cities.

"It (the election victory) is very definitely a breakthrough for the two-party system," Mr. MacIntyre said. "I'm very happy about me, but unhappy about the other folks (Republicans who lost)."

Mr. MacIntyre said the consolidation of some Georgia counties is imperative and declared he wants the state to "get taxes out of some of its rural sections."

"This area is being robbed," he added.

HIS DEFEATED opponent, Mr. Lokey, is one of the lawyers who brought the original federal court suit which led to an order forcing the General Assembly to reapportion itself earlier this year.

Ed Barfield, a last-minute white write-in candidate in the 38th District, was unable to poll enough votes to challenge seriously the two Negro candidates.

The 38th is a district with more than 18,000 Negro voters and slightly less than 9,000 registered whites.

MR. JOHNSON had run against Mr. Alexander on a progressive platform centered largely on promises of better job opportunities for Negroes.

MR. JOHNSON had run against Mr. Alexander on a progressive platform centered largely on promises of better job opportunities for Negroes.

"This is the most serious occasion of my life," Mr. Johnson said after his election. "From this moment on, I am a servant of the people and guardian of their interests and welfare."

The attorney said that when he was young "no boy could ever dream of becoming a senator" but that things have now changed. He declared:

"I think now is the time for Negroes to show their responsibility —it isn't enough to say 'We want this.' We must show responsibility."

MR. ALEXANDER, the 52-year-old loser, is head of Alexander & Co., an insurance agency he founded 31 years ago. He has been active in civic affairs.

In the two other contested senatorial races, Mr. Wesberry—a 28-year-old accountant who ran unsuccessfully for Atlanta alderman last year—defeated Republican Lundquist easily.

The unofficial total was Wesberry 6,542 and Lundquist 2,663.

Mr. Brewer, a civic leader and president of George Muse Clothing Co., won over Negro Republican Rod Harris by a sound majority. It was 5,533 to 2,744.

Three other Democrats won places in the new seven-man Fulton delegation without opposition.

Present Great Seal of Georgia

When the Constitution of the United States was adopted in 1787, Georgia's Constitution of 1777 was in conflict with it in several places. To correct this as well as to meet the demands of the growing state, a constitutional convention was called. It developed into three conventions which lasted until 1799, at which time a new constitution and a new Great Seal, known as the seal of 1799, were adopted. This is the same Great Seal used today, and it has been in use ever since 1799 with the exception of the period 1863-65, when a specially designed Great Seal was used, and the period 1868-71, when it was hidden by Secretary of State Barnett. In 1872 it was restored by Mr. Barnett after Georgians again were in power in the state. In 1914 the date on the seal was changed by legislative action from 1799 to 1776 to correspond with the state's birth and the birthday of the United States.

Seek To Block New Voters In Albany, Ga.

3-7-62 Daily Defender

(Special to the Defender)

ALBANY, Ga. — Intensified efforts to halt Negro voter registration are currently being used in this racially-torn city to thwart a stepped-up voting campaign designed to erase segregation barriers in Albany.

The Albany Movement, spearheading integration efforts in this city, disclosed that many Negroes appearing at city hall to register are still being rejected. The form of disqualification used is the literacy test, officials pointed out.

Of the first five Negroes who attempted to register Monday, four were rejected. According to Mrs. Jennings Parrish, registrar, they failed to pass a "simple literacy test" or lived outside the city limits.

Mrs. Parrish also denied claims of Negro leaders last week that 50 Negroes had been registered. She said actually only 18 qualified out of a group of 37.

Commenting on the tolerance of clerks in her office who administer the test, Mrs. Parrish chortled: "We are tolerant of misspelled words, and we don't insist that they be able to read perfectly or rapidly. Maybe they'll set an example for the white people who have not exercised their privilege."

Meanwhile, here in this tense Southwest Georgia city where more than than 1,200 persons have been arrested, Negro leaders were continually exhorting their people to register and aid in getting others registered.

Wyatt Walker of Atlanta and Dr. W. E. Anderson, president of the Negro Albany Movement, appealed to a crowd of more than 100 Negroes:

"If you want to, you can elect Dr. Anderson mayor of Albany," said Walker, executive director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference headed by Dr. Martin Luther King, jr.

Walker called for block workers who would volunteer to accompany apprehensive Negroes to city hall to register. He said he was going house hunting yesterday.

PUSH VOTE DRIVE

"They call me an outsider," he said. "If I rent a house here, I don't know what that will do to that argument."

Negroes have decided to concentrate on the voter registration drive until a federal court rules on a request by Albany city officials for an injunction against antisegregation demonstrations.

The Georgia Council on Human Relations said Sunday it had mailed 10,000 letters from Atlanta to white citizens of Albany. The letters asked that city officials be pressed for a quick solution to Albany's racial troubles.

Frances Pauley, director of the organization, said that unless the situation is remedied 'it is clear that the fastest growing town in Georgia is in grave danger of economic loss and stagnation which afflicted Little Rock."

Voter Registration Drive On The Move In Albany, Provide 'Shuttle Service'

ALBANY, Ga. — (UPI) — Negroes kept a shuttle service going between the Shiloh Baptist church, staging point for their segregation protest marches, and the city's voter registration office.

The stepped-up registration drive got underway about the time a federal judge recessed until Tuesday a hearing in which the city is seeking a ban against further racial demonstrations.

Rev. Andrew Young said about 50 Negroes had registered by early afternoon and that the campaign will be intensified "as we get our force mobilized."

He said it was estimated that about 1,500 Negroes had registered since the campaign first started about six months ago and that the total number of Negroes eligible to vote in Albany now stands at about 4,000. He said that there were potentially 11,000 Negro voters in the city.

Young said Negroes planned to concentrate on the voter registration drive, rather than demonstrations, during "this waiting period" while the injunction hearing is in progress.

"Our lawyers feel that we have proved our case of nonviolence," he said. "We are now trying to ride along without losing any ground."

Meanwhile, three foreign newsmen who came here to observe the protests were taken into custody briefly when police found them camping on the outskirts of the city. The newsmen said they were treated with "extreme courtesy" and promptly released when authorities learned who they were.

The three identified themselves as Hernando Orozco, 29, of the newspaper "El Tiempo" of Bogota, Colombia; N. H. Heizenberg, 30, of Amsterdam, Holland, a reporter for the newspaper "Trouw," and George Gabbie, 27, who works in the Rome, Italy, office of the Associated Press.

They said they were on an "ambassadors - for - friendship" tour of the United States. Their car, which they use as a mobile home, carries an "Ambassadors-for-Friendship" banner and quickly caught the eye of police.

The three said they were roused from their sleeping bags early today by a highway patrolman who told them it was illegal to camp along the roadside. They said they heeded his warning, packed up their belongings and started driving into Albany.

A city police car quickly intercepted them, they said, and they were taken to police headquarters. The newsmen said that after Police Chief Laurie Pritchett learned who they were he agreed to an interview.

18 Counties List More Voters Than Adults

Atlanta Constitution 5/24/62

By BRUCE GALPHIN

In at least 18 Georgia counties, the number of registered voters exceeds the total adult populations, according to currently available census and registration figures.

In 19 other counties, white voter registration totals exceed white residents of voting age.

In one county, Long, the number of persons registered ran as high as 165 per cent of the total adult population.

The question of the size of registration rolls has taken on special political significance lately.

Republican Party leaders have charged that their task of obtaining signatures of 5 per cent of registered voters is made more difficult by inflated voter rolls. (The signatures are necessary for the GOP to get statewide candidates on the ballot.)

Gov. Ernest Vandiver in printed copies of his speech before the recent special session of the Legislature attached registration totals by county.

Some political leaders have argued that the higher rate of registration in small counties shows greater interest in government by residents of those counties. The high rate has even been cited as justification for weighted unit votes and rural domination of the General Assembly.

The Constitution's analysis used only the latest available figures. Both census and registration figures were for 1960. Population figures were those of the Bureau of Census. Registration statistics came from the Georgia Secretary of State, except for those for Baker and Webster counties, which came from the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

Georgia law requires the purging of voter lists every two years. The law says purging should be carried out in odd-numbered years, and new totals reported to the Secretary of State in even-numbered years.

The new tallies will not be available until July.

A spot check of three counties Wednesday indicated some purging has been going on during the past two years, but new totals were not available.

James Lance, clerk of the court in Union County, estimated that as many as 1,000 names may have been dropped from rolls in his county.

But h added that the total was pro ably still "considerably higher t an it should be."

Lance said many people who moved a way years ago are still allowed to vote in Union. "I wish they would put more teeth in the registration law," he declared.

As clerk, Lance's only official conection with the registration list is to report the totals to the Secretary of State.

In Long County, which figures show to have the most inflated rolls, Mrs. Evelyn Long, clerk, said she had not been in her position long enough to be familiar with the purging process. She said registration officials were making a new list but had not reported totals to her yet.

A. L. Bush, clerk of court in Baker County, said the registrars have completed their purging work but have not yet given him figures. The registrar was home ill Wednesday.

The Constitution's analysis did not tally exactly with the GOP's charges. It verified 35 of the 36 listed by the Republicans and turned up two others.

Those required to be purged under Georgia law are:

Persons who have not voted in any election during the previous three years; those officially transferring registrations to other counties; those certified as mentally incompetent, insane or convicted of certain crimes, and those who have died during the period.

Purging is required to be carried out in odd-numbered years. In even-numbered years, such as this year, county clerks are supposed to send registration totals to the Secretary of State

Sheriff Harasses Negroes At Voting Rally in Georgia

for V. Bagill

By CLAUDE SITTON

Special to The New York Times.

SASSER, Ga., July 26—"We want our colored people to go on living like they have for the last hundred years," said Sheriff Z. T. Mathews of Terrell County. Then he turned and glanced disapprovingly at the thirty-eight Negroes and two whites gathered in the Mount Olive Baptist Church here last night for a voter-registration rally.

"I tell you, cap'n, we're a little fed up with this registration business," he went on.

As the 70-year-old peace officer spoke, his nephew and chief deputy, M. E. Mathews, swaggered back and forth fingering a hand-tooled black leather cartridge belt and a .38-revolver. Another deputy, R. M. Dunaway, slapped a five-cell flashlight against his left palm again and again.

The three officers took turns badgering the participants and warning of what "disturbed white citizens" might do if this and other rallies continued.

Many Are Disturbed

Sheriff Fred D. Chappell of adjacent Sumter County, other law enforcement officials and a number of the disturbed white citizens clustered at the back of the sanctuary. Outside in the black night, angry voices drowned out the singing of the crickets as men milled around the cars parked in front of the little church on the eastern edge of this hamlet in southwestern Georgia.

On the wall was an "All-American Calendar" advertising a local funeral home. It ed by 'Agitators'

Mathews said the racial crisis in near-by Albany also had aroused local whites and had brought the "agitators" to Sasser.

Two workers of the student committee active in Terrell County were present as the meeting opened with a hymn, "Pass Me Not, Oh Gentle Saviour."

They are Charles Sherrod, 25, from Petersburg, Va., a Negro, who took part in the sit-in demonstrations in 1960 against lunch-counter segregation, and Ralph Allen, 22, a white student at Trinity College, from Melrose, Mass.

Some of the participants said they had driven here from adjoining Lee and Daugherty (Albany) counties to encourage others by their presence. Among them were two other workers, in the student committee, Miss Penelope Patch, 18, of Englewood, N. J., a white student at Swarthmore College, and Joseph Charles Jones, 24, a Negro from Charlotte, N. C.

After the hymn, Mr. Sherrod, standing at the pine pulpit on the rostrum, led the Lord's Prayer. The audience repeated each line after him.

Overhead, swarms of gnats circled the three light globes and now and then one of the audience would look up from the pine floor to steal a fearful glance at the door.

Reads From Scriptures

Mr. Sherrod then read from the Scriptures, pausing after completing a passage to say:

"I'm going to read it again for they're standing on the outside."

The sound of voices around the automobiles parked beside the church could be heard as license numbers were called out. And the faces of the audience stiffened with fear.

A group of thirteen law officers and roughly dressed whites clumped through the door at this point. One pointed his arm at three newspaper reporters sitting at the front and said:

"There they are."

"If God be for us, who can be against us," read Mr. Sherrod, "We are counted as sheep for the slaughter."

With the exception of Deputy Dunaway, who stood smoking a cigarette at the rear, the whites withdrew to confer among themselves.

Prays For Wisdom

Mr. Sherrod began another prayer.

"Give us the wisdom to try to understand this world. Oh, Lord God, we've been abused so long; we've been down so long; introduced themselves to the reporters and shook hands. Negroes had said they had been warned that the rally would be broken up, but the law officers seemed taken abock by the presence of the newsmen.

Sheriff Mathews then turned to the Negroes, saying that none of them was dissatisfied with life in the county. He asked all from Terrell to stand.

"Are any of you disturbed?"

The reply was a muffled "Yes."

"Can you vote if you are qualified?"

"No."

"Do you need people to come down and tell you what to do?"

"Yes."

"Haven't you been getting along well for a hundred years?"

"No."

The sheriff then said he could not control the local whites and that he wanted to prevent violence.

Dislikes Publicity

"Terrell County has had too much publicity," he said. "We're not looking for violence."

Chief Deputy Mathews then expressed his viewpoint.

"There's not a nigger in Terrell County who wants to make application to vote who has to have someone from Massachusetts or Ohio or New York to come down here and carry them up there to vote," he said.

The sheriff turned to Ralph Allen.

"Ralph," he said, "I'm going to have to ask you to stay out of this county until this thing quiets off."

"I don't appreciate outside agitators coming in here and stirring up trouble and it's causing us a lot of trouble. I've helped more colored people than any man in the South, I reckon."

"Would you mind telling me who pays you?" he asked Mr. Allen.

The student replied that he received a subsistence allowance from the committee.

"They give you your orders?"

"They place me."

The chief deputy took over the questioning.

"Then you got Terrell County—that's your project, huh?"

A long exchange of forceful questions followed. After that, Deputy Mathews turned to the others and told them:

"There is a prohibit to register between now and December. Under Georgia law, registration goes on throughout the year, although only those registered at various specified times prior to the primaries and elections may vote in them.

Sheriff Mathews then pointed to the crowd of whites at the back of the sanctuary.

"Gentlemen," he said to the reporters, "those are all of them."

"The people have lost faith and respect in the coordinating bunch. They don't have to have it, Cap'n. They don't have to have it."

Deputy Mathews informed the Negroes that it would not be "to your interest" to continue the meeting.

"You don't have to have nobody from Massachusetts to come down here and help you the way to the court house," he said.

In another reference to Mr. Allen, he commented:

"I don't think he's got any business down here, to tell you the damn truth."

Deputy Mathews turned to Deputy Dunaway and ordered him to take the names of all those present.

"I just want to find out how many here in Terrell County are dissatisfied," explained Sheriff Mathews.

Turning to a local Negro and pointing at Mr. Allen, the Chief Deputy then said:

"He's going to be gone in two weeks, but you'll still be here."

As the names were collected, deputy Mathews began pressing questions on Mr. Sherrod and interrupting him sarcastically as the Negro tried to reply.

He turned to Mr. Allen again. Shaking a finger in his face, he said:

"You couldn't get a white person to walk down the street with you."

Refuse to Give Names

When Deputy Dunaway asked the names of five Nero youths sitting on a bench with Miss Patch, they refused to give them.

"I wouldn't either," said Deputy Mathews.

As the Sheriff walked away, he said to reporters:

"Some of these niggers down here would just as soon vote for Castro and Khrushchev."

The Negroes began humming a song of protest popularized during the sit-in demonstrations, "We Shall Overcome." And as the law officers withdrew to the outside, the song swelled to a crescendo.

The business meeting then got under way. Miss Patch reported on her work in Lee County. Mr. Allen told of having been knocked down twice last Saturday, beaten and threatened with death by white men in Dawson, the county seat.

Charles Jones asked Mr. Holloway if anything had been heard from the Justice Department regarding an investigation into the dismissal of a Negro techer.

"No," replied the chairman.

Shortly after 10 o'clock, the Negroes rose and joined hands in a circle. Swaying in rhythm, they again sang, "We Shall Overcome." Their voices had a strident note as though they were building up their courage to go out into the night, where the whites waited.

Denies Urge to Destroy

Lucius Holloway prayed.

"Our concern is not to destroy," he said. "Our concern is not to displace or to fight, but to build a community in which all our children can live and gjrow up in dignity."

The Negroes then filed out the front door past the group of law officers.

"I know you," said one officer to a Negro. "We're going to get some of you."

Flashlight beams slashed through the darkness to spotlight the race of Miss Patch as the white student climbed into an automobile with some Negroes from Lee County. The whites standing by cursed but made no move toward the car.

Miss Patch and her companion pulled out behind the station wagon in which the newsmen were riding. But the air had been let out of the right front tire of the wagon, forcing it to stop close to the church. The other car stopped, too.

displayed pictures of President Kennedy and past Presidents.

The concern of Sheriff Zeke Mathews, "twenty years in office without opposition," is perhaps understandable.

Terrell County has 8,209 Negro residents and only 4,533 whites. While 2,894 of the whites are registered to vote, only fifty-one Negroes are on the rolls, according to the Secretary of State's office.

On Sept. 13, 1960, Federal District Judge William A. Bootle handed down the first decision under the Civil Rights Acts of 1957 and 1960, which guarantee Negro voting rights.

The judge enjoined the Terrell County Board of Voter Registrars from making distinctions on the basis of race or color, illegally denying Negroes their rights under state and Federal laws and administering different qualification tests for the two races.

Judge Bootle refused a request from the Justice Department that he appoint a voter referee to oversee the registration. But he retained jurisdiction in case further court directives might become necessary.

Nevertheless, Negroes contended that because of fear and intimidation, subtle and not so subtle harassment and delaying tactics, they still found it difficult to register. Many of them are illiterate. This presents a further barrier since they are required by state law to pass a difficult qualification test.

Another source of the sheriff's concern is the fact that field secretaries for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, an Atlanta-based civil rights organization, began a voter registration drive in the county last October.

Worried by 'Agitators'

Sheriff Mathews said the racial crisis in near-by Albany also had aroused local whites and had brought the "agitators" to Sasser.

Two workers of the student committee active in Terrell County were present as the meeting opened with a hymn, "Pass Me Not, Oh Gentle Saviour."

They are Charles Sherrod, 25, from Petersburg, Va., a Negro, who took part in the sit-in demonstrations in 1960 against lunch-counter segregation, and Ralph Allen, 22, a white student at Trinity College, from Melrose, Mass.

Some of the participants said they had driven here from adjoining Lee and Daugherty (Albany) counties to encourage others by their presence. Among them were two other workers, in the student committee, Miss Penelope Patch, 18, of Englewood, N. J., a white student at Swarthmore College, and Joseph Charles Jones, 24, a Negro from Charlotte, N. C.

After the hymn, Mr. Sherrod, standing at the pine pulpit on the rostrum, led the Lord's Prayer. The audience repeated each line after him.

Overhead, swarms of gnats circled the three light globes and now and then one of the audience would look up from the pine floor to steal a fearful glance at the door.

Reads From Scriptures

Mr. Sherrod then read from the Scriptures, pausing after completing a passage to say:

"I'm going to read it again for they're standing on the outside."

The sound of voices around the automobiles parked beside the church could be heard as license numbers were called out. And the faces of the audience stiffened with fear.

A group of thirteen law officers and roughly dressed whites clumped through the door at this point. One pointed his arm at three newspaper reporters sitting at the front and said:

"There they are."

"If God be for us, who can be against us," read Mr. Sherrod, "We are counted as sheep for the slaughter."

With the exception of Deputy Dunaway, who stood smoking a cigarette at the rear, the whites withdrew to confer among themselves.

Prays For Wisdom

Mr. Sherrod began another prayer.

"We're praying for the courage to withstand the brutality of our brethren."

And, in this country where Negroes have frequently fallen under the club, the blackjack and the bullet, no one appeared to doubt that the brutality of which he spoke would be long in coming.

Nevertheless, the audience swung into a hymn with gusto, singing "We Are Climbing Jacob's Ladder." The deputy in the doorway swung his flashlight against his palm and looked on through narrowed eyes.

Lucius Holloway, Terrell County chairman of the voter registration drive, stood up.

"Everybody is welcome," he said, "This is a voter registration meeting."

Sheriff Mathews trailed by Deputy Dunaway burst into the sanctuary and strode to the front. Standing before the reporters, but looking away from them, he began to address the audience.

"I have the greatest respect for any religious organization but my people is getting disturbed about these secret meetings," he said.

"I don't think there is any colored people down here who are afraid. After last night the people are disturbed. They had a lot of violence in Albany last night."

2 Arrested at Dawson After Negro Voter Push

atl Const. 8-1-62 p. 4

By a Staff Writer

DAWSON—Two members of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee are in the Terrell County jail after they sought to get Negroes to register to vote.

Ralph W. Allen, 21, a white man from Melrose, Mass., and Charles Sherrod, 23, of Petersburg, Va., were arrested Monday afternoon on vagrancy charges, Sheriff Z. T. (Zeke) Mathews said Tuesday.

No bond has been set, the sheriff said.

Sheriff Mathews said that Sherrod and Allen were arrested at the courthouse on a vagrancy warrant taken out by Dawson city officials.

Sherrod and Allen were leaders at a voter registration meeting last week in the Terrell County community of Sasser. Sheriff Mathews, two deputies and about 15 other white men walked in unannounced on the meeting.

Allen was arrested on July 4 in Dawson and held five hours for investigation. He also says that he has been beaten on two occasions in Terrell County and that a white man there threatened to kill him with a knife.

He said he has tried to swear out a warrant for his alleged assailants, but officials in Terrell will not issue one for him.

Special to The New York Times.

DAWSON, Ga., July 31—Two field workers for a desegregationist organization were arrested on vagrancy charges yesterday after taking five Negroes to the Terrell County courthouse to register as voters.

The arrests were made in the lobby of the courthouse. None of the Negroes was arrested.

The two were identified as Charles Sherrod and Ralph Allen, field secretaries for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, an Atlanta-based group working for civil rights projects in the South.

Mr. Sherrod is a Negro form Petersburg, Va. Mr. Allen is a white student at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. He lives in Melrose, Mass.

A hearing on a bond was set for tomorrow. State charges of vagrancy carry a penalty of $1,000 in fines and up to a year in jail or both, upon convistion.

The Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee protested the arrest in a telegram to Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy. It asked that the Justice Department intercede to halt the prosecutions.

"The United States Department of Justice has the authority to intervene in this case" under the provisions of the Civil Rights Act of 1960, the telegram said.

U.S. Sues to Enforce Free Voting in Terrell

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Justice department filed suit in U.S. District Court Monday for a temporary injunction to prohibit law enforcement officials from threatening and intimidating prospective Negro voters in Terrell County.

The suit accused 16 persons of disrupting the Negro voter registration rallies and with other acts aimed at discouraging Negroes from registering or voting.

Judge J. Robert Elliott denied a request for an immediate temporary injunction and gave the defendants 20 days to answer the suit. The middle district judge designated federal court at Americus as the location for that legal action.

The filing of the suit was first announced in Washington by the Justice department. It was signed by Nicholas Katzenbach, deputy attorney general, and three others including Burke Marshall, assistant attorney general in the Civil Rights division.

The suit, said Katzenbach, named as defendants Terrell County Sheriff Zeke T. Mathews and Sumter County Sheriff Fred D. Chappell.

He said the defendants also included deputy sheriffs Mansfield E. Mathews and Royce Marvin Dunaway, Police Chief Waymon

B. Cherry of Dawson, Mayor John Huson Brim of Sasser and city councilmen William Callis Jr. and Shelby A. Marks of Sasser.

Mansfield Mathews is a nephew of the sheriff and is also chief registrar in Terrell County.

Eight Terrell County residents were named also as defendants.

The government said various defendants, including Sheriff Mathews and deputy sheriff Dunaway, disrupted two voter registration meetings in Sasser churches on July 18 and July 25.

Thirteen of the defendants, the government charged, were among a group of white men who entered the July 25 meeting place, questioned Negroes there, directed Terrell County Negroes to stand, took the names of those present, and copied license numbers of automobiles outside.

Dunaway used threats of physical violence to turn away other Negroes arriving later, the court was told.

The government said those inside the meeting place were told that county law enforcement officials could not protect them.

The defendants told the voter-registration group "they were fed up with this registration business," and warned the Negroes to abandon such gatherings, the government charged.

One of the white men, a private businessman, the next day fired two Negroes he had seen at the July 25 meeting, the suit said.

The court was asked specifically to prohibit the prosecution of Ralph Allen, 22, and Charles Sherrod, 25, officials of the Student Non-Violence Coordinating Committee, which has been organizing the Terrell County voter-registration campaign. Allen of Melrose, Mass., is white; Sherrod, of Petersburg, Va., is a Negro.

They were arrested on vagrancy charges July 30 while accompanying Negroes to the Lawson courthouse on a voter-registration visit. They were jailed four days and face prosecution, the suit said.

Terrell County was the scene of the first voting suit brought by the Justice department under the 1957 civil rights act. About 2,800 of 3,200 eligible whites and 48 of 5,000 eligible Negroes were registered to vote in the county when that suit was filed September, 1958, the government said.

A 1960 court decree prohibited further discrimination against Negro registrants and voters, a spokesman added, but only 11 Negroes were registered between that time and last December when the student committee undertook its campaign, the government said.

From last December to last May 11, the date of the last county registrar's meeting, 44 Negroes were registered and others have tried to register, the complaint said.

FBI Checks Fire-Hit Lee Negro Church

3-15-62

By WALTER RUGABER

LEESBURG, Ga., Aug. 15—A Negro church, the site of several recent Lee County voter registration rallies, was swept by a mysterious fire and destroyed early Wednesday.

Local authorities rejected suggestions by Negroes that the church had been bombed. FBI agents arrived and began an investigation of the fire's origin.

THE LOW-PEAKED roof of the church, covered with tin, had collapsed into the ruins. All that remained of the Shady Grove Baptist Church were parts of the white concrete block wall.

Despite the intense heat of the fire, which was still smoldering at noon, the white inside walls were not blackened by the smoke.

The rough pine floor of the structure had collapsed onto the ground beneath. There was not a sign of charred wood in the rubble—only ashes.

The windows were all broken, with many of the frames bent out of the openings in the concrete block walls. Remains of a piano were found beneath part of the tin roof.

A REPORTER discovered what appeared to be the charred remains of a brake fluid can amid the ruins. A church official said he knew of no reason for it to be there.

Lee County Sheriff R. A. Forrester — a nephew of Rep. E. L. (Tic) Forrester of Leesburg—said he planned no more investigation of the incident.

"I don't see anything further to investigate," he said. "If some lead was to turn up in the future, naturally we'd investigate it. The church is burned up is all I can see. If it was burned intentionally they damn sure wouldn't have come told me about it.

"We did have thunder and lightning here last night," the sheriff suggested. "A lot of it."

HE SAID THAT if the fire had been started by an explosion parts of the tin roof would have been blown into surrounding trees and other debris would have been found away from the church.

As it was, the sheriff declared, the windows seemed to have been sucked into the church by the heat rather than blown out by an explosion. And there were also signs, Sheriff Forrester said, that the roof had burned through and simply fallen to the ground.

A NUMBER of Negro leaders hurried to the scene of the church from Albany, where they lead the integrationist movement. Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. of Atlanta called the fire a tragedy and said:

"It seems obvious that this was a bombing and I think it is a most appalling incident and a tragic example of the lengths to which some will go. . . . It strikes at two basic liberties, freedom of worship and the right to vote."

Negroes Ask Guard After Church Burns

Lee County Building Was Used As Voter Registration Center

Constitution State News Service

LEESBURG—Negro integration leaders Wednesday called on the U.S. Department of Justice for "special protection" after fire destroyed the Shady Grove Baptist Church, headquarters for a Negro voter registration drive in Lee County.

Negroes charged that the fire was purposely set and resulted from an explosion in the church.

Local investigators said they could find no evidence of arson or that the fire had been caused by "a bombing."

Negro leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said the fire was the result of "an obvious bombing."

And James Forman, executive secretary of the integrationist Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, wired the U.S. Department of Justice, asking for protection for Negro vote registration meetings in the area.

The church apparently burned late Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning. The cement block structure was found in ruins by a passing Negro shortly after dawn Wednesday.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation said it was looking into the report that the church had been bombed to determine "if this is a matter that comes within our investigative jurisdiction."

The FBI summoned Albany Fire Chief E. F. Moody to the scene of the fire to aid in the investigation.

Chief Moody said he found no indication that a blast had started the blaze. He speculated that faulty wiring or a lightning bolt may have set the fire, but he said he could not pin-point the origin of the fire. There was a thunderstorm in the area Tuesday night.

Lee County Sheriff R. A. Forrester said the $4,500 church was insured.

FAILED TO REPORT

Sheriff Forrester said the Negroes did not report the fire to his office, and he found out about it when a newsman phoned him for a statement early Wednesday.

The sheriff said he immediately went to the scene and found a "crowd of Negroes and whites standing around and the television cameras were going."

While he was standing there, Sheriff Forrester said, Dr. King arrived and made a statement for the television newsmen.

Dr. King said:

"It seems obvious that this was a bombing and I think it is a most appalling incident and a tragic example of the lengths to which some will go. It strikes at two basic liberties, freedom of worship and the right to vote."

Sheriff Forrester said the fire "definitely was not started by an explosion."

"We are continuing our investigation," he said. "Right now, I don't know who could've set the fire unless they (the Negroes) set it themselves."

NIGHT RIDERS FIRE ON 4 NEGRO HOMES

Georgia Investigates Attack Following Voter Rallies

By CLAUDE SITTON

Special to The New York Times.

LEESBURG, Ga., Aug. 31—Night riders poured volleys of rifle fire early today into four rural homes of Negroes involved in a voter-registration campaign.

No one was injured, even though a resident of one house said he had counted twenty-seven bullet holes in its walls and doors.

Sheriff R. A. Forrester of Lee County and agents of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation began an inquiry into the incidents. The sheriff said that no one had seen the gunmen and that he had no leads on their identities.

James E. McMahon, special agent in charge of the Atlanta office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said that that agency was seeking to determine if a Federal violation had taken place.

The area in which the houses are situated is twenty-five miles north of Albany, the scene of recurring racial crises over a desegregation campaign.

Mysterious Fire

It is about seven miles from the Shady Grove Baptist Churc which was destroyed by a mysterious fire about two weeks ago. Voter-registration rallies organized by the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee of Atlanta and the Lee County Movement had been conducted in the church.

One of the homes struck by rifle fire was that of Agnew James, chairman of the Lee Movement.

A second was the home of his brother Frank, who had participated in the voter campaign.

Charles Wingfield, who led a pupil boycott of the county's consolidated Negro school last January in a dispute over the adequacy of its program and facilities, lives in one of the other houses fired on. He, too, is an active participant in the voter drive.

James M. Mays, another Negro active in the Lee County Movement, lives in the fourth house. A reporter overheard a law-enforcement official threaten Mr. Mays lst month at a voter-registration rally in adjoining Terrell County.

Mr. Mays contends that he was summarily discharged from his job as a social-studies teacher at the Lee County school as a result of the pupil boycott. He told by telephone of the attack on his home

Awakened by Gunfire

"I thiink it was done in relation to the voter-registration program," he said.

He fell asleep last night while watching television, he said, and was awakened about 1:30 A.M. by gunfire.

"There was one shot, then two shots and then a barrage of shots," he said. "It was a high-caliber rifle because some of the bullets penetrated three walls."

Nineteen persons were asleep in the house, according to Mr. Mays. They ncluded his invalid father, John Mays Sr., and two of his sisters and their children, who were visiting from Detroit.

"The sheriff came out right away and was very cooperative," Mr. Mays said.

Mr. Mays said that he and an agent of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation had counted twenty-four bullet holes in the front of the home this morning and that he had found three others later.

The Rev. Charles Sherrod, a field secretary of the student committee who has been working in Lee County, said in a telephone interview from Atlanta that Negroes had held a voter-registration meeting last night at Piney Grove Baptist Church, which is near the home.

Another rally two weeks ago at New Beulah Baptist Church in Lee County was broken up by gunfire in the churchard, Mr. Sherrod said.

Telephone conversation between Wiley Branton and students at Dawson, Georgia
September 5, 1962

W. Branton: We're interested in finding out what has happened down there regarding you (John Chatfield) and other persons in Dawson. First of all, how are you?

Chatfield: I'm fine. I just arrived yesterday so I can only give some history but I can tell you what happened since yesterday at any rate.

Branton: All right - shoot. First of all wehat is your first name?

Chatfield John H. Chatfield

Branton: Where are you from, Mr. Chatfield?

Chatfield: Bradford, Vermont

Branton: What is your mail address there?'

Chatfield: Bradford, Vermont.

Branton: I have asked my secretary to get on so that she might make some notes.

When did you arrive in Dawson?

Chatfield: Well, I arrived in Dawson about, well, I arrived in Albany yesterday about 2:00 o'clock. We entered Dawson last nightabout 11:30.

Branton: Who were you with?

Chatfield: Ah, I was with Ralph Allen and Chris Allen.

Branton: Of course I know Ralph, I don't believe I know the other - what's the other boy's name?

Chatfield: Chris Allen.

Branton: Is he Ralph's brother or something?

Chatfield: Pardon me? Oh, no he's not - he's no relation. No.
Charles Sherrod.

Branton: Now, are you working with the SNCC people?

Chatfield: Ah, yes sir.

Branton: In voter registration?

Chatfield: Right.

Branton: And, what time did you arrive in Dawson?

Chatfield: Well, we got here about 11:30n last night. I was in Albany until from about 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon until Ralph Allen came over and pieked up up in Albany.

Branton: And where didyou go when you arrived in Dawson:

Chatfiedl: We went to Caroline Daniels house.

Branton: Yeah. Was she there?

Chatfield: No, she was in Albany at the time.

Branton: I see. If you will, just go ahead and describe just briefly what happened after that.

Chatfield: Well, we came in here about - approximately 11:30 and we decided we wanted to get some food. So we began getting the food out about 12 o'clock or around that time -

Branton: Was the food already in the house?

Chatfield: Yeah, yeah the food was there. We had everything.

About 12 o'clock - 12:15 I guess to be exact - there were two or three shots. Uh, there turned out to be three shots we only heard two. And we hit the floor and that was it. And I was hit twice in the arm and one boy was grazed.

Branton: What rooms of the house were yo u in?

Chatfield: Well we were all in the kitchen - all standing in the kitchen - and they shot through the front screen door and the bullets went through the living room door and out through the back door.

Branton: How badly were you shot?

Chatfield: Well, it was just flesh wounds - in and out.

Branton: Anybody else injured?

Chatfield: No, there was one - Chris Allen was grazed very slightly in the arm.

Branton: Is Chris Allen white or colored?

Chatfield: White.

Branton: Now, did you report that to the Dawson police?

Chatfield: Uh, yeah, we did.

Branton: Did you call the police from the house or did you leave the house.

Chatfield: We called the Dawson police from the house.

Branton: Did they come right out?

Chatfield: Uh, yeah we called the Dawson police at 12:30 and they arrived here at a quarter after one. As it turned out we tried to get into Albany to a doctor but our car broke down and the Terrell County police picked us up there.

Branton: And where were you treated?

Chatfield: Well, it was sort of cold as soon as they found out who I was. (Apparently misunderstanding the question as how were you treated?) And why I was shot and they were very very cool and they said they were going to take me to Dougherty County and have the Dougherty County authorities take me into Albany. You see, I didn't have any money. We have no money. And so I wanted to go to Dr. Anderson in Albany. And we got to the Dougherty County line and the Dougherty County police car drove up immediately. And everybody got out including myself and the Dougherty County police decided they wouldn't take me into Albany. I didnt hear the entire dialogue but they asked a lot of questions and they stood around about 15 or 20 minutes and at the time I thought the bullets were in my arm. They weren't - but they stood around for about 20 minutes - at least smoking cigars and talking on the radios and deciding what to do and as I say, I can't testify as to the entire dialogue that went on but -

Branton: So what did they do - bring you back?

Chatfield: So they brought me back to Dawson - back to a Dr. Ward (?) at Dawson.

Branton: Colored or white?

Chatfield: No, he was white. He was very cold, too. And he treated me all right - I mean he treated me well.

Branton: And he determined that the bullets were not in your arm?

Chatfield: Yeah, he took an x-ray and there were five policemen there the entire time and you know I was only to speak when spoken to and was treated like that.

Branton: Has the FBI been notified of this?

Chatfield: Yeah, we did call the FBI. I overhead the radio in the police car, the Terrell County police car, and they began shouting back and forth not to call the FBI. They said" we don't want the FBI in on this, when we want the FBI we'll call them." But the Georgia Bureau of INvestigation came down Branton: Has the FBI agent talked with you yet?

Chatfield: No, he hasn't. The FBI has a report but (some unintelligible phrase here).

Branton: O.K. Jim Forman isn't down that way, is he?

Chatfield: Ah, no. Forman's in Atlanta, I guess. I think he's in Atlanta now - he was in Chicago for a while.

Minnis: Ah, listen Wiley - could we get the names of everybody that was in the house at the time it happened?

Chatfield: Yeah, yeah. There was Charles Sherrod, Ralph Allen, Chris Allen - a white boy, Prathia Hall - colored, and Rochester Patterson - colored, Paul Berrien - colored. And that was it.

Minnis: How many shots were fired? Altogether/ Just three?

Chatfield: Yeah, we heard two shots. It turns out that two came into the house and one hit the wall below the window1- the doncrete wall below the window. You know, it just splattered.

Branton: What is the address of Mrs. Daniels' house there?

Chatfield: 601 First Avenue

Branton: This is in the city limits of Dawson?

Chatfield: This is the headquarters for the Terrell County voter registration drive.

Branton: Well, I mean is that a private residence.?

Chatfield: Yeah, it is. Mrs. Caroline Daniels.

Branton: Yeah. O.K. Is there anything else you want to ask Jack?

Minnis: No.

Branton: O.K. You keep us informed if you will.

Chatfield: O.K. fine thank you. Oh, just a minute.

Prathia Hall: Hello. This is Prathia Hall. Uh, there are a few other incidents that should be reported prior to this shooting. I think Jack told you that two other people were grazed? Uh, Chris Allen and myself. Chris Allen is from Oxford.

Branton: Now, where are you from, Miss Hall?

Hall: Philadelphia.

Branton: All right. Have you been working with SNCC or what?

Hall: Yes. In voter registration.
Prior to this, on Thursday about noon - 11:30 or twelve o'clock = about twelve -

Branton: A week ago?

Hall: This past Thursday. We were in Sasser - another district of Terrell County - canvassing for voter registration. We had talked to several families and have been kept under surveillance by a man in a light green truck and several other people in that manner.

Branton: Do you have the license number from the truck?

Hall: 77 J 679.

Branton: What kind of truck - what make of truck is it do you know?

Hall: A Ford truck.

Branton: A Ford half-ton pick-up?

Hall: A half-ton pick-up - that's what the boys say. We had just left one family and were about - we were approaching Sasser when two shots were fired behind us by this man. His name is D.E. Short.

Branton: D.E. Short.

Hall: That's right.

Branton: Did you actually see him fire a gun?

Hall: We heard him - he was right behind us. He came up to the car and then we stopped. He then came up to the car with the gun in his hand pointing it at us.

Branton: Did you report this to the police or anybody?

Hall: We were arrested.

Branton: OH? Where in Sasser?

Hall: In Sasser.

Branton: What were you charged with?

Hall: We were arrested and charged withspeeding.

Branton: By whom were you arrested?

HalL: By this man. We asked him was he a police officer and he told us to shut up. We asked him several times and finally he said "I most certainly am." And he was not in uniform - at which time he pulled out something that might have been a badge.

Branton: Where were you taken?

Hall: We were taken into Sasser to a Sasser jail which consisted of two cells. There were four of us - three fellows including Ralph Allen who is white and myself the only girl. Ralph was put in a cell alone to keep us segregated. I was put in the same cell with Rochester Patterson and Paul Berrien. We stayed there about an hour - oh, at which time this Mr. Short told Ralph that he ought to tar and feather him before putting him in there.

Branton: Well, why were all of you locked up for speeding- how could all the occupants of a vehicle be speeding?

Hall: We asked the same question. We were all arrested and told to shut up. He told Ralph that he ought to tar and feather him because he was sorrier than the rest of us. Then threw him in the - what do they call it - calaboose - is that what they call it? Yeah. And told him they hoped the snakes and crocodiles would get him. We then stayed there about an hour. They came for us and took us into Sasser where we had a two-minute (?) mock hearing. Mock is about the best word for it. Oh, when we were on the road Mr. Short told us that we had been traveling 70 miles an hour.

Branton: Now, in going into Sasser for this hearing did he have you trail him or what?

Hall: No, he had us in a car. He had taken the keys from our car.

Branton: I see, he had put you in another car.

Hall: That's right. We were in the back of this car. He and another man were in the front - ~~he related~~ who later said ~~that~~ he was a policeman.

Branton: Well what happened at the hearing?

Hall: At the hearing Mr. Short had changed his story from 70 miles an hour to 85 miles an hour. Rochester Patterson who was the driver - he told him that he was guilty of speeding and that there was a $25 fine for Sasser.

Branton: Well now who told him he was guilty of speeding, Rochester?

Hall: Rochester was the driver.

Branton: I know, but Rochester admitted that he was speeding?

Hall: Oh, no, no, no, no.

Branton: Well you said that Rochester Patterson told him that he was speeding.

Hall: Oh, no he was told.

Branton: Oh, I see. O.K. I'm sorry. And so what did they do fine him $25?

Hall: (an interruptin here with conversation with those in the background. Miss hall then said) It looked like the same man passing our door jus t now.

Branton: So what did they do fine him $25?

Hall: They fined him $25 for Sasser. We were still in custody - we were not released. Well, the money had not been paid. We were taken to Dawson jail.

Branton: All of you?

Hall: All of us - where we were held from three o'clock until six-thirty. At which time, Mrs. Caroline Daniels, Rochester's mother came in and paid the $25 Sasser fine thinking that we would be released. She was then told that Rochester was being held for the county charge. He was released on a $100 bond.

Branton: Cash?

Hall: Cash bond, that's right. The rest of us were told - he first led Paul and I out into the hall 1- and we were told th at he was not holding us any longer in this since we were just riding in the car. But for us to understand that we were "company to it."

I then asked where was the other person who was with us, speaking of Ralph.
(background conversation again.)

Branton: Somebody's coming up?

Hall: He has passed us twice just now (Mr. Short).

Branton: Is he alone?

Hall: He's alone. I asked where Ralph - I asked him where was the other pedrson who was with us. They said "you say you left something in the car?" I said "No, there were four of us, where is the other person that was with us?" "We don't know anything about her." I said "there was another young man with us, where is he?" Mr. Short then told me "He aint lost-we know where he is." At that time they did let Ralph out. Then they told the rest of us to get out - that we were "uninterested" parties -

Branton: Although he had held you for several hours?

Hall: I think he meant "disinterested" - and said that the only people concerned now were Rochester Patterson -

Branton: All right has the other trial for Rochester on the county charge comelup yet?

Hall: That was held yesterday morning.

Branton: And what happened there?

Hall: He was found guilty and fined $100. He did not plead guilty - he plead not guilty. He was found guilty by the town Ordinary - charged $100 fine and his license suspended for six months.

Branton: Did he take an appeal on it?

Hall: Or sixty days at hard labor.

Branton: Did he take an appeal on it? (This was again repeated.) Did he appeal the case?

Hall: No, no because of that hundred - it's a matter of money. For instance that $100 that he had to take was money that he was planning on entering in school with next week.

Branton: Where?

Hall: At Paine College in Augusta. Now he doesn't know whether he can get there or not.

Branton: And what is his name?

Hall: Rochester Patterson.

Branton: All right. Well, we'll see if we can help him out in some way or other.

Hall: I hope so.

Branton: It would seem to me, however, that a lawyer should be employed to come over and perfect an appeal -

Hall: On this case?

Branton: - of the case so as to protect his license. Of course a speeding charges are pretty hard to beat. It's unusual for them to fine 'em both in the town of Sasser and in the county also.

Hall: They did that. And they held all of us.

Branton: Well this is something that ought to be discussed with some lawyer who is familiar with Georgia law.

Hall: All right, then, we'll do that.

Branton: All right.

Hall: Now there's one more thing.

Branton: All right.

Hall: Yesterday afternoon we were again canvassing in Sasser, voter registration. We talked with several families and were again being held under surveillance by the same man.

Branton: Uh-hum. Was that this Mr. Short?

Hall: That's Mr. Short. At about 4:30. ~~We had~~ This is D. E. Short. We had stopped at the house of Lehman Davis (spelled out at Jean's request), who is a recent applicant to register, and we were talking to him about being trained for his test which will come up in January. Then Mr. Short came down the road, backed into the dirt road ~~which~~ that passes

Mr. Davis' house, and up to Ralph's car, parked outside the house. Ralph then walked over to the car. Mr. Short questioned him about his registration. Oh, he said, "So you're back. Well, I'm going to hang something on you. Then he questioned Ralph about the registration and said that he was going to check to see if his registration was legal or not. At which time the three of us who were with him this time, which were Paul Berrien, Chris Allen of Oxford and myself came out to the car. He asked, What are you all doing back?" We told him, "We are working on voter registration with the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee." He said, "Yeah, yeah, I know what you're doing." He then told us to get in the car and lead the way into Sasser. He followed us into Sasser. He had taken his gun out and put it in his belt. In Sasser he stopped across the street from the Post Office, where he went to make a phone call. Said he was going to call the sheriff. He made his call and came back. We asked if we could make a call. He told us to shut up. He then gave - Most violently. He then gave Ralph the registration back, told us to get out of town, we had no business in Sasser, if he caught us back in Sasser he was going to make it hot for us.

Branton: He had told you to lead the way to Sasser.

Hall: Yes, he had. Yes, he had.

Branton: Then told you you had no business there.

Hall: Then told us we had no business there and to get out of town; if he caught us back he was going to make it hot for us. He made a few choice statements to us. I said to him, "You know that our work is legal, that we have legal business here, legal jobs, and you have no right to interfere with it." He told me to shut up, quote, "You long-haired yellow bitch." He's slightly color blind. "I don't even want to talk to you." Ralph then said to him, "You have no right to order us to leave town, sir." He told him to shut up, and then (unintelligible phrase), swearing. I then repeated the fact that our job was legal, that we did have business in Sasser. He then told me to shut up or he'd ~~beat the~~ get something and beat the hell out of me, and he started reaching back in this truck and I thought he was going to make his statement true. He then ordered us out of town again, and told us if he caught us back in there (unintelligible)-- throw us in jail -- (unintelligible) quote, "there wasn't a chinch in China."

Branton: A chinch (?) in China. My secretary's not used to such loose terminology.

Hall: We weren't either.

Branton: Now, have you discussed any of this with any federal authorities at all?

Hall: We have not talked with them. I have not finished yet. I haven't gotten -- Branton: Fine. No, I'm not rushing you, but I'm -- Okay, go ahead.

Hall: We then got in the car and left town. Outside of the city we stopped and made a turn to make a phone call, at which time he rolled up beside us and yelled, "Stop," and got out of the car, and he said - and he got out of his truck and said, "Stop, stop, or I'll put you all in the cemetery," carrying his gun, aiming it at us. He then told us, "Back this Buick up and get out of here or I'll fill you all full of lead." Then, in this succession, dit, dang with the gun, dit, dang with the gun again.

Branton: You mean he fired?

Hall: Fired. Yes, twice.

Branton: In your presence.

Hall: In our presence, yes.

Branton: Where, up in the air?

Hall: In the direction of the car.

Branton: Mississippi's peaceful, then.

Hall: Let's see. We then backed up and got.

Branton: Yeah, I don't blame you; I really don't.

Hall: And we left town. Just passed us again. We then left town under his surveillance. He followed us from Sasser to Dawson and right to the edge of the Negro district of Dawson, at which time he turned off.

Branton: Now does Mrs. Daniels live in the Negro district?

Hall: Yes, she does.

Branton: And he's out there now?

Hall: Yes, he is. He's going back and forth through the road, he's passed three times.

Jack Minnis: Miss Hall, do you know whether or not this Short is actually an official of the county, or city of Sasser or anything?

Hall: He says he's a city policeman.

Branton: In Sasser.

Hall: We don't know. He has never really identified himself to us.

Branton: All right, anything else happen?

Hall: -- show a badge. We asked - Ralph asked him for his credentials, and he showed this badge after telling us to shut up. Now that's it, and after that - now this happened at 5:30. We were followed back into Dawson at 5:30.

Branton: This was yesterday?

Hall: Yesterday evening. And then at 12:15 the shooting.

Branton: All right. We're going to report this ourselves to some --

LeVine: Miss Hall, I didn't get Mr. Short's initials. What are his initials?

Hall: "D" as in David, and "E" as in Earl.

LeVine: S-h-o-r-t.

Hall: That's right. Now, we have called the FBI, but they - and reported it, but they haven't called us.

Branton: Where did you call, to Albany?

Hall: Atlanta. We called the Justice Department yesterday when we got back, but they did not accept the charges; they didn't accept the call.

Branton: This was in Washington?

Hall: In Washington. And we left our number for Mr. Doar (?) to call us back. He did not call, however. So we haven't heard from them, and we couldn't make any more long distance calls on this phone.

Branton: Well, we'll be in touch with them in the next few minutes, and we'll relate this information to them.

Hall: All right, then.

Branton: All right.

Hall: Is there anything else that you can think we should do?

Branton: No, of course, certainly we want you to be extremely cautious for your own protection.

Hall: Oh, yes.

Branton: --right through now. And, I don't know but what I would not suggest that you go back over to Albany for a day or two.

Hall: Albany and stay there?

Branton: Um-humm. For a day or two.

Hall: What about the effect that this has on the people?

Branton: Well, of course that's something for you to decide. You know, yourselves. Certainly you don't want to get out of pocket where nobody can reach you, but if you're having that much difficulty it would --

Hall: We had a little bit of response --

Branton: How's that?

Hall: --and, and they, you know they do these things in front of people, you know, in front of Negroes standing, you know, standing around watching, with the aim in mind (unintelligible words) intimidate them, you know, marching us through the main street where there are Negroes working and this sort of thing. At gunpoint, to let them -- and, and yelling at us, "I'm running you out of town," you know, what they hope to do. Hoping to stop the project in Sasser.

Branton: Well, of course you can appraise the situation much better there than we can from here in Atlanta. But we certainly are ever-mindful of your own safety, and even if you have to, you know, just come in during the day, and go back out, you know, before dark, back and forth over to Albany, And certainly we're more concerned about your own safety than we are about anything else. So (unintelligible) of the things which you have to decide yourself.

Hall: All right. Well, there's one thing that we'd -- we'd like to know Paul Anthony's phone number, do you know it?

Branton: Yes.

LeVine: 522-8764.

Hall: 522-8764.

Branton: Yeah.

Hall: All right, then. Thank you very much.

Branton: Okay, and thank you.

Hall: You're welcome, and goodby.

Branton: All right, goodby.

Vote Drive Pushed Despite Gun Attack; Jackie Robinson to Visit Albany Sunday

From Press Dispatches

Negro voter registration drives continued in southeast Georgia Wednesday despite a shooting attack the night before on a house in Dawson occupied by registration workers.

And word came that Negro baseball player Jackie Robinson will arrive in Albany Sunday to help promote the registration campaign.

Forty-five Negro and white desegregationists held a two-hour voter registration meeting Wednesday in Sasser, which along with Albany and Dawson have been the hottest spots of racial tension in Georgia in recent weeks. All are located along a 12-mile stretch of Georgia Highway. 50.

FBI agents kept the Sasser meeting under observation and no incidents were reported.

Robinson's plans to visit were announced by Dr. W. G. Anderson, head of Albany's desegregation movement. At a meeting Wednesday in Albany, Dr. Anderson urged Negroes to register. More than 600 have been registered within the past month and 57 qualified Wednesday.

One of the occupants of the Dawson house riddled by gunfire Tuesday night said Wednesday, "We are afraid but we aren't cowards."

He was Charles Sherrod, 25, a Negro from Petersburg, Va.

Gunfire raked the house where Sherrod and other members of a group of white and Negro registration workers live.

Wounded by slugs, apparently buckshot, was John Chatfield, 20, a white youth from Bradford, Vt.

Chatfield, who arrived Tuesday to join the group, said he was struck as he stood in the kitchen of the small concrete block house in Dawson's Negro section.

Two slugs went through Chatfield's left forearm and bicep. He wasn't hurt seriously and the other six occupants escaped injury.

Chatfield said there were two loud blasts which sounded like shotgun fire.

In a similar shooting incident last Thursday, four Negro houses were riddled by gunfire near Leesburg, about 19 miles east of Dawson. There were no injuries in the Lee County shootings.

Chatfield and two companions said they started to Albany, 23 miles east of Dawson, for medical treatment. But their car ran out of gas and Chatfield returned to a Dawson hospital for treatment.

Chatfield's companions said they were jailed in Dawson for half an hour. They are Chris Allen, 19, of London, England, and Ralph Allen, 21, of Melrose, Mass., both white.

Police Chief W. B. Cherry said, "We haven't been able to make any headway in our investigations." Cherry said he had no theory as to the motive for the shooting.

Ralph Allen said police officer D. E. Short of nearby Sasser had threatened some of the voter registration group Wednesday.

Allen said he and three companions were run out of Sasser by Short, who wielded a shotgun and threatened to "fill you full of lead."

"He told us to get out of town" Allen said. "When we started down a street to make a telephone call, Short said, 'stop or I'll put you all in the cemetery.'"

As their car left, Allen said Short fired twice at the ground near the car.

Contacted for comment, Short

ALBANY REPORT

We'll walk hand in hand,
We'll walk hand in hand,
We'll walk hand in hand, someday.
Deep in my heart, I do believe,
We shall overcome someday.

—from "We Shall Overcome", a song of freedom, theme song of the non-violent movement.

The sin, therefore, is that the whole issue of race is an effort to deny the sovereignty of God, to negate the absolute supremacy of God. Once a man has truly seen this truth he can no longer be a segregationist, nor can he any longer grovel in the agonies of self-pity. From that point on the segregationist logic and desire for self-justification terrify him. As for the segregationist, he is now afraid to call any man unclean, to discriminate against any man, to stand in judgment over any group or individual or to set himself above any of God's human creatures. From the moment either the segregationist or the integrationist really accepts the absolute sovereignty of God he is forever thereafter terrified to usurp that authority or claim any part of it for himself. And that is precisely what one does when he determines his pattern of behavior by classification of race and class or thinks that God is obliged to conform reality to man's notion of what it ought to be.

—The Rev. Will D. Campbell, Race and the Renewal of the Church, to be published October, 1962, by Westminster Press.

When these men go back home they'll be telling the Albany story. We're creating a group of people that understands what it means to be pushed around.

—The Rev. Andrew Young, leader of the Albany Movement, in Chicago's American, August 30, 1962.

But, I bring you good news, glorious news, from Albany, Georgia. For in these past few days God somehow reached across the darkened thoughts of my heart and made me know that, despite the prejudices on both sides, the walls were down between us, the walls of three hundred years. What I have to say is that this week, for the first time really, I was able to say that a Negro was indeed my neighbor. Some way, despite my prejudices, which I think I still have, God cleared a way. It must have been God because it was not me.

—The Rev. Preston Kavanagh, one of those jailed in Albany, in a sermon to his congregation at Seminary Avenue Federated Church, September 2, 1962.

ALBANY REPORT is published for the use of clergy and laymen who wish to know the background of the Albany, Georgia, situation, the events leading to the formation of the Interreligious Delegation to Albany, and the story of the Delegation's trip to the South Georgia city. ALBANY REPORT is dedicated to the members of the Chicago Delegation, some of whom fasted in jail for more than five days as a penance for the sin of prejudice that we all share.

GEORGIANS CALL IT ALL-BENNY . . .

Albany is located in South-West Georgia in the heart of what some call the Black Belt, others the Bible Belt. In the early days of the last century Albany was the trading center for the slave plantation country which stretched around the town in a 100-mile radius. Here, says DuBois, "the cornerstone of the Cotton Kingdom was laid."

The man at the Albany Chamber of Commerce calls it "the tenth fastest booming city in the U.S.A." A city of broad streets, it is a bustling commercial center. Albany used to have more Negroes than whites, but the Negro population has declined to 42% since the Second World War. There are 22,000 Negroes out of a total population of 56,000.

"WE NEVER HAD ANY TROUBLE WITH OUR NIGRAS BEFORE NOW"

So speaks the white citizen of Albany. For years "good race relations" in the South has meant the preservation of the paternalistic master-slave system in which "Negroes know their place". Howard Zinn interviewed the white citizens of Albany. He writes:

> Again and again— in the office of a political leader, in the anteroom of a businessman, sitting with a newspaper editor, in the living-room of a middle-class white family—the statement was made, "Albany has always had good race relations . . . Our colored folks have been satisfied . . . We have made considerable progress . . ." In a nation with ten thousand history teachers, memories remain poor; for the same statements were made in Montgomery before the bus boycott, in Atlanta before the sit-ins, and all through the South in the days of slavery.

Typically the stirring of Negro resentment in Albany was interpreted as the work of "outside agitators": "Those Freedom Riders are getting $100 a day. Minimum! Some getting $200." But when the white citizens of Albany realized that the Negro—the local Negro—was on the march to freedom, the reaction was clear-cut and decisive. The citizens of Albany organized possibly the most effective resistance to integration that has yet been created. What follows is the story, in brief, of the strategic positioning of white and Negro in Albany, the story of the Albany Movement and the challenge that it faces.

U.S.A.: LAST BASTION OF SEGREGATION . . .

The background of the Albany Movement can be traced to two historical facts. First, the general impatience of the American Negro for full equality; this impatience has been heightened by a growing number of articulate, educated Negro leaders who chafe at the thought of a segregated society. Impatience is tremendously increased by the rise of free African states which add to the international image of the United States as one of the last bastions of segregation. Secondly, the genesis of the Albany Movement can be traced to the idea of nonviolence. The nonviolent, direct action approach to racial segregation has been tried and tested in many Southern communities, notably Nashville, Montgomery, and Atlanta. Nonviolence has been found to be an effective, consistent approach which utterly renounces the extremism of groups like the Black Muslims.

HOW DOES NONVIOLENCE OPERATE?

Nonviolence draws its inspiration from Gandhi and from the Christian approach which stresses "turning the other cheek". In any demonstration violence is to be met with love. The major organizations working for freedom in the South have adopted nonviolence as their watchword. These organizations include the Southern Christian Leadership Council, of which Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., is Chairman; the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, which has operated in many locales with almost unbelievable courage, and the Congress of Racial Equality (C.O.R.E.) which was most active in the Freedom Rides.

The nonviolent approach operates as follows: There is first a request of the Negro community to negotiate the issue of desegregation with white leaders. If negotiation is denied, demonstration follows. Nonviolent demonstrators are trained and prepared to accept violence and go to jail without responding in a violent manner. Demonstrations are conducted until negotiation is permitted. If negotiation fails to bring an adequate solution, demonstrations continue. Besides picketing and sitting-in, demonstrations can include economic boycotts, prayer pilgrimages, and accepting "jail without bail."

An example of successful demonstration is Nashville, Tenn., where lunch counters and down-town theaters were opened following prolonged nonviolent activity. When Negro leadership is of high caliber, as in Nashville, demonstrations have tended to create good relationships between the white and Negro communities and to isolate extremists on both sides. Ordinarily, violence has come not from the vast majority of white citizens, but from young hoodlums and poor whites to whom desegregation represents a great threat. Of course, white citizens participate in the creation of violence by their unwillingness to negotiate and their determination to maintain the status quo.

A MOVEMENT IS BORN

In his Special Report on Albany, Howard Zinn wrote:

> Slowly developing anger and unpublicized dignified protest by Negro adults—a dramatic outburst of Negro students to bring the issues to public attention—and then a new synthesis of adult-student leadership marshaling the forces of the entire Negro community; this has been the developmental pattern in a number of southern protest movements, and so it was in Albany.

Here, in capsule form, are the events which led to the formation of the Albany Movement on Nov. 17, 1961.

- In early January, 1961, Negro leaders requested desegregation of certain city facilities and street paving in Negro areas. The city commissioners never responded.
- On Feb. 6, 1961, the city's only daily paper, the segregationist Albany Herald, published an editorial rejecting the Negro pleas, not only for the present, but for the future.
- During February and March, 1961, "sporadic incidents occurred around the Albany State College campus, in which marauding whites in automobiles threw eggs, fired shots, and once tried to run down a Negro student." The Negro ministerial alliance requested a hearing with Mayor Asa D. Kelley. There was no response.
- In September, 1961, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee sent a team to Albany with the purpose of registering Negro voters. Their vigor helped mobilize the Negro community.
- Successive attempts to test the I.C.C. ruling banning segregation in interstate bus facilities resulted in a series of arrests during November and December, 1961.

On Nov. 17, 1961, the Albany Movement was formed. The Movement represents Albany's colored Ministerial Alliance, the local NAACP, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, and other Negro organizations. Its president is the articulate Negro osteopath, Dr. W. G. Anderson.

"WE SHALL OVERCOME"

This is the theme song of the Albany Movement and perhaps it is well that the words are in the future tense. As the months have passed since November, the Albany Movement has learned that the process of overcoming is long and arduous. The story of the Movement's efforts is one of sacrifice, sacrifice, and still more sacrifice. The Movement has used many strategies, with limited success. Economic boycotts have been aimed at downtown stores. But white Albany remains unyielding. 1200 persons in the Albany Movement have been in jail since November, 1961. But Albany remains unwilling to negotiate. Voter registration campaigns have been conducted with increasing momentum. But it will take a massive effort to bring victory at the polls. Albany's bus station, train station, voting booths, and poll lists have been integrated . . . by Federal court order. But Albany is very careful to avoid Federal interference, to maintain segregation without inciting Federal reprisals. Arrests have been orderly, brutality kept to a minimum, and the white leaders remain unwilling to sit down at a table with their Negro counterparts.

What forms does sacrifice take?

- A Negro woman, eight months pregnant, in jail for the fourth time, and willing to return again.
- Countless dollars in bail money.
- Anonymous threats by phone to the homes of leaders of the Albany Movement.
- The chance that a Negro family takes when it offers housing to a sympathetic white demonstrator.
- In mid-August a church—used as a voter registration training center—was burned to the ground.
- On Thursday, August 30, 1962, shots were fired into a building where an organization meeting for voter registration was being held in a town five miles north of Albany.
- Three white policemen enter a Negro home without a warrant and ransack it, pulling a gun on the protesting owner and saying, "You just sit down. You just sit there."
- Two Negro girls, on their way to attempt to worship in a white church, are arrested on a charge of loitering.
- On a television program, the Mayor of Albany says that Dr. W. G. Anderson, Movement leader, is "lucky to be alive."

Add to these the countless indignities suffered in the everyday round of existence in Albany, and a picture of sacrifice emerges. Those who have gone to jail in Albany will tell you that you never quite realize what sacrifice might mean until you are directly involved.

The presence of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., in Albany has given the Movement needed impetus. On several occasions King has gone to jail for his participation. It is probable that King's national stature, coupled with his persistent dedication to the cause of victory, has done the most to bring the Albany situation to world attention. Georgia columnist Ralph McGill has called Albany a conversation piece in the U.N., a trouble spot which delights the Russians. Unquestionably Albany has become the battleground for human rights in 1962. Victory in Albany would be a tangible victory for Negroes throughout the United States.

THE NATURE OF THE OPPOSITION

In the Chicago Sun-Times, Tues., Sept. 4, an ominous headline appeared: "GEORGIA KKK SETS FIGHT ON INTEGRATION." The dateline was Albany. Before a blazing 20-foot cross in a field near Albany, Georgia's Grand Dragon told his hooded brethren, "We're going to put on the biggest drive ever known in the state . . . and when we get through I think there'll be a lot of Negroes moving North." Will what the song—with poignant irony—calls "strange fruit" hang once again from the pine, oak, and poplar trees in the rich, black swampland near Albany? A new and perilous note has been sounded, a note which may inspire new depths of meaning in the song, "We Shall Overcome."

Word of the KKK mobilization raises a question about the nature of the opposition which the Albany Movement faces. Until now white Albany has distinguished itself as a community determined to meet nonviolence with nonviolence. Georgie Ann Geyer of the Chicago Daily News was an on-the-scene observer in Albany. Her perceptive description of the opposition appeared in the issue of Saturday, Sept. 1.

> It is here in Albany . . . that a new type of integration fight is being waged.
> There is no violence in this fight. It is a kind of "sophistication" with both sides jousting for position.
> Chief Pritchett (Albany's police chief) calls the new approach "meeting nonviolence with nonviolence."
> Pritchett himself is a new type of Southern law officer. He prides himself on a "no-nonsense" policy for both sides. He goes to race relations institutes at northern universities, confers with police in other cities where integration is a problem.
> He has even studied Gandhi's ideas about passive resistance and instructed his men in Gandhi's methods . . .
> Dr. Anderson calls Albany's methods of maintaining segregation "one of the most sophisticated in the country."
> "They are not yielding, they are just using a different technique," said the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, a Negro leader. "We must be prepared for more of this."

Thus the issue has been drawn. The absorption of violence by nonviolent groups has in the past added fuel to the fire of successful integration efforts. Therefore, reasons white Albany, let there be no violence. The nature of the opposition is incarnate in Chief Pritchett, a man who even has the grudging respect of the Negro community. Behind Chief Pritchett stands a determined white community, set on maintaining the present segregated city. Until now Chief Pritchett's approach has effectively stymied the Albany Movement. Should a time come when Chief Pritchett's method becomes untenable it is logical to assume that the nonviolent law enforcement approach will be rejected for the method that best preserves segregation. Of course the KKK may choose to operate outside city limits, backing up the sophisticated arm of Albany law with the fearsome specter of brutality.

THE STALEMATE AND THE CALL

It was the stalemate in Albany that gave rise to Martin Luther King's call to Northern religious leaders. In late August King sent the following telegram to clergymen of the New York City area.

> The Albany movement is in its second month of struggle to bring about just reconciliation of the community's racial groups. Albany is not a local situation but is a crisis in the national life of this democracy. When citizens are denied the right to pray and picket in public, when churches are burned for their use as voter registration centers, our nation suffers greatly. On behalf of the Albany movement and the Southern leadership conference I extend a call to all those who would bear witness to the prophetic faith of our Judeo-Christian tradition to stand with the people of Albany as they strive for freedom. On Monday, August 27th we are asking you to come to Albany and make witness in behalf of your congregation against the segregated way of life. Your presence would be a great boost to the freedom loving people of that community.
> (Signed) Martin Luther King

A New York pastor who was himself planning to respond to King's call, the Rev. Norm Eddy of East Harlem Protestant Parish, called a former colleague, the Rev. Don Benedict, General Director of the Chicago City Missionary Society, and relayed the request. He also sent a copy of King's telegram. Benedict passed King's request on to the Rev. Douglas Still, Executive Secretary of the Department of Social Welfare of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago. This was on Monday, August 20. Still immediately contacted John McDermott of the Catholic Interracial Council, Rabbi Robert Marx of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, and the Rev. Charles Leber, Chairman of the Church Federation's Department of Christian Citizenship. These men, with the exception of Rabbi Marx, who was out of town, met on Tuesday, Aug. 21. Still called Dr. Anderson in Albany to confirm the need for a delegation to Albany.

PLANNING

Anderson confirmed King's request and the Chicago group began to lay immediate plans to go to Albany. At first the Chicago leaders hoped to have more than a week in which to recruit a large delegation. But further calls to Albany indicated that Monday evening, April 27, was the strategic arrival time as far as the Albany Movement was concerned. The Chicagoans acted with speed. By Saturday, thirty-nine persons had indicated a willingness to go to Albany. Almost twenty additional persons said they would consider going. Thus, with almost miraculous speed, a delegation of Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish representatives was formed.

Several early decisions of the Chicago group should be noted at this point. Members of the Delegation were acting as individuals, not as representatives of any organization. Both before and during the Albany trip this point was emphasized. A second decision was that, upon arriving in Albany, the group would place itself at the disposal of the Albany Movement. Implicit in this decision was the acceptance by each delegate of the nonviolent discipline. The final decision was that the group would act as representatives of the Chicago area religious community, not as official representatives, but as "messengers of conscience", carrying with them a statement signed by over 100 Chicago religious leaders. The statement, which was read to members of the Albany Movement, expressed "our solidarity with all persons who seek to witness against a segregated way of life." (See Appendix)

Sunday evening, April 26, was set as the assembling time for the Chicago Delegation. Forty-six persons gathered at 6:00 P.M. at the Church Federation of Greater Chicago for an orientation period which included a nonviolent workshop, a talk on the meaning of nonviolence, and a message from Martin Luther King's Chicago attorney, Chauncey Eskridge. Eskridge described the Albany situation and told the group the procedures to be adapted in case of arrest.

At 10:00 P.M. a bus and a station wagon carrying the delegates was speeding to the South Georgia city. Doug Still was named spokesman for the Delegation.

Who composed the Delegation? A full list is included at the end of this report. Of the forty-six delegates, fourteen were Negro, thirty-two white. Eight of the delegates were women. There were two Jewish representatives, nine lay Catholic representatives, and thirty-five Protestant ministers and laymen. Protestant representatives included five Baptists, five staff members of the Chicago City Missionary Society and West Side Christian Parish, one staff member of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago, one representative from Evanston's Ecumenical Institute, two Episcopalians, one Evangelical and Reformed, five Lutherans, four Methodists, eight Presbyterians, one Unitarian, and three members of the United Church of Christ. Twenty-two of the Protestants were ministers; the remaining thirteen, laymen. The Jewish delegates were recruited by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, the Catholic laymen by the Catholic Interracial Council.

Miss Lillian Gilbertsen was an observer for the Chicago Delegation. She offers the following account of the trip to Albany and subsequent events.

> The bus trip began in a spirit of anticipation and excitement. Prayers were held. We all came to know one another better and the group felt united and strong. As we came closer and closer to Albany a quietness settled upon us. Many of the Negroes travelling with us were born and raised in the North and had reason to be especially fearful. They had never been South before and did not know what to expect. They had been prepared somewhat by our difficulty in being served in restaurants as we travelled to Albany. Only in Kentucky, after much negotiating, had we been served a meal. Thereafter food was purchased at grocery stores along the way and prepared on the bus.
> We were a quiet but unafraid group as we arrived in Albany. Police cars had been sent to meet us and we were led to the church which was to be our meeting place. We arrived just before midnight on Monday, Aug. 27. At the church we were greeted warmly, fed, and driven to the homes of families in the Negro community where we would make our Albany home. It is difficult to describe the hospitality. Most of us had never been greeted anywhere with such warmth.

Earlier Monday evening a similar delegation arrived from the New York-New Jersey area. This delegation totalled thirty-three members. Miss Gilbertsen's account continues:

> The following morning was busy. Breakfast was served at one of the churches and the rest of the morning was devoted to orientation given by Dr. King and members of the Albany Movement. Details of the planned demonstration could not be given out until the last minute for fear that the Albany police might prevent the intended action from taking place. About two hours before the demonstration, the plans were laid down.

THE ARRESTS

> There was to be a prayer vigil in front of the Albany City Hall. The Northern delegations would be driven downtown in cars and assemble in front of City Hall. If the Chief of Police did not arrest them, they would march back to the church. For men who have never been jailed, it was very difficult to conceive of being arrested when the purpose in assembling was prayer. It seemed to us that the Chief of Police could really have squelched us by ignoring us and not arresting us.
> But after spokesman for the group announced their intention to pray, only three of the four men who were chosen to lead the prayers finished before the Chief said, "Lock 'em up." A crowd of onlookers cheered and the group sang as they were marched to the city jail to be booked for failing to obey an officer and loitering on the street. Those of us who were observing were told to move on. We then had to return to the office of the Albany Movement (which is the home of Dr. W. G. Anderson) for fear of being arrested ourselves for loitering. The observers were not to be arrested because they were needed to maintain contact with the Albany Movement. Following the arrests, calls were made long into the night, requesting bail money. The answers to the request for bail money were very encouraging and we felt we were well supported at home.

THE AFTERMATH

The aftermath of the arrests has been well documented in the local and national press. All but six of the Chicago Delegation were among the seventy-five persons arrested. Members of the Delegation were placed in four jails, two in Albany and two in nearby communities. The arrested members of the Delegation had agreed to fast for twenty-four hours upon arriving in jail. Most of the Delegation remained in jail from 1:00 P.M. Tuesday until the evening of the following day. Eleven of the delegates, however, elected to remain in jail until Monday, September 3. These delegates kept the fast for six days.

There were no cases of brutality in the jails although there was considerable scorn directed by police at five of the New York Rabbis who were arrested. Cherry bombs were thrown at one of the jails and some of the prisoners were placed in dirty, roach-infested cells. White and Negro prisoners were segregated. Perhaps the segregationist problem is illustrated in the story of the Rev. Julio Garcia, a Puerto Rican representative of the New York-New Jersey Delegation. Noting Garcia's dark skin, police placed him in the Negro prison quarters. But, looking at the name Garcia, police became puzzled. They called the New York pastor from his cell and asked, "Are you white or Negro?" He replied, "I'm Puerto Rican." Unable to classify him, police gave Garcia his choice of prison quarters. Garcia told the stymied officers that he would remain with the Negro prisoners.

By Wednesday, Sept. 5, the entire Chicago Delegation had returned, some by bus on the evening of August 29, the rest by plane and car.

SOME REACTIONS

It is interesting to note the press reaction to the Delegation's trip. In Chicago extensive, objective coverage was given by the Daily News, the only paper to send a reporter —Georgie Ann Geyer—with the delegation. Other Chicago papers gave more limited coverage. The trip was virtually ignored by the Chicago Tribune.

In Albany the segregationist Albany Journal, "A Paper for People Who Want the Truth", commented, "Dick Russell up in Washington, put it right when he said, 'They came to get arrested, and they got arrested.' . . . The Albany Police Department . . . even (had) time for a bit of horseplay. One police sergeant who shall go nameless stood at the door of City Hall sporting a false Freedom Rider beard. This broke the cops up, but didn't deter them from doing their duty . . ."

A writer in the "Letters" column of the Albany Herald said, "The white population . . . in the North can be polled and found that they are in sympathy with the city of Albany and these Negroes are wrong and should all be given prison terms or sent out of the state . . ."

THEY WENT TO ALBANY

Take a man like Lawrence Langford, 45, a worker in the Electrical Department of the City of Chicago. Langford, a Negro, was a 1st Lieutenant in the Second World War. He went to Albany because he felt he could "do something" there. He had to fight to get into his union and he is fighting to maintain dignity in a city where racial lines are drawn. He paid his bail from his own pocket.

Or James E. Lintner, Jr., assistant pastor of Chicago's Essex Community Church. He went to Albany because of his respect for Martin Luther King's approach to the racial problem. "The other options are not very pleasant," he observes. Also he went to learn. Returning from Albany, Lintner had two dominant impressions: the experience of the intense hatred a white community can generate, and a sense of wonder at the status quo. "How can white moderates hope to solve the problem without talking with the Negro?" he asks.

The Rev. Preston Kavanagh is Co-Pastor of the Seminary Avenue Federated Church in Chicago. On his return from Albany, he spoke to his congregation in a Sunday sermon, giving an honest account of his experience as a white person: "I am a prejudiced person. I was raised in a segregated city. We had a colored maid who knew her place. I attended an all-white junior high school which stood next to a dilapidated Negro elementary school. And when a small colored boy asked me, 'Why do you live in a white house and I live in a black house?' I tried to laugh off the question by pretending I did not understand and saying that my house was red. I was relieved when his mother called him away from me. And today, deep in my heart of hearts, whenever I speak with a Negro, I find myself thinking, 'He's a Negro.' And often in the back of my mind, thrusting itself into my consciousness, comes the ugly word, 'nigger.' . . . Does this not strike a note with you? . . . What I have to say is that this week, for the first time really, I was able to say that a Negro was indeed my neighbor."

The two Jewish representatives on the Delegation were Mrs. John Alschuler and her daughter, Jean. They are members of Chicago's suburban Congregation Solel. In Albany they were chosen to act as observers. "I had to order my daughter to be an observer," says Mrs. Alschuler. What did they observe as they stood in the crowd of onlookers as members of the Delegation were arrested? They could "smell fear". Their impression was that the citizens of Albany did not know what to make of the Delegation's prayer pilgrimage. Elsewhere, they saw signs of hope: "You could feel direction in the young people . . . A white woman came up and said, under her breath, 'Keep up the good work' . . ."

Fred Buss, formerly of Austin, Texas, and now with the Ecumenical Institute, told the group before they departed for Albany, "As a person who has lived in the South, I invite you to come to Albany." He added, "The idea that we are outside agitators is geographically, constitutionally, and theologically wrong." He stressed the idea that Albany is a national problem, a place from which a call for help has come, a call that cannot be rejected by followers of the Judeo-Christian tradition. Back in Chicago, Buss tells a story which illustrates the financial sacrifices which dedicated Albany Negroes are facing. "As we were released from jail, we walked along the street and met a Negro man who asked our help. 'My wife has been in jail for three weeks,' he said. 'I've been taking care of the children, but they need their mother,' His wife had been in jail for the Albany Movement. The financial implications are clear." Buss expressed the hope that one result of the Delegation's trip might be the donation of more money to support the hard-pressed Albany Movement.

The people who went to Albany will tell you a story of courage, hardship, and hope. If the Delegation failed to puncture the racial barriers which white Albany has erected, the members gained new insight into the nature of the struggle, insight that will serve them well as they seek to break down segregation in Chicago.

SUCCESS OR FAILURE?

Was their going in vain? If swift victory over the forces of segregation was the goal of the journey, the answer must be that the trip was in vain. "They are not yielding," says the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, veteran integration leader, surveying a situation in which white authority has blocked all efforts by the Negro to integrate. If the Northern religious leaders hoped to convert their segregationist Christian brethren in the South, the hope was in vain. Will Campbell, an observer of the Albany scene, spoke to the white clergymen of the city and got this composite reaction: "How do these Northern ministers expect to come down here for a few days and change something that we haven't been able to change in years?" A rationalization? Certainly, says Campbell. But it is also a realistic reflection of a division in racial attitude within the church, a division which could not be reconciled within a week. Perhaps the attitude of white clergy in Albany paralleled the frustrated remark which Chief Pritchett made when he arrested the clergymen: "Clean up the sin in your own cities before coming here."

Was the trip a failure? If the purpose of the journey was to aid the Albany Movement in a final decisive push toward freedom, the trip failed. Still and other delegation leaders had hoped before going to Albany that such a push might be made. But, in the words of one observer, the progress of the Albany Movement is like a revival meeting: "You make a big hullaballoo and then you're back where you started." The observation seems cynical, but it merely serves to illustrate the difficulty of the task. Even in communities where demonstrations have been successful—in Nashville, Montgomery, and Atlanta—the Negro has taken only the first step in what Martin Luther King calls the "stride toward freedom".

But those who went to Albany do not bring such pessimistic news. Nor do the dedicated people who make up the Albany movement. A Negro lady, quoted in the Sept. 1, issue of the Chicago Daily News, said to the Northerners: "I can't tell you how much we appreciate your coming. We just don't know what to do anymore." When there was no hope, Northern religious leaders responded to the call and brought hope, the hope that the despairing man feels when the concern of another breaks through.

THE FUTURE

The Delegation has returned from Albany. It remains to be seen whether other groups will be called to aid the Albany Movement. What, then, is the future of the Chicago Interreligious Delegation? Speaking for the group, Doug Still has expressed the hope that the interracial ties forged on the trip to Albany will lead to concerted action to end Chicago's racial problems. Perhaps the most significant thing that could emerge would be a group willing to make the sacrifices in Chicago that have been made in Albany.

As this was being written a Chicagoan said to the writer, "Why did they go to Albany? Why not work where they live? When you write the story you should ask them to put themselves in the position of the southern white for a while. You should explain that what the southern white faces is not easy to solve. You should also ask them whether they are willing to pay the price of integration here in Chicago. If they can't give a positive answer, they had no right to go down there." These are hard words. But perhaps it is fitting to end this account with a challenge.

We shall overcome,
We shall overcome,
We shall overcome, someday.
Deep in my heart, I do believe,
We shall overcome someday.

When will the day come in Chicago? The black ghettoes of our great metropolis stand as tragic testimony to our common brokenness, a brokenness that knows no geography.

APPENDIX

Copy of the telegram sent to President John F. Kennedy by members of the Delegation who remained in jail and fasted for more than 120 hours.

THE HON. JOHN F. KENNEDY
THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON, D.C.

SEPTEMBER 2, 1962

WE CAME TO ALBANY BECAUSE OF OUR DEEP CONCERN ABOUT THE DEADLOCK IN ATTEMPTS TO END DISCRIMINATORY SEGREGATION POLICIES HERE. WE KNEW THAT WHITE CITY OFFICIALS HAD REFUSED TO COMMUNICATE WITH RESPONSIBLE NEGRO LEADERS OF THE CITY. IN FACT, FOR MONTHS THE POLICE HAVE INSISTED ON THROWING THESE LEADERS, AND OVER 1000 OF THEIR FOLLOWERS, IN JAIL WHEN THEY ATTEMPTED TO EXPRESS THEIR CONCERN ABOUT RACIAL SEGREGATION IN ALBANY.

WE HOPED TO ENCOURAGE WHITE LEADERS AND CITIZENS OF ALBANY TO PARTICIPATE IN RESPONSIBLE DISCUSSION TO RESOLVE THE QUESTION REGARDING SEGREGATION HERE.

WE ARE NOT BLIND TO THE FACT THAT ALBANY IS ONLY ONE DRAMATIC EXAMPLE OF A COMMUNITY WHICH PRACTICES RACIAL DISCRIMINATION AND SEGREGATION. PRACTICALLY EVERY CITY IN OUR NATION HAS DIRTY LINEN IN THIS REGARD.

FORTUNATELY THERE IS A PEACEFUL FREEDOM MOVEMENT IN OUR NATION, DEALING WITH OUR RACIAL TENSION, SOUTH AND NORTH, AND HERE IN ALBANY THIS MOVEMENT PROVIDES THE MEANS TO SHOW ALL THE SOUTH AND ALL THE NATION HOW TO RESOLVE PROBLEMS OF RACIAL TENSION BY NONVIOLENT AND REASONABLE MEANS.

AS WE PASS 120 HOURS OF FASTING WHICH BEGAN TUESDAY AT 1:00 P.M. WE WANT TO JOIN WITH DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR., IN ASKING YOU TO BRING TOGETHER THE LEADERS OF THE ALBANY MOVEMENT AND THE ALBANY CITY GOVERNMENT TO HELP THEM RESOLVE THEIR DEADLOCKED STRUGGLE. WE ALSO ASK YOU TO SPEAK OUT CLEARLY, REMINDING OUR NATION AND THE WORLD THAT AMERICA IS FIRMLY OPPOSED TO RACIAL DISCRIMINATION AND SEGREGATION.

THIS WOULD PREVENT THE ALTERNATIVE "SOLUTION" OF VIOLENT ACTION AND REACTION—AS SEEN IN FRIDAY'S SHOOTING IN LEESBURG, GA., AS WELL AS INCIDENTS IN LOS ANGELES, BIRMINGHAM, NEW YORK, CHICAGO, AND CAIRO, ILL., AND COUNTLESS OTHER PLACES.

WE ARE ALL AGREED—CATHOLIC, JEW, PROTESTANT—THAT GOD WILLS THE END OF ALL RACIAL DISCRIMINATION AND SEGREGATION IN HIS WORLD. RESPECTFULLY YOURS.

Telegrams sent to members of the Delegation in prison.

MAY THE PEACE OF CHRIST DWELL WITHIN YOU AND THE FIRE OF THE HOLY SPIRIT STRENGTHEN YOU IN WHAT YOU DO FOR THE GLORY OF HIM WHO IS FATHER OF ALL OF US IN CHRIST JESUS OUR LORD. A GREAT LIGHT SHINES FROM ALBANY AND COURAGE IS POURED OVER THE LAND.

THE CATHOLIC INTERRACIAL COUNCIL OF CHICAGO

HE WHO OPPRESSES A POOR MAN INSULTS HIS MAKER. HE WHO IS KIND TO THE NEEDY HONORS HIM. AM WITH YOU IN PRAYER. THE LORD OF HOSTS SHALL BE EXALTED IN JUSTICE.

ABRAHAM JESHUA HESCHEL

Statement to the press, Tuesday evening, August 28, 1962, by Donald E. Zimmerman, General Presbyter, Presbytery of Chicago; excerpts from a letter to Presbyterian Pastors and Clerks of Session.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: "It was the clear intention of the Chicago group going to Albany this week to observe every law of Albany and of the state of Georgia. I believe their peaceful intention was well known to authorities there.

"But under the circumstances that have prevailed in Albany these last several weeks, these arrests are not at all surprising. They are simply another sorry detail in a sad story.

"It is not for Chicago to point a guiltless finger at Albany, but only to say there are many in Chicago whose hearts and prayers are in Albany tonight.

"I can do no other than to stand behind these individuals and groups who are putting their concern and sympathy into peaceful action in this latest crisis in the American struggle for liberty and equality."

Donald E. Zimmerman

To Pastors and Clerks of Session, Brethren!

I am sure most of you are aware—by the news media—that some Chicago Presbyterians have participated this week in a pilgrimage to Albany, Georgia . . . I feel led to write you—not at Presbytery expense except for using our address lists—in order to share with you . . . some observations and a concern.

1. Participation in this fellowship has been an individual matter altogether. There has been no procedure by which any representation can be claimed. So this has been a free expression of Christian conscience . . .

2. Those of our body going to Georgia are not the traditional "inner city" men of Presbytery. That is, this journey was not undertaken by those whom we have come to expect to bear certain burdens for us all. It was in fact undertaken by men who understand how inseparably we all are bound up in this issue, however far it may be from our day-to-day contacts . . .

We must be careful that we are not offended in these circumstances by the means some feel they must take to express their concern and sympathy, lest in this offense we are less than sensitive to the principle that motivates them.

We may be properly grateful that there still lives among us a spirit that is prepared to take risks — both personal and professional, both financial and physical—for the sake of Christian conscience . . .

Donald E. Zimmerman, Aug. 31, 1962

Statement which Chicago Delegation took to Albany, signed by over 100 Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant clergy in the Chicago area.

This is a message to the people of Albany, Georgia, from clergymen of greater Chicago, being delivered to them by our representatives at a time of crisis in their community.

This message is prompted by the events of recent weeks in Albany. When a church is burned because it is used as a voter registration center, when persons are arrested as they seek to enter a church to worship, when citizens are denied the right to pray and to picket, then it is time for us to express our concern and to share our conviction.

We express our concern for all the people of Albany, including those who for whatever reason continue to exercise their influence to perpetuate injustice, those who stand aside wishing only that the tension would abate, those who may be innocent victims of either entrenched injustice or the struggle for change, and those who are giving themselves wholly to the struggle for freedom and reconciliation which can only follow the mutual recognition of the claims of justice.

We declare our conviction that the ache in the heart of America can only be removed when all men stand equal before the law and are free to worship and to participate in the common life without restraints based on color of skin.

But we acknowledge that this is a national problem and a national concern in which the life and destiny of persons in Chicago are inseparably involved in those of the persons of Albany. We share the conviction that Chicago as well as Albany requires sacrifice and dedication if freedom and justice are to become the rule of life. We therefore send this message with our delegates to Albany as a symbol of our solidarity with all persons who seek to witness against a segregated way of life, and particularly the freedom-loving people of Albany who in this crisis risk so much in a cause that is ours as well.

Statement by the 28 members of the Chicago Interreligious Delegation who returned to Chicago on August 31.

The 46 men and women of the Chicago Interreligious Delegation were privileged to join a similar delegation from the East in giving a moral witness to the ideals of justice, freedom, and equality for Negroes in Albany. As patriotic and religious American citizens we wished to exercise our constitutional right to pray for the objectives of the Albany Movement and Dr. Martin Luther King.

We found the situation in Albany tense. The remarkable success of the Albany Movement in achieving Negro solidarity around the economic boycott has created white hostility. We found the leaders of the Albany Movement scruplously dedicated to the principles of Christian non-violence in winning constitutional rights for presently oppressed Negro citizens of Albany.

When we arrived we were heartily and hospitably welcomed by our hosts. On Tuesday, August 28, we peacefully assembled for prayer at City Hall, but were arrested for unlawful assembly, disobeying an officer, and disorderly conduct. Continuing in praise and prayer, seventy-five of us were led to jail; stripped of our possessions; and then herded into segregated cells under normal Georgia jail conditions. We fasted and prayed for twenty-four hours for human rights in Albany.

Still imprisoned, many still fasting are: Rev. John Porter; Mr. Albert Steiner; Rev. Robert Backer; Rev. James Shiflett; Rev. Robert Holloway; Rev. Alan Anderson; Mr. Michael Corcoran; Pastor Leonard Klippen; Rev. Hugo Leaming; Rev. Dr. Andrew Schulze; and Rev. William Watkins. We ask your prayers for these men.

We hope this pilgrimage will help to make more vivid to America the imperative need to more quickly enable exploited and oppressed Negro citizens in Albany gain their freedom.

The Masks Scared Her, Negro Says

Special to The Atlanta Journal

DALLAS, Ga., Sept. 6—A still-trembling 21-year-old Negro woman told Thursday of firing five frenzied shots at a threatening cluster of masked white men on her front porch.

"It was just the idea of the masks, I guess," said Mrs. Rebecca Wilson. "Yes, I was scared. I didn't know what I was shooting at—I just had my hand out the door."

Mrs. Wilson is the eldest of 11 children of Mrs. Kate Philpot, 38. She said she was staying with her mother while her husband, Roy, is working in Indianapolis, Ind.

She and all but one of her brothers and sisters were at the house while Mrs. Philpot waited to be picked up and taken to work as a cook in an all-night truck stop.

It was about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

LAST SPRING, Mrs. Philpot said, her house had been fired on by unknown men and just last week a white man she was unable to identify gave her a ride in his car and tried to make advances.

It was against this background of incidents that the seven white men drove into the driveway of the Philpot home Wednesday night. Some wore nylon stockings over their heads. Mrs. Wilson, seated in her mother's bedroom, saw them approaching. The car had Marvin Griffin stickers on it.

A knock came at the door. Mrs. Wilson says she stood in a hallway just inside and, without opening the door, asked, "Who is it?"

"We're sellin' a little politics, and we want to leave a card," Mrs. Wilson said one of the men replied.

"No thanks," she said she answered.

THE YOUNG WOMAN stood in the hallway and waited for the men to leave the porch. They never did, she said. After a long, tense pause, she said her sister Marie, 18, suggested getting a pistol.

Mrs. Wilson said she did so. There was another pause. Still the men lingered on the porch, she said. Then, the woman "barely opened" the door to look out.

The crack was immediately filled with the barrel of a gun, she said.

"I tried to push the door back, but it stuck on the gun barrel and couldn't close."

There was some more pushing on either side of the door, Mrs. Wilson said, with the men trying to get it open and the woman trying to close it again.

While this was going on, Mrs. Wilson says she put her gun out through the crack in the door. It was then that she said she saw a man with a nylon stocking over his head.

"I shot then. I think five times."

She said one of the men began firing in through the door at about the same time.

She said her mother called for her to give her the pistol, but that she wouldn't.

AFTER A FLURRY of shots, Mrs. Wilson said the man's gun was withdrawn and that she slammed the door back.

The younger children were hustled into a darkened back room of the home. She said she frantically asked her brother, Larry, 15, to get a rifle.

"The rifle isn't here, the rifle isn't here," she said she remembered him saying over and over.

The weapon had been loaned to a friend.

The young woman was still shaking at the jail as she related the story, dressed in a sleeveless dress, white with green polka dots. She is the housemaid of a local physician.

Mrs. Philpot, the girl's mother, gave an account very much like Mrs. Wilson's.

SHE ALSO TOLD of an incident which she felt might explain why the men came to her home Wednesday night.

Last Thursday night, she said, a white man she didn't know had driven into her yard and said, "Joe sent me down here after you."

Joe, she said, is her employer at Joe's Cafe, a truck stop about three-quarters of a mile up the highway.

"The man asked me, 'Does your kids know you're gone?' And I said no," Mrs. Philpot recalled.

"Then he started talking about my husband and I began to realize he was drinking.

"When we got out on the highway, he caught hold of my hand and said, 'Come on over here.' I said you better get your hands off me, and said, 'Where are you taking me?'

"I started shouting for him to let me out, and when he slowed down a little bit, I opened the door and jumped out of the car."

Mrs. Philpot said she then ran the rest of the way to the cafe and found that no one there had sent the man for her.

She said she would recognize the man's face if she saw him again, but she said she could not tell whether he was one of the men who appeared at her house Wednesday night.

"They was all masked," she said.

Mrs. Philpot, shaken by her experience, had fled Thursday morning to the home of her mother, Mrs. Sarah Poole.

Night Rider Shot, Slain In Paulding

By BILL SHIPP
Constitution State News Editor

DALLAS — A night riders' invasion of a Negro house left one Paulding County white man dead and six others charged Thursday with assault with intent to murder and violation of Georgia's anti-mask law.

And a sobbing 21-year-old Negro woman who told reporters she emptied a pistol at the masked men was held in the Paulding jail on an open charge. Sheriff Jerome Clay said Mrs. Rebecca Wilson was being held for the time being for her own protection.

According to officers, the shooting occurred about 10:15 p.m. Wednesday when seven men wearing stocking masks walked up on the porch of Mrs. Kate Philpot's home.

The men rapped on the door and announced that they wanted "to sell a little politics and leave you a card," Assistant Sol. Sen. John Perren said. The Wilson woman told reporters she yelled through the door that she was not interested but the masked men remained on the front porch.

She said she became frightened and got a revolver which was in the house.

She said she went to the door and opened it slightly. At that

Robinson Gets Parade Okay In Albany

Atla. Const 9-9-62

ALBANY, Ga., Sept. 8 (AP)—Negro athlete Jackie Robinson has achieved something the Ku Klux Klan couldn't—that is, permission for a "parade" in this racially troubled city.

Although Negro leaders were denied use of the municipal auditorium and a school baseball field, City Manager Stephen A. Rois granted a permit for a motorcade Sunday from the airport to the Harlem area.

Mr. Roos restricted to 30 cars the procession honoring Robinson who will speak at a 4 p.m. voter registration rally at a Negro church.

"THIS PERMISSION is subject to and may be voided by any subsequent increase in tension," the letter of permission from Mr. Roos said.

Mr. Roos and Police Chief Laurie Pritchett, who is consulted in such matters, denied a permit for the Ku Klux Klan to conduct a motorcade through the city last Monday.

The policy has been to deny permits for any type of parade or demonstration since racial troubles renewed last July. Hundreds of Negroes and some white persons have been jailed on charges of parading without permits in marching demonstrations during the past nine months.

Dr. W. G. Anderson, local Negro leader, said a police escort would be provided for the motorcade. However, Mr. Roos said merely that the event "will be policed."

"I'm happy that the city did see fit to grant permission for this and we are encouraged to pursue further our attempts to gain reconciliation with the city on other matters." Dr. Anderson said.

U.S. ORDERS FBI PROBE OF INCIDENTS

White Man Charged With Assaulting Federal Agent

By FRED POWLEDGE

Two Negro churches were burned to the ground in Sasser early Sunday, and the U.S. Justice Department said it might use the incidents as another argument in its federal suit against voter intimidation in Terrell County.

No one was injured in the early morning blazes, but the Mt. Olive and Mt. Mary churches were leveled. One of them had been used by Negroes for voter registration work.

One white man was arrested and charged with assaulting a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent who was investigating the fires.

Burke Marshall, assistant U.S. attorney general in the Civil Rights Division, said Monday that the Justice Department had asked for a "full FBI investigation."

"THAT MEANS they're going to make every effort to find out who did it," he said, "and whether it was connected with voter registration work."

If there is such an indication, he said, the Justice Department will consider going to the U.S. District Judge J. Robert Elliott with a renewed argument for an injunction against intimidation of voter registration workers in the southwest Georgia county.

The government brought such a suit last month, charging that local law enforcement officials were intimidating prospective voters. Judge Elliott denied the government's request for an immediate temporary injunction, saying there was "no showing of great and immediate danger of irreparable injury such as to warrant the issuance" of an immediate order. He scheduled later hearings on the suit.

NEGRO LEADERS in Sasser and in nearby Albany said they were certain the fires were caused by arsonists.

The Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, a civil rights organization which is conducting the voter registeration project in Terrell County, sent a telegram to President Kennedy saying that "the Ku Klux Klan and the segregationists make a mockery of democracy" in the area.

Baseball star Jackie Robinson, in Albany to address members of the Negro movement there, said, "It is a sad situation when even the most rabid segregationist would stoop this low to defy the wrath of God and burn His house."

Sheriff Z. T. Mathews said he didn't think the burning had anything to do with voter registration. The white people in Terrell County, he said, are getting fed up with the "mingling" of whites and Negroes in the voter project.

IT WAS Sheriff Mathews who, along with other white citizens, entered Mt. Olive Church late in July while a voter registration meeting was in progress, and who said:

"We're a little fed up with this registering business. The people are fed up . . ."

Since desegregation activities were increased in Sasser and neighboring towns at the beginning of the summer, one other Negro church has been burned, four Negro homes have been fired on by nightriders, and a white voter registration worker has been shot and wounded.

Local authorities attributed the first church burning to a possible bolt of lightning. They said the shootings could have been inflicted by the Negroes themselves.

NEGRO LEADERS in southwest Georgia, asked Sunday about the church fires, said that it was "obvious" that violence would continue until the federal government showed more interest. In response to this, assistant Atty. Gen. Marshall said:

"The law enforcement in a state is mainly up to state and local officials. When something happens that involves a violation of federal law, then the FBI can be ordered to find out who did it and to find out if, in fact, there was a violation.

"But the bureau obviously can't stand guard over everyone in the county."

There were no known eyewitnesses to the Sunday morning fires.

A Negro woman who lives next door to Mt. Olive Church said she saw the church burning at about 2 a.m. Sunday.

Mrs. Lucy B. Mallory, 52, said she woke her husband, but he could not extinguish the fire. "I didn't sleep a wink after that," she told reporters. "I am scared to death."

The fire broke out at Mt. Mary Church a short time later.

Mt. Olive is south of Sasser. Mt. Mary is east of the town.

Mt. Olive has been the scene of several Negro voter registration meetings in recent months. The pastor of Mt. Mary, Rev. William Boyd, has been active in desegregation work.

The FBI agent was assaulted, said fellow agents, by Virgil E. Puckett, 58, of Terrell County. They said the white man struck one of two agents in the face as they interviewed people at the scene of the Mt. Mary Church. The agent's eyeglasses were broken.

Mr. Puckett was scheduled for arraignment before U. S. Commissioner David C. Campbell in Albany Monday on a charge of assaulting a federal officer.

Firemen from Sasser arrived at the scene of the Mt. Olive fire not long after the Mallorys discovered it. They said they felt the blaze was out of control, and they poured water on the Mallory home instead. They did not attempt to extinguish the fire at Mt. Mary.

VOTING DRIVE MET BY HOPE AND FEAR

Student Workers in Georgia Tell of Rights Campaign

By CLAUDE SITTON

Special to The New York Times.

DAWSON, Ga., Sept. 10 — "It's fear that slams the doors in our faces and hope that makes these same people whisper about us and get down on their knees and pray for us," said Prathia Hall.

Thus a 23-year-old Philadelphia student describes the reception that some Negroes have given her and others engaged in a voter-registration campaign in rural counties in southwestern Georgia.

Under the circumstances, both fear and hope seem justified.

Members of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, an Atlanta-based organization, began the drive late last fall.

iSnce then, three churches have been destroyed by fire, night-riders have sprayed gunfire into five homes and numerous cases of assault, intimidation and harassment have been reported.

Hope for Negroes

The results of the campaign—more symbolic than tangible in terms of new names on the voting rolls—have heartened Negroes who have lived for years under one of the most rigid racial patterns in the South.

For the first time, they have found the courage to face whites who rule these countries and to demand a measure of equality.

Even segregationists concede credit for the change to white and Negro youths from the South and North who, like Miss Hall, have set outposts on this new civil rights frontier.

One such outpost stands here on a red, corduroy stretch of First Avenue, three blocks from the pavement's end that is the demarcation line between white and Negro residential sections. It is the home of Mrs. Carolyn Daniels, a beauty shop operator sympathetic to the committee's efforts.

Sand gnats swarm in the late summer sun outside the four-room dwelling of concrete blocks, faced with red bricks and topped by asphalt shingles. The visitor notices ten neat holes punched through the front door screen by blasts of buckshot.

Inside, John Chatfield, a 20-year-old sophomore at Trinity College in Hartford, displays four angry scars where buckshot pierced his left arm early last Wednesday.

Ralph Allen, 21, Mr. Chatfield's dormitory mate at Trinity, gets up sleepily from a sofa in the front room and joins him and Miss Hall for a cup of instant coffee at the kitchen table.

All three live on local donations of food and a sporadic subsistence allowance from the student committee.

The fare has ben "mostly chicken and grits," Mr. Allen says wryly. "Back in July, we made whole meals out of corn or butter beans."

The three became involved in the registration drive for much the same reason—a desire to give meaning to their lives.

"It was a search for something personal, for something significant to your existence," down into a pit of depression when you found that the fraternities are nothing, the courses you are taking are nothing and your friends don't really mean too much any more."

The involvement of Miss Hall, who has completed work for an A. B. degree in political science at Temple University, may go back to her late father. He was a Baptist minister and, she recalls, sensitive to the "injustices done Negroes not only in the South but in the North." Both her parents moved from Virginia to Philadelphia forty years ago.

"I feel that he left the South to someho wredeem me," she said. "And it's my job to come back and redeem somebody else."

She also argues that a better future must be built for the Negro in the South so that he can remain. "The sweat and blood of these people is in the very soil of this land," she says emphatically.

Mr. Allen offers another reason. "I believe that Northern discrimination is a result of Southern segregation," he says.

As he defines it, the drive's basic goal is to help Negroes to satisfy a "longing for freedom." "Essentially," he says, "we're trying to bring this longing out into the open and the only way that we ca ndo it is to give them tangible evidence that they can be free."

They concede that their presence may be partly responsible for the violence that has taken place. This is the only integrated group of registration workers in the Deep South.

They speak hopefully of changing white attitudes. "We still feel that there are whites in this community who have a high level of understanding of what we are doing and may even be sympathetic," Miss Hall says.

All seem convinced that their presence is necessary to the Negro struggle. "If we leave now, the whole thing will collapse," Mr. Chatfield concludes.

State, FBI Probe Church Burnings

By BILL SHIPP
Constitution State News Editor

SASSER—State and federal officers joined forces Monday in an effort to solve the Sunday burning of two Negro churches here and to prevent further violence in this tense southwest Georgia section.

However, agents for both the federal and Georgia bureaus of investigation were frankly pessimistic about finding out who set the blazes at the Mount Olive Baptist Church and the Mount Mary Baptist Church near here. Both churches were connected with the year-long desegregation drive in this five-county area.

"Officers hate arson cases worse than any other kind because they are so difficult to solve," said William L. Bolyard, special agent in charge of the Albany FBI office.

Bolyard said a Georgia fire marshal and FBI agents were sifting through the debris of the two churches Monday afternoon.

A fund to rebuild the two churches burned Sunday at Sasser is proposed on the editorial page.

He said a search for clues could not begin sooner because the ruins were "too hot."

The ruins smoldered and burned for more than 24 hours after the fires were reported at 2 a.m. Sunday.

(In Washington, White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said President John F. Kennedy received reports from his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, on the situation in southwest Georgia over the weekend and again on Monday. Neither revealed what was said.)

The office of Terrell County Sheriff Zeke T. Mathews reported no new developments in the case. A deputy said that Sheriff Mathews had taken the afternoon off and gone out to his farm.

NO CLUES

The deputy said as far as he knew no clues have been uncovered in the case.

"All I know is that I got a good night's sleep last night for a change," said Deputy R. M. Dunaway.

In another development, a Terrell County white man charged with assaulting an FBI agent was released from jail under $5,000 bond.

Bolyard said the next session of the federal grand jury at Albany will consider the assault case against Virgil E. Puckett, 58, charged with cursing two FBI agents and striking one at the scene of the Mount Mary Church fire.

FUND CAMPAIGN

Meanwhile, the Student Non Violent Coordinating Committee and the Albany Movement began work on launching a nationwide campaign to rebuild the Mount Olive and Mount Mary churches and the Shady Grove Baptist Church, mysteriously destroyed by fire Aug. 15 in nearby Lee County.

Negro voter registration rallies also had been held in the Shady Grove church.

Undaunted by Sunday's fires, desegregated teams of SNCC voter registration workers canvassed Terrell County Monday afternoon for new voter applicants.

In Albany about 13 miles away, the Albany Movement planned a Negro voters rally Monday night. Dr. W. G. Anderson, an osteopath who is president of the Albany Movement, said Negroes Monday night would be instructed on how to cast ballots in Wednesday's Democratic primary. A similar meeting is scheduled Tuesday night. Dr. Anderson said the Negroes were being urged to "vote against Marvin Griffin for governor."

Anderson blamed the recent outbreak of violence in this area on Griffin's "rabid segregationist remarks."

Since Aug. 15, three Negro churches have been burned to the ground, five Negro homes have been fired on by night riders, and a white youth working with the Negroes has been shot and wounded by buckshot in Terrell County.

The goal in the fund raising drive for replacing the churches is $25,000. The campaign is being headed up nationally by Negro athlete Jackie Robinson.

King Tells JFK Negroes Arming To Fight Whites

ATLANTA (UPI) — Negro leader Martin Luther King Jr. warned President Kennedy Tuesday night that many Negroes are arming themselves and may turn to "retaliatory violence" unless the Federal Government acts to stop a "reign of terror" in the South.

"I will continue to urge my people to be nonviolent in the face of bitterest opposition, but I feel my counsel will fall on deaf ears if the Federal Government does not take decisive action," King said in a telegram to the President.

The Baptist minister, who heads the integrationist Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) said he was "gravely disturbed by the rash of inhuman developments across the South."

He referred to the wounding of two Negro girls active in Negro voter registration at Ruleville, Miss., Monday night, the burning of three Negro churches in Lee and Terrell counties, Ga., and the "armed attack on Negro homes" in Leesburg and Leslie, Ga.

"I regret to inform you that I have learned from authentic sources that Negroes are arming themselves in many quarters where this reign of terror is alive," King said in his telegram to Kennedy. "If Negroes are tempted to turn to retaliatory violence, we shall see a dark night of rioting all over the South."

I talked with DRs. Reece and Hamilton and J.H. Calhoun in Albany yesterday. They reported no incidents of discrimination at the polls. I observed voting in the courthouse at Albany for some time and myself noticed no discriminatory action.

I talked to Mrs. Hall in Newton, Baker County. She said that she and her sons, husband, and daughter-in-law voted yesterday for the first time in their lives. She said they (meaning the whites conducting the election) were"just as nice as they could be". She said she didn't think anyone should say that Negroes can't vote in Baker County. She did say that there is some trouble getting registered because the registrar ~~xxxx~~ has told several Negroes she knows that they would be notified when to appear before the ~~xxxx~~ registrars, but then the folks never received any further word. This happened to her other daughter-in-law to whom I also talked yesterday.

Terrell County: Mrs. Carolyn Daniels went to vote at about 5:00 pm yesterday. She went with two others. They did not feel they had been discriminated against in any way, though Mrs. Daniels says several white people sitting around in the lobby of the courthouse made loud comments about her, recalling her connection with voter registration drives. She says one ~~man~~ white man whom she knows to have evidenced hostility to registration efforts looked at her menacingly. From what she says she must have returned his looks with interest. No incident occurred. There was a meeting in Terrell county last night at which this matter was discussed. No one complained of discrimination at the polls. Mrs. Daniels told me yesterday that she thinks fear of the whites is a major factor in Negro non-voting. We have no figures on how many of the 50 or so registered in Terrell voted yesterday.

Lucius Holloway in Dawson says that he knows at least ten people voted, because that many were at the meeting last night. He says this is not a true estimate of the number who voted, because all the registered voters do not participate in the registration activities.

He says that one voter reported a white man demanding his name, while he was standing in line at the polling place. Before he could decide what to do about it, a deputy sheriff stepped up and hustled the white man off, and nothing more happened.

Holloway says there were two different polling places in the courthouse yesterday--one in the basement and the other in the courtroom. However he does not know of any effort to direct Negroes into either of the polling places. He thought it unusual for there to be two polling places, but did not see that this departure from customary practice had discriminatory implications.

Zelenko Hearings on Garment Industry Delayed

By EMANUEL PERLMUTTER

Organized labor yesterday denounced recent anti-Semitic outbreaks in Argentina and Uruguay.

Delegates to the annual convention of the New York State American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations called on the two Latin-American governments to take "vigorous steps" to prevent any recurrence of the incidents.

"This convention records its great concern and outrage at the spread of Nazi-type activities and incidents that have occurred in the last two months in both Argentina and Uruguay," the group said in a unanimous resolution.

Recent dipatches from the two countries have told of physical assaults on Jews, the stoning of Jewish establishments, the distribution of anti-semitic pamphlets and the scrawling of swastikas on walls.

Doubt Is Expressed That House Unit's Inquiry on Bias Will Continue

"We feel that these outbursts of violence constitute a real threat to the freedom and well-being of the entire Argentine and Uruguayan nations. We condemn the attitude of those authorities in Argentina and Uruguay who have been minimizing the danger and defending the very organizations that are responsible for the outrages."

The labor delegates also called on President Kennedy and the Department of Justice to "bring to justice" those responsible for anti-Negro outbreaks in Albany, Ga.

They cited the recent destruction of Negro churches and the shooting of several persons by "reactionary forces" opposing Negro voter registration in Albany.

They said the Government should give immediate protection "to those citizens seeking to exercise in an orderly and legal manner their constitutional rights."

As the three-day annual convention of the state A. F. L.-C. I. O. ended, the 2,000 delegates meeting at the Commodore Hotel adopted resolutions urging shorter work weeks, more liberal collective bargaining laws and other economic benefits long sought by the unions.

The labor group also reaffirmed its opposition to compulsory arbitration in disputes and the outlawing of strikes.

Another resolution pledged the support of the federation to the Communication Workers of America in its fight to repel efforts by the independent Brotherhood of Teamsters to organize telephone installers now represented by the C. W. A.

Lowndes Negro Church Damaged by Arsonists

A Lowndes County Negro church near the Florida line was damaged by arson some time during the past week, Lowndes Sheriff J. L. Futch disclosed Saturday.

He immediately offered a $250 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible.

Sheriff Futch said the incident was at the Peyton African Methodist Episcopal Church, about eight miles south of Valdosta. He said someone threw flammable material through a window and struck a match of it. The only damage, he said, was scorched floors and pews.

Sheriff Futch said the attempted burning was not discovered until Saturday morning, but he believes it occurred "three or four days ago." He said investigators could detect no odor from where the flammable material was thrown on the floor.

This was the fourth Negro church where there has been fire during recent weeks. Two Terrell County churches and one at Leesburg were destroyed by flames last week. There had been Negro voter registration activities in both areas.

Sheriff Futch said there has been no intense voter registration campaign in Lowndes.

Arrestee Admits Florida Slaying

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—A man was found shot to death in a downtown hotel here and a man arrested in Tennessee has admitted the slaying, police said.

Officers said Theodore R. York, about 25, of Hecla, Ohio, was arrested in Columbia, Tenn., on suspicion of driving a stolen car. Columbia Police Chief Emmett F. Fox said York had several guns in his possession and admitted killing Henry P. Dublo.

Set Church Fire, 4 Admit to FBI

atla. Const - 9-18-62 p. 1

By BILL SHIPP
Constitution State News Editor

Three Terrell County white men and a 16-year-old white youth confessed Monday that they burned a Negro Baptist church near Dawson, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said.

An FBI spokesman said the four "confessed they were drinking beer and just decided to burn the church" before dawn Monday.

The three men were identified Monday night by Terrell Sheriff Z. T. (Zeke) Mathews as Marvin Allen Milner, 31; Glenn Roland, 55, and his son, Melvin Earl Roland, 21. The 16-year-old was not identified in accordance with Georgia juvenile court law.

The FBI said the quartet was picked up in Terrell County and taken for questioning to Albany where they confessed to starting the kerosene-ignited blaze at the High Hope Church.

NOT SPECIFICALLY

FBI spokesmen also said they had uncovered evidence that the church was not burned specifically to intimidate Negroes from registering to vote.

Sheriff Mathews said the four declared that the High Hope fire had no connection with other incidents in which Negro churches have been burned and Negro homes shot at during the night.

Mathews said the suspects would be transferred from Albany to the Terrell County jail Monday night and warrants taken out in Terrell Tuesday morning charging them with arson.

CAR POOL

Pastor of the High Hope Church is the Rev. L. C. McLain, a leader in the integrationist Albany Movement and an organizer of a Negro car pool used in a boycott against Albany's segregated city bus line.

The confessions apparently left unsolved three other Negro church fires in this racially tense southwest Georgia area.

Hope Church found traces of kerosene and a quart jar smelling of kerosene at the church site.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy announced the arrests and praised the "quick, decisive action by FBI agents involved in the investigation of this case."

The High Hope Church was the third Negro church destroyed by fire within eight days in Terrell County. Only a charred chimney was left at the High Hope Church.

The other destroyed Terrell churches are the Mt. Olive Church, scene of dozens of Negro voter registration meetings, and the Mt. Mary Church, the pastor of which has been active in the Albany Movement.

The Shady Grove Baptist Church, scene of voter registration rallies in nearby Lee County, was destroyed by fire Aug. 15.

Gov. Ernest Vandiver ordered all available state officers into the case and a state team immediately joined FBI and county forces.

"To destroy a house of worship is indicative of a demented mind," said the governor angrily when informed of the church burning — the fourth in the area in recent weeks.

"We've got to catch these people who are burning the churches," Sheriff Mathews said. "I don't care who it turns out to be or what reason they have for burning these churches, it must be stopped immediately."

"We are doing everything in our power to help catch them," the sheriff said.

Lowndes Sheriff Announces Patrol To Prevent Further Arson Attempts

By FRED POWLEDGE

Reward monies now total more than $2,000 in the burnings of Negro churches in south Georgia, and one sheriff has announced a countywide patrol to discourage any future arson attempts.

Since early August, four Negro churches have burned to the ground, and attempts have been made to burn two others. In addition, a Negro home in a white Macon neighborhood was burned down Sunday night.

In the latest church burning, authorities Tuesday charged four white Terrell County males with arson. They said the burning of the I Hope Baptist Church near Dawson Monday was apparently not a civil rights violation.

THE MEN, Glen Roland, 55; his 21-year-old son, Melvin, and Marvin Milner, 31, were placed under $2,500 bond each. Their companion, a 16-year-old boy whose name is withheld under Georgia law, was referred to juvenile court.

The FBI and local authorities said the four burned the Dawson church after a beer - drinking party.

WHILE INTIMIDATION of Negroes has been discounted in the Dawson burning, it is held as a distinct probability in most of the other cases. Some of the Negro churches have been used as centers for voter registration projects.

One of them in Leesburg, near Albany, burned in mid-August. Then at the first of this month two churches in Sasser were burned to the ground.

Last weekend authorities discovered that someone had tried to burn the Peyton A.M.E. Church near Clyattville and the Negro Church of Christ in the same area.

IN MACON, authorities were investigating the apparent arson of a home rented by Joseph Dowling at 1079 Duncan Ave., in a predominantly white neighborhood.

The Negro, who moved into the neighborhood recently, said he had been warned by unidentified white persons previously that he would have to move. He, his wife, and their four children escaped from the blaze, but they lost most of their possessions.

Gov. Ernest Vandiver has offered a state reward of $250—the maximum—for information leading to the conviction of persons responsible for the burning of the Sasser churches.

A GROUP OF NEGRO insurance companies doing business in Georgia has offered to increase that sum by $1,000, and The Atlanta Inquirer has added another $100.

On Tuesday, Lowndes County Sheriff J. L. Futch, saying the burnings in his territory were obviously the work of "a warped mind," offered a $250 reward. The Valdosta Times added $100.

Sheriff Futch announced a countywide patrol would start to prevent further arson attempts.

The Georgia Sheriffs' Association, of which Sheriff Futch is president, has a $500 reward for the conviction of anyone who burns a church in Georgia.

IN DAWSON, Mayor Carl Rountree said white persons will give their money, time, labor and materials to rebuild I Hope Baptist Church. The mayor, who is also editor of the weekly Dawson News, called the burning a "shameful act," and in an editorial this week noted that Negroes "know their churches were old" and that "they are going to be rebuilt larger and better."

In Atlanta, a drive to solicit funds for the rebuilding of the Sasser churches had brought in nearly $5,000, most of it small bills. The drive, organized by The Atlanta Constitution, seeks money from Georgians who deplore the burnings. Its treasurer is Rev. Roy McClain of the First Baptist Church of Atlanta.

3 Plead Guilty to Church Fire

Ga. Press
Atla Const. 9-21-62 p 7

DAWSON (AP)—Three men entered guilty pleas here Thursday to the burning of a Terrell County church early Monday morning and will be sentenced Saturday.

The three men, Marvin Milner, 31, Glenn Roland, 56, and Melvin Roland, 22, appeared before Superior Court Judge Walter Geer in the Terrell County courthouse without attorney. They said they wanted to plead guilty and did not want legal aid.

Judge Geer accepted the plea and then postponed passing sentence until Saturday when he will hold court in Colquitt. He said that he wanted to study FBI records on the case before sentencing the three men and a 16-year-old boy.

The men admitted that they set fire to the High Hope Church. They said they were parked near the church drinking and started discussing the burning of two other churches in the area during recent weeks.

Dawson and Terrell police officials say there is no connection between the burning of the High Hope Church and the other two churches.

In response to the burning of the High Hope Church, a group of Dawson and Terrell residents have begun raising funds to reconstruct the burned church.

Interstate 75 Stretch Opens Today, Finishing Valdosta-Unadilla Link

It is the longest strip of completed interstate highway in the state.

Church Burners Get Seven Years

Atla Const. & Geer, 9-23-62 p. 2

COLQUITT, Ga. (UPI)— Judge Walter I. Geer sentenced three men who confessed to burning a Negro church at Dawson to seven years imprisonment today.

The three, identified as Glen Roland, 56; Melvin Earl Roland, 21; and Marvin Allen Milner, 31, pleaded guilty to arson charges and were sentenced less than one week after the church burned.

Terrell County Sheriff Z. T. Mathews said last week the men had been drinking and discussing earlier burnings of Negro churches in the Dawson area when they dedecided to burn the I Hope Baptist Church.

A fourth person, a 16-year-old youth, was involved in the burning. Judge Geer said his trial was scheduled for next Saturday in juvenile court.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents captured the four shortly after the church burned as they sped by the scene in their car. FBI agents said there was no indication the men were involved in the burning of the other churches.

Citizens in the Dawson area started a move Tuesday to rebuild the burned church which was destroyed by the fire.

Geer, uncle of lieutenant governor candidate Peter Zack Geer, said he sentenced the men to "no more and no less" than seven years on the arson charge.

CANDIDATE GEER issued this statement about the sentencing:

"The criminals who burned the church Monday in Terrell County have been sternly dealt with by Judge Walter Geer, receiving penitentiary terms of seven years.

"Law and order must prevail in Georgia and I am gratified that my uncle, the superior court judge, imposed the sentences. He has put hoodlums, thugs, criminals and law violators on notice that justice shall prevail in the sovereign state of Georgia."

Negro Church Burns at Macon; Arson Probed

MACON (UPI)—The fire department Tuesday investigated arson as the leading possibility for a blaze that leveled a Negro church Monday night, the eighth Negro house of worship to be burned in Georgia recently.

The Rev. C. J. Andrews, pastor of the St. Matthew Baptist Church, said he had no reason to believe the fire was set by racial terrorists.

Andrews has been active in a boycott and voter registration movement here but no meetings had been held in his church recently.

His 200-member congregation had been worshiping in another church while St. Matthews was being remodeled.

The new church was to have been used for the first worship service Sunday.

2 Held in Burning Of Negro Chruch

Two Georgians have been charged in connection with the burning of the Shady Grove Negro church at Leesburg in August.

The two are Jack P. Smith, 28, and Douglas Harold Parker, 18, both of Smithville.

Smith has been arrested by the FBI and turned over to U.S. marshals. Smith waived a preliminary hearing. His bond has been set at $50,000. He will be lodged in the Bibb County jail in Macon.

Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy said in Washington that a federal detainer will be filed against Parker, who is presently confined in the Georgia Industrial Institute at Alto as a state probation violator.

If convicted, Smith and Parker could receive sentences of up to 10 years in jail and fines of $5,000.

The attorney general said the two were charged with "conspiracy against the rights of citizens." FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said the church the men are charged with burning had been used for Negro voter registration meetings.

The attorney general identified Smith as a service station operator in Smithville.

Smith and Parker are charged with having "conspired to ignite gasoline on the premises" of the Negro church Aug. 15.

According to the Justice department, Parker actually set the fire which destroyed the church.

Marchers Protest Macon Gun-Death

Hundreds of Negroes Assail Killing of Youth by Policeman

Constitution State News Service

MACON—Hundreds of Negroes wearing black armbands marched around City Hall here Wednesday afternoon to protest the fatal shooting of a Negro youth by police.

Although the march was in violation of a city ordinance, city spokesmen said, they didn't feel they should interfere since the march was orderly. Only a few policemen were in evidence, and white spectators simply stood and watched.

A coroner's inquest into the shooting was begun shortly after the demonstration but recessed at 6 p.m. until 1 p.m. Friday.

The dead boy was identified as A. C. Hall, 17.

He was shot and killed last Saturday night after a white woman identified him as the one who stole a pistol from her car.

A PISTOL FOUND

The day after the fatal shooting, a pistol was found in the vicinity of where Hall collapsed, but it was brought out in testimony at the inquest Wednesday that this was not the pistol reported stolen.

William Randall, Negro spokesman for the demonstration Wednesday at City Hall, said the march was made to point up the "injustice" of the youth's death.

Banners carried by some of the demonstrators read:

"Stop these senseless killings."

"We weep for justice."

NO CHARGES

Randall said Hall's death was the "third killing" of Negroes by Macon police officers in less than 18 months and that no charges had been made against any of the officers.

Randall is head of the Bibb County Citizens' Negro Committee which has been active in voter registration drives and bus integration efforts here.

Randall said the protest was "not an attack on the Police department" but against only "a minority" of the whole force.

NEAR SCHOOL

A 16-year-old Negro girl, Elouise Franklin, testified during the coroner's inquest that she and the Hall youth had stopped near a school Saturday night after leaving a downtown club so she could get some pebbles out of her shoes.

A police car drove into the driveway and Hall started running, she said. She said she did not hear the policemen order the youth to stop before they started firing.

Riding in the car with the policemen—officers J. L. Durden and J. T. Brown, both of whom joined the force this year—was Mrs. Doris Hopper, who had reported the stolen pistol.

ORDERED TO STOP

The officers said Mrs. Hopper immediately identified Hall as the one who stole her pistol when the police car's lights shone on him. The officers said they first ordered Hall to stop and fired when he appeared to be reaching for a gun in his hip pocket.

Detective Chief W. H. Bargeron said the bullet which killed Hall entered the right side of the Negro's back and came out the left side of his chest.

He said it cannot be determined

RE: ARREST OF NEBLETT, CHATFIELD, RUBIN, S.N.C.C. FIELD WORKERS, IN BRONWOOD, TERRELL COUNTY, GEORGIA, Saturday, October 27, 1962

Events In Bronwood Before Arrest:

Oct. 25th (first day all three of us were in Bronwood): As we canvassed, we were stopped by Deputy Sheriff Royce Dunaway. He called us to his car, gruffly: "Hey, boys, what's your business here?" We told him we were working on voter registration. He demanded to see our identifications, We gave them to him, and he wrote our names on a piece of paper. (Is this why all three of us were arrested, although Rubin was not with Chatfield and Neblett when they allegedly "Tresspassed" on Sam West's property?) Dunaway drove away, and we continued to canvass.

For the rest of the afternoon, two trucks, one from Lee's Farm Service (owned by Calvin Lee), and one with the license plate 77-R-61, followed us through the Negro neighborhood, and passed us several times while we were walking. The Lee's Farm Service Truck talked to at least two Negroes whom we were trying to see. It followed us part of the way out of town, when we left.

Oct. 26th: Calvin Lee refused to let us use the bathroom of his service station, and threatened to "beat our heads in" if we came back. This was our first encounter with the man. (The service station is in down-town Bronwood.) We walked across the street from Calvin Lee's store, and he followed us. As we continued to walk toward the Negro neighborhood, Lee and another man shouted at us: "You low-grade sons of bitches" We made no response.

Calvin Lee and another man followed us through the Negro section in a Lee Farm, license plate number 137-R74.

Arrest and Jailing:

Oct.27th: In the afternoon, we canvassed in Bronwood, We parked our car in front of the store owned by Sam West, in the open dirt square. We enter the store, and bought cokes. Chico put some money in the juke box. West had not been in the store during this time, and we were served by a girl. West came in, immediately followed by a white Coke delivery man. West said to us: "The white folks in this town don' like you stayin' aroun'. They might be hard on me." He asked us to leave, and we left. Chico asked for his money back that he had put in the juke box, because he did not get to hear his selections. West returned $.35.

We left our car parked in front of the West store, and walked toward the direction of town. (See diagram at end of report.) Dunaway passed us, driving his Deputy's car, from the direction of town to West's store. A few minutes later, he drove back from the direction of Sam West's store, and stopped us. He told us that West had requested us to move our car from his property. We immediately went back to the store. Jack Chatfield asked Mr. West, who was standing outside his store, exactly where his property ended. West began to tell us, when Dunaway suddenly drove up and got out of his car. He angrily said to West: "You don't have to tell them a thing, Sam." Chatfield explained that he was just asking where the property ended, so that he would know where to move the car. Dunaway interrupted and said to West, "It's up to you Sam, if you want them here." West mumbbled something to the effect that he didn't want us here. Chatfield repeated his question, and Dunaway said "He already tol' youn now get." We got. We drove our car to the front of MR. and MRS. HENDERSON'S house. (Wilbert Henderson)

The car was parked on the Henderson property, immediately in front of the house. Larry Rubin stayed with the car, and Chatfield and Neblett walked back to town. (See diagram) This was approximately at 2:30. While waiting for Chatfield and Neblett to return, Rubin saw Dunaway drive twice along the road that runs parrellel to the Henderson house, and is separated from it by a field. The first time, Dunaway drove from the West store, stopped and looked at the car parked in front of the Hendersons'(and, presumeably, saw Rubin who was standing outside of the car). ~~The second time, Dunaway~~ He then turned around, and went back toward the West store. About fifteen minutes later, Dunaway drove along this road toward the West store. (See diagram) Mrs. Henderson came out of her house and began talking to Rubin. She several times expressed great fear of Dunaway and hoped that he would not bother her. Mrs. Henderson's daughter then drove up. Rubin asked her if she had seen Chatfield and Neblett. She said she had, and that she also saw three men ~~parkedx~~ sitting in Dunaway's car in front of the West store. (When the car had passed Rubin, he could not see how many people were in it.)

When Chatfield and Neblett left Rubin at the Henderson house, they headed towards down town Bronwood. They walked past Sam West's store, and saw Dunaway still parked in front of it. They walked past the car. It is most probable that Dunaway saw Chatfield and Neblett, and saw that there were only two boys walking toward town.

Chatfield and Neblett walked into town and into a store to buy aspirins. The clerk refused to serve them, telling them that she had a right to serve whom ever she please. They left and went into another store. The clerk was about to hand them the aspirins when Calvin Lee walked in. "You're not selling them anything, are you," he said. "Is that them?," the clerk asked. "Yes." "I'm not selling anything." Chatfield and Neblett went into a third store, and bought the aspirins. But they had been followed by Calvin Lee, who got to the store, and entered it, just as Chatfield and Neblett were leaving.

Chatfield and Neblettwalked toward the Negro section, and saw Deputy Dunaway's car parked in the service station owned or managed by Calvin Lee. As they walked toward the Negro neighborhood, the two were observed by many people in Bronwood. As they passed Sam West's store, they saw that Deputy Dunaway's car was again parked in front of the store. Calvin Lee and another man were in the car. They crossed the square in front of the store. The three men must have seen that there were only two boys there.

At about 3:15 Chatfield and Neblett met Rubin at the Henderson house. Three three left there car parked there, and began to canvass again.

Diagram of Bronwood Negro Section

At all times, Chatfield, Neblett and Rubin were walking on what they thought to be public roads. In the dirt square in front of the West store, however, there is no indication where the public roads ends and private property begins. In any case, Deputy Dunaway did not let Sam West finish telling us where his propert ended, so there is no way of our knowing when we "tresspassed" on his property.

As Chatfield, Neblett and Rubin were walking, Deputy Dunaway and Calvin Lee drove up in the Deputy car. Dunaway stopped, took out three warrants. He asked: "Which one of you is Chatfield, which one Neblett, and which one Rubin." Each of us responded as our names were read. Dunaway said: "I have warrants for your arrest, for tresspassing." He said they were signed by Mr. A.B. Henry, mayor of Bronwood and owner of the property rented by Sam West. Dunaway searched us, and handcuffed us. He put the handcuffs on quite tight, and tightened those of Rubin twice. We got in his car. Several times we said that the handcuffs were hurting Neblett, but Dunaway gave no response other than to say that the court house was not far away. Dunaway left Calvin Lee out at his service station in Bronwood. Dunaway said "Thanks, Calvin." Lee gave us an angry look and said, "Any time I can help you, just let me know."

When we arrived at the court house courtyard, Rubin asked to see his warrant. Dunaway showed it to him, but folded it so that all that was visible was the names of two officials who had signed it.

We were brought in to the jailhouse office, our handcuffs were taken off, and we were searched again. Dunaway yanked our hands back, practically to our shoulders, to take the handcuffs off. This caused extreme pain to Chico, who jumped and yelled. "Stop acting", Dunaway said.

Rubin requested to use the phone in order to call an attorney. Dunaway refused to let him do so, saying "You can call after bond has been set."

RUbin and Chatfield were taken to a cell on one side of the building, Neblett to a cell on the other.

About an hour after we were put in the cells, Deputy Dunaway was sent by Z. T. Mathews to ask if we wanted to post bond or have a hearing. We all chose to have a hearing.

At about 7:00 Rubin and Chatfield began yelling that they wanted to make a phone call to call their lawyer, and wanted to know where the sheriff was. Men outside the cell (presumeably deputies and policemen) gave snide retorts, and one was heard to say: "They jus' want to call the papers." Chatfield and Rubin were put in a cell which had no ventilation, except for the space between the bottom of the door and the floor. The window on the cell door was locked shut, and was not opened until three days later.

Z.T. Mathews spoke to Chico in his cell the first night we were put in. He told him not to sing or shout, because he and Mrs. Mathews live near the jail. Chico mentioned that his arm hurt where the handcuffs had been. Mathews immediately sent for Dr. Ward to examine Chico. Ward confirmed what Mathews had previosly told Chico: "There's no sign of brutality here."

At about 8:00 the next morning, Z.T. Mathews came in with Jim, the jail trustee, to serve us breakfast. He spoke to us at some length, explaining us his view of the Southern situation, and lying to us about several specific points. We kept mentioning to him that we wanted to make a phone call. He insisted that all our rights would be protected. He said that if we had chosen to post bond, we would have been out immediately. He said that he had arranged to have our hearing held at 10:30 Monday morning, and that we would be allowed to call our lawyer in plenty of time for him to prepare for the hearing. He said that both sides had to get witnesses. Rubin stressed that he had not even been with the other two when they "tresspassed", and Mathews kept repeating that he had nothing to do with proving us guilty or innocent - that was up to the courts. He said his only duty had been to arrest us since AB. Henry had taken out a warrant. He left, and came back about a half hour later, telling us that we could now make a phone call.

Rubin called his college, Chico a girl friend, and Chatfield tried to reach Albany in order to contac the SNCC office, make clear to them to situation, and arrange to contact a lawyer. No one was at the office, so he called Mrs. Caroline Daniels in Dawson. Mrs. Daniels informed Jack that she had called the jail Saturday (the day of our arrest) and was told that we were not there. She also informed Jack that C.B. King was not in town. As soon as he heard that our lawyer was not available, Mathews volunteered the information that we could postpone the hearing until our lawyer returned. We agreed. We were brought back to our respective cells.

About a half an hour later, Z.T. Mathews came back to our cells. He told Chatfield and Rubin: "There's no reason for you to sit in jail until the hearing." He told us that if we wanted he could call the judge and see if we could get out on bond until the hearing. He explicitly stated that we could get out on bond and that our lawyer could then arrange a time for the hearing, and time which would have to be agreeable to the prosecution. He at no time told us that if we posted bond we would be forfieting our hearing. We had stated to him that we wanted a hearing, and he must of known that if we thought posting bond would negate that preference, we would not have posted it. He went out, and came back some time later telling us that the judge had agreed to ~~post~~ allow us to post bond, set at $200 for each of us.

We at no time spoke to our lawyer, but through two or three phone calls to the Albany office, and to Carolyn Daniels, we arranged that bond would be posted by the parents of Jack Chatfield and Larry Rubin. There were several problems in communication. For example, we heard that the Atlanta office of SNCC was trying to raise bond, by Mrs. Daniels. At the same time, Penny Patch told us that C.B. King would be back Monday and that the hearing would be set for Tuesday. Chatfield and Rubin finally made it clear to the Albany office that, since we could have our hearing anyway, there was no reason to stay in jail. (We based this on the information given to us by Z.T. Mathews.)

On ~~Tuesday~~ Wednesday, October 31, Chatfield and Rubin were photographed and finger-printed, although Neblett was not. Carolyn Daniels, Penny Patch, and Faith Holsaert came at about 1:00

News articles:

While in jail, we saw four newspaper accounts of our jailing. ~~THEM~~ Two were from the Atlanta Constitution. They quote Z.T. Mathews as saying that We had been asked to leave the store of Sam West. We left, says the account but came back on foot. These articles appeared Sun., Oct. 28, and Mon., Oct. 29.

The Albany Herald carried an account on Mon., Oct. 29th. The heading is "Officers Report: Dawson Integration Trio Jailed at Negro's Request." The account says that Z.T. Mathews told them that we had refused to leave when Sam West told us to do so. Was Mathews giving out wrong information, without even telling us that the papers had contacted him?

On Wednesday, October 31, an article appeared in the Columbus Enquirer, stating that we had been released on Tuesday. Actually, we had not. Was this information given by Z.T. Mathews?

2 Whites, Negro Arrested in Terrell

Constitution State News Service

DAWSON — Three members of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, a Negro voter registration group, have been arrested here on trespassing charges.

Terrell County Sheriff Z. T. Matthews identified the men as John H. Chatfield and Larry W. Rubin, white, and Conner Neblett, Negro. He said ages and addresses of the men were not available but added they were about 18 or 19.

The men were arrested late Saturday on a warrant taken out by A. B. Henry, white, who owns a farm in Branwood community operated by Sam West, a Negro, the sheriff said.

Sheriff Matthews said the warrant was taken after West ordered the men to leave his property. The men left in their car but later came back on foot, the sheriff said.

Bond has been set at $200 each, but the men have been unable to make it, the sheriff said. He also said a hearing would be held whenever the men's attorney, C. B. King, Albany, requested it.

SNCC has been conducting voter registration drives in Terrell County where two Negro churches connected with the movement were burned to the ground early in September.

Attorney King was not available for comment Sunday.

GANDER, Nfld. (AP)—A Czechoslovakian airliner carrying 98 persons from Prague to Havana was delayed more than four hours at the airport here Sunday for what customs officials described as a routine check. The plane, with 86 passengers—mostly Cubans—and a crew of 12, was allowed to proceed.

FROM: CARVER (CHICO) NEBLETT TERRELL COUNTY

NOV 12 1962

Saturday October 27, 1962: At about 12:30pm John Chatfield, Larry Rubin, and Carver (Chico) Neblett arrived in Bronwood, Ga. We parked our car at negro Sam West's store. The three of us went in and bought cokes. I, Chico, played music on the juke box. A white man came in to supply Mr. West(Negro) with bread. Mr. West then asked us to leave. He said that the white people might cause him trouble. The three of us left. I, Chico, was refunded money that was put in the juke box at my request. We were then going downtown to purchase some asperin. On our way downtown we stopped to do some canvassing. When we were halfway to town Larry decidded that he could not face walking downtown with an integrated group. At than moment Deputy Sheriff Dunnaway drove up. The Deputy asked if the black Buick belonged to us. We said yes. The Deputy said that Mr. West didn't want the car on his property. The three of them went back to the store. Deputy Dunnaway was there when we arrived. Jack asked Mr. West where his property ended. The Deputy then cut in. The Deputy said that it was none of Jack's business where the property ended and told us to move the car or be arrested. Jack than turned to Deputy Dunnaway and said I just ~~[illegible]~~ wanted to know how far to move the car. ~~Mr. [illegible]~~ The three of got in the car. Larry got in from the driver's side and sat in the back, Jack got in from the opposite side and sat in front. I, Chico, got behind the wheel. We went to Mr. Henderson's home and parked the car.

Jack and I, Chico, walked toward town while Larry stayed at the Henderson's. Jack and I walked across a portion of Mr Henry's(white) property operated by Mr. West. Jack and I were singing "Ain't gonna let nobody turn me'round". When we got to town Deputy Dunnaway was at a service station owned by Mr. Calvin Lee(white). Calvin Lee also owns the Lee Farm Supply Co. in Bronwood. Jack and I, Chico, went into a Grocery store and requested a small box of asperin. The clerk refused to serve us. Jack and I went to another grocery store and Jack ~~and I~~ ordered a small box of asperin. At that moment Calvin Lee(white) walkedin and persuaded the proprietor to refuse service to us. The two of us went to another store and bought asperin. On our way out of the store we met Mr. Lee. Mr. Lee went into the store. Jack and I, Chico, started back to Mr. Henderson's(Negro) home. We were under Deputy Dunnaway's observation at all times.

Jack and I went back to Mr. Henderson's house to get Larry. Larry said that Deputy Dunnaway had passed the Henderson's home several times. Jack, Larry and I went back down in the Negro neighborhood to do some canvassing. We were about two blocks from the Henderson's when Deputy Dunnaway and Mr. Calvin Leedrove up. Dunnaway said, " which one of you is John Ch tfield", Jack said "me". Dunnaway said, " which on e is Larry Rubin," Larry said,"me." Dunnaway then said, " which one is Carver Neblett." I said, " I am Carver Neblett." Dunnaway then said that Mr. Henry(white), owner of the property that Mr. Sam West(Negro) operated, had issued a warrent for our arrest. Dunnaway then proceeded to put handcuffs on Jack Chatfield, Larry Rubin, and when he put the handcuffs on me, Chico, he put them on extra tight, so tight that I received severe pain. Jack said, " you sure won't get away." Dunnaway said," you wouldn't give me that pleasure." We proceeded to Dawson. When we got to downtown Bronwood, Dunnaway let Mr. Calvin Lee out at his service station. Lee said, "any time I can help you just let me know." I, Chico was in severe pain and I asked Deputy Dunnaway several times to stop and loosen the handcuffs. He just said, " Stop putting on acts, we'll be in Dawson in a couple of minutes" When we arrived at Dawson, Terrell County Jail my right hand was completely numb. We got out of the squad car. Larry asked Deputy Dunaway if he could see the warrent. Deputy Dunaway showed Larry the warrent. Dunaway carried us to the Sheriff's office. He then proceded to take the cuffs off. Jack first, then Larry. When he got to me he seemed to be very reluctant; he unlocked the cuff from my left hand(left) and then pulled my right hand up and twisted the cuffs off and the pain became more severe. Dunaway said, "better be still or I can't get it off." He finally released the cuffs and made me stand up and be searched. He then called a guy named Jim to lock us up. That was the first time that I met Z.T. Mathews. Z.T. said, " This is my jail and as longas you treat me right I'll treat you right. Idont want no singing nor praying, I don't no hollering across the building 'cause me and my wife live here." Sheriff Mathews went on to tell me that his colored folks(at no time did he say "Niggers")were satisfied with the situation down here. He told me that they didn't need anybody coming down here trying to tell them what to do. The Sheriff told me," I've got to protect my colored folks. I'd be a poor law officer if I didn't."I explained that a law official here, was a symbol of fear instead of safety. The Sheriff said," Aw now the colored people do what they want here. It's just that they don't care. " I asked Sheriff Mathews was there any reason for police brutality, holding out my hand. The Sheriff immediately arranged an examination of my hand by a doctor.Dr. Ward examined my hand - he was there in about 10 minutes - and then said, " I don't see any signs of police brutality. I was returned to my cell to stay for four days. I was released on bond Wednesday October 31, 1962.

Civil Rights And The FBI

afro-american 12/1/62

The Southern Regional Council has charged that the Department of Justice has done very little to protect the rights of colored residents of Albany, Georgia where more than 1,200 have been arrsted for protesting discrimination.

Specifically, the council also blasts Georgia agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for not vigorously investigating the overt violations of Constitutional rights of colored citizens.

Ths failure is, of course, supported by the failure of local federal prosecutors, judges and juries to punish tyrannial law officers and public officials.

That the FBI is remiss in carrying out its responsibilities was revealed in the 1961 report of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

The report tells how the FBI in the South failed to follow-through in investigating complaints although such a follow-through is supposed to be the policy of the bureau.

This leaves colored citizens with no protection whatever. It presents segregationists with unlimited opportunity for terrorism, discrimination and flagrant denial of civil liberties.

What we need is a Department of Justice that does not wait for complaints.

We need an FBI that can and will take the offensive in bringing enemies of the Constitution to justice.

We need a Justice Department that will screen its agents carefully in the area of racial attitudes. There are far too many federal officials — in the Justice Department especially — that seem to have taken their oaths of office while holding crossed fingers behind their backs.

They will fight communism — it takes very little courage to be anti-communist in America. They will probe the Black Muslim —although Black Muslims are presently next to no threat at all to America.

THEY WILL NOT, however, take the bit in their teeth and vigorously search out and prosecute the enemies of the United States who, although they avidly wave the Stars and Stripes, are the most dangerous enemies of all.

Unquestionably they pose the greatest clear and present danger to our democratic way of life.

The Kennedy Administration is justly famed for its high intellectual caliber.

However, to make the most-needed contribution possible to American life, the President and the Attorney General must realize that until each colored American has his civil rights, no white person really has his.

We hope that another year will not pass with the same dismal indictment being made against the FBI that was made this year by the Southern Regional Council, concurred in by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and made last year by the Civil Rights Commission.

FBI Probes Fire At Negro's Home

V+I - GA.

By BILL SHIPP
Constitution State Editor

The FBI said it is investigating a report that the home of a Negro vote registration leader in Sumter County was burned to the ground Thursday by a white man.

An FBI spokesman in Atlanta said agents were investigating to determine if a federal law had been violated.

Trim Porter, 57, father of 14 children, said his home was destroyed by fire shortly after noon Thursday while he was away.

HOUSE 'COLLAPSED'

Porter said he found the house "collapsed" and two of his children sitting in a ditch nearby.

He said his 5-year-old child told him that a white man in a blue car had driven up to the house and told the children, "Get out and go down to the road."

Porter, the senior deacon at the Pleasant Grove Baptist Church where voter registration meetings are held, said only two of his children were at home at the time of the burning. He said his wife was away working in a cotton field.

NO INSURANCE

He announced at a registration meeting Thursday night that his house had been burned.

"I don't have any insurance," Porter said. "It's been a bad year and I had to drop the policy."

Porter said he phoned the FBI about the burning, but he said he was "too frightened" to report the fire to Sumter County Sheriff Fred D. Chappell.

He declined to say why he was frightened.

Sheriff Chappell said he hadn't "heard a thing about it—not even a rumor."

Porter, who owns 250 acres of land in Sumter County, said there "was not even a fire in the stove" when he left his home Thursday.

"I don't know what would make them want to do that," he said.

Porter said that about two weeks ago his mail box was wrecked by vandals. He said he put up a new box and two white men came by in a car and shot holes in it.

Porter has given the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee permission to use his church for voter registration meetings in Sumter. Porter said he is registered to vote and has been a leader in the registration drive.

SNCC began using the Pleasant Grove Church after their former meeting place, the Shady Grove Church, was burned.

Child's Mishap Caused Fire at Negro's Home

Atl Journal 12-8-62

Buff. Ga.

Special to the Atlanta Journal

AMERICUS, Ga., Dec. 8—The Federal Bureau of Investigation has concluded that a fire which leveled the home of a Negro voter registration worker was accidentally set by his young granddaughter.

The federal agency thus apparently closed its files on the matter. The home of Trim Porter burned Thursday while the 57-year-old Negro was away. Mr. Porter later said that his grandchild, Emma Jean, 5, told him a white man set the blaze.

In its Friday report, the FBI said Emma Jean inadvertently started the blaze when she attempted to build up the fire in a heater. James E. McMahon, special agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI bureau, made the report.

Mr. McMahon said the investigation was conducted by his office, the office of Sumter County Sheriff Fred D. Chappell, and agents of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation.

Mr. Porter is a deacon in the Pleasant Grove Church, where voter registration meetings have been held. He is also personally active in the southwest Georgia voter registration campaign.

FRIENDS of the fire victim said at least eight children were made homeless by the blaze, plus Mr. Porter and his wife. Officials of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, which is sponsoring the southwest voter drive, announced in Atlanta Saturday that they were sending clothing to the Porter family, which lost all its possessions in the blaze.

Mr. McMahon said this is what happened:

"Emma Jean, while attempting to add to the fire which was burning a heater in the Porter residence, put newspapers in the heater, and one of the pieces of burning paper fell on a bed. . . .

"This resulted in the total destruction of the house by fire. Emma Jean and her sister, Shirley Ann Holmes, were alone in the house at the time. Both ran to the road in front of the house and escaped injury."

Mr. McMahon said the results of his investigation have been turned over to authorities in Sumter County for "appropriate action."

Porter announced Thursday night at a Negro voter registration meeting that his house had been burned. Leaders of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, a civil rights organization, immediately wired U.S. Attorney-General Robert Kennedy, demanding an investigation by the Justice Department.

Porter is a deacon in the Pleasant Grove Church where the voter registration meetings are held.

Porter also said that his mail box had been shot up by white men. The FBI said it had received no information about that.

A fire which destroyed the home of a Negro vote registration worker in Sumter County was unintentionally set by his 5-year-old granddaughter, the FBI said Friday.

James E. McMahon, special agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI office, said investigation of the incident has been turned over to Sumter County officers "for appropriate action."

U.S. Accuses Sasser Officer Of Harassing in Racial Case

AMERICUS (AP) — The federal government Thursday stepped into Negro voter registration troubles again in Terrell County, charging a Sasser, Ga., policeman with harassing and chasing out of town three persons who tried to help register Negroes.

Alleged discrimination against Negro voters in Terrell brought the first voting suit under the 1957 Civil Rights Act. A federal court enjoined registrars there in 1960 from denying registration to qualified Negroes.

In the latest action, the Justice department filed a criminal information against Denver Edgar Short Sr., Sasser officer. He was charged on six counts with depriving three workers for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee of their constitutional rights and forcing them to leave Sasser. Short was released under $1,000 bond.

The complaint filed in federal court here included an affidavit by Willie Paul Berrien, 26, Negro, who is a student at Clark College in Atlanta.

Berrien, a field worker for the student committee, told of being arrested, along with Prathia Lauraann Hall and Ralph Waldo Allen on Aug. 30, 1962. Miss Hall, a Negro of Philadelphia, is a graduate of Temple University. Allen, a white youth of Melrose, Mass., is a student at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.

Berrien, Miss Hall and Allen worked during the summer on voter registration in Terrell County.

Berrien said Short took the three of them to jail after accusing the driver of their car of speeding. They were released after the driver was told he would have to pay a speeding fine or serve time.

The trio was jailed again the same day in nearby Dawson but Berrien said no charges were placed against him and he was released after being held three hours.

Five days later, Berrien charged, the same trio was talking to Negroes about registering to vote when Short drove up and questioned Allen about the license plates on his car. Berrien, Miss Hall and Allen were taken back to Sasser and, the affidavit said, Short ordered them to get out of town or go to jail. Berrien claimed Short shot a pistol into the ground in the direction of their car and ordered them to "git." The officer followed their car to the Negro section of Dawson, Berrien said.

Dawson is the county seat of Terrell County. Sheriff Z. T. Matthews of Terrell, and his deputies, visited a Negro church in Sasser last July where a voter registration meeting was in progress. Matthews said at that time that he had been asked by community officials to investigate a secret meeting of Negroes and white persons.

He termed two of the persons at the meeting "agitators from outside Georgia who are in our county and section to stir up trouble and create tension." Matthews said he advised the group he thought it would be to the best interest of both Negroes and white persons "to discontinue such secret meetings."

Senator Johnson Names Four

3 Negro Page Boys Work At Ga. Capitol

History was made on Georgia's Capitol Hill Thursday when Sen. Leroy Johnson, Georgia's first Negro senator in more than 50 years, appointed four page boys to serve as messengers during this legislative session.

In accordance with rules of the General Assembly, 38th District Senator Johnson named four of his slotted five pages.

Johnson's 12-year-old son, Michael, a white youth identified as Roy Gary, 15, and two other Negro youths listed as William Patterson, 17, and Gerald Yancey, 12, were picked to serve as messengers and receive the $3 per day salary.

Michael, a seventh grader at St. Paul of the Cross, said, "I'm enjoying my first day" as he sat at a table in the busy corridor across from the senate chambers.

Gary, a 10th grader at West Fulton, flashed a broad smile and stated: "There's not too much to do yet, but I like it." The Yancey youngster, son of Dr. and Mrs. P. Q. Yancey and classmate to Johnson at St. Paul, came forth proudly and said, "I've carried two messages so far today."

Patterson, who is a senior at Turner School, declared, "It's real nice. I have enjoyed my day at the senate."

Sen. Johnson introduced a bill this week that would junk the traditional ward courtesy method of filling vacancies on the Atlanta Board of Aldermen.

He indicated Thursday that he expects opposition to the bill, "but expects enough support to gain passage."

U.S. Jury Frees Sasser Marshal In Rights Cases

Atl. Const.

AMERICUS (AP) — A federal court jury Friday acquitted a south Georgia police officer of charges of violating the civil rights of three persons. It had been charged the officer forced the three to leave town during a drive to register Negro voters.

The jury of 12 white men returned the verdict after deliberating 20 minutes in the case of Denver Edgar Short Sr., a deputy marshal at Sasser in Terrell County.

The government specifically charged Short with depriving three workers for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee of their constiutional rights and forcing them to leave Sasser. Short denied the charges.

TO: HONORABLE CARL SANDERS, GOVERNOR, STATE OF GEORGIA

FROM: SPECIAL LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE, GEORGIA VOTERS LEAGUE - FEBRUARY 9, 1963

SUBJECT: PRESENTATIONS AND SUGGESTIONS AFFECTING ALL CITIZENS AND OF SPECIAL CONCER TO NEGROES

As bi-partisand representatives of the Georgia Voters League and three of the state's largest urban communities, we appreciate this opportunity of presenting our views. The excellent example of leadership you have shown in creating a healthy climate in our great state and in projecting a program to develop constructively our social and economic potential, has inspired all Georgians and aroused the interest of good citizens everywhere.

In order to form a basis for meeting the problems of social change, your attention is invited to the following areas of community life:

I Human Relations
II Employment
III Education
IV Housing
V Health
VI Welfare
VII Justice
VIII Economics
IX Political Action and Government
X State Owned Facilities

These suggestions are offered to implement present state and local activities in the respective fields:

I HUMAN RELATIONS - It is recommended that a commission be established to stud and make recommendations for the solution of problems, continuation and enhancement of mutual understanding, open communication and good will.

A. The Governor will appoint bi-racial representatives from each of the ten U. S. Congressional Districts:

1. Three white and two Negro, from Districts One, Two, Three, Five, Six, Eight and Ten.
2. One white and one Negro from Districts Four, Seven and Nine.
3. Nine from the state at large for balance.

B. An office, staff and budget will be provided to carry out the functions of the Commission.

C. Proper public relations is recognized as an essential function.

II EMPLOYMENT - Each state department should be requested to submit a plan and to co-operate with the extension of equal opportunity in government, business and industry, to all citizens, in line with merit employment and laws governing labor relations. Increased purchasing power is known to mean higher state income and more prosperity.

A. The State Department of Labor would be called upon to eliminate separate application, referral and up-grading procedures, to the end that any public or private employee will be eligible for and assigned to the job for whic he is qualified and promoted without regard to race, creed, color or religion, so that full manpower resources of the state may be utilized on a basis of efficiency.

III EDUCATION - We urge attention in these specific areas, to overcome deficiencies that retard our progress as citizens, limit the utilization of manpower contribute to juvenile delinquency, raise the level of crime and maintain a national disgrace:

A. Public Schools - Kindergarten, Elementary and High Schools-

1. Curriculum improvement and equalization, as well as, enforcement of the Compulsory Attendance Law.
2. Enrichment courses to raise the achievement levels of pupils.
3. Special training for teachers to improve and equalize standards of instruction.
4. Vocational guidance and recreation.
5. Recognition of the U. S. Supreme Court decision on school segregation.

4- Georgia - Resistance

B. Vocational Schools -

1. Leadership in determining economic consequencies of a dual educational system.
2. Equality of opportunity in vocational choices and courses.

C. Junior Colleges -

1. Encouragement of Education Departments to locate new schools where the dual system may not eventually become an economic burden.
2. Consultation between local leadership in both races to bring about equality of educational opportunity in the Junior College system.

D. Higher Education -

1. Raising the standard of all institutions to the state and national levels in equipment, facilities, teaching and learning, as rapidly as possible.
2. Opening all facilities to any citizens who wish to apply.
3. Providing graduate and professional study, as well as, internships, to all citizens on a basis of equality.

IV HOUSING - Traditional patterns of living have relegated most of our people to slum and sub-standard conditions, which produce relatively higher percentages of crime, juvenile delinquency and ill health.

A. The State Housing Authority should be activated, with representation from all segments of the population, to take leadership in finding ways and means of promoting, financing and developing decent, low-cost housing in all areas of the state, in co-operation with local governments and private capital.

B. Facilities of the Are Redevelopment, RAD and other Federal agencies should be investigated and used wherever possible.
C. The problems of land acquisition and expansion for housing should be solved in urban, as well as, rural areas of the state.

V HEALTH - There is a woeful lack of equality in facilities in every county, which keeps our people in the lower levels of health standards:

A. Leadership needed in making facilities available to all citizens.

B. Training doctors and dentists, as well as specialists, should be urged.

VI WELFARE - We have no facilities for investigating and recommending improvements in the field. Confirmed and unconfirmed reports, results of studies and complaints of public officials on such problems as that of unwed mothers, point up the need of an agency at the state level to search out and report the truth for appropriate action.

VII JUSTICE The administration of justice is conducted under an antiquated system, which is bogged down with prejudice, traditional discriminations and rural philosophy. The way out is long and tedious, but some immediate remedies are available:

A. The treatment accorded to Negroes by the State Highway Patrol all over the state is deplorable, unnecessary and uncalled for. They should be courteous and regulatory, rather than prejudicial and abusive.

B. Appointments of judges - Judiciousness and legal ability should outweigh political considerations.

C. Petit and grand jury lists should be open to all taxpayers in every county.

VIII ECONOMICS - Business and industry are fields in which state government gives little encouragement to Negroes. Those institutions which have been developed grew in spite of handicaps, under the most competitive economy in the world. Small business and no industry offer only meagre hopes to our youth.

IX POLITICAL ACTION AND GOVERNMENT - The wise and prudent use of the ballot has been encouraged, as our people have registered in larger numbers. Like other citizens, however, good government and recognition encourage them; bad government and discrimination discourage and frighten them. The new progressive state government can effective help by:

A. Appointing Negroes to policy-making positions in all state departments.

B. Equal employment opportunities in state government at all levels and thruout the state, with special emphasis on such jobs as:

1. Revenue Agents
2. Sales tax collectors
3. Tax accountants, investigators and auditors
4. Stenographers and office workers
5. Clerks
6. Fire marshalls
7. B uilding inspectors
8.
8. State patrolmen
9. GB I Agents
10. Physicians
11. Architects
12. Engineers
13. Highway foremen
14. Beauty and barber inspectors

D. Recruitment of Negroes in the National Guard.

E. Assistance with legislation and voter-registration procedures in all counties where Negroes are limited or not allowed to register.

F. Requirement that voting lists be equitably purged according to law.

G. State action on eliminating voting irregularities.

H. Elimination of separate tax records, voting lists and polling places thru state action.

X STATE OWNED FACILITIES - Freedom for all citizens can best be exemplified at the state level, action upon which may not always be controlled by the Executive Department. Influence from that office, however, will go a long way toward creating a climate in which citizens and voluntary agencies may seek to work out understandings and agreements for the common good, which will place the Georgia we love in the forefront of Democratic areas of the world. A few of these facilities are:

A. The University System

B. State Parks and Recreational Facilities

C. Roadside Parks and Tourist Welcoming Stations

D. The Capitol Cafeteria and Henry Grady Hotel

E. Tax, Auto Tag and Auto License Offices

F. State Hospitals

It is clearly understood that many suggestions offered would be long-term achievements. Some, however, could be followed immediately; others more progressively and the rest classified as goals toward which we would hope that proper officials and state agencies could initiate steps at the outset, thru adequate study, wise planning and prudent execution. Taking pride in our continued efforts in the long struggle which you and our best leadership has waged for good government, we wish to join the main stream of progress which all of us can see in the days ahead.

Respectfully submmitted: J. H. Calhoun, Atlanta
William Randall, Macon
Hosea Williams, Savannah

REGISTRARS' AUTHORITY IS ATTACKED

Voting registrars are given "too much discretion and authority," a League of Women Voters member said Friday.

The General Assembly should establish a "simple" voting requirement "which would not allow for such subjectivity" by registrars, Mrs. Neil Moran told the bill of rights subcommittee of the Constitutional Revision Commission.

MRS. MORAN—who said voting qualifications are the league's "chief concern" — recommended that "simple factual knowledge" should be sufficient to register an illiterate person. She indicated no requirement is needed for a literate person.

"What is 'good character' or a 'reasonable interpretation'?" she asked. "As the law stands there may be 159 different interpretations of these qualifications," she said.

The league representative also recommended that residency requirements for voting—1 year in the state and 6 months in the county—be reduced," to meet the competition of forward-looking states."

JACK WILLIAMS of the Georgia Association of Broadcasters asked the subcommittee to broaden constitutional protection of freedom of the press, to include radio and television. He said the broadcasting industry desires "protection" and "recognition" by such a constitutional status.

Recommendations to eliminate unnecessary or statutory provisions from the new constitution, being drawn up by the revision commission, were made by Mrs. Moran and by Trammel E. Vickery of the Georgia Bar Association.

MR. VICKERY SAID the constitutional section which reads "the power of the courts to punish for contempt shall be limited by legislative acts," is a "most serious question." involving the relationship between the legislative and judicial branches of government. He said a special bar committee on constitutional change would present the commission with a detailed study of this question.

Request you advise me as to legal authority such expenditures of taxpayers money. Your immediate order stopping this flagrant violation and illegal use of public funds should be forthcoming.

KENNETH A. ROBERTS,
Member of Congress.

Mr. Speaker, I submit that the continued interference by Justice Department personnel in State and local matters and assisting agitators in provoking the people of Alabama, is totally and completely unwarranted and should be discontinued immediately. Such actions only tend to incite riot, bloodshed, and turmoil. Removal of such personnel and permitting the local law officers and officials to handle these matters is essential to the establishment of peace. The objectives of the Justice Department, which I highly question, cannot and will not be accomplished through support of agitators and outside interlopers. It should be and must be stopped immediately.

OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES
Tuesday, October 22, 1963

Mr. CASE. Mr. President, on Thursday, October 17, the New York Times carried an editorial entitled "How Strong a Civil Rights Law?" The editorial points out that—

> Retreat before the battle is the worst way to block the campaign of southern Democrats to scuttle any meaningful civil rights legislation. There is no place for partisanship in the fight for a sound civil rights bill; but to seek unity through an approach based on the lowest common denominator of consensus arms the bill's enemies more than it does its friends.

The Times reiterated its stand in an editorial on Monday, October 21.

I am completely in accord with the position expressed in these editorials. We are fighting for the right. Let us not surrender before the battle is joined. Title III is vital to effective protection of civil rights.

The need for it is graphically demonstrated in the case of Donald Harris and those who have been imprisoned in Americus, Ga., since early August, held without bail, and facing a charge of inciting to insurrection, a charge that carries the death penalty. I have been in touch with the Department of Justice about the matter. As yet the Department has been unwilling to intervene in the case. I believe there are very strong legal and moral grounds for doing so, and I have so written to the Attorney General. This is a flagrant instance of the misuse of law to intimidate the exercise of constitutional rights. If it is allowed to proceed it will set a pattern of intimidation by law enforcement officers in many parts of the South. I believe it is outrageous that the Government should turn its back on the case, particularly at the very time that the Department of Justice argues that title III is neither needed nor wanted.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of my most recent letter to the Attorney General on this case, the full texts of the editorials, and a news article in today's Washington Post appear in today's Appendix.

There being no objection, the items were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the New York Times, Oct. 21, 1963]

THE TEST ON CIVIL RIGHTS

The central issue in the congressional battle over civil rights has been pointed up by the National Council of Churches of Christ in its appeal to the Kennedy administration and Republican leaders to back the strong rights bill approved by a House Judiciary Subcommittee. "The basic issue of social justice must not be compromised," the council declares.

On at least three counts the subcommittee bill does a better job of insuring social justice than the administration's original proposals. It would authorize Federal suits to end denial of civil rights through police brutality; protect Negro voters in State, as well as Federal, elections and set up a Federal Fair Employment Practices Commission. Whatever the bill's technical flaws, all of which can be eliminated through more precise language, it deserves bipartisan support. Its goal is not perfectionism; it is justice.

[From the New York Times, Oct. 17, 1963]

HOW STRONG A CIVIL RIGHTS LAW?

In submitting—at long last—his omnibus civil rights bill to Congress in June, President Kennedy said: "In this year of the emancipation centennial, justice requires us to insure the blessings of equality for all Americans and their posterity—not merely for reasons of economic efficiency, world diplomacy and domestic tranquility—but, above all, because it is right." Now the administration finds itself embarrassed because a House Judiciary Subcommittee has approved a civil rights bill the White House considers too strong to have any realistic chance of passage.

Attorney General Kennedy has gone before the full committee to urge that some of the strengthening provisions be knocked out in the interest of attracting more support from middle-of-the-road Republicans and Democrats. That any bill finally adopted will need the backing of Republicans, as well as of northern and western Democrats, is incontestable. But its concessions to political expediency contrast sharply to the administration's previous emphasis on the primacy of the moral issue in the national struggle for full equality for every American.

The Attorney General may be right in suggesting that "unclear" language in some sections of the revised bill would give the Federal Government authority to encroach on State powers in areas totally divorced from civil rights. If so, the language ought to be, and can be, made more explicit. A similar clarification of language may be in order in other sections but always with a concern for protecting Negro rights not restricting them.

The inclusion of State, as well as Federal, elections in the bill's provisions to safeguard voting rights is a significant improvement over the original administration bill. So is the provision for a Federal Fair Employment Practices Commission, with power over discrimination by employers and unions. Both deserve more forceful backing than the Attorney General gave them.

Retreat before the battle is the worst way to block the campaign of southern Democrats to scuttle any meaningful civil rights legislation. There is no place for partisanship in the fight for a sound civil rights bill; but to seek unity through an approach based on the lowest common denominator of consensus arms the bill's enemies more than it does its friends.

In the appeal to conscience he addressed to the Nation a few days before his civil rights message, the President declared that this country, for all its hopes and all its boasts, "will not be fully free until all its citizens are free." That is the yardstick that ought to guide Congress in the debate now nearing a climax in the House Judiciary Committee.

FOUR JAILED IN GEORGIA TO FACE INSURRECTION TRIAL

(By Robert E. Baker)

A Georgia prosecutor said yesterday that he has changed his mind and will prosecute four civil rights demonstrators being held in the Americus, Ga., jail on charges of "inciting an insurrection."

The charge carries a maximum death penalty upon conviction.

The prosecutor, Solicitor General Stephen Pace, Jr., of Sumter County, thus set the stage for a showdown in a case that has caught the attention of Congressmen, the Kennedy administration and the civil rights movement as a whole.

The four demonstrators—John Perdew, 21, a Harvard University student from Denver; Zev Aelony, 25, a fieldworker for CORE from Minneapolis; Ralph Allen, 22, Trinity University student from Melrose, Mass., and Don Harris, 24, a fieldworker from New York for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee—were arrested during antisegregation demonstrations in Americus last August 8 and 9. Perdew and Allen are white.

In an exhaustive story of the case, the October 13 issue of the Denver Post stated that Prosecutor Pace pored through the law books to find a strong law to keep the young men out of circulation.

Pace came up with the insurrection law enacted in 1871. It permits no bond. Pace said he was unaware that it carried the death penalty until after he had decided on the charge.

Last month, three members of the Colorado congressional delegation—Republican Senators GORDON ALLOTT and PETER H. DOMINICK and Democratic Representative BYRON G. ROGERS—urged the Justice Department to use its power to get the jailed men released until their trials.

The case spurred demands for inclusion of title III in the proposed civil rights bill—giving the Justice Department specific power to bring legal action in such cases.

Morris B. Abram, Atlanta attorney now with a New York law firm investigated the case for the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, a top-drawer legal group that has the blessing of President Kennedy.

Abram was retained by Aelony's parents. He promptly filed suit in Federal court challenging the constitutionality of the insurrection statute and asking for an injunction to stop Americus officials from using it.

Jack Greenberg, chief counsel of the NAACP legal defense fund, filed similar suits for the other three men.

But 10 days ago, Pace taped a radio interview for an Atlanta station in which he said he had serious doubts that he would ever call the insurrection cases up for trial.

"The basic reason for bringing these charges was to deny the defendants bond," Pace said in the interview, which was broadcast on Sunday. "We were in hopes that by holding these men we would be able to talk to their lawyers and talk to their people and convince them that this type of activity is not the right way to go about it."

But yesterday Pace changed his mind. He said he probably would go ahead with the prosecution on the insurrection charges and indicated he had been unable to negotiate a settlement with lawyers for the men.

A three-judge Federal court will hear arguments challenging the legality of the law in Americus on October 31.

OCTOBER 17, 1963.

DEAR MR. ATTORNEY GENERAL: You will recall that early in September I wrote you concerning the imprisonment since early August of Donald Harris, a recent Rutgers graduate, and three others in Americus, Ga. They were arrested, as you know, in the course of demonstrations and charged with "inciting to insurrection," a capital offense under Georgia law.

I was frankly appalled by Mr. Marshall's reply of September 20 in which he stated that "our investigations relating to any of these persons would be limited to a possible violation of 18 U.S.C. 242, sometimes referred to as the 'police brutality' statute." It seems to me unconscionable that the Federal Government should feel unable to intervene in what is patently an outrageous misuse of law to intimidate the exercise of constitutional rights. Further, I believe there is a statutory basis on which the Government can and should act.

Surely the U.S. Government need not continue to stand by helplessly while four young men remain incarcerated—in flagrant violation of the most elementary principles of law. The Georgia constitution declares that, "Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted; nor shall any person be abused in being arrested, while under arrest, or in prison." The 14th amendment of the U.S. Constitution provides, "No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

How do these square with the facts in this case?

Donald Harris and his coworkers were engaged in a voters' registration campaign when they were arrested during a demonstration. In addition to insurrection charges, a number of peace bonds have been issued against them, amounting to $40,000 in each case. In any case, since inciting to insurrection is a capital offense, no bail is permitted. A writ of habeas corpus has been denied by the Georgia courts, I am informed. The grand jury to which the charges will be presented for indictment will not meet until late November. While I assume that ultimately these young men will escape the death penalty, it could well take several years of torturous litigation to free them.

Why does not the Federal Government proceed under section 1941, title 42, of the United States Code, as it did in the case of U.S. v. Wood, 295 Fed Rep. 2d 772, to enjoin the unlawful conduct of the prosecutor, the police chief and other officials in conspiring to interfere with the right of other persons to vote?

For myself, I believe the facts in the case provide ample ground for proceeding against law enforcement officials who would, under color of law, subvert the clear intent of the Constitution and the general statutes. I am particularly concerned by the failure of the Justice Department to show greater interest in this case because of your own suggestion that title III of the civil rights bill be dropped. The position of the Department has so far taken in the Harris case is difficult to understand in any event, but it is completely incomprehensible in view of the Department's position before the House Judiciary Committee that a title III provision in the pending civil rights bill is in part unneeded, in part unwarranted. I cannot reconcile this with the statement that the Department is unable to act, beyond investigating charges of police brutality, in the Harris case, which like the Wood case is essentially a voting rights case.

I urge that the U.S. Department of Justice reconsider its position, for the injustice being done to Americans in Americus cries out for remedy.

Sincerely,

CLIFFORD P. CASE.

Aberdeen and the H-Bomb

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

OF

HON. CLARENCE D. LONG

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 22, 1963

Mr. LONG of Maryland. Mr. Speaker, under unanimous consent, I include in the Appendix of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, an article on the importance of the special nuclear reactor at Aberdeen to our national defense. This article was written by a distinguished and veteran science reporter, William J. Perkinson, for the Baltimore Sun of October 13, 1963.

Mr. Perkinson, in his article, outlines the reason why I, and the rest of the Maryland delegation have fought so vigorously for this atomic pulse reactor. I am delighted to add that authorization for this reactor was approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday. I ask the support of the House for the retaining authorization for the reactor in the military construction bill when it goes to conference.

ABERDEEN AND THE H-BOMB

The political cat-and-dog fight that New York Congressman are waging, successfully at present, to prevent the Department of Defense from building a special nuclear reactor at Aberdeen Proving Ground illustrates why many military commanders were reluctant to give all-out, unqualified support to the nuclear test ban treaty unless certain safeguards were met.

The military men were afraid that "a sense of euphoria," or false feeling of well-being, would sit in.

The Aberdeen fiasco indicates the fears were justified.

MAIN PURPOSE

The reactor that the Department of Defense wants to build at Aberdeen for use at present rather than some 2, 3, or more years from now is designed to help overcome some of the biggest advantages Russia has as a result of the Soviet's development of superhydrogen bombs in the 100 or more megaton class.

In the words of Dr. Ed Minor, of the Ballistics Research Laboratory of the Aberdeen Proving Ground:

"The principal purpose of this (proposed) reactor is to simulate a nuclear burst as close as we can. The second purpose of the reactor is that by repetition of the reactor pulsing you can get a nuclear radiation source at minimum cost at a given location without expensive field setups as in major nuclear tests with actual weapons."

Other military witnesses also stated that the reactor would be used to see how both chemical and bacteriological weapons, particularly certain viruses, are affected by nuclear explosions under field conditions.

Col. Barton O. Baker, of the Army's Research and Development Section, put it this way, "The major reason for this reactor is to find out with the systems in being today what will or will not withstand a nuclear environment (the effects created by the explosions of hydrogen bombs), and if the system will not withstand it then it will bring about a redesign or a proper shielding to permit it to withstand this nuclear environment. . . .

"The other purpose for it would be for testing bacteriological warfare agents which we know are susceptible to nuclear radiation."

BLACKOUT EFFECTS

Colonel Baker also said that the special-type pulse reactor—far in advance of anything in existence or known to have been planned elsewhere—would be used to study the "blackout effects known to be associated with super H-bombs tests."

The blackout effect—and in some cases the actually freezing of switches on some types of guided missile equipment—is thought to be due to what is called "an electromagnetic pulse" that results when large H-bombs are exploded above the earth.

According to the Army testimony, there is also good reason to believe that the "E.M.P." could literally "defuse" antiballistic missile missiles causing them to fly harmlessly through the air.

The importance of finding out whether such things actually occur or whether they are just "a theoretical probability" is the reason the Army is pressing to get started as soon as possible on a nuclear reactor that would simulate the "E.M.P." effects of an H-bomb.

President's Foreign Investment Tax Proposal Does More Harm Than Good

OF

HON. BRUCE ALGER

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 22, 1963

Mr. ALGER. Mr. Speaker, the Ways and Means Committee has been discussing the President's proposal for a tax on foreign investments. I criticized the plan as "the wrong solution to a problem improperly identified."

As a part of this statement I would like to include further criticism of the program as seen by Henry Hazlitt in the current issue of Newsweek. Mr. Hazlitt's column follows:

A SHORTSIGHTED TARIFF

(By Henry Hazlitt)

The mere proposal by the President on July 18 of a retroactive tax on American purchases of foreign securities has already done great harm. It has brought about paralysis in such investment, created world uncertainty, and undermined confidence in the dollar. If the administration does not withdraw the proposal, Congress should reject it promptly.

The proposal has now received impressive criticism from many quarters, but the most thorough analysis I have seen was in the congressional testimony on August 21 on behalf of the Investment Bankers Association of America by Amyas Ames, its president, and by Andrew N. Overby, chairman of its foreign-investment committee and former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and

Terrell Report, November 2

We moved into Bronwood, six miles from Dawson, on about the 22 of October. Four of us went in — Nathaniel Beach, Joe Pitts (Albany men) and Chico Neblett and myself. The first day in Bronwood was peaceful and we spent our time making sure we were seen. We walked past the elementary school during recess and walked through the streets. Talked to one lady who told us she and another lady had attempted to apply for voting prvilege once in 1957 or 1958 but had been told that the registar was "out to lunch". The second lady, who we contacted the same day, is now on welfare and rellls us she is not about to try it again. We are still workingof course, but we failed to find the leader that I expected we might find. The first lady, a Mrs. ilas, talks sensibly and bitterly and fluently about Terrell County and Bronwood, tolld us that xxxbx the mayor of Bronwood, a Mr. AB Henry, murdered a Negro man 17 years ago and neverserved for it, was elected mayor as a finale. Mrs. Silas tells us that if we can get someone to go with her to the registration office she will go. Sounds serious We are pushing Wednesday night meetings hard with her, as with everyone. There has not g been a new face in a meeting since I have been here — two months. Part of this was due to lack of car and lack of man, especially for a couple of weeks during September. Anyway: that seems to be the problem; non one comes to the meetings.

Feeling our way around Bronwood we got the name of who is apparently the leader of the colored folk in Bronwood — a Mr. Wilbert Henderson. Mr. Wilbert Henderson is a frightened old man. More of that.

On our second day in Bronwood, which was sometine during the week of October 21-27, deputy sheriff Dunaway stopped us and asked us if we had business. This was after two trucks, each with two white men inside, had passed us a few times as we were walking or on Peoples' porches. I believe that one of these men, a Mr. Calvin Lee, who was driving a truck lettered on the side "Lee's Farm Service", called Dunaway. I told Dunaway that we did have vusines, that we were working on voter registration. He asked for our identification, write down our three names, and drove off without a word. There was a second man in the car, an old man, who I believe might have been Mr. Essey (spelling?), the town cop. I don't know.

On the day that Dunaway stopped us, Larry Rubin, white, and Chico were with me. Nathaniel Beach and Joe Pitts had not turned out well together so we decided not to take them back in, or something. They had complained the day before because it was turning out to be such a long day.

We finished canvassing without incident, save that Calvin Lee et friend stopped in front of a house where the three of us were talking with a lady (Mrs. Collier) and called the lady to the truck. Mrs. Collier told us that Mr. Lee had asked who we were and I believe he had told her not to talk with us. We left the house then because Mrs. Collier turned to her washing with such vigor that we decided we had better move on, with a smile, of course.

Chatfield continued

On that same afternoon the three of us walked into Bronwood proper, or improper, to go to the rest room and to raise hell by going to the rest room. We went to a gas station in the middle of town and out came Calvin Lee and told us to get off his property and not come back. We went to a second gas station where we were told there was no rest room. We had previously, the day before, bought bread and sandwich meat at a grocery store without incident. As we were walking back down the sidewalk out came Calvin Lee and a second man.

As we walked past the second man said, "low grade sons of bitches."

But we got back to the colored section without further incident.

On talking to Mr Henderson we found out the names of ministers, et al in Bronwood. Mr Henderson's instruction to us were consistently, "Go and see him. But dont tell him who sent you." His granddaughter is registered but he and his wife are, he tells me, too old and too fragile and too illiterate. We explained things, but it takes a state of mind. We are working on Mr Hendereon's state of mind, Strategy is this: get him so deep that the white men won't believe his lies. Mr Henderson's mind at this time is pablum with a dash of window putty.

On the third day in Bronwood, Saturday October 27, we parked in the dirt square that sits in front of the store run by Sam West, who is a person known, among Negroes and whites, all over Terrell County. We walked in and ordered cokes and a girl served us. Mr West then appeared and told us to leave. "The white folks dont like having you around," he said. "They might get me in trouble."

We left the store and began walking into Bronwood. We stopped at a house on the way and continued in. We were about half way there when Dunaway drove up from the direction of West's store and told us that we would have to move our car off his property, at the request of Mr West. We started back up to West's store. When we got there we walked directly up to Mr West. We asked him where his property ended. He was in the middle of his definition when Dunaway walked up. He had parked in his old spot beside Sam West's store. He told Sam West, "You dont have to tell me a thing, Sam". I told Dunaway that we were trying to find out where the property ended.(Ourchcme was to move the car just barely off the property.) Dunaway did not answer me; he turned to Sam West and said, "It's up to you, Sam, whether you want me around or not." Sam said, "No suh. I dont want me around." We left without further words.

We drove the car to Mr Henderson's house and parked it on his property. Larry stayed with the car while Chico and I started into Bronwood again. We walked down the road and cut off to the left, following the road that ran through what I know now to be West's property. Dunaway's car was parked there as we walked past.

We continued into Bronwood and walked into a grocery store and asked for aspirin. The white lady told us, when we asked that she would not serve us. We left. We walked into another store and the man was about to give us the aspirin that we wanted when in popped Calvin Lee, the omnipresent wonder, and asked the man, holding his arm, "What you sellin'?" The man said to Calvin Lee, "Is that them." Calvin Lee said it was. The man told us he could not sell us anything. We left and went to a third store where the senile old man behind the counter gave us the aspirin before Calvin Lee could get there. Calvin Lee met us coming out. He entered and we began walking back to the colored section.

Deputy Dunaway's car was parked at the gas station during this entire time. (Calvin Leef's gas station)

When we got back to Sam West's store Dunaway's car was parked there again. There were two other men in the car with him. One of the men was the Omnipresent Presence, Calvin Lee. I dont who the other one. I suspect that it might have been A B Henry, the mayor and owner of the property.

We walked close to the car again. We continued up to the Henderson's and picked up ~~Ink~~ Larry and began walking back down to canvass. Dunaway stopped us as we were walking back toward West's place (intending actually to stop before we got to it and go into Mrs Silas' house) and told us we werem under arrest. Calvin Lee, alas, was in the car.

Dunaway slapped the handcuffs on and Chico's were bit tight. Mine were tight too, and when he had finished with all three of us he went back and tightened Larry's. But Chico has the wrists. We got into the car and on the way to Dawson I told Dunaway three times that Chico's handcuffs were tight. He shrugged it off with, "We'll be there in a minute."

When we arrived at the jailhouse Dunaway took of Larry's and my handcuffs. When he took off Chico's cuffs, Chico hit the ceiling. Dunaway had yanked Chico's hand back over his houlder to get at one of the handcuffs. I don't believe Dunaway intended to hurt Chico badly but I don't think Dunaway intended to be polite.

He put us in the cells. Chico wade taken to the colored side and Larry and I were placed alone with each other in another cell. Before he had taken us to the cell both Larry and I had requested that we be allowed phone calls. Dunaway told us that we would be allowed phone calls after bond was posted. We were put in the cells at approximately 4:00 or thereabouts.

Some time passed. Then Dunaway came and opened the small batted window and asked me if I preferred to post bond immediately or schedule a committment hearing. I said that I preferred a committment hearing.

At one point I thought I heard Sheriff Mathews outside. I called for him and he answered briefly. I said we wanted a phone call immediatly. This was about 7:00. Larry said he heard someone outside say, "they just want to call newspapers."

At eight o'clock the next morning we were served food by ZT Mathews, who then lamented for hours about the plight of the South — i.e., without Southern press, without justice. We asked ZT that we be allowed immediately to make a phone call. ZT said he had 72 hours but never really said what he had 72 hours to do. I mentioned the phone call many times and after we had finished eating and after ZT had finished talking about the Southern press he took us out to make a phone call. I called Mrs. Carolyn Daniels.

Our call was thus: three walls, including the wall to the outside, none of which had window; mere brick. The door had a small recrangular door in it that opened up and left bats as an impediment to a dog's even crawling through. This small window was not opened however, for three days. It was finally left open a little self-consciously, I thought, by Dunaway on Tuesday morning. We were thus Saturday to Tuesday without air circulation or ventilation. ZT came to our cell twice on Sunday to bring us meals and to talk about the Southern press but he never made a move to open the little window. We pretended there was no little window to open, thinking that if we di so we'd stump ZT further. Which I think we did.

When I telephoned Mrs. Daniels' I found that CB King was not in town. ZT had scheduled the hearing for Monday morning, so we told ZT that we wanted the hearing postponed. ZT came back to our cell later on and told Larry and I that we could post bond right now and get out until the hearing. We said fine, that he should post bond. ZT was careful to close the little window.

On Monday Larry took a shower and steamed up the place. ZT came in and asked who had taken a shower. Larry said he had. ZT couldn't believe it; I couldn't either. ZT then began the old conversation again and told us that we were dealing, in our work, with only one small segment of the population and that we should try to reach the whole population. He said we should not dress the way we did. It made for lack of what he called "prestij" . We told him we didn't get paid enough to wear clean clothes each day. We said we only got ten dollars a week. ZT couldn't believe that either.

Poor ZT

On Tuesday morning we were fingerprinted by Dunaway and another deputy whom I don't know. After I was fingerprinted Dunawayasked me if I had any identifying marks or scars. I said that I had four identifying marks or scars onmy left arm. The deputy, in a businesslike manner, pulled up my sleeve and asked me what kind of identifying marks or scars I had. I said they were bullet wound marks or scars. When Mr. Dunaway took me back to the cell, where Larry was, he left the little window open part way after making the motion of shutting it. Poor Mr. Dunaway. The little window was open from Tuesday morning until Wednesday morning, when we got out.

When we left, we offered ZT Mathews the fruit cake that the people from Koinonia, who had visited us the night before, had left expressly for him. He refused it, saying that he did not take bribes, He said it could be construed as a bribe.

When we got outside we me Penny and Faith and we all (including Chico) hugged them. A crowd of faces watched us from the courthouse door. We went to Mrs. Daniels' and from there to Bronwood to pick up belongings that Mr. Henderson had removed from our car when it was parked in his yard. Dunaway had driven the car from Bronwood to Dawson, I believe at Chico's request.

When we got Mr. Henderson's house Mr. Henderson said he wanted tospeak with us. We went inside. He expressed great fear of the repercussions that might emanate from his participating with us. He told us that a White man, a Mr. Lloyd Spear, from Bronwood, had asked that Mr. Henderson publish a statement in the Dawson News stating that he had nothing to do with us or our activities. He also told us that Calvin Lee, who owns Lee's Farm Service, refused to weigh a load of corn for Mr. Henderson. He told us that Calvinlee and, he thought, another man had been going from house to house in the colored section telling people not to associate with us. I do not know how many houses he went in. I do know, for certain, one house. Mr. Henderson also told us that a Mr. Jesse Lane fro Sasser had instructed him not to associate with us.

We left Mr. Henderson to return to Albany.

On Thursday, November 1, we (Chicoz Neblett, Larry Rubin, Prince Turner, Joe Pitts and myself) returned to Bronwood to canvass. We parked our car at the Henderson's house again. Mr. Henderson, who was outside when we arrived, called all of us in. The main point of his conversation was that there are some bad White folks in this county. We told him we knew that there were. He said that he was an old man, that could not stand the strain xf that might stem from the voter registration drive. He talked on and on and tole us that he was one hundred per cent for us, that he would give us half a dollar out of each dollar if we so requested. He did not so request. He told us again about the incidents with the corn weighing et al. We told him again and again that we were not unaware of how uncomfortable life might get for him. In fact we were as aware if not more aware than he himself was. We still insisted that he bare his soul and stand up. He said that he would give us fifty cents out of every dollar. Souls are descending in market value.

He told us again the name of a minister in Bronwood, a Reverend Motley, and told us that we should go to his house and park our car right in front. We said that we would do that when we went to Reverend Motley's house. When we left Henderson's house we didn't take our car.

We broke up into two groups after a short argument about how to break up. Larry did not want to go with Joe Pitts, who needles him constantly. Chico and Larry went together and Prince and Joe and I went in the other group. The three of us went straight to Mrs. Silas' house. She came onto the porch to talk to us. I say this because I feel she knew very well what she was doing: talking to the three of us, unmistakably freedom riders even from a distance because of the integrated group, in full view of the street. We sat and talked for about a half hour or a little less. Mrs. Silas told us that AB Henry killed a man 17 years ago, or had helped kill a man. She told us that Sam West was scared. She said that Calvin Lee had gone into the Richardson's house next door. She said she had seen him go in. She could not name any more houses he had been in.

The Richardson's, to my understandint, denied this to Joe Pitts and Prince Turner. Or Mrs. Richardson denied it. While we webe at the Silas' house I saw Mrs. Richardson come out onto her porch. She glanced to her left and saw us. Gangbusters. Back inside the house.

We did not canvass many houses. One lady would not let us in, even after we had had a short conversation with her through the door. We went to the Dyke's house. Mrs. Dykes is the one who tried to register a few years ago. She and her family are now on county welfare. We watched TV for a half hour or so and left. The door was open the entire time, apparently at the will of the Dykes.

During the entire afternoon we did not see one White man in the colored section. None of us went into Bronwood proper, which we will do when we go back.

I think we really have begun in Bronwood. In three day we have raised hell with Henderson. When I went back to get the car and pick up the other boys, Mr. Henderson requested that I not park the car on his property. He told us before that a White man had told him to issure a warrant for our arrest, if we came back there and bothered him. Mr. Henderson's house is in full view of the elementary school. We have passed the school a few times at recess.

I feel that the resurgence of Dunaway's activity, the arrest, are excellent signs. Henderson, poor man, has been harrassed in three days more than he has been his entire life, defining harrassment here as having his unhappy black man's peace disturbed beyond repair. Hopefeully, it will be only a matter of a week before we get a new man at the meetings. The episodes in Bronwood have probably begun the tongues wagging again after a long lull.

I think that strategy in canvassing should not only have its basis in the hammer effect, but in the prairie fire effect; meaning that there should be a frenzy of action not only in one town but perhaps in two orthree towns during the period of one week. When you only have two men, you have a lot of things to do. I thik that an appearance shall we say twodays, in, for instance, Parrot, followed by two day in Bronwood, followed by two days in Sasser, and then back to Parrot or Bronwood, and perhaps in the midst of this, a day in Dawson, is effective. Naturally strategy likewise bids that a twon be hit constantly and hard -- the hammer effect. But our appearance in Bronwood, six miles from Dawson, raised virtual hell, whereas we had spent a great deal of time in Dawson and Sasser. I anticipate the same kind of action when we appear in Parrot, about eight miles west of Dawson. Of course, with the avsence of cars and men we have no strict schedule; or whenever we formulate one, we have to break it within a matter of days. If we did have a schedule for, shall we say, a month, I think it should go something like this: Bronwood from (for example) Nov 1 - 3. Sasser from 4-6. Parrot from 7-9 Etc. Possibly repeat this twice before settling down to real hammer methods. Our walking through town raises warts on the good White people. It gets us xxxxx incidents. Money. On and on.

Everyone in Terrell County knew what Dunaway called "Relph Ellen." Everyone in Terrell County should see Chico and I at least once as a point of strategy, or, if Larry works with us regularly, Chico, Larry and I. Always, when possible, together, or not far from each other. Build your case.

7 Terrell Officials Enjoined Over Bias

Court Orders No Interference With Voting or Registration

Constitution State News Service

AMERICUS, Ga.—Federal District Judge J. Robert Elliott Monday permanently enjoined 15 Terrell County men, including seven public officials, from interfering with voting and voter registration in the southwest Georgia county.

The Justice department sought the injunction in 1962 after more than a dozen white men disrupted a Negro voter registration meeting at the Mt. Olive Baptist Church in the Sasser Community of Terrell County. The church subsequently burned.

The injunction handed down by Elliott was not contested. Judge Elliott ordered Sheriff Fred Chappell of Sumter County dismissed as a defendant.

OFFICIAL ENJOINED

Among those enjoined Monday were Terrell Sheriff Zeke T. Matthews, Deputy Sheriff Mansfield E. Matthews, who also is the county's chief voter registrar; Deputy Sheriff Royce M. Dunaway, Dawson Police Chief Waymon Cherry, Sasser Mayor John H. Brim, Sasser Councilmen William Callis Jr. and Shelby Alton Marks, and eight other Terrell County men.

The court permanently enjoined 15 "from engaging in any act or acts for the purpose of interfering with the right of any person to register or to vote for candidates to public office" and from punishing any person for exervising the right to register and vote.

It specifically enjoined the defendants "from disrupting or interfering with any lawful meeting held to encourage, assist or bring about the registration of voters in Terrell County, Georgia."

ACTION DEFINED

Matthews, both his deputies and Chief Cherry were permanently enjoined from failing to furnish reasonable police protection for persons registering to vote and from "threatening" or "prosecuting" anyone who votes or registers to vote.

The writ enjoined the defendants from committing any act of violence against persons voting or registering to vote and from encouraging others to intimidate prospective voters.

Besides the public officials, others named in the injunction were Jene Dennis Brim, Jack Hamby Jr., Clyde H. Hayes, Thomas E. Jones, Winton Wallace Jordan, Marvin Wilson Pace, Liston B. Sears, and Denver Edgar Short.

REGISTRARS CITED

Terrell County voter registrars, including Deputy Matthews, were enjoined in 1960 from denying voter registration to qualified Negroes under the provisions of the 1957 civil rights act.

Figures compiled in April 1963 showed Terrell County had had a white population of 4,600 and a Negro population of 8,300. There were 2,935 registered white voters in the county then, and about 100 Negro voters.

Dr. Anderson To Plead Today In Obstructing Case

Atl. Daily World 4-4-69, p. 1

ALBANY, Ga. — (UPI) — Dr. W. G. Anderson, former president of the Albany Movement, will be allowed to plead guilty or no contest in a Michigan court to federal charges of obstructing justice, a U. S. attorney said Friday.

Anderson, who is interning in surgery at a Detroit hospital, was tried here last October but the trial resulted in a deadlocked jury. The case had been scheduled for retrial in the term of Albany federal court opening next week.

But U. S. Attorney Floyd D. Buford said he had been told by Anderson's attorneys in Detroit that the Negro osteopath wished permission to enter a plea in the U. S. District Court at Detroit.

Buford said he wiuld grant the request. Under federal court rules a defendant arrested in a district other than that in which the indictment is pending may request transfer of the case to the district in which he lives for the purpose of entering a plea and being sentenced.

The presiding judge then decides whether he will accept a plea of guilty or nolo contendere no contest. The government attorney said the procedure would not involved any question of acquittal.

Anderson was one of three members of the militant civil rights movement indicted for conspiring to obstruct justice by pushing a boycott against the store of a white Albany grocer, Carl Smith, and forcing him out of business.

The government contended the movement pushed thte boycott because Smith, as a juror in a civil right suit, voted against a Negro who sought damages from a white sheriff he contended shot him after he was arrested.

The cases against the other two defendants were disposed of last fall.

Sheriff Invades Negro Rally At Sasser, Says He's Fed Up

Voter Reason Ga

By BILL SHIPP
Constitution State News Editor

SASSER — "I tell you, Cap'n, we are a little fed up with this voter registration business . . . we want our colored people to live like they've been living for the last hundred years—peaceful and happy."

That's what Terrell County Sheriff Z. T. Mathews announced to newsmen when he, his two deputies and about 15 "disturbed white citizens" walked in on a Negro voter registration rally in a church in this Terrell County town. The sheriff and his deputies, M. E. Mathews and R. M. Dunaway, entered the meeting at Mt. Olive Church unannounced. They advised a white leader of the group to leave the county and called for an end to outside agitation.

Charles Sherrod, field secretary for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, opened the Wednesday night meeting with a prayer. At the end of the prayer the white men walked into the church —some of them wearing hats and smoking cigarets. As Sherrod started to explain vote registration procedures to some 40 Negroes present, Sheriff Mathews raced in from the rear of the church.

"Just a minute. As sheriff of this county I'd like to say my people are getting disturbed. I'm down here in behalf of my people —colored and white," the sheriff said as he walked to the front of the church. "I don't want to interfere with your meeting, but my people don't like these secret meetings."

(The Georgia Secretary of State's office reported in 1960 that there were 2,894 white registered voters in Terrell County and 51 Negro registered voters. The 1960 census shows that there are 4,533 white persons in Terrell County and 8,209 Negroes.)

While the sheriff got the identity of newsmen, deputy Mathews shouted to a Negro across the church, "What do you know about

Georgia laws on vote registration? Go ahead and tell me the law. What are you trying to do here?"

The Negro replied that he was trying to get "people registered."

"People. What people? What do you mean by that?" deputy Mathews demanded.

ADVISED TO GET OUT

Sheriff Mathews and deputy Dunaway turned to a white youth, Ralph Allen of Melrose, Mass. They advised Allen, who is helping in the voter registration, to get out of the county "for your own good."

"These people are getting disturbed," Sheriff Mathews said, pointing toward a group of white men attired in work clothes and overalls who jammed into the front door of the church.

Among them was Sheriff Fred D. Chappell of nearby Sumter County.

Deputy Dunaway announced that he was going to take the names and addresses of all the Negroes in the church.

"But you don't have to give it to me if you are ashamed of it," Dunaway said. Sheriff Mathews then called on everyone from Terrell County to stand. All the Negroes except five stood. Then he asked for all those outside Terrell County to stand. When a few stood the sheriff said, "I know there are more outsiders here than that."

TIES IT TO ALBANY

Sheriff Mathews said he believed the voter registration drive was related to the racial troubles in Albany, about 20 miles away.

"I'm down here in your interest. I've worked hard to keep down violence," the 70-year-old sheriff said as he advised the Negroes and "outside agitators to stop holding secret meetings."

"We don't need no outside agitators in here. We want our colored people to stay just like they have been for the last 100 years —peaceful and happy," Sheriff Mathews declared. "If they want to register to vote and they cannot qualify, that's their tough luck."

While the gun-toting deputies paraded around inside the church, Sheriff Mathews said, "These niggers don't know anything about voting. Why, they'd just as soon vote for Castro or Khrushchev as not."

Mathews has been Terrell sheriff 20 years and has never had any opposition.

The lawmen and a man who said he was a Sasser produce dealer continued talking to the Negroes about their freedoms and demanding to know "if you feel one bit disturbed or dissatisfied."

The visiting white group took the floor of the meeting for about 25 minutes. They then went to the back of the church and listened to the vote registration reports.

Allen told the group that he had been beaten and threatened with death while trying to gather Negro voter registrations.

"We're getting mighty fed up, Cap'n, with this voter registration business," the sheriff explained to newsmen. "I just want to keep down violence."

While the lawmen and "disturbed citizens" looked on, the Negroes and two white youths joined hands and began singing "We Shall Overcome."

WALLS TELL STORY

The plain, small church was decorated with a photograph of a Negro minister, a portrait of Jesus Christ and a calendar featuring a picture of President John F. Kennedy and the guarantees of freedom of speech, religion and assembly under the Constitution.

The sheriff said he had been called to the scene to keep violence from growing out of the meeting. "People in Terrell County are losing faith in this nonviolent stuff," he told the group.

At the end of the meeting the Negroes filed out between two rows of white men at the church door.

A deputy told a Negro youth, "These people will be gone in a week, but you're going to have to keep on living here."

JERSEY GIRL SPOTLIGHTED

Outside in the darkness, flashlights were shined in the faces of Negroes and two deputies stood at a distance and flashed a light in the face of Penelope Patch, 18, of Englewood, N.J., a white girl who appeared with the Negroes at the meeting.

Sheriff Mathews said this was the second meeting within two weeks which he and "the disturbed citizens" had walked in on. He said he hoped there would be no further meetings.

Newsmen found that the air had been let out on a tire of their automobile and sand poured in the gas tank. A car with six white men followed a carload of Negroes through Terrell and Lee counties and into Dougherty.

The license plate of the white men's car was bent upward so that the number could not be read.

The Negroes say that they hope to hold further voter registration rallies in Terrell and Lee counties.

The Terrell County Board of Registrars is under federal court order prohibiting discrimination against Negro voter applicants.

FBI Probes New Fires In Terrell

Agent Slugged, Assailant Jailed

By BILL SHIPP
Constitution State News Editor

SASSER—Night-riding arsonists early Sunday burned to the ground two Negro churches connected with the desegregation drive in Southwest Georgia.

And a white man in this Terrell County hamlet was charged with assaulting two FBI agents who were investigating the burnings.

Leaders of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee wired President John F. Kennedy and the Justice Department asking for help "to stop the Nazi-like reign of terror in southwest Georgia."

The two churches destroyed in the fires were the Mount Olive Baptist Church, just east of Sasser, and the Mount Mary Baptist Church south of Sasser in the Chickasawhatchee community.

REGISTRATION SESSIONS

SNCC has been holding Negro voter registration meetings in the Mount Olive Church. The Rev. William Boyd, pastor of the Mount Mary church, has been active in the desegregation work of the Albany Movement.

Destruction of the two Negro churches were the latest incidents in a wave of violence which has been sweeping across this area since Aug. 15.

A total of three Negro churches have been burned down, five Negro homes have been fired on, and a white youth working with the desegregationsts has been shot and wounded.

The Shady Grove Baptist Church at Leesburg about 10 miles from Sasser, was destroyed Aug. 15.

Voter registration meetings had been held there. Local officials said that fire may have been started by "a lightning bolt."

SILENT ON ORIGIN

Officers declined to speculate how the latest fires were started. However, Terrell Sheriff Zeke T. Mathews said, "People here are disturbed because some of these white boys are living with Negroes. I think that has more to do with these fires than this voter registration business.

"People here know that the Negroes just don't care anything about voting."

Mrs. Lucy B. Mallory, 52, who lives next to the Mount Olive Church, said she saw the fire from her bedroom window about 2 a.m. and awakened her husband.

She said her husband got a bucket of water and threw it on the blaze which apparently had started on a front corner of the clapboard building.

"When he threw the water on the fire, it just seemed to spread all over," she said. She said her husband saw that it was futile to fight the church blaze and he began throwing water on the Mallory home instead.

"I didn't sleep a wink after that," Mrs. Mallory said. "I am scared to death. Cars kept going by all night. And some white people came and looked at the fire but they didn't try to put it out."

D. E. Short Sr., Sasser policeman and volunteer fireman, said the Sasser Fire Department's 500-gallon pumper truck arrived at the Mount Olive Church about 2:30 a.m., but firemen saw that it was no use to fight the church blaze.

Instead they turned hoses on Mallory's house to keep the church fire from spreading. While firemen were at Mount Olive Church, Short said, they received word that the Mount Mary Church also was burning. The firemen did not go to Mount Mary's, Short said.

"This sure did disturb my sleep," Short told newsmen.

Former Negro baseball star Jackie Robinson, in Albany to aid the integration efforts of the Albany Movement, visited the fire scene at Mount Olive Sunday afternoon. Robinson was accompanied by Dr. W. G. Anderson, Albany Movement president, and the Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, executive director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Robinson donated $100 to rebuild the church and said he was going North to try to raise more money.

"It really makes you want to cry, deep down inside your heart," Robinson said as he looked at the still-burning remains of the Mount Olive Church at 4 p.m. Sunday.

Later in Albany, about 13 miles away, Robinson addressed a mass meeting of about 4,000 Negroes.

He said that every time a church is burned, every time a Negro is beaten up, it paints an image of America . . . Sasser, Georgia, is next to our representative in the U.N."

Turning to Georgia politics, Robinson said it is "a shame that men like (former governor Marvin Griffin) can run for governor."

He called on the Negroes to turn out in mass and vote against Griffin.

Robinson said he expected to contact heavyweight boxing champion Floyd Patterson and light heavyweight champion Archie Moore to get them to help also in raising funds for the destroyed churches.

Negro leaders have said they will intensify their voter registration drives as a result of the church burnings and will see to it that both churches are rebuilt immediately.

Justice Department representatives began an immediate investigation of the fires, and Sheriff Mathews said a federal fire marshal was expected Monday to try to determine how the blazes were set.

James Forman, executive secretary of SNCC, said that "SNCC pledges itself to restore all churches burned in Southwest Georgia. We will have work camps to rebuild the churches and more students to work on voter registration. . . . We know the current reign of terror is the result of our voter registration activity and the desire of the segregated political power structure to keep its dominant position."

Sunday morning two FBI agents assigned to the Albany office were investigating the fire at the Mt. Mary Church when both of them were threatened and one of them was struck in the face by a Terrell County white man, police said.

The man, identified as Virgil E. Puckett, 58, was subdued by the agents and jailed in Albany on a charge of assaulting federal officers. The FBI agents, Paul Moore and Joseph O'Rourke, were not injured and returned to Sasser to continue the investigation. Puckett will be arraigned before U.S. Commissioner David C. Campbell in Albany at 9 a.m. Monday.

Officers said Puckett hit one of the FBI men on the nose, knocking off his glasses. It took both federal agents to put the man inside his pickup truck and handcuff him.

"Old Virgil Puckett is a pretty nice fellow. He'd do anything in the world for you . . .," Sheriff Mathews said. The incident occurred while FBI agents were interviewing members at the Mt. Mary Church.

Prayer Vigils Held At Smoking Ruins

SASSER—As a blazing sun sank behind an anvil-shaped black cloud, 50 Negroes linked arms, hummed and prayed to God that "our children won't have to grow up with their heads bowed."

Twenty five feet away lay the still smouldering ruins of the Mount Olive Baptist Church, one of two Negro churches burned to the ground early Sunday.

On the highway carloads of curious whites drove slowly past and stared at the circle of Negro men, women and children.

Little Negro girls dabbled in the debris of the church while their mothers sang and hummed "We Shall Overcome" and prayed.

Two white youths joined hands with the Negroes and sang.

The Mount Olive church, scene of dozens of Negro voter registration meetings, was leveled by the fire. The charred church bell which had once summoned members to services lay broken and slightly melted in the middle of the ruins.

Fragments of clapboard were scattered around and everywhere there was shattered glass. Only the six concrete steps leading up the front of the church remained intact, but they were steps to nowhere.

Everything else was in ashes. The picture of Christ which had hung inside the church had disappeared in the flames and fire still licked at the picture frame which had held it.

An "All American" calendar which carried a picture of President John F. Kennedy and the guarantees of Freedom of Assembly also had disappeared in the fire.

It was at the Mount Olive church that white men disrupted a voter registration rally in July and warned that there would be trouble if the meetings continued.

A few hundred yards away a machine was busy picking cotton. And several white men wearing broad brimed hats stood on the edge of the cotton field and watched the "prayer vigil."

Prathia Hall, 22, a Negro vote registration leader, led the prayer.

She prayed for God to help the white man understand the Negro's problem.

sky and cried out in an emotion-filled voice:

We want it so that our children won't have to grow up with their heads bowed."

The Negroes also sang "Black and White Together."

A few miles away at the Mount Mary's church nothing stood except a rusty church bell atop a charred 15-foot wooden pole. The tin roofs of both churches, curled by the heat, covered much of the ruins.

Fires still flickered amid the debris more than 18 hours after the blaze was reported.

The Rev. F. S. Swaggott looked at the ruins of Mount Olive church and shook his head.

"I was preacher here for 29 years," he said. He was to have preached at a funeral for a lifetime member of the church Sunday afternoon but last-minute arrangements had to be made to transfer the funeral to another church.

NEGRO HOME INCIDENT JAILS SEVEN

'Klan Nightriders' Given Blame; 2nd Man Wounded

By RALEIGH BRYANS and WALTER RUGABER
Atlanta Journal Staff Writers

DALLAS, Ga., Sept. 6—A young white man, described by an investigator as being among seven whites on a "politicking" mission at a Negro residence, was killed in an exchange of gunfire northeast of Dallas in Paulding County Wednesday night.

Some, and possibly all, of the white men had nylon stockings over their faces, officials said.

When asked who the men were politicking for, Sheriff Jerome Clay replied: "They had Griffin stickers on their car."

One of the men was quoted as saying they wanted to "leave a (political) card." One Negro in the house was registered to vote.

J. T. Perren, assistant solicitor of the Tallapoosa Judicial Circuit, described the group's mission as a "Klan-type operation."

"I'm not in favor of nightriders or vigilantes. I would rather look to processes of the law," Mr. Perren commented.

Mr. Perren said seven persons—six whites ranging from 18 to 40 and a Negro woman—have been jailed on open charges pending further investigation.

"One of the whites also had a gunshot wound in his arm. He claims he was shot by his wife accidentally."

The assistant solicitor identified the dead man as Leroy Parks, in his 20s, of near Dallas.

Married and the father of one child, Mr. Parks was an employe of an automobile firm at Dallas He died of a gunshot wound in the heart area.

THE VIOLENCE occurred Wednesday night at a Negro residence some three miles northeast of Dallas. It is just off the Rockmart highway. The same residence has been shot into before and crosses burned nearby.

Mr. Perren said the investigation so far turned up these details:

A group of seven whites drove to the Negro residence about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday. At that time the home was occupied by two Negro women and several children. No males were present in the house.

When one of the group knocked on the front door, a Negro woman inside asked who they were and what they wanted. "We've come politicking," one of the group was quoted.

The Negro woman cracked the door, which had a chain on it, and someone stuck a pistol barrel inside. "I was told that the group tried to force their way inside the house," Mr. Perren said.

Mr. Perren said:

"There was a lot of shooting. How much, I don't know. But the door was shot with a shotgun. None of the women or children was believed hurt by the gunfire.

"Later, two youths showed up at the hospital in Dallas with Mr. Parks. They stated that he drove to their house for help. It was determined, however, that Mr. Parks had been shot in the heart and wouldn't have been able to operate a car."

THE SHERIFF says the incident fits into a pattern of events over the past several months. During this time two Negro houses and two or three white houses were burned by night marauders and a Negro cafe was bombed.

Sheriff Clay said there is no certain knowledge of who was involved in the several incidents but that the Ku Klux Klan is suspected. He said he had no knowledge whether seven men involved in Wednesday night's visit were involved in other incidents. Sheriff Clay said that until recently racial relations in Paulding County have been the best.

"We don't have many Negroes and we have never had any trouble out of them. We have got along fine."

But he said the county has a very tense political situation at the moment and he believes the political situation is involved.

SUPPORTERS of Sen. Carl Sanders and ex-Gov. Marvin Griffin are fairly evenly split in the county. The Griffin campaign is being headed up by Billy Joe Jones, an automobile dealer and himself a candidate for state representative. Leroy Parks was an employe of Billy Joe Jones.

RECORDS AT the jail show the following were arrested in connection with the incident:

M. A. Nichols, Gene Ables (treated for bullet wound, left forearm), Billy Gamel, Franklin Parker, Jimmy Humphries, and Hoyt Prather.

Mrs. Abels is about 30; Mr. Gamel is 18; Mr. Humphries is 19. The ages of the others were not immediately determined.

They are all of Paulding County. A Negro woman is also in jail. She was identified as Rebecca Wilson, 21.

Negroes Meet Uninterrupted At Sasser

p. 35

Special to The Atlanta Journal

SASSER, Ga., Aug. 2—Negroes held another voter registration rally at a Negro church near this small Terrell County community without incident Wednesday night.

The meeting went off without interruption, although sheriff's deputies sat in their car in front of the church during most of the meeting while carloads of whites drove back and forth along the road.

Last week, a number of officers and some "disturbed" white citizens marched into a Negro meeting and said, "We're a little fed up with this registration business."

A CROWD of about the same size that gathered last week returned to the Mt. Olive Baptist Church here. They were accompanied by a battery of newspaper and television reporters.

James Bevel, an official of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.'s Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told the Negroes that "in spite of hell, the Negroes are going to have political power to protect themselves."

Dawsonites Push Fund For Church

By BILL SHIPP
Constitution State News Editor

The mayor of Dawson spearheaded a drive Tuesday to pay for rebuilding the High Hope Negro Baptist Church near Dawson. Fire, set by four confessed arsonists, leveled the church before dawn Monday.

Mayor Carl Rountree, who also is editor and publisher of the Dawson News, said white citizens of Terrell are "deeply shocked" at the destruction of the church.

OFFER LABOR

Rountree, chairman of a drive to rebuild the High Hope Church, said he already has received a "considerable number" of pledges of money to rebuild the structure.

"And some people who can't give money have promised to contribute labor," Rountree said.

The High Hope Church was the third Negro church destroyed by fire in Terrell County within eight days. However, Rountree said he is convinced that the destruction of High Hope has "absolutely no connection" with the leveling of the Mount Olive Baptist Church in Sasser and the Mount Mary Baptist Church in Chickasawhatchee.

$500 REWARD

Meanwhile, the Georgia Sheriff's Association posted a standing $500 reward for information leading to the conviction of anyone responsible for burning any church in Georgia.

old boy, all from Terrell County, have admitted taking part in the arson of High Hope Church, Sheriff Zeke T. Mathews said.

The adults are being held in the Terrell jail on a charge of arson. Their bond has been set at $2,500.

The youth, whose name was withheld in accordance with Georgia juvenile laws, has been released to the custody of his mother.

THREE IDENTIFIED

Sheriff Mathews identified the men as Marvin Allen Milner, 31, Glenn Roland, 55, and his son, Melvin Earl Roland, 21.

Editor Rountree said he interviewed the three in the Terrell jail Tuesday.

He said one of the men told him they went to the church after drinking some beer. He quoted the man as saying they did not plan to burn the church until they arrived there.

The arrested man said the three started talking about possible school desegregation and decided to set fire to the church.

LEADER AT ALBANY

The Rev. H. C. McClain, pastor of the High Hope Church, has been a leader in the desegregation activity of the Negro Albany Movement.

Rountree said the people of Terrell feel that the destruction of High Hope Church is solely their responsibility.

"We are not asking, and we do not need outside help in getting this church rebuilt—we feel it's our job," Rountree said.

"We're glad to do it—to show people throughout the nation that we deeply resent and deplore this shameful act."

Rountree emphasized several times that the High Hope fire was not related to the blaze at Mount Olive and Mount Mary.

Both the Mount Olive and Mount Mary churches were connected with desegregation activities in southwest Georgia.

In a front page editorial commenting on the destruction of Mount Olive and Mount Mary, Rountree wrote Thursday:

". . . Who had the most to profit—to gain—by the burning of these churches?

"When we have the answer to that question, we will have the answer to many others.

LARGER AND BETTER

"The negroes know their churches were old. They know that they are going to be rebuilt larger and better.

"Let us hope that these new churches will be used for the purpose for which they are intended —the worship and glorification of God—not the villification of man."

Nearly $5,000 had been donated Tuesday to The Atlanta Constitution's "Church Fund" to rebuild the Mount Mary and Mount Olive churches.

Third Terrell Church Burns

Gov. Vandiver Orders 'All Forces' Into Action

By WILLIAM OSBORNE

Another Negro church in Terrell County was destroyed by flames Monday, and Gov. Ernest Vandiver announced he is ordering all available state investigation forces into the search for the arsonists.

The church, four miles north of Dawson, was burned in a predawn blaze. Some people said the church's name is the High Hope Baptist Church; others said it is the I Hope Baptist Church.

Terrell Sheriff Zeke T. Mathews said the church, a 75-year-old frame building just off Georgia 49, apparently was set afire about 2 a.m. by "an amateur arsonist."

THE CHURCH-BURNING, the fourth in the area in the last two months, occurred after Lowndes County authorities said arsonists tried to burn two Negro churches near the Florida line.

Sheriff Mathews said the church, which had not been used for voter registration meetings, reeked of kerosene when J. C. Wheeler of the state fire commissioner's office arrived on the scene. He said Mr. Wheeler reported fumes and traces of kerosene oil around the church steps.

Asked who might have set the fire, the sheriff said, "Hoodlums of some description." He said the burning wouldn't have been justified if the church had been used for voter meetings.

The sheriff said the church — which he said is named the I Hope Baptist Church—is located about 12 miles from Sasser, scene of two earlier Terrell church burnings.

Gov. Vandiver, moving swiftly, said, "I am getting in touch with the director of the Department of Public Safety immediately and ordering all available forces to the area to determine who might have destroyed this house of worship."

The Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee Monday sent a telegram to President Kennedy, SNCC Chairman Charles McDew said. The wire said that another church "burned this morning. Four churches burned in past month, reminiscent of the Nazi burning of synagogues. Imperative you investigate and apprehend arsonists. Halt outrageous terror of peaceful American citizens. This national shame must be ended."

The governor declared, "To destroy a house of worship is indicative of a demented mind."

Sheriff Mathews said, "We've got to catch these people who are burning the churches. I don't care who it turns out to be or what reason they have for burning these churches. It must be stopped immediately. We are doing everything in our power to catch them."

Lowndes Sheriff Jewell Futch said he hopes to smoke out those responsible for the burning attempts and prosecute them to the fullest. A $250 reward has been offered for information leading to the conviction of the arsonists.

Two burned-out "Molotov cocktails" were found in the Church of Christ when a deacon opened the building Sunday morning, Sheriff Futch said. A number of the same type bottles were found Saturday in the Peyton African Methodist Episcopal Church near Clyattville, in the piney woods near the Florida line.

Sheriff Futch said white and Negro citizens in Lowndes "are perturbed" over the incidents.

Meanwhile, in north Georgia, a Negro church in Walton County burned early Sunday. Walton Sheriff Jim Haralson said whites and Negroes are convinced "faulty wiring" caused the fire at the Good Hope Baptist Church.

A search of the area Sunday failed to turn up any arson clues in the smoldering ruins, Sheriff Haralson said. He declared: "We're not finished with our in-

Sheriff Haralson said he received a report of the fire at 12:50 a.m. Sunday and arrived there quickly, but the old wooden structure burned rapidly. Good Hope is about six miles east of Monroe.

INVESTIGATORS have not uncovered any clues in the Lowndes County burning attempts, Sheriff Futch said.

The incidents brought to five the number of church burning attempts in south Georgia in the past two months. Three Negro churches near Albany, 100 miles northwest of Valdosta, were recently destroyed by flames.

Sheriff Futch said authorities can't be certain of the time the arson tries were made. The church members usually use the buildings only on Sunday, he said.

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which has spearheaded Negro voter registration drives in some south Georgia counties, said no work has been going on in Lowndes County.

The bombs burned out with only minor damage to the building, Sheriff Futch said.

A $250 reward offered by Sheriff Futch was supplimented Monday with a $100 reward from The Valdosta Daily Times. Urging speedy arrest of the guilty parties, the newspaper said in an editorial:

"Now one crackpot tries to undo the fine relations that exist between the races here. He must be caught before he tears down all the good that has been done."

16 Rioters at Jail Held in Solitary

Tear Gas Quells Fulton Prisoners In Hour-Long Disturbance About Food

By WILLIAM O. SMITH

Sixteen prisoners at the Fulton County Jail were in solitary confinement Monday for their roles in a riot that was dispelled with tear gas early Sunday.

Chief Jailer Carl W. Smithwick said he doesn't know how long the prisoners—12 white and four Negro — will remain in solitary confinement.

"They'll stay there long enough to know they can't do this again," he said.

The disturbance broke out in cells on the second floor of the north wing after breakfast was served about 7:30 a.m. Sunday and was quelled about an hour later.

MR. SMITHWICK said the prisoners wrecked eight commodes, five wash basins and five light fixtures. They spilled their breakfast food into the corridor, tossed plastic cups and aluminum pans around and whooped and hollered.

Mr. Smithwick said he appealed to the prisoners to cease the disturbance, but they kept yelling louder and refused to stop. To keep it from spreading to other sections of the jail, he ordered tear gas used.

Prisoners responsible for the outbreak were immediately dispatched to solitary confinement. No more disturbances have occurred, Mr. Smithwick said.

Emmett R. McCarthy, who is serving 10 years for robbery and has holds from DeKalb and Bibb counties, was identified by the chief jailer as the ringleader of the outbreak.

ALSO IN solitary is Herman Edward Peppers, who is under death sentence for murdering his girl friend. Most of the other prisoners involved are awaiting trial. at the jail to teach a woman's Sunday school class.

An investigation showed outbreaks occurred only in cells where the 16 prisoners who had protested the food Saturday night were placed. Four of the prisoners could not be linked with the trouble and were not placed in solitary, he said.

Mr. Smithwick said he doesn't think the food was the real cause of the trouble. "They just wanted to pull something," he said. "If the food had been the trouble, they would have eaten the sandwiches."

HE POINTED out that the county doctor checks the food periodically and that he has found it is sufficient for the prisoners.

Sheriff T. Ralph Grimes was out of town Sunday, so Mr. Smithwick said he called in Chief Deputy Sheriff LeRoy N. Stynchcombe and about 20 off-duty deputies in case the disturbance had spread throughout the jail.

Besides McCarthy and Peppers, white prisoners placed in solitary confinement were identified as William L. Burke, Hamilton Ward, Amos Wade, Frank Elijah Jones, Charles Luther Shore, James N. Smith, Harry Adams, James H. Haney, James R. Wilkerson, and Dale Hampton Brabson.

Nego prisoners were identified as David Smith, Melvin H. Arnold, Clifford Junior Horton, and Gary Louis Googer.

I certainly would doubt that you could make any kind of definite commitment to Mr. Calhoun but I would be grateful if you could get in touch with him before January 20.

STATEWIDE REGISTRATION COMMITTEE

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND AS A BASIS FOR A GEORGIA VOTER-REGISTRATION CAMPAIGN

The Statewide Registration Committee was organized by the Georgia Voters League in 1957 for several reasons and with certain fundamental objectives:

1. To permit citizens and organizations to participate, who would not work with the political, though non-partisan, Georgia Voters League.

2. To achieve a non-partisan, tax exempt status for soliciting contributions.

3. For support of all religious, political, fraternal and civic organizations.

4. To appeal especially to youth, young adults and public school officials.

5. To conduct year-round voter-registration, as well as special campaigns.

To overcome a basic difficulty, a one-day citizenship clinic was held in Macon, in June, 1958, with special appeal to high school and college students, for the purpose of having groups to study and learn fundamentals of organizing, details of the Georgia Registration Law and to inspire county groups to organize instate of working as individuals as they had been doing. With the help of the NAACP and other organizations, a citizenship manual was prepared, which has been amended from time to time as new problems arise and additional questions are raised. This clinic was so successful that a series of seven such workshops were carried out in 1959:

Date	Location	Congressional District	No. Counties
Feb. 7	Griffin	Fourth	7
14	Americus	Third	7
21	Savannah	First	9
28	Macon	Sixth and Tenth	9
Mar. 7	Waycross	Eighth	8
14	Atlanta	Fifth, Seventh and Ninth	9
21	Albany	Second	6 Total 55

Due to the lack of funds, only one clinic was held during 1960, in Macon, at the time of the Annual Meeting of the Georgia Voters League. In 1961, we had three: Oct. 14, Waycross; Oct. 21, Atlanta and Oct. 28, Macon. There have never been sufficient funds to follow up these clinics with paid staff and expenses, so necessary in organizing. Nevertheless, it is estimated that the number of registered voters among Negroes in Georgia, has increased from 154,000 in 1957 to nearly 200,000 at the present time. Furthermore, the entire state is alerted to the need for increased registration, especially to combat the County-Unit System. What we need is facilities for training and organizing. This committee is the only statewidegroup working, except the NAACP, which has conducted campaigns in Savannah, Macon and Decatur. Our statewide membership is:

SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE
STATEWIDE REGISTRATION COMMITTEE

REPORT OF THE GEORGIA VOTER REGISTRATION DIRECTOR - J. H. CALHOUN - MAY 15, 1962

The 1960 U. S. Census gives Georgia a population of 3,943,116, of which there were 2,817,223 white and 1,125,893 non-white citizens. Margaret Shannon reported in the March 25,1962 issue of the Atlanta Journal-Constitution that there were approximately 165,335 Negroes registered to vote in the state. Her figures were compiled from Registrars' reports of 88 counties to the Secretary of State, direct reports from other counties and 1958 figures from the remainder.

Voter-registration activities since 1960 probably added 10,000 more; so that at the beginning of 1962 there should have been at least 175,000 registrations in the state. When it is observed that the 1960 Census also shows 612,950 Negroes 18 years of age or over, who are elegible to register under Georgia law, the 26.6% of the potential registered voters is far below what it should be, especially when there is not little opposition to Negro registration in most counties of the state. In fact, many county registrars urge and make it easy for them to register.

The basis for our 1962 drive, which closed, Saturday, May 5, was laid first in the program of the Statewide Registration Committee, organized in 1957 by the Georgia Voters League, of which the late Prince Hall Masonic Grand Master John Wesley Dobbs, was president. This program consisted of series of Citizenship Clinics in 1958, 1959, 1960 and 1961, together with communication with 1,200 to 1,400 adult and youth leaders thruout the state. A "crash" program was conducted in October, 1961, with clinics in Waycross, Atlanta and Macon, to which the Southern Christian Leadership Conference contributed roughly one-third of the $1,800.00 expenses. The NAACP had contributed $2,500.00 in 1958 and $1,500.00 in 1959.

In February, 1962, upon recommendation of Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, our Executive Director, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., approved a proposal with the Statewide Registration Committee, which resulted in my coming onto the staff of SCLC as Georgia Director of Voter Registration March 1, since I had succeeded Mr. Dobbs as chairman of the Committee. Rev. Fred C. Bennett has ably served as Field Secretary. Nine Citizenship Clinics were conducted, with the assistance of Rev. Bennett, Rev. Bernard Lee, Edw. R. Brooks, State and Hilliard Lee 5th District Youth Chairmen:

Date	Location	Counties	Date	Location	Counties
Feb. 17	Albany - II	3	Mar. 10	Savannah - I	9
24	Augusta - X	3		Rome - VII	4
	Gainesville - VII	1	Mar. 17	Columbus - III	3
Mar. 3	Griffin - IV	6	24	Macon - VI	22
	Waycross - VIII	8	No. of Different Counties		52

The basic guide for the clinic discussions is the Citizenship Manual, supplemented by three special bulletins. Youth assemble mostly in separate sessions, and District voluntary leadership is elected by each group, youth and adult, separately.

On April 1, we set out on a campaign of organizing co-ordinated local programs in larger towns and rural counties with 40% to 75% Negro population (some 34 have 50% or more Negro population), as well as, others requesting assistance. Four basic piecies of material were used in this drive: the Volunteer Cards, the Voter-Registration Plan, the Block Party Outline and the Canvass Sheet. SCLC program material, including Citizenship Schools, is distributed and explained at every meeting. Atty. Leroy Johnson, Secretary and District Committee Chairman Dr. C. C. Powell, Atlanta, P. B. McCoy, Waycross, Hosea Williams , Savannah and Toombs McLendon, Washington, as well as, District Youth Chairman, Andrew Reid, Albany, helped with organization.

The first contact is a telephone call or visit to county leaders to set up a small "Interested Citizens" meeting, with youth in attendance, if possible, to work out a county-wide voter-registration program, followed by a mass meeting to perfect organization and inspire volunteer workers to act. Volunteer Cards are used at meetings. The attached summary indicates results achieved. Registration figures are, of course, estimates, but it is believed that at least 35,000 new Georgia Negro voters have been added this year, which should carry us past the 200,000 mark.

It is firmly believed that "Getting Out the Vote" is an essential part of voter education because new voters will not necessarily vote automatically and lists are purged every three years, of non-voters. Because Georgia has a year-round voter registration law, modified by various county registrars, we recommend a three-phase program, to be "kicked off" with a statewide Citizenship Rally at Macon in June:

1. A "Get Out the Vote" campaign - Non-partisan and non-political.
2. A pilot church contest program for five to ten counties.
3. A continuous Honor Roll of 100% Registered Voters in each organized county.

STATEWIDE REGISTRATION COMMITTEE

243 Auburn Avenue, N. E. Atlanta, Georgia MU 8-6062

November 28, 1962

Dear Fellow-Citizen:

As a leader in your community, you must be aware of the fact that the Negro vote played an outstanding part in the election of the new state administration. The election of the first Democrat Negro Senator, Atty. Leroy Johnson, as well as, the emergence of the Republican Party in several areas, emphasizes at least two things:

1. Negroes must now be recognized as important political factors in the state of Georgia.

2. The need for increasing the number of registered voters is essential to the welfare of the state.

Under authority of the full committee, approved at Macon on Oct. 28, 1962 and in order to plan an effective program for 1963, there will be an important meeting of the Executive Committee, Saturday, December 15, 1962, in B. B. Beamon's Restaurant, 235 Auburn Avenue, N. E., Atlanta, Georgia. Transportation expenses by auto at 5¢ per mile, round trip travel by bus or train, whichever is cheapest or most convenient as to time and distance, as well as, cost of lunch will be paid.

The assistance of the Voter-Education Project, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the Georgia Voters League and the Georgia Funeral Directors Association are bein g made available to us. We must, however, arrange to do our part and help to coordinate the program.

Please fill out and return the blank below, indicating your interest in and support of, a state-wide voter-registration program.

Sincerely yours,

J. H. Calhoun

STATEWIDE REGISTRATION COMMITTEE
CITIZENSHIP CLINIC DISCUSSION ON GOOD CITIZENSHIP
BULLETIN NO. 2 - TEXT - CITIZENSHIP CLINIC MANUAL

IN THE UNITED STATES, "A CITIZEN IS A PERSON WHO HAS THE PRIVILEGE OF VOTING AND EXERCISES THIS RIGHT OR PRIVILEGE." Webster, according to this definition, is saying that a person is not a citizen until he registers and votes.

I. Duties of all Americans (Pages 1-3):

A. To Register and Vote in every election.

B. To obey all laws of his city, state and country.

C. To protect his home and those of others:

1. Cleanliness in the home is a protection against disease and ill health. The yard and sidewalks should be kept clean and attractive. You and I know so many of our people have dirty yards. This is a first step toward good citizenship.

a. Certainly the inside of the home should be clean and comfortable. Clean up, paint up: Spring Cleaning - Clean Up Week.

b. Any good citizen will seek the best for his children. Join and work with the PTA; work in Sunday School and Church.

2. Service to one's country is a prime duty - Modern warfare requires advance training of young men and women, special service from their elders. Enlist in Civilian Defense - Serve well if drafted

D. Community Goals - Better roads, streets, sidewalks, schools, hospital clinics, playgrounds, street lights, traffic, police protection, etc.

1. Find out who is the responsible local official and seek his aid.

2. Organize and send committees, not individuals, to him for action.

GETTING PEOPLE TO REGISTER - A GOOD CITIZEN'S OBLIGATION (Pages 5-14) (25-27)

I. Work with your local Voter-Registration Committee, or help to organize one. Steps in Organizing (Pages 5-14).

II. Each person should have every one in his family eighteen years of age and over, to register and vote.

III. You should help to get everyone in your block to register and vote.

IV. Always recheck to see if the people have registered or voted.

V. Youth under eighteen can go from house to house to do this. (Pages 25-27)

ATLANTA NEGRO VOTERS LEAGUE

A SHORT SUMMARY OF THE HISTORY AND PROGRAM OF THE ORGANIZATION

The League was organized in 1949 after Negroes in Atlanta were hopelessly divided along party lines, Democrat and Republican, in the 1948 Primary Elections. A bi-Partizan organization was established, with co-officers from each party and certain chairmen making up the executive committee. Later, in 1951 a constitution was adopted and the executive committee was expanded to include ward leaders who had been elected and a member-at-large from each ward, in all 27 members. In response to a demand for more representatives, in 1957, the constitution was again amended to include precinct leaders and a member-at-large from each precinct with 2,000 or more registered voters in the last previous election.

The League is composed of members who pay the annual fee of $1.00 and meets annually in January, at which time officers and committee chairmen are elected. In the various wards and precincts elections are held by voters in those respectiveareas, in meetings to which civic, religious and political club members as well as citizens at large are invited. These persons become members of the executive committee, which now includes 58 persons from 31 precincts in 6 wards. The committee meets monthly, or on call to consider community problems having to do with public officials and departments of city and county government.

Improved street, traffic, health and recreation facilities and the recent employment and up-grading of city employees are due in part to the work of the League and its committees. Such city-wide projects as Urban Renewal, Plan of Improvement, Public Housing and Zoning have received special consideration and promotion by the organization. Better public officials have been elected as a result of its political action program and the number of registered voters has been increased from 5,000 in 1945 to 40,000 in 1961, in spite of purging of the lists from time to ime mainly through the League's support of the All-Citizens Registration Committee.

ELECTION CAMPAIGNING Because of community cooperation, the League has been able to make recommendations to the voters in some ten or twelve elections. Our recommendations have been 95% correst and we have helped to gained for the Negroes of Atlanta, respect throughout the community, the country, and the world. An atmosphere of racial good will is being maintained and we intend to continue this program with the co-operation of the best leadership. In an election we:

1. Establish an office, engage a director and organize the wards and precincts containing a reasonable number of registerd voters.

2. Immediately after the entries close, we hold interviews with candidates, to which civic, religious and political leaders are invited. These persons are also asked to send in their suggestions. This has been done.

3. A screening committee reviews records of the interviews along with suggestions and other material that come in, then makes recommendations to the executive committee.

4. Public meetings are held in various sections of the city to give voters opportunities to hear the candidates, but no questions or demonstrations are allowed in these meetings.

5. The executive committee will meet in time to consider the report on the screening committee and decide the question of recommendations. Such recommendations, if made, will be communicated to every Negro voter thru our ward and precinct organization. Voters are advised to VOTE AS THEY PLEASE, BUT VOTE!! He will appreciate your continued co-operation.

OXFORD MISSISSIPPI, 1962

By MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR.

The Mississippi crisis has seared the conscience of our entire nation. It has been difficult to believe what our television sets have hurled at our eyes. Is this really happening in 1962?

Consider the stark tragedy of Mississippi: Governor Barnett, with interposition dripping from his lips, personally goading the racist element of the state and the university into a frenzy of hatred and prejudice; the acquiescence of the Board of Trustees to political demagoguery; the caricature-like move of the Governor appointing himself "registrar" to block the Air Force veteran's enrollment; the loss of two lives; the scores injured, and the yet uncalculated pain and agony the people of Mississippi and this nation must bear.

It is indeed stark tragedy, for it has all really happened here in America in 1962.

It must be acknowledged that the entire nation must bear some of the blame. We can never deny that the compromises made following the Civil War and during Reconstruction have at least come home to roost. The whole system of segregation and discrimination for the last hundred years has had either the consent of law and/or custom both South and North. The nation is partly to blame, for America, to her dishonor, learned to live with the system in its glaring and blatant forms in the South, and its cunning, mad, subtle forms in the North.

But let us turn again to Mississippi, for it is the locus of our immediate concern. Mississippi, according to statistical data on educational standards, is at the bottom of the list. This is not to say that all Mississippians are ignorant and unlettered. There are many, many intelligent and lettered people in the State of Mississippi, but there is such a great dearth of educational achievement among the economically suppressed Negroes and whites, that the average for the State is made miserably low.

The fading agrarian economy and inflexible sectionalism have expected this in Tallahatchie County if there were a wholesale attempt to integrate the county schools. However, the sound and fury vented its spleen at Oxford-site of the University of Mississippi. The young people who attend classes in the Lyceum, and who walk the shaded paths of "Ole Miss" are the aristocracy of Mississippi. The Board of Trustees is not composed of backwoods, cotton farmers! In the aura of that which could be adjudged the highest and best of Mississippi, law and order did break down completely. If this is the best of Mississippi, God save us from the worst!

There can be no gain in saying that the academic and educational leadership

"WE'RE READY TO BUILD"

By Jackie Robinson

I am happy to say to the supporters of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and our many friends around the nation that we have to date received $35,000.00 for the rebuilding of the burned churches in South Georgia. In about ten days, I will be meeting with the pastors of the churches, Dr. King, the architects and a few other people who represent funds that have been gathered in addition to reports that the Atlanta Constitution's fund is nearly $10,000.00 and there is possibly another $10,000.00 available through the National Council of Churches. We propose to coordinate our efforts early in December in order that these churches will be ready for use as soon as possible.

We are grateful to the thousands of people who have contributed in any denomination. Especially do we appreciate the generosity of Mr. Bill Black, my boss, who made the first $5,000.00 contribution, Governor Rockefeller who made a gift of $10,000.00 available and Mr. Frank Schiffman (shown chatting with me above) who started his gifts with $1,000.00.

I never realized when I accepted the chairmanship of the SCLC Na-

SRC PUBLISHES REPORT ON U.S. LAXITY IN ALBANY

Howard Zinn, professor of history and social science at Spelman College, specifically charged the Federal Bureau of Investigation with laxness, and he says President Kennedy has failed to play "a key role in crisis such as Albany."

He states that Albany Negroes tend to distrust local members of the FBI.

"With all the clear violations by local police of constitutional rights," said Zinn, " . . . the FBI has not made a single arrest on behalf of Negro citizens."

Zinn's study, called "Albany, A Study in National Responsibility," was published by the Southern Regional Council, an interracial group formed in 1944 to advance "equal opportunity for all the South's people."

of Mississippi failed her when she needed it most.

One of the reasons Mississippi did not weather the rigors of the most severe social transition which the South has seen since the Civil War, is that, she suffered the complete abdication of responsibility by her political leadership. Not a single cry of caution or moderation resounded from the walls of any governing body—from the State Capitol to the smallest county seat. The verse, chorus and refrain that echoed around the State was always the same—"never!".

How different might the picture be in Mississippi today if only the political leadership of the State had had the courage to face the problem instead of throwing up their hands and delivering harangues against Federal intervention. They, whom the people elected to be the guardians of the commonwealth of the citizens, in Mississippi's most critical hour since secession, abdicated their responsibility and allowed the campus of "Ole Miss" to literally become a battlefield for a cause that was lost a hundred years ago.

And where was the cry of the Lord's prophets? The most serious indictment is not to be made against the screaming mob, for they were propelled by bottled-up venom and hatred that was tragically having its ultimate catharsis. Surely the abysmal silence of the church and clergy cannot pass without its due reckoning. Where are they who shout, "Lord, Lord!"? The New Testament admonishes us that the people cannot hear if the trumpet makes an uncertain sound. What is their hope if the trumpet makes no sound at all?

I have traveled much the length and breadth of Mississippi. On lazy summer afternoons and crisp autumn mornings I've seen tall church spires and sprawling brick monuments dedicated to the glory of God. Often did I wonder, "What kind of people worship there? Who is their God?" When I review that painful memory of the last week at Oxford, and cannot recall a single voice "crying in the wilderness," the questions are still the same—"What kind of people worship there? Who is their God?"

What are we to say to the world? Oxford, Mississippi, has placed democracy on trial as never before. The cry of the Negro for equality and justice in our nation has been muffled, at best. But the Little Rock's, the Montgomery's, the Albany's, and the Oxford's place the questioning of our world leadership on the lips of the emerging African and Asian nations. We cannot stand before the judgment bar of world opinion so long as there erupts an Oxford, Mississippi. What we are doing speaks so loud, they cannot hear what we say.

NEGRO MINISTERS UNFOLD "OPERATION BREADBASKET" IN ATLANTA

October signalled the launching of a brand new program into orbit at the local and national level. Among the real concerns of SCLC that were discussed in strategy sessions during the annual convention in Birmingham, was the alarming rate of unemployment in the Negro community, South and North. National statistics reveal that though the Negro only comprises 10% of the nation's population, the ratio of unemployment is 2 to 1, Negro to white. This means that, proportionately, there is 20 times the unemployment among Negroes as there is among whites.

Through the Atlanta SCLC headed by the Rev. John Middleton, and its chairman of the Committee on Fair Employment, Dr. Gerald Reed, a research project was begun to determine which industry producing consumer goods was the most flagrant violator of equal opportunity in employment. All indications point to the baking industry.

The project has been named "Operation Breadbasket" because it represents the creation of jobs and income for the Negro community. At press time, the Rev. Leon Sullivan, architect of the Philadelphia "selective patronage" campaign that resulted in more than 1000 "white collar" and sensitive jobs for Negroes, was brought to Atlanta for a public meeting and round of meetings with ministers and lay leaders. Dr. Sullivan disclosed that in a year and a half, the buying power of the Negro was increased $4,000,000.00. Inspired by the logicality of the Philadelphia approach (Sullivan said they got the idea from King) Atlanta has gone to work and it appears that before long there will be some new jobs for the Negro in the baking (or some other) industry. SCLC's Treasurer, Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, has been tapped as the "Call Man" (chairman) of the Priority Committee (Steering Committee). Rotating committees will attempt to negotiate the differences with a particular industry. If this fails, the "word" is passed on to the Negro community through the pulpits of the Negro clergy with instructions as to what product is taboo. In the event it is necessary, storeowners who distribute offensive tional Fund to Rebuild the Burned Churches how much work would be involved. More than that, I can honestly say, that with all the causes with which I've been associated never have I felt the great sense of satisfaction that this has given me. When these churches are rebuilt, they will be symbols for all the world to know that burning the churches of the Negro community that seeks its full citizenship through the ballot, will not in any way deter their efforts. The segregationists might as well understand that every time they burn a church, we'll build it back five times better!

(If any of our readers missed the opportunity to give to the Fund for the churches, checks or money orders can be forwarded to Mr. Robinson, 425 Lexington Avenue, New York City, made payable to "Mount Olive Baptist Church Rebuilding Fund." All churches will share equally and gifts ARE tax deductible.)

SOUTHERN LAWYERS CONFERENCE SET FOR ATLANTA

Atlanta will be the site of "A WORKSHOP SEMINAR for lawyers on CIVIL RIGHTS and NEGLIGENCE LAW," November 30th and December 1st. The seminar is sponsored by the National Lawyer's Guild, and the National Bar Association in cooperation with SCLC.

The seminars are planned to achieve two objectives: First, make it possible for more attorneys to accept civil rights cases by making their practice in other areas of the law more lucrative. It is believed that if the attorneys' proficiency in this area is improved his income will be improved and he will be more willing to accept civil rights cases. Second, to provide the attorney with an intensive review of the latest developments in civil rights law, with particular attention to the discovery of new techniques for the protection of civil rights.

Donald Hollowell, noted Atlanta civil rights attorney, is General Conference Chairman, George W. Crockett of Detroit is Co-Chairman in charge of the Conference program and Isabel Webster is serving as Conference Secretary. Wyatt Tee Walker, executive assistant to Dr. King, is Co-Chairman in charge of Conference facilities. All sessions will be held at the Waluhaje. A closing banquet that will be open to the public is scheduled for the Boy's Building of the Butler Street YMCA. Judge Wade McCree, of the two Negro Federal Judges in America will be the principal speaker.

Some of the areas to be covered in the Negligence Seminar include "Settlement Negotiations" and "Discovery Proceedings." The Civil Rights Seminar will embrace "Discrimination in Criminal Law," "Civil Remedies to Enforce Civil Rights" and "Federal Practice and Procedure."

SCLC PROFILE OF THE MONTH

The city of Atlanta claims many mountain-peaks of leadership. The Rev. Dr. Samuel Williams is one of them. As pastor of the historic Friendship Baptish Church, professor of philosophy and religion at renowned Morehouse College and president of the Atlanta branch NAACP, "Dr. Sam's" influence for good is difficult to calculate. He provides his church congregation with his stimulating and provocative religious bent; his students from Morehouse, in their later days, thank him for being such a demanding taskmaster; and the most significant NAACP victories in public accommodation and education have been achieved during the tenure of his presidency.

Dr. Samuel Williams

"Dr. Sam," as he is affectionately called, moves without haste in the performance of his community tasks. He is known for his incisive mind that explores every problem thoroughly, be it religious, philosophical or social. He has little concern, if any, with standing alone on an issue (in many instances he has). Everyone will agree that "Sam does his own thinking."

As president of the Atlanta NAACP, the most notable achievement under his leadership was the desegregation of the University of Georgia. There followed swiftly, the desegregation of public schools of Atlanta. These two notable accomplishments had been preceded by his participation as a plaintiff in the bus desegregation case in Atlanta and the ruling won against the Georgia State College in 1959. Dr. Samuel Williams was the chief witness.

"Dr. Sam" is also third vice-president of SCLC and has served his present post since 1954. Academically, he is a graduate of Morehouse College, Howard University (double graduate) and has done extensive postgraduate study at the University of Chicago in Philosophy. We salute Atlanta's "Dr. Sam."

Miss Mahalia Jackson, internationally known singer, is shown with Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and Rev. Richard Battles after having received a special citation during the Festival of Faith and Freedom which was held in Hartford, Connecticut on October 28 at the Bushnell Auditorium. More than 2000 people attended. Wyatt Tee Walker, executive assistant to Dr. King, presented the citation to Miss Jackson. The full text of the citation is as follows:

SPECIAL CITATION TO MISS MAHALIA JACKSON

Festival of Faith and Freedom 1962

Bushnell Auditorium
October 28, 1962
Hartford, Conn.

Miss Mahalia Jackson is internationally known for her perceptive presentation of the words and music of faith.

She excells in her chosen profession because her artistry reflects her own deep personal spirituality. We affectionately salute her as "the Queen of Gospel Music."

Miss Jackson has traveled throughout the world making command performances before the kings and queens of the world. Her interpretation of Negro music especially, has built new bridges of understanding to many of our friends in foreign lands. She is one of America's foremost ambassadors of goodwill.

It is significant that Miss Jackson is one of the pioneers for the Negro community in the broad maze of the television industry. She has warmed the hearts of millions with her fervent renderings of the "songs of the Lord."

Beyond all this, Miss Jackson has been for years a close, personal friend of Martin Luther King Jr., president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. She is a devotee of the struggle he represents and has joined with him on many occasions such as this to raise the needed funds for the struggle in the Deep South. This is still another facet of her remarkable talent and personality.

Tonight, the citizens of the Hartford community salute you and Dr. King for the inaugural "Festival of Faith and Freedom." God bless you and may he ever keep you in the hollow of his Hand.

consumer items is also prone to picketing and boycotting.

Meanwhile, the home office lodged two formal complaints with the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity against Kraft Foods, a division of National Dairies; and the Blue Plate Division of Hunts Foods & Company, Inc. Employees of the respective companies sought the aid of SCLC officials to correct discriminatory practices in merit advancement and hiring policies in these two companies that hold sizable government contracts through the office of Defense Supply. Wyatt Tee Walker, executive assistant to Dr. King, was advised by John Feild of the President's Committee within a week that formal investigations would begin November 5th at both companies. Hunts Foods flew in their Industrial Relations Manager from the home office in Fullerton, California to negotiate a settlement for voluntary compliance.

Within two days, Blue Plate acceded amiably to complaints of employees and agreed to the immediate desegregation of rest rooms and dining facilities, the institution of a fair employment policy by January 5, 1963 (opening all job categories to Negro personnel with first option to present employees) and an iron-clad agreement against reprisal to workers who filed complaints. The negotiations with Kraft Foods are still pending final settlement. Note: Special plaudits are due the President's Committee and Office of Defense Supply who provided swift responses with personal on-the-scene investigation.

"GET OUT THE VOTE"

The Voters Registration Program in your area will be as dead as a doornail if the Qualified Voter STAY AT HOME on election day. Don't take it for granted that people are going to vote. Act Now!! After election day will be too late.

Don't use the shotgun technique, find out who is qualified to vote and aim all of your efforts straight at the qualified VOTER.

A. Secure a list of registered voters from the registrar's office; Look up telephone numbers.

1. Prepare a personal contact card and a poll watcher's card for each qualified voter. By use of carbon paper they can be prepared at one time from Voter's List.

a. The contact card is the card used by volunteer block leaders to make personal contact with each voter.

b. On this card, in the following order, put the voter's address, name and phone number.

CONTACT CARD
201 Smith St.
John Doe
PL 3-9184

3" X 5"

Here are the groups at which you should take special aim.

2. Now divide these cards according to addresses into units of no more than eight (8) each. (ex. if eight (8) voters live in the 200 block of Smith Street, take these persons' cards and wrap a rubber band around them. Now you have a unit of cards).

3. Find a volunteer voter in this unit who will contact the other seven (7) voters in the 200 block Smith St. (You will be surprised to find out that a simple phone call is all that is needed sometimes to secure a good volunteer.)

B. Select enough poll watchers to cover every voting place all day. The poll watcher's card is used by the poll watchers at each voting place.

1. This card should contain, in the following order, name (last name first), address and phone number. 3" X 5"

POLL WATCHER'S CARD
201 Smith St.
John Doe
PL 3-9184

2. These cards should be filed in alphabetical order according to precinct or voting districts (A shoe box makes a good file).

3. These cards will be used at the polls by the poll watchers. They will pull the voters' cards as they come to the polls and notify their headquarters about tardy voters.

C. Divide the voters list into groups of 25 to 50 voters, assign one list to each telephone worker to call twice, once the week before election, and a second time the day before election.

ORGANIZATION

I. VOTING DISTRICT HEADQUARTERS AND CHAIRMAN

Each voting district should have a headquarters (someone's home will do) and a Precinct or District Chairman.

1. Headquarters -- a base for the "get out the vote project."

2. Headquarters Chairman -- it is the duty of the Headquarters Chairman to direct the operation.

II. WORKERS NEEDED ON ELECTION DAY

1. Cars for transportation (2 cars on call at the Voting District Headquarters).

2. Baby sitters (2 each on call at the Baby Sitters Headquarters).

3. Poll watchers (2 watchers each on two hour shifts). It will be the duty of these workers to report to headquarters the names of tardy voters. Headquarters in turn will contact these voters and get them to the polls. (Use your block workers).

4. Telephone workers, one for every 25 numbers, to call mostly in the evening.

5. Refreshment Committee -- this committee will furnish hot coffee, donuts, etc., to the workers.

III. Time is short, adapt this information to fit your needs, but above all, it is important that you GET STARTED. No alibis after election, put ACTION into your Voter Registration Program.

A Quarter Century Of Political Action In Ga.

By J. H. CALHOUN

Co-Chairman, Georgia Voters League

Prior to World War II, except in isolated instances, the voting of Negroes in Georgia was mostly in national elections and generally Republican. As late as 1936, leaders like A. T. Walden, B. J. Davis, L. D. Milton, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Yates, W. J. Shaw, and J. B. Blayton, of Atlanta, as well as their counterparts in Savannah, Macon, Augusta, Columbus, or other cities, were all Republicans.

The White Democratic Primary and poll tax lay heavily upon the Negro citizens, and although the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, inspired by Dr. C. A. Bacote, and later Rod Harris, was sponsoring citizenship schools, the matter of registering to vote was mostly in preachments.

The late Prince Hall Grand Master, John Wesley Dobbs, then a retiring clerk-in-charge of the U. S. Railway Mail Service, who pledged to fight for the right of the ballot; C. A. Scott, new, young editor-manager of the Atlanta World, who began attacking the white primary, and A. T. Walden, who, disillusioned with the Republican Party, organized the Georgia Citizens Democratic Clubs, blazed a new trail of political action for Georgia Negroes.

During the latter part of 1944 and through 1945, the Atlanta Daily World was in the forefront of a mammoth campaign to set Negroes on the voters rolls.

These pioneers were assisted by the leaders mentioned above and such persons as: Rev. H. I. Bearden, Rev. Primus King and Dr. C. B. Brewer, J. F. Rivers, Vernon Mitchell and C. B. Marshall, Columbus; C. B. King, and Dr. W. J. Reese, Albany; T. B. Hooper and Walter Harris, Macon; Joe Atkinson and Rev. J. F. Mann, Brunswick; W. G. Wigfall, W. C. Ervin and L. B Wallace, Augusta; E. E. Moore and P. B. McCoy, Waycross; W. W. Law, Leroy Wilson and later Hosea Williams, Savannah; Ray Ware and Rod Harris, Athens; the late Dr. E. E Butler and the late W. W. Chamblee and Maynard Brown, Gainesville; "Banty" Jones and Sol Mann, Rome; Robert Parks Cedartown; John Shanks and Miss Rosetta Williams, Decatur; A. C Touchstone, Griffin; Sam Weston, Americus; Charlie Darien, Rockdale; Ben Shorter, Cuthbert; Davis Brothers, Ocilla; Thomas Allen, Swainsboro Dan Young, Monroe; H. E. Bryant, Ft. Valley; W. F. Ragan, Perry; W C. Smith, Sandersville; Mrs. Grace Towns Hamilton, Warren R. Cochrane, W. H Aiken, J. H. Calhoun, and lately Jesse Hill, Q. V. Williamson, Dr. C. number whites 3 to 1 in population, they have less than one-half the number of registered voters. There, Negroes take little interest in state or congressional elections, but their votes are sought in local elections.

This is true in a number of counties, where sheriffs, judges and city officials encourage Negro registration for their own benefit, notably Laurens County (Dublin) and for a long time, Dougherty County (Albany), until Negroes became divided by the white office-holders. In these counties, such public officials encourage Negroes to register.

THE GEORGIA VOTERS LEAGUE

Encouraged by his success in organizing the Atlanta Civic and Political League, which sponsored the increase in Negro voters in Fulton County from 500 to 5,000 by 1945 and serving as co - chairman of the Atlanta Negro Voters League, in 1950, John Wesley Dobbs initiated the organization of the Georgia Voters League, with Atty. A. T. Walden and himself as co-chairmen.

The bi-partisan pattern had been established by these two men, with advice and counsel of Democrat and Republican leaders of Fulton County in setting up the Atlanta organization, after Negroes were hopelessly divided in the 1948 state election over the campaign for Solicitor General of Fulton County.

The Atlanta Negro Voters League which, supplanted the old Atlanta Civic and Political League, has become the strongest single political figure in the state because of its "grass roots" type of organization and continuous unity. City, as well as county, candidates seek its support. The Atlanta World has been the champion of local and state efforts.

The Georgia Voters League functioned with two co-chairmen, Republican and Democrat until 1955 when a constitution was written, giving it a single set of officers. For the sake of unity the constitution was changed back to bi-partisan in 1961 and since Mr. Dobbs' death, J. H. Calhoun, Atlanta has served with Atty. Walden as co chairman.

In 1957 the League organized the Statewide Registration Committee to conduct voter-registration over ban and especially the Negro vote.

A moderate governor Carl Sanders, was elected; the elected lieutenant governor Peter Zack Geer, changed from a rank segregationist between the Primary and runoff; every larger city sent at least one moderate senator to the state capitol; the race issue was overcome in state politics for the first time since Reconstruction; the first Negro senator since Reconstruction, Leroy Johnson, was elected; the State House and senate galleries, as well as, the Governor's Inaugural Ball were desegregated; four Republican senators and two House members were elected to the Legislature; moderate U. S. Congressmen were elected in the 5th and 8th Districts where staunch segregationists had served for years; Dougherty County (Albany) surprisingly voted against the segregationist candidate for governor, Marvin Griffin, the lone southwest county to do so. Having already elected two Republicans to Atlanta's Board of Aldermen in 1961 and conducted its first state senatorial primary, that party claimed now the establishment of the two-party system in Georgia.

Another effect produced by increased registration is that desegregation of faciilties, such as libraries, schools, eating places, etc., has been accomplished, without incidents in counties where there is a reasonable proportion of Negro voters. Savannah, Atlanta, Macon, Columbus, Augusta, Thomasville, Brunswick, Waycross and many smaller cities have all experienced this change, as well as, other significant advances in employment, justice, recreation, health and race relations.

led by Dr. C. A. Bacote, and later Rod Harris, was sponsoring citizenship schools, the matter of registering to vote was mostly in preachments.

The late Prince Hall Grand Master, John Wesley Dobbs, then a retiring clerk-in-charge of the U. S. Railway Mail Service, who pledged to fight for the right of the ballot; C. A. B Wallace, Augusta; E. E. Moore and P. B. McCoy, Waycross; W. W. Law, Leroy Wilson and later Hosea Williams, Savannah; Ray Ware and Rod Harris, Athens; the late Dr. E. E Butler and the late W. W. Chamblee and Maynard Brown, Gainesville; "Banty" Jones and Sol Mann, Rome; Robert Parks Cedartown; John Shanks and Miss Rosetta Williams, Decatur; A. Ragan, Perry; W C. Smith, Sandersville; Mrs. Grace Towns Hamilton, Warren R. Cochrane, W. H Aiken, J. H. Calhoun, and lately Jesse Hill, Q. V. Williamson, Dr. C. Clayton Powell, Leroy Johnson and Mrs. Johnnie Yancey, all of Atlanta and scores of leaders from cities towns, as well as, rural areas, backed by leading ministers, too numerous to mention.

A NEW DAY DAWNS

The Primus King Decision, outlawing the White Democrat Primary and the abolition of the Georgia poll tax under Gov. Ellis Arnall ,really opened the door to Negro registration in 1946 and in two short years the total ran up to more than 100,000. The county unit system made the Negro vote lacking in effectiveness in statewide elections, but in local elections great results were achieved where the leadership could be kept united.

Race was still the greatest political issue, even in Fulton County (Atlanta) where the Negro vote increased to 24,000 in 1949, 37,000 in 1960 and 47,000 in 1962. Atlanta Mayor William B. Hartsfield was re-elected in 1949, 1953 and 1957 by the margin of the Negro vote.

In 1961, it was the Negro vote that gave Mayor Ivan Allen a landslide victory over Lester Maddox the segregationist, in a run-off where three other strong vote- getting candidates were eliminated: State Senator Charlie Brown, State Representative "Muggsy" Smith and County Commissioner James Aldrich. All except Maddox sought the Negro vote.

Atlanta University President Rufus E. Clement was elected to the Atlanta Board of Education in 1957 and Q. V. Williamson ran a good race for the Atlanta Board of Aldermen in 1961. In addition, A. T. Walden and Dr. Myles Amos were elected to City Executive Committee posts, while Dr. C. A. Bacote and J. C. Daugherty have been elected to Fulton County Democrat Committee positions.

On a party basis, the Negroes in Georgia have, in general, voted Democrat since the advent of the New Deal, but there have been several instances, when the trend has been Republican. President Eisenhower got a majority of their vote in 1952 and 1956 and in 1960 Nixon carried 57 percent of the Negro vote in spite of the influence of Dr. M. L. King, Jr., for President Kennedy. C. A. Scott, the Atlanta World and Mr. Dobbs supported Franklin Roosevelt in 1944, but all three were with Eisenhower in 1952.

Hall County (Gainesville) was the first to give recognition to Negroes, where three, including the late Dr. E. E. Butler, were appointed to the Board of Education. W. C. Ervin was elected to the Richmond County Board of Education in 1950 and served one term. In Liberty County (McIntosh), the number of Negro registered voters has exceeded white for a number of years. In Hancock County (Sparta), however, where Negroes out-in state or congressional elections, but their votes are sought in local elections.

This is true in a number of counties, where sheriffs, judges and city officials encourage Negro registration for their own benefit, notably Laurens County (Dublin) and for a long time, Dougherty County (Albany), until Negroes became divided by the white office-holders. In these counties, such public officials encourage Negroes to register.

THE GEORGIA VOTERS LEAGUE

Encouraged by his success in organizing the Atlanta Civic and Political League, which sponsored the increase in Negro voters in Fulton County from 500 to 5,000 by 1945 and serving as co - chairman of the Atlanta Negro Voters League, in 1950, John Wesley Dobbs initiated the organization of the Georgia Voters League, with Atty. A. T. Walden and himself as co-chairmen.

The bi-partisan pattern had been established by these two men, with advice and counsel of Democrat and Republican leaders of Fulton County in setting up the Atlanta organization, after Negroes were hopelessly divided in the 1948 state election over the campaign for Solicitor General of Fulton County.

The Atlanta Negro Voters League which, supplanted the old Atlanta Civic and Political League, has become the strongest single political figure in the state because of its "grass roots" type of organization and continuous unity. City, as well as county, candidates seek its support. The Atlanta World has been the champion of local and state efforts.

The Georgia Voters League functioned with two co-chairmen, Republican and Democrat until 1955 when a constitution was written, giving it a single set of officers. For the sake of unity the constitution was changed back to bi-partisan in 1961 and since Mr. Dobbs' death, J. H. Calhoun, Atlanta has served with Atty. Walden as co chairman.

In 1957 the League organized the Statewide Registration Committee to conduct voter-registration over the state on a co-ordinated, non-partisan, non - political basis. This committee, formerly headed by Mr Dobbs and now by Mr. Calhoun has sponsored citizenship clinic series in the 10 U. S. Congressional Districts.

Beginning in 1962 the committee became affiliated with Dr. M. L King Jr's Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which had become its main financial supporter.

WHAT INCREASED REGISTRATION DID

A study made by the Atlanta Urban League in 1950 indicated 146,000 registered Negroes. A survey made by J. H. Calhoun, with the assistance of R. A. Thompson in 1954, showed a total of 156,000. By 1956, this had increased to a 160,000 "bloc," as admitted by Gov. Marvin Griffin. A similar survey in 1958 showed that this number is estimated to have increased to nearly 165,000. That, however was the last year the Georgia Secretary of State kept registration figures by race. In March, 1962 the Atlanta Journal - Constitution was able to compile figures indicating that for 1960 the number of Negro registered voters had increased to 165,335. Figures from nearly half of the counties, however were for 1958.

The following two - year period represented one of the heaviest registration periods. In 1961 Fulton County alone added a net of 6,000 after allowing for a purge. It could be conservatively estimated that by January, 1962 the number of Negro voters had increased to 175,000. Following sit-in demonstrations, in 1961 and 1962 Fulton, Chatham Bibb, Richmond and Muskogee counties, followed by some 30 others, reported a total increase of more than 30,000 as a result of drives in these and many other counties sponsored by the SCLC NAACP, SNNC, Statewide Registration Committee, Southeast Crusade for Voters and various county-wide organizations. Therefore, candidate Ex-Gov. Marvin Griffin was probably conservatively right in August 1962 when he said there was a "bloc" of 200,000 Negro votes against him.

When the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals struck down the county-unit system and ordered reapportionment, which resulted in redistricting the Georgia Senate, several important political results ensued, influenced by the state's urislature; moderate U. S. Congressmen were elected in the 5th and 8th Districts where staunch segregationists had served for years; Dougherty County (Albany) surprisingly voted against the segregationist candidate for governor, Marvin Griffin, the lone southwest county to do so. Having already elected two Republicans to Atlanta's Board of Aldermen in 1961 and conducted its first state senatorial primary, that party claimed now the establishment of the two-party system in Georgia.

Another effect produced by increased registration is that desegregation of facilities, such as libraries, schools, eating places, etc., has been accomplished, without incidents in counties where there is a reasonable proportion of Negro voters. Savannah, Atlanta, Macon, Columbus, Augusta, Thomasville, Brunswick, Waycross and many smaller cities have all experienced this change, as well as, other significant advances in employment, justice, recreation, health and race relations.

Dear Mr. Ponder:

The enclosed materials are being sent to you with the hope they will, in some small way, help you in your search for new approaches to the running of your upcoming registration drive. You will find here, a copy of the book that the Richmond Registration Committee used in their drive. You will recall that I suggested that they prepare such books and hang them alongside of the telephone directory. I feel this would be quite effective. The list of approaches was taken from a drive that we have supported up in Huntsville, Alabama.

I am also sending a list of Huntsville's organizations so that you can get some idea as to how they were able to create some real healthy organizational competition.

It has occurred to me that one technique not yet used by them that would be, I believe, quite successful, is a first-voter dance. I am suggesting here that instead of selling tickets to such an affair, that one might obtain a ticket by becoming a registered voter. In a city like Mobile, I should think it would not beetão difficult to engage some big-name band or personality when they are in that area. Surely, you would want to make use of any professional promotion of such an affair that the community has. I should think it would be possible to make this dance the dance of the season. Several people, among them Lena Horne, Ray Charles, and "Nat" King Cole, have said that they want to do something to help! Give these ideas some thought, and lets see what we can come up with.

To: Special Committee for Mobile Voter Registration Drive

From: Wiley A. Branton, Director
Voter Education Project

The Voter Education Project is interested in making a study of voter registration problems in the Mobile area. Ours is primarily a research program in which we make a study of the various techniques and methods which are being used to encourage people to register and vote. We do this by studying the actual program of participating agencies to whom we make financial grants in consideration of their agreement and cooperation in making certain reports to our office.

Our Field Director, Mr. Randolph T. Blackwell, went to Mobile last April to talk with people interested in voter registration and to discuss the possibility of setting up a special committee through which we might work in Mobile. Mr. Blackwell was cautioned to concern himself with individuals rather than with organizations.

Following Mr. Blackwell's visit to Mobile we called a special meeting for April 30, 1963, and invited several people. We included in each letter a list of the invitees. This should have afforded ample opportunity for the invitees to recommend or suggest other people, but we have received no communication as to the names of any people who should have been invited to that meeting, or to any subsequent meeting. Mr. Blackwell attended the April 30 meeting and reported to me his enthusiasm for a truly cooperative program in Mobile. The only thing that is holding the program up, at this point, is the matter of the approval of a budget.

Let me emphasize that we consider the special committee to be a well chosen one to work under VEP, and we do not consider that this program will be conducted under the name of either one of the two voter organizations in Mobile. We do hope, however, that any such program will have the unqualified support of both organizations as this will be an opportunity for you to help do something for the community, and at the same time get outside financial support. We can carry on a more effective job by working with a fairly small committee than we can with large numbers of people; but if there are people any of you feel should be added to the present committee, then you should submit these names to Mr. C. H. Montgomery who is chairman of the special committee, and I am certain that he will present these names to the committee for consideration.

VEP is satisfied with the program as we have helped to set it up, and we urge all of you to join with us in helping to get more registered voters without regard for partisan politics or organizational participation or credit. In short, we do not have time for organizational or personal jealousies.

May we count on your continued support?

Subject: Executive Committee Meeting,
Georgia Statewide Registration Committee
June 15, 1963

J. H . Calhoun, Executive Committee Chairman, had called this meeting apparently with the anticipation that his ten district chairman would be there, and would be able to furnish a report on registration activities in each of their districts. Only one chairman, from Bibb County, showed up. He brought one other individual with him. The only other persons who attended the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Williams from Madison, Morgan County. Mr. and Mrs. Williams are respectively, President and Secretary-Treasurer of the Morgan County Civic League, P. O. Box 371, Madison, Georgia.

I arrived at Beamon's Restaurant quite a while before the meeting got started, and had an opportunity for a long conversation with Mr. and Mrs. Williams. I began by asking them what was the knottiest problem in voter registration in Morgan County. Mr. Williams promptly replied that the slothfulness of the Negroes was the greatest obstacle to increased Negro registration in Morgan County. He said that the Morgan County Civic League had attempted through canvassing, mass meetings, and through the churches, to get Negroes to register. He said that there was no hostility toward Negro registration at the registrar's office, nor among the white community in general. He said that Negroes would readily promise to go down and register, but that invariably, the greater proportion of them failed to do so.

I asked Mr. Williams what the Negroes of Morgan County did for a living. He said that the greater proportion of them worked on the cotton plantations, and in the peach orchards of a few large land owners in Morgan County. He said that there was very little sharecropping or tenant farming in Morgan County, but that most of the work available for Negroes was day labor on the farms. He said that the going wage is about $3 for cultivation of the land, cutting and chopping and tending of the peach orchards up to harvest time. Then peach and cotton picking is paid for according to a piece rate. He did not know the piece rate for peaches, but he did say that the going rate for cotton is about $2.50 per hundred pounds. I asked him about what proportion of the year these kinds of work are available in Morgan County, and he replied, "...about eight months out of the year." I asked him how these workers managed to survive the

4- Georgia - Statewide

~~the~~ other four months, and he shrugged his shoulders and said, "I suppose most of them borrow enough to get by."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Williams elaborated on the plight of the Negroes in Morgan County, pointing out that chemical week killers and cotton picking machines reduced the amount of employment available considerably each year. I asked them if they thought that perhaps the Negroes' lack of interest in voter registration might stem from the extremely deprived conditions under which they are forced to live, rather than from a basic character defect which seemed implicit in the imputation of slothfulness to them. Mr. and Mrs. Williams acknowledged that this might very well be the case. I then suggested to them that perhaps they should think about trying to explain to Negroes in Morgan County that there is a direct relation between political participation and the conditions under which they live. Mrs. Williams acknowledged that this might very well be so, and she explained that the senator and the representative from Morgan County, along with the Chamber of Commerce in Madison, had been very active in seeking new industry in order to provide more jobs for the people of Morgan County. She said that the senator and the representative had recently let it be known that they had elicited the interest of a sewing machine company in building a plant in Morgan County that would be specificly designed to use the labor of Negro women. Mrs. Williams appeared to be very pleased with this prospect. I asked her if there was any other industry in the county, and she said, "Only a number of garment plants which employed only whites." I asked her if these plants were organized by labor unions, and both she and her husband said that the workers in the plants had voted against union organization.

I told Mr. and Mrs. Williams that I would write them a letter designating the firms which own the plants in Morgan County, which would be likely to come under the purview of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity. I told them that in the letter, I would explain to them how they could go about filing a complaint with the committee and suggested to them that this was an issue around which some voter education for the Negroes of Morgan County could be structured. I suggested that they could undertake to explain to the Negroes that the committee would be much more likely to act if a large proportion of those in whose interest committee action was sought were registered voters. They appeared to be interested in the suggestions. I will follow through with the letter although I am by no means certain that they will follow through along the lines I suggested.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams said that last year the Morgan County Civic League raised $1000 which was donated to a Negro hospital in Madison, and that they had also raised $300 which was used to outfit Little League baseball players. It struck me that this was a rather superficial way to spend $300 considering the need which they had described as existing among the agricultural workers in the county.

I have described this conversation at some length because I think it typifies what can only be described as a set of class attitudes which, I suspect, frequently blinds this type of community leader to the real needs of the community upon which can be based effective political communication.

In the course of our conversation, Mrs. Williams also described at some length the plight of the children of the agricultural workers. The children are out of school during the spring and fall in order to participate in the agriculture work. For example, Mrs. Williams said that the children "...are expected..." to help with the cotton picking. I asked her who it was that expected them to do so, and she said it was the planters and the land owners. She said that the summer school session which is designed to make up for the children's absence during the spring and the fall was wholly inadequate for this purpose. She pointed out in the first place the heat and the lack of appropriate school facilities made the summer session relatively useless. Too, she said, that the lapse of time between the summer session and November when the children go back to school for the winter obviated the continuity in the presentation of subject matter, which is usually regarded as a pedagogical necessity.

The meeting consisted primarily of Calhoun reading reports from the various district chairmen, and explaining why none of them had been able to attend. Then there was some general discussion which Andy Young summed up by suggesting that the primary problems in voter registration in Georgia are motivation and education. He asked the question, "Will state leaders or local leaders better motivate the people?" A lawyer from Macon pointed out the necessity for finding and motivating local leaders and then getting them to motivate the local people. There appeared to be a general consensus that this was an adequate statement of the problem.

I cite these facts because it struck me that the extremely complex and subtle concepts of motivation and leadership were being handled with a superficiality suggesting that they are familiar terminology, but are hardly conceptual tools which can be used effectively in the resolution of problems. For example, in order to use the concept of motivation to structure and action program, one must first devise and an empirically based and logically consistent theory of human behavior. Furthermore, before applying an action program based upon a concept of motivation, one must first devise a well integrated theory of the inter-action between the socio-economic and physical environment and the individual. At the risk of appearing insufferably pedantic, I make these points merely to indicate that a fluent command of current Social Science jargon constitutes no guarantee that old ideas which have never worked will not be presented and accepted because of their new terminological garb. I doubt if any of those present during this discussion, including myself, were in any sense prepared to lay out a program based upon a thoroughly articulated theory of the relationship between motivation, leadership and political action. Unless and until we are prepared to spend some time doing our theoretical homework, we will only be deluding ourselves if we think we understand what we are doing simply because we have found some new, hard terminology with which to describe it.

MEMORANDUM

To: Wiley A. Branton

From: Jack Minnis

Subject: Executive Committee Meeting,
Georgia Statewide Registration Committee
June 15, 1963

J. H . Calhoun, Executive Committee Chairman, had called this meeting apparently with the anticipation that his ten district chairman would be there, and would be able to furnish a report on registration activities in each of their districts. Only one chairman, from Bibb County, showed up. He brought one other individual with him. The only other persons who attended the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Williams from Madison, Morgan County. Mr. and Mrs. Williams are respectively, President and Secretary-Treasurer of the Morgan County Civic League, P. O. Box 371, Madison, Georgia.

I arrived at Beamon's Restaurant quite a while before the meeting got started, and had an opportunity for a long conversation with Mr. and Mrs. Williams. I began by asking them what the the knottiest problem in voter registration in Morgan County. Mr. Williams promptly replied that the [illegible] of the Negroes was the greatest obstacle to increased Negro registration in Morgan County. He said that the Morgan County Civic League had attempted through canvassing, mass meetings, and through the churches, to get Negroes to register. He said that there was no hostility toward Negro registration at the registrar's office, nor among the white community in general. He said that Negroes would readily promise to go down and register, but that invariably, the greater proportion of them failed to do so.

I asked Mr. Williams what the Negroes of Morgan County did for a living. He said that theygreater proportion of them worked on the cotton plantations, and in the peach orchards of a few large land owners in Morgan County. He said that there was very little sharecropping or tenant farming in Morgan County, but that most of the work available for Negroes was day labor on the farms. He said that the going wage is about $3 for cultivation of the land, cutting and chopping and tending of the peach orchards up to harvest time. Then peach and cotton picking is paid for according to a piece rate. He did not know the piece rate for peaches, but he did say that the going rate for cotton is about $2.50 per hundred pounds. I asked him about what proportion of the year these kinds of work are available in Morgan County, and he replied, "...about eight months out of the year." I asked him how these workers managed to survive the

the other four months, and he shrugged his shoulders and said, "I suppose most of them borrow enough to get by."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Williams elaborated on the plight of the Negroes in Morgan County, pointing out that chemical week killers and cotton picking machines reduced the amount of employment available considerably each year. I asked them if they thought that perhaps the Negroes' lack of interest in voter registration might stem from the extremely deprived conditions under which they are forced to live, rather than from a basic character defect which seemed implicit in the imputation of slothfulness to them. Mr. and Mrs. Williams acknowledged that this might very well be the case. I then suggested to them that perhaps they should think about trying to explain to Negroes in Morgan County that there is a direct relation between political participation and the conditions under which they live. Mrs. Williams acknowledged that this might very well be so, and she explained that the senator and the representative from Morgan County, along with the Chamber of Commerce in Madison, had been very active in seeking new industry in order to provide more jobs for the people of Morgan County. She said that the Senator and the representative had recently let it be known that they had elicited the interest of a sewing machine company in building a plant in Morgan County that would be specificly designed to use the labor of Negro women. Mrs. Williams appeared to be very pleased with this prospect. I asked her if there was any other industry in the county, and she said, "Only a number of garment plants which employed only whites." I asked her if these plants were organized by labor unions, and both she and her husband said that the workers in the plants had voted against union organization.

I told Mr. and Mrs. Williams that I would write them a letter designating the firms which own the plants in Morgan County, which would be likely to come under the purview of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity. I told them that in the letter, I would explain to them how they could go about filing a complaint with the Committee and suggested to them that this was an issue around which some voter education for the Negroes of Morgan County could be structured. I suggested that they could undertake to explain to the Negroes that the committee would be much more likely to act if a large proportion of those in whose interest committee action was sought were registered voters. They appeared to be interested in the suggestions. I will follow through with the letter although I am by no means certain that they will follow through along the lines I suggested.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams said that last year the Morgan County Civic League raised $1000 which was donated to a Negro hospital in Madison, and that they had also raised $300 which was used to outfit Little League baseball players. It struck me that this was a rather superficial way to spend $300 considering the need which they had described as existing among the agricultural workers in the county.

I have described this conversation at some length because I think it typifies what can only be described as a set of class attitudes which, I suspect, frequently blinds this type of community leader to the real needs of the community upon which can be based effective political communication.

In the course of our conversation, Mrs. Williams also described at some length the plight of the children of the agricultural workers. The children are out of school during the spring and fall in order to participate in the agriculture work. For example, Mrs. Williams said that the children "...are expected..." to help with the cotton picking. I asked her who it was that expected them to do so, and she said it was the planters and the land owners. She said that the summer school session which is designed to make up for the children's absence during the spring and the fall was wholly inadequate for this purpose. She pointed out in the first place the heat and the lack of appropriate school facilities made the summer session relatively useless. Too, she said,that the lapse of time between the summer session and November when the children go back to school for the winter obviated the continuity in the presentation of subject matter, which is usually regarded as a pedagogical necessity.

The meeting consisted primarily of Calhoun reading reports from the various district chairman, and explaining why none of them had been able to attend. Then there was some general discussion which Andy Young summed up by suggesting that the primary problems in voter registration in Georgia are motivation and education. He asked the question,"Will state leaders or local leaders better motivate the people?" A lawyer from Macon pointed out the necessity for finding and motivating local leaders and then getting them to motivate the local people. There appeared to be a general consensus that this was an adequate statement of the problem. I s

I cite these facts because it struck me that the extremely complex and subtle concepts of motivation and leadership were being handled with a superficiality suggesting that they are familiar terminology, but are hardly conceptual tools which can be used effectively in the resolution of problems. For example, in order to use the concept of motivation to structure and action program, one must first devise and an empirically based and logically consistent theory of human behavior. Furthermore, before applying an action program based upon a concept of motivation, one must first devise a well integrated theory of the inter-action between the socio-economic and physical enviennment and the individual. At the risk of appearing insufferably pedantic, I make these points merely to indicate that a fluent command of current Social Science jargon constitutes no gaarantee that old ideas which have never worked will not be presented and accepted because of their new terminological garb. I doubt if any of those present during this discussion, including myself, were in any sense prepared to lay out a program based upon a thoroughly articulated theory of the relationship between motivation, leadership and political action. Unless and until we are prepared to spend some time doing our theoretical homework, we will only be deluding ourselves if we think we understand what we are doing simply because we have found some new, hard terminology with which to describe it.

CITIZENSHIP CLINIC MANUAL

FOR

GEORGIA VOTER REGISTRATION

STATEWIDE REGISTRATION COMMITTEE

OF GEORGIA

J. H. CALHOUN, DIRECTOR

HEADQUARTERS: 243 AUBURN AVENUE, N. E., ATLANTA, GA.

-F O R E W O R D-

BY: DR. GEORGE A. SEWELL, DEAN, TURNER THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

"You are now holding in your hands a very carefully prepared, and extremely valuable, bit of reading material. It has been prepared especially for you. Its one aim is to help you to better understand the elementary procedures of becoming a local voter, a full citizen, a participant in your government.

The contributors of this Study Manual worked under the assumption that, if you understood the fundamentals of Citizenship, you would not only participate yourself, but you would get others to do likewise, both of which are so important for you and yours. In preparing this Manual, two groups of people were in their minds: (1) Adults who are in positions of responsibility and (2) Young folks who should be concerned with community life in general. In this latter group are the great potential citizens of the years ahead."

In this great history-making undertaking, in which you will play a vital part, four things are highly important:

1. Organization is essential to success. Efforts of dedicated individual citizens are fine, but results of such worthy actions will be multiplied by the number of persons working in an organized voter- registration campaign.

2. It is essential that county leaders contact local public officials to secure co-operation before starting a campaign. It has worked, but be sure that if complaints are to be made, there are witnesses to sign affidavits.

3. More emphasis will have to be placed upon youth work activities, giving young people, at all age levels, opportunities to assume leadership responsibilities and to assist in planning.

4. Plans must include definite methods of getting out the vote to prevent legitimate purging of registration lists. Stop playing "catch-up."

Material for this manual was secured from various sources, especially from John Brooks, Director of the Southwide Registration Campaign, the Metropolitan Voting Council of Atlanta, the Atlanta League of Women Voters, the Atlanta All-Citizens Registration Committee, and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"Read, study and master the materials presented here, in order that you may become an Effective Citizen. Remember: To him who has will more be given; and from him who has not, even what he has will be taken away."

Be sure to register, then be sure to vote.

NOTE TO DISCUSSION LEADERS

The material in this issue of the Citizenship Manual does not coincide exactly with previous issues. Therefore it is necessary to explain to the participants that there are a few differences in the reading, but the sense of the material is the same.

GETTING VOTERS TO THE POLLS

WHAT DO YOU KNOW??

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

1. Facts are important. To carry out an effective registration campaign, to check results and to get out the vote you should have a roster of all the Negro Voters in the area. Figures are fine but you need ROSTERS.

WHY IS THIS IMPORTANT?

1. Figures can lie if they are not backed by actual nose count.
2. You cannot make a nose count unless you have a roster of the qualified voters.

SECURE THESE ROSTERS AND YOU WILL FIND THAT:

1. People who say they are voters are not voters.
2. Many who are qualified are accidentally left off the official records (Strange! Shouldn't be, you know who makes these mistakes).
3. Many persons listed on the roster are dead, or they have moved to other cities.

WHY DO YOU NEED ROSTERS?

1. In order to get out an effective vote at election time, you must know the qualified voters.
2. The success of your voter registration drive depends upon many interested people. You will find them on your qualified voters list.

RECORDS MEASURE PROGRESS!

Progress controls money spending. How can you measure your true progress without records? You don't want to wake up and find that you have let thousands of hard earned dollars and many hours of manpower go down the drain...with no results.

THE WAY TO DO IT:

Registration lists are public property. If you can't secure them from your public officials, send people to copy the names off the official records.

NOTE TO LARGE CITIES: Sure it is a big job where you have over 5,000 voters but on the other hand, you have more manpower, leadership, money and freedom than your smaller cities. BIG TOWNS DO A BIG PROJECT.

VOTER REGISTRATION PLANS

YOUR INTRODUCTION TO COORDINATION

By J. M. BROOKS, Southwide Registration Director

Our modern world was built through the principles of coordination. We can use the same principles to build up the Negro voting strength.

I. COORDINATION: We believe that by coordinating the suffrage work of various organizations and individuals, the Negro will have a more effective Political Action Program. This in turn will produce a large and intelligent Negro vote.

II. WHY SHOULD WE COORDINATE OUR EFFORTS? We should coordinate our efforts because in spite of the fine suffrage work being done by many groups and individuals in the South, we are faced with the following facts:

1. Only about 20% of the potential Negro voting population are registered voters.

2. That large numbers of Negroes qualified to vote do not show up at the polls on election day.

3. That large numbers of Negroes pay taxes, buy auto tags and buy drivers' licenses, but fail to register.

4. That most areas lack organizational machinery to contact the masses of people for the purpose of giving out factual and unbiased information on political candidates and issues.

III. IS THIS A POLITICAL GROUP? NO: Our coordinating groups or organizations are non-partisan. Their only aim is a large intelligent Negro vote.

IV. WHY NON-PARTISAN?

1. Because the Statewide Registration Committee is non-partisan.

2. Because for this plan to be successful, we must have the cooperation of all groups and organizations regardless of thier political beliefs.

3. History has shown that many non-partisan organizations for increasing the vote folded up because they became ambitious and began politics, or individuals in the organization began using the organization for personal gains.

V. WHAT CAN YOU DO? You can start a coordinating group in your area. However, you must first sell yourself on the coordinating group idea. Read the Richmond Story. It is a brief story on how this idea is working in Richmond, Virginia. Write me at 202½ Second Street in Richmond.

S O N G S: Use them to put spirit and warmth in your meetings.

HOW TO GET A COORDINATED PROGRAM STARTED IN YOUR CITY OR COUNTY

STEP I

I HAVE A PREPLANNING DISCUSSION WITH A FEW INTERESTED PERSONS.

1. Discuss the Negro voting status of your area inside and out. Don't pull any punches. Try to form a true picture of your Community's voting habits.

2. Sell the Coordination Group movement. Show how a program, based on coordination, can make yours a progressive area.

3. After selling yourselves on the idea, plan a meeting for all interested citizens and organizations in your area.

II HOW TO PLAN A MEETING FOR INTERESTED CITIZENS AND ORGANIZATIONS.

1. Set a date, time and place for an interested citizens meeting.

2. Appoint a temporary chairman to call this meeting.

   (a) Among other things, this chairman should be a substantial and well-liked person in the community.

   (b) For obvious reasons, the chairman should not be the head of any political group, or a person usually identified with a political party.

III GETTING INTERESTED PEOPLE TO THE MEETING.

1. Send a letter of invitation to the following in your area:

   (a) All of the qualified voters in your area.

   (b) To the ministers of all churches in the ares.

   (c) To the presidents of all organizations (fraternal, social, labor or political) regardless of their sizes or prestige in the community. Through personal contact have these leaders toinvite their memberships to be present.

2. Set up a telephone committee to follow up the letter with telephone calls.

3. A few days before the meeting:

   (a) Have the ministers to make church announcements.

   (b) Pass out leaflets about the meeting at church and from door to door.

PLAN LIGHT REFRESHMENTS.

DONT'T MISS ANY OF THESE STEPS.

The one you omit may be the spark plug to a bang-up meeting. Good meetings are PLANNED not BORN. THESE STEPS HAVE BEEN TRIED - THEY WORKED

Invite top community leaders to be present, observe and help unofficially

STEP 2

WHAT TO DO AT THE FIRST INTERESTED CITIZENS MEETING

I OPEN WITH PRAYER AND SONG

II TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN GREETS THE PEOPLE AND GIVES PURPOSE OF MEETING

2 MINUTES

1. To discuss WHY we should increase the Negro voting strength. WHY a coordinating group should be organized, a new and dynamic movement for increasing the Negro vote.

III HAVE A SPEAKER GIVE DOWN TO EARTH DISCUSSION ON THE VALUE OF VOTING

10 MINUTES

(Base talk on voting in relation to our meat and bread, our dollar and cents, our children's welfare).

IV HAVE ANOTHER SPEAKER TO EXPLAIN THE WHY AND HOW OF A COORDINATED GROUP MOVEMENT. HE MUST BE GOOD. HE MUST SELL THE MOVEMENT TO THE INTERESTED CITIZENS.

10 to 20 MINUTES

V QUESTION AND DISCUSSION PERIOD

Keep the ball moving by having two or three persons in the audience prepared to ask the first few questions (people are funny. They will all sit back in a wall of silence when you ask for questions). So be prepared ahead of time to get them to talking ON THE SUBJECT.

VI BEGIN ORGANIZATION OF A COORDINATING GROUP

1. Have a person ready to briefly sum up the discussion and make a motion to organize a coordinating group.

VII TEMPORARY OFFICERS

After the organizational motion has passed, the chairman of the meeting will then call for the election of a temporary chairman and secretary for the new organization (usually the temporary chairman and secretary of the meeting are re-elected. But by putting it on the floor it gives all of the persons present a chance to participate).

VIII COMMITTEES

Temporary chairman appoints committees for next organization meeting

1. Constitutional Committee (5 persons)
   Refer this committee to a model of a coordinating group constitution.

2. Appoint a "NAME" Committee (3 persons)

IX OTHER COMMITTEES

Give everyone at the meeting some responsibility. Put them on a committee for next meeting. (Instruct them to bring in written reports).

1. Circular Committee - Appoint a person from each section to give out the circulars for the next meeting.

2. Telephone Committee - A good committee for housewives and elderly ladies who cannot leave home. Have them call the people in their neighborhoods.

3. Refreshment Committee - Plan refreshments for meeting.

4. Door Prize Committee - Get neighborhood businesses to donate door prizes.

5. Ministerial Committee - To contact all ministers in the area and see to it that church announcements are made about the meeting.

6. Letter Committee - Help send out letters. Use business or school mimeograph machines (use the same source you used for sending out letters for the first meeting).

7. Organization Committee - To recommend and carry out precinct organizations.

X SET A DATE AND TIME FOR NEXT MEETING (Have this already planned in your mind).

XI CLOSE WITH PRAYER AND ALLOW TIME FOR FELLOWSHIP (Some of the best results of the meeting will come out of this period.

XII WHILE IT IS FRESH IN THEIR MINDS, HAVE TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN SEND OUT LETTERS OF CONGRADULATIONS TO EVERY MEMBER PRESENT THE VERY NEXT DAY.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

TIPS FOR A CHAIRMAN

1. Try to appoint committeemen that fit the job. Example: for Circular Committee - appoint school teachers, insurance men or church clerks. These persons usually have access to paper and mimeograph machines.

2. It's easy to appoint a committee, but the success of the committee depends upon your guidance. KEEP BEHIND THEM. Make them feel Important because they are Important.

STEP 3

I OPEN WITH PRAYER AND SONG

II TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN GREETS THE PEOPLE AND GIVES PURPOSE OF MEETING

5 MIN.

1. To complete organization of a coordinating, a new and dynamic organization for increasing the Negro vote.

2. Reading of the minutes of the first meeting.

III HAVE A SPEAKER GIVE DOWN TO EARTH DISCUSSION ON THE VALUE OF VOTING

5 MIN. (Base talk on voting in relation to our meat and bread, our dollars and cents, our children's welfare.)

IV HAVE ANOTHER SPEAKER EXPLAIN THE HOW AND WHY OF A COORDINATING GROUP MOVEMENT

MIN.

V QUESTION AND DISCUSSION PERIOD

10 MIN. Keep the ball moving by having two or three persons in the audience prepared to ask the few few questions (People are funny. They will all sit back in a wall of silence when you ask for questions.) So be prepared ahead of time to get them talking ON THE SUBJECT.

   (b) Have the chairman read the entire report.

   (c) Ask for questions.

   (d) Have a person ready when the questions lag to sanction the report and make a motion that it be received and adopted.

9. Organization Committee

VII APPOINT A NOMINATING COMMITTEE

1. W-A-R-N-I-N-G This committee can either make or break your organization. Make sure that their hands are clean.

2. Again explain that for obvious reasons the officers should not be the heads of political groups or persons usually identified with political parties.

VIII HAVE A MOTION MADE THAT THE COMMITTEE ALREADY FORMED BE MADE STANDING COMMITTEES

IX SET DATE AND PLACE OF NEXT MEETING (Two weeks later to keep the fire from dying out).

1. I-M-P-O-R-T-A-N-T In building up your third meeting, use the same steps you used for the first two meetings plus a few more steps.

X SEE "A SHORT CUT IN ORGANIZING" AT BOTTOM OF PAGE

XI CLOSE MEETING AND JOIN IN REFRESHMENTS AND FELLOWSHIP

* * * * * * * * * * * *

TIPS FOR CHAIRMAN

Get everything possible you can get out of a meeting without boring the people

1. If this second interested Citizens Meeting has moved along smoothly, and you have some time, try this: " A Short Cut In Organizing".

(a) Divide those present into precinct groups. Example: All persons living in Precinct One sit in this section; all persons living in Precinct Two sit in this section, etc. Before hand, have the boundaries of the precincts available. Most people do not know their precincts.

(b) Let them form temporary precinct committees with a temporary chairman and secretary.

(c) Give each temporary precinct committee chairman a copy of step 4 - "How to Organize a Precinct or Neighborhood Club for Getting Out The Vote".

(d) Let the group study this plan and urge them to bring as many people as possible from their neighborhood to the next meeting where they will receive more tips and help in calling their first neighborhood meeting.

DO NOT USE THIS SHORT CUT IF YOU FEEL THE TIME ISN'T RIPE!!

HOW TO ORGANIZE A PRECINCT OR NEIGHBORHOOD CLUB FOR REGISTRATION AND GETTING OUT VOTERS

STEP 5

I FIRST HAVE A PLANNING MEETING WITH A FEW KEY PEOPLE IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD TO PLAN A LARGE NEIGHBORHOOD OR PRECINCT MEETING

1. Elect a temporary chairman and secretary from this group.

VI PLAN LIGHT REFRESHMENTS. (Your best results are sometimes obtained while people are standing around eating)

VII INVITE THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY OF YOUR COORDINATING GROUP TO HELP YOU TO PLAN YOUR MEETING.

VIII REMEMBER THIS MEETING IS FOR THE PEOPLE IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD OR PRECINCT SO BE SURE TO MAKE THIS POINT CLEAR IN YOUR LETTERS AND LEAFLETS.

VI. BEGIN PRECINCT ORGANIZATION
1. Have a person ready to briefly sum up the discussion and make a motion to organize a precinct club.

VII. TEMPORARY OFFICERS
After the organizational motion has passed, the chairman of the meeting will then call for the election of a temporary chairman and a temporary secretary for the new organization (Usually the temporary chairman and the temporary secretary of the meeting are re-elected. But putting it on the floor gives all of the persons present a chance to participate).

VIII. COMMITTEES
The elected temporaty chairman will then appoint committees for the next organization meeting.

1. Constitutional Committee (5 persons)
Refer this committee to Model Precinct Constitution.

2. Nominating Committee (5persons)
Instruct this committee to have ready a slate of officers including president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, chaplain and sergeant-at- arms (This will save time if the group adopts the slate of officers given by the Model Constitution).

IX. OTHER COMMITTEES
Try to give everyone at the meeting some responsibility. Put them on committees and request that they give their reports in writing at the next meeting.

1. Circular Committee
   Appoint a person from each section to give out the circulars for the next meeting.

2. Phone Committee
   A good committee for housewives and elderly ladies who cannot leave home. Have them call the people in their neighborhoods.

TIPS FOR TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN

You have leadership responsibility. You cannot go home at the close of the meeting and remain idle until the next meeting. To insure a good meeting, you must:

1. Make an early check with your committee chairmen and see if they are doing their jobs.

2. Good meetings are PLANNED not BORN.

GOING INTO ACTION

IF YOU HAVE COME THIS FAR, YOU KNOW HOW TO ORGANIZE

NOW LET'S LEARN HOW TO REGISTER.

SET UP REGULAR MEETINGS OF THE COORDINATING GROUP.

I. ESTABLISH BUDGET, CENTRAL OFFICE AND PLANS

II. HEAR REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES AND PRECINCTS

III. COORDINATE ALL REGISTRATION ACTIVITIES

———0———

At this point if you have not contacted your public officials, send a committee (do not go alone) to see these officials if possible:

1. The Registrar
2. The Tax Collector
3. The Sheriff
4. The Judge of the Superior Court or Chief Judge
5. The Mayor
6. The Chief of Police
7. The Superintendent of Schools

Ask their cooperation in teaching our people good citizenship thru proper use of the ballot. Tell them we are interested in electing the best men for public office. Assure them that we, as good citizens, are interested in solving our problems locally.

If you encounter difficulties, be sure you have witnesses; get names, dates, times and places.

COURTHOUSE PROGRAM

One of the most effective types of registration activities is to contact citizens as they make tax returns, pay taxes and purchase auto tags as well as drivers licenses. These steps are suggested:

I. In your conferences with the Registrar, Tax Collector and Sheriff, secure permission to place a small committee in the courthouse to contact unregistered citizens and encourage them to go to the Registration Office while in the building.

II. The Courthouse Committee of the coordinating group should supervise activities and see that there is a small group, 2 to 5, at the courthouse every day.

III. Precinct courthouse committees, youth groups, churches, public and private schools should be asked to furnish volunteers for daily courthouse coverage.

CHURCH PARTICIPATION PROGRAM

SUGGESTED COMMUNICATION TO MINISTERS

To: Dedicated and Loyal Ministers

Object: To increase the number of votersin the State of Georgia through pastorial leadership and knowledge of human nature, probably during the last month of a campaign.

I EXPLANATION - A Crash Program is an emergency plan that can be carried out through leadership, skill, ingenuity and enthusiasm. There can be no negative thinking. - All Action and thoughts Must be POSITIVE!

II Here are Some Suggested Plans for a Minister to Use Along with His Own Valuable Knowledge of People:

1. Sell the idea to the official board of your church.

2. Set a goal for the number of New Voters.

3. Have at least two Sunday Sermons on Citizenship during the month.

   a. Encourage the non-voter to bedome a qualified voter.
   b. Encourage the qualified voter to persuade at least one non-voter to become a qualified voter.
   c. After EACH SERMON have the ushers pass out to the congregation a leaflet on "How to become a Qualified Voter" in your area. (these will be furnished by the coordinating Committee).

4. Set up Information and Aid Committee to help people get over the idea that it is difficult to register. (Many people feel too self conscious to ask for help, but they would gladly accept help if it is made convenient and non conspicuous).

5. Arrang 30-Minute Citizenship Clinic after service.

III THE PERSONAL TOUCH - YOU, more than anyone else, know what this means to a layman. We will cooperate in every way possible, call upon us.

1. If you can arrange to work with the Information and Aid Committee, your just being with them will greatly aid their success.

2. If you can arrange to be at the Registrar's Office on a certain day, it will inspire your members to work for a greater registration.

IV Again we repeat, you know better than anyone else "how to lead your people." If any of these suggestions interfere with your church program disregard them. We only ask that you help us put a large number of new voters on the books before the drive ends.

ORGANIZING A VOTER REGISTRATION CAMPAIGN

Voter- registration should be a continuing campaign, but it cannot be done effectively by two or three persons, no matter how dedicated they may be. They cannot see and persuade people to register sufficiently to cause office-seekers to want the Negro vote. The same energy, behind a plan, will secure the numbers of registered voters one individual can get times the total number of good workers used. But certain basic steps are necessary, adjusted according to conditions:

1. Subject to steps 1-4, pages 5-10 and under steps 5-7, pages 11-13,

2. Next, be sure to contact the County registrar, sheriff, judge, school superintendent, mayor and/or chief of police. Do not send one person, it must be a committee of several persons .

3. Set up a plan, if not like the one outlined; be sure to follow a system.

4. No plan really succeeds without block workers; get as many as possible.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR BLOCK WORKERS OR BLOCK CANVASSERS

(Mimeograph and give to each worker, pages 25, 26, and 27).

1. Assign one worker to each block, apartment or section of a block street or road, depending upon the number of families residing there. A worker should not be given more families than he or she has time to contact: 5, 10, 15 or not more than 25.

If two or more workers live in the same block, divide it between them in specific parts. Begin at one corner, best, the northwest corner, and circle the block without crossing the street, turning right at each corner. Call at each house or apartment, in order. Work around alleys as shown figures 3 and 4. In this way, a worker can be sure of not missing a single house.

Section A. One worker - 7 houses

B. One worker - 6 houses

C. One worker - 5 houses

When streets or roads curve and are not blocked, assign one worker to a section of each street, with a minimum number of houses.

2. Give to each worker or canvasser sufficient "Census Sheets" for his section; ask him to fill them out as he works and turn them in promptly. (Check each item on the Census Sheet Carefully.)

A. First, fill out the top of the form in full, before starting to work.

B. House, R. F. D. or Box No. place the numbers before each name.

C. Name of citizen canvassed should be written plainly.

D. Registered-Place a check mark (✓) if "yes", an (✗) is "no" and show the date he plans to register.

E. Wish Transportation? If it is provided and needed, check (✓).

F. Will Get How Many - Urge the registered citizen to get others to do so and insert the number he agrees to get (1 to 3, or more).

G. Voted in Three Years. Insert "Yes" or "No" - This is important; by law the name will be dropped if one fails to vote in two years. In that case fill out a "Postal Card Request to Registrars", have him to sign and mail it.

H. Address Correct - Many persons move and do not notify the Registrar; If so, check (✓) - In each case, fill out a card, have it signed and mailed to the Board of Registrars, County Courthouse.

I. Paid or Will Pay - Insert date, if dues or contributions are solicited.

J. Telephone No. or Other Notes - If citizen is not at home, check (✓); or column may be used for other notations.

K. Be sure to use a separate sheet for each street in your block or assignment, even if there are only one or two voters on the street. If there are no persons 18 years of age or over living on the street, turn in a sheet for it marked: "None Eligible" in the space for names.

L. Turn in each sheet to your precinct leader as it is finished; indicate date.

"GET OUT THE VOTE"

The Voters Registration Program in your area will be as dead as a doornail if the Qualified Voter STAY AT HOME on election day. Don't take it for granted that people are going to vote. Act Now!! After election day will be too late.

Don't use the shotgun technique, find out who is qualified to vote and aim all of your efforts straight at the oualified VOTER.

A. Secure a list of registered voters from the registrar's office; Look up telephone numbers.

1. Prepare a personal contact card and a poll watcher's card for each qualified voter. By use of carbon paper they can be prepared at one time from Voter's List.

a. The contact card is the card used by volunteer block leaders to make personal contact with each voter.

b. On this card, in the following order, put the voter's address, name and phone number.

CONTACT CARD
201 Smith St.
John Doe
PL 3-9184

3" X 5"

Here are the groups at which you should take special aim.

2. Now divide these cards according to addresses into units of no more than eight (8) each. (ex. if eight (8) voters live in the 200 block of Smith Street, take these persons' cards and wrap a rubber band around them. Now you have a unit of cards).

3. Find a volunteer voter in this unit who will contact the other seven (7) voters in the 200 block Smith St. (You will be surprised to find out that a simple phone call is all that is needed sometimes to secure a good volunteer.)

B. Select enough poll watchers to cover every voting place all day. The poll watcher's card is used by the poll watchers at each voting place.

1. This card should contain, in the following order, name (last name first), address and phone number. 3" X 5"

POLL WATCHER'S CARD
201 Smith St.
John Doe
PL 3-9184

2. These cards should be filed in alphabetical order according to precinct or voting districts (A shoe box makes a good file).

3. These cards will be used at the polls by the poll watchers. They will pull the voters' cards as they come to the polls and notify their headquarters about tardy voters.

C. Divide the voters list into groups of 25 to 50 voters, assign one list to each telephone worker to call twice, once the week before election, and a second time the day before election.

ORGANIZATION

I. VOTING DISTRICT HEADQUARTERS AND CHAIRMAN

Each voting district should have a headquarters (someone's home will do) and a Precinct or District Chairman.

1. Headquarters -- a base for the "get out the vote project."

2. Headquarters Chairman -- it is the duty of the Headquarters Chairman to direct the operation.

II. WORKERS NEEDED ON ELECTION DAY

1. Cars for transportation (2 cars on call at the Voting District Headquarters).

2. Baby sitters (2 each on call at the Baby Sitters Headquarters).

3. Poll watchers (2 watchers each on two hour shifts). It will be the duty of these workers to report to headquarters the names of tardy voters. Headquarters in turn will contact these voters and get them to the polls. (Use your block workers).

4. Telephone workers, one for every 25 numbers, to call mostly in the evening.

5. Refreshment Committee -- this committee will furnish hot coffee, donuts, etc., to the workers.

III. Time is short, adapt this information to fit your needs, but above all, it is important that you GET STARTED. No alibis after election, put ACTION into your Voter Registration Program.

IV. When candidates for office learn that you are organized and have a representative number of registered voters, they will seek to contact you. If they don't, let them know about your organization and wait until they seek your support.

1. Meet with them in Committee and assure them of your interest in electing qualified officials.

2. Make no definite promises, but adopt a procedure for screening and hearing the platforms of all candidates.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Be sure to notify all voters as to the opening and closing hours of the polls. Urge voters to cast their ballots before going to work. TOO EARLY is better than TOO LATE.

STATEWIDE REGISTRATION COMMITTEE

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND AS A BASIS FOR A GEORGIA VOT R-REGISTRATION CAMPAIGN

The Statewide Registration Committee was organized by the Georgia Voters League in 1957 for several reasons and with certain functional objectives:

1. To permit citizens and organizations to participate, who would not work with the political, though non-partisan, Georgia Voters League.

2. To achieve a non-partisan, tax-exempt status for soliciting contributions.

3. For support of all religious, political, fraternal and civic organizations.

4. To appeal especially to youth, young adults and public school officials.

5. To conduct year-round voter-registration, as well as, special campaigns.

To overcome a basic difficulty, a citizenship clinic was held in Macon, with special appeal to high school and college students, for the purpose of having groups to study and learn fundamentals of organizing, details of Georgia's new registration law and to inspire county groups to organize instead of working as individuals as they had been doing. With the help of the NAACP and other organizations, a citizenship manual was prepared, which has been amended from time to time as new problems arise. This clinic was so successful that a series of seven such clinics was carried out in 1958:

Date		Location	Congressional Districts	Counties
February	7	Griffin	Fourth	7
	14	Americus	Third	7
	21	Savannah	First	9
	28	Macon	Sixth and Tenth	9
March	7	Waycross	Eighth	8
	14	Atlanta	Fifth, Seventh and Ninth	9
	21	Albany	Second	6 Total 55

Due to lack of funds, only one clinic was held during 1959, in Macon, at the time of the semi-annual meeting of the Georgia Voters League. None were held in 1960, but this year we have had three: Waycross, Oct. 14; Atlanta, Oct. 21 and Macon, Oct. 28. There have never been sufficient funds to follow up these clinics with paid staff and expenses. Nevertheless, it is estimated that the number of registered voters has been increased from 159,000 in 1957 to nearly 200,000. This committee is the only statewide group working, except the NAACP, which conducted campaigns in Savannah, Macon and Decatur. The committee membership is statewide, as follows:

Louisianan Defends Vote Discrimination In South

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., says whites in some areas of the South oppose Negro voting because they fear 'Negroes in charge of public office without qualifications."

Ellender commented Wednesday in an exchange with Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., over the civil rights bill.

The Louisiana senator said there is discrimination in some areas with large Negro populations because the few whites "would be scared to death' to have Negroes without qualifications in government positions.

He said that 'some times, and for good reasons, some Negroes do not register to vote.'

Ellender told Humphrey that 'if you knew the capabilities of these people, the senator would also have some fear about putting these people in charge of the government.'

"The senator from Minnesota has not lived in the South," Ellender went on. "The situation does not exist in the state of Minnesota that has existed in some counties.

'In the state of Mississippi,' the ratio of Negroes to whites is three to one in some counties.

"In many instances, the reasons why the voting rights were not made possible, is that the white people in those counties who are in the minority are afraid they would be outvoted.

"In my state we have probably four or five parishes (counties) in which the Negroes predominate and where some discrimination is likely to occur."

Humphrey said he felt Ellender had been completely frank and commented that he believed Louisiana as a whole did allow many Negroes to vote.

But the Minnesotan insisted there should be no discrimination at all. The Constitution does not recognize second class citizens anywhere, he said.

Ellender noted that President Kennedy had told a news conference it would be unwise for a President to have power to shut off federal funds to a state where discrimination is practiced after the Civil Rights Commission had made such a recommendation.

The Louisiana senator dug back into speeches President Johnson made as a freshman senator in 1949 in which he opposed any liberalizing of the Senate's cloture rule. Ellender interpreted this as endorsement of the right to filibuster.

Ellender said Johnson also in that year opposed anti-poll tax legislation with the argument that the Constitution gave sates the right to determine the qualifications of voters.

But the pending bill, Ellender noted, would establish a presumption that anyone possessing a sixth grade education meets any literacy test qualification set up by a state.

When Ellender criticized the voting rights section of the bill, Humphrey interrupted to note that in some 200 counties less than 5 per cent of the eligible Negro voters were registered.

Ellender replied that in some counties where Negroes outnumber whites the whites are "scar-to death' to let Negroes vote for fear that unqualified officials would be elected.

Humphrey said Ellender was admitting that Negroes had been denied the right to vote, a denial of constitutional rights.

Ellender replied that in most Southern counties, including the parishes of Louisiana, qualified Negroes now were registered.

Humphrey said that in 43 of the 81 counties of Mississipi less than 1 per cent of the adult Negro population had been registered.

Ellender held the floor 3½ hours. He finally relinquished it but only after he obtained unanimous consent to finish his remarks later and have them count as one speech. Under the rules, each senator is entitled to two speeches on the motion to take up.

Proponents of the bill did not object to Ellenders request.

Senator Admits Discrimination In Louisiana

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Southern senator Wednesday frankly acknowledged discrimination by white officials against Negro voters in some areas during sharp Senate debate on the civil rights bill.

The statement came in some of the liveliest debate so far as the Senate moved into the third day of discussion on the sweeping rights bill passed by the House a month ago.

The administration-supported bill is designed to meet the demands of Negroes for equality in voting, public accommodations, education, employment and use of federal funds in state aid programs.

Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem., La.) had hardly started a lengthy speech against the bill when liberals made good on their pledge to challenge statements of Southerners, instead of sitting silently in hopes of draining off the talkathon.

Humphrey Challenges

Senate Democratic whip Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis, floor manager for the administration-backed rights bill, questioned Ellender about Negro voter registration in the South.

"Did the senator know," Humphrey asked, "that there are 200 counties where less than 5 per cent of the Negroes of voting age are registered?"

Ellender conceded this was true in some counties where the ratio of Negroes to whites is 2 to 1. The reason, he said, was "that the few whites in those counties would be scared to death to leave the Negroes in charge of public office without qualification."

Humphrey — "Then what the senator from Louisiana is saying, in other words, is that while the whites are in the minority, they do prevent the colored majority from registering to vote?"

Ellender—"I do."

But Ellender said progress was being made and he was proud of that. "I just say you have to do this by regular course," Ellender said. "You can't force this like this bill does."

Humphrey replied that the Constitution "clearly says you can't deny the right to vote to a person because of race or color."

"That's all we're trying to do, Senator," the Democratic whip told Ellender, "just make sure there is no discrimination in this area."

Ellender Tells the Truth

Senator Ellender, one of the southern senators who can get both feet in his mouth at the same time, embarrassed his Dixie colleagues last week when he came right out and said that Negro voters are discriminated against in the South.

The senator admitted that where Negroes are in the majority they are kept out of office and away from the polls by the white minority because the whites don't believe they are "qualified" and have no intention of permitting majority rule.

News services described other southerners as "shocked." The shock did not stem from disbelief in what Senator Ellender said. Everybody knows that what he said is true and has been true for the past seventy five years. What was shocking was that a senator should admit that truth on the senate floor.

Southerners have lived with the Big Lie in Congress for many years. They have solemnly pretended that no Negro is denied the right to vote in the south and that the only restraint on Negro vote was the lack of qualification on the part of Negroes who sought to cast the ballot.

It will be interesting to see what other southern senators will say now that Mr. Ellender has blurted out the truth. No matter what they say their listeners will know that the Ellender version is correct and that Negroes are denied the right to vote and hold office solely because of race.

It does not matter that these facts were always known. They certainly were. The difference is that the accused has confessed his crime in open court and can no longer claim that he must be considered innocent until proven guilty.

History often turns on small incidents, on things that seem small at the time of their happening. Senator Ellender's naive remarks, small in themselves, may turn the tide against the filibuster.

Leander Perez: King of the Bayou Lands

EDITOR'S NOTE—A millionaire segregationist, who tells archbishops and admirals to go to hell, runs a section of Louisiana bayou country like a fiefdom. Here's a fascinating portrait of the man who runs Plaquemines Parish, come National Guard, Bobby Kennedy or the atom bomb.

By SID MOODY

POINTE A LA HACHE, La., May 2 (AP) — Leander Perez, the millionaire - segregationist - swampland Caesar who dwells as deep in the deep South as you can go without falling into the Gulf of Mexico, thumped a plump fist on his desk.

"Tell me, what is the greatest problem facing the Negroes of the world today?"

The mind hunted for a safe, noncommittal response to hide behind. "Poverty? Lack of education?"

"Young man," his voice rose and his eyes squinted coldly behind his silver-rimmed glasses, "you show you not only lack powers of observation but you display crass ignorance! You know damn well it's nothing more than the Communist conspiracy to stir up racist hate!"

The words were spat out like an oath. Then Perez walked over and playfully tousled his visitor's hair.

THAT'S LEANDER. A man whose anger has taken him into battle with his state, his nation and its navy, great corporations, his church. A man who freely expresses his contempt, even hatred, for those who press for civil rights for Negroes. And an engaging man with a ready laugh, a genial guide through the bayou lands where he reigns as all but absolute king.

Leander Perez is also a man:

—Who's told the U.S. Navy and the archbishop of New Orleans Catholic archdiocese to go to hell in just those words.

—Who's become worth millions while earning an official salary that never reached much beyond $6,500 a year.

—Who calls civil rights demonstrations "anarchy backed up by the U.S. attorney general" and who says he'll handcuff Bobby Kennedy and James Farmer, head of CORE, if they ever enter his terri-

LEANDER PEREZ—CZAR OF PLAQUEMINES PARISH

Inside the Parish, Opposition Is Short-Lived

French, Spanish, English and Irish. There are about 6,000 Negroes. The parish is connected to the outside by only two roads and in this isolation a proud, violence-prone, independent culture has developed.

It might have remained a geographical curiosity had it not been for a triple discovery — Leander Perez, sulphur and oil. Perez was found first.

Son of a small planter, a graduate of Tulane and a struggling attorney, he seized his opportunity in 1919 at the age of 28 when the judge of Plaquemines drowned. The governor had appointed a successor who barricaded the courthouse. But Perez, who had his own faction had himself sworn in as judge on the lawn outside and went on to win a legal battle and was seated as the proper office holder.

IN 1924 HE became district attorney, which meant he was overseer of every piece of county machinery, from the election board to the county councilmen (called the police jury in Louisiana). That for Huey Long. His opponent got nine.

"WE'LL DO better next time," said Sheriff L. A. Mereaux. They did. In 1932 there were 3,152 votes for Gov. O. K. Allen. His opponent: 0. The 1930 census completed that August showed one district had a population of 912. Babies, aged, white, Negro — every one. It cast 913 ballots three months later."

"The muskrats are voting down there," said the cynical in New Orleans.

Once, after five parish election commissioners had been convicted of vote fraud, Perez calmly explained: "Some of these Plaquemines folks didn't have any way of getting to the polls, so they used to ask their friends to cast votes for them. That's all that happened."

It was almost as hard to get on the ballot as to win a vote. In 1931 a group of dissidents sought out the parish Democratic committee to get on the ballot, only they couldn't find the committee or even who its chairman was. After the filing deadline, it turned out Perez' father had says the judge. "We don't want any one to get jealous." But, for instance, just one small section with five or six wells pumps $1,800 a day in taxes and royalties into parish coffers. Currently the parish is spending $24 million for school, road and other improvements "and it won't cost taxpayers a penny," boasts the judge.

NOT THAT IT hasn't been a struggle. In 1944 the state mobilized 500 National Guardsmen who marched into the parish and took over the courthouse here after Perez had refused to accept the governor's appointment of an interim sheriff. Perez mobilized his own force armed with rifles and shotguns, barricaded the courthouse and threatened to shoot anyone passing his flaming roadblock of oil-soaked oyster shells. But although his men fled without a shot, Perez won an eventual victory by getting his candidate elected.

Perez did lose one battle 20 years earlier. He had to flee across the Mississippi by rowboat in the dark of night when irate muskrat trappers felt he was behind a sudden tripling of trapping fees and came looking for him.

He has fought industry, too, when Freeport Sulphur was having troubles with the parish, Perez got the legislature to triple the tax on minerals mined. Compromise was reached soon after. But Perez doesn't want too many companies coming in with outside employes and upsetting the Plaquemines' way of life. When National Lead was looking for a plant site in the parish, Perez told one of their representatives: "Sir, you are wasting your time. I don't want you down here. Now with the Freeport Sulphur crowd, we've got to know them and like having them around, but we don't want any more." They didn't come.

HE'S BEEN AT war with the Navy over its base at Belle Chasse. Just last year, to keep Negro servicemen out of the parish and their children out of its schools, he declared Plaquemines off limits to Naval personnel. "We say the hell with you, the U.S. government," the judge told

MILLIONAIRE SEGREGATIONIST PEREZ IS APPLAUDED BY PICKETS AT INTEGRATED SCHOOL

An Excommunicated Roman Catholic, Perez Has Fought the Church and the Government with its prying officials and restrictive regulations.

He read the girls from the Plaquemines charter. ". . . local self government sustains, supports and keeps alive the whole fabric of the nation's political life . . .," he read and looked up benignly.

"Doesn't that bring you back to the days of Thomas Jefferson?" The girls gave each other knowing grins that looked more like they came from the days of big government. Perez then took them on a tour of the newly refurbished courthouse, where once he stood off the National Guard, and its new $250,000 jail which he'd never visited before.

"Do you know why this water fountain is for whites only?" he asked. "Because almost all Negroes have communicable diseases. You can look up the statistics when you get back to New York." Then he handed every one a cigarette lighter that played "Dixie" when lit. "We ordered a gross of them," he said. They were made in Japan.

"DO YOU HAVE those electric cattle prods?" asked a girl as Perez showed off the county armory of assorted guns." We have everything, even something they haven't used elsewhere. Bushels of handcuffs. If they want trouble, this is the place to come. If Bobby Kennedy wants to invade Plaquemines, tell him he better bring the 101st Airborne Division," he laughed. The girls wanted into the cell block where they kept Negro women prisoners.

"We're with you," they told the sole inmate when Perez was out of earshot, "We mean REALLY with you." The prisoner stared bug-eyed at them.

Perez, who can narrow his eyes to a cold glint, explained a secret of his success. "You got to look 'em in the eye and never wince." One of the girls stared hard back at him until he chuckled and opened the door into the morgue.

"Is this for white only?" asked Bert Swanson, the girls' professor.

"I don't think so," answered the judge, ignoring the irony.

THEN HE playfully clanged shut a cell door on the girls. They giggled. "Don't let these Yankees out," the judge told the jailer.

Afterwards the judge stood everyone to a coke and a po' boy sandwich, a vast concoction of meat balls and a huge roll. A guest asked between chaws: "What about that time Earl Long asked you 'Whatcha gonna do, Leander, now that the feds have the atom bomb?' "

Perez removed his ever present cigar and its amber plastic holder from his mouth. "Well," he grinned, "we're still here. No bomb's hit yet."

And if it does, literally or figuratively, Perez said he has only to pick up a phone to rouse the citizentry of Plaquemines, latter day minutemen, he said, ready to bear arms to defend their parish.

THE JUDGE BADE farewell to the girls, asked them to come back and visit his fort where he'll put the Freedom Riders and saw them off across the river on his free ferry. On board a deckhand told them: "Sorry, you're on the wrong side. This side is for Negroes."

The girls scowled, tittered and moved obediently to the other side as the ferry moved into the current, beginning their long trip back to Sarah Lawrence. Behind, the river swirled in its timeless path past the levee. One was reminded of a veulogy spoken in 1960 when Perez stepped down as district attorney.

"History is not written by indecisive Milquetoast figures," said Rep. F. Edward Hebert of Louisiana, "but by controversial men who had something to say. He (Perez) is like Tennyson's brook. 'Men may come and go but I go on forever'."

like an oath. Then Perez walked over and playfully tousled his visitor's hair.

—Who charges President Johnson is "trying to buy an election with a fake WPA" through his war on poverty program.

—Who thinks Walter Reuther and David Dubinsky controlled the 1960 presidential election and will repeat in 1964 and who thinks Zionist Jews "are the most dangerous people in this country today."

—Who headed the Dixiecrat forces in the 1948 presidential elections, who was a power alongside the late Huey Long and has remained a power in Louisiana although his parish (county) has a population of only 24,000, and who says of his rivals "They're in politics, I'm in government."

—Who says there are only two kinds of Negroes: "Bad ones are niggers and good ones are darkies."

FORTY YEARS ago Perez' parish, Plaquemines, was hardly a place of which dreams — or kingdoms — are made. It was — and is—mostly swamp, populated by more water moccasins, muskrats and mosquitoes than people. It stretches along the Mississippi below New Orleans following the great river to the Gulf. The pirate Jean Lafitte hid out in the bayous of Plaquemines which over the centuries have become the home of a mixture of Slavs,

It might have remained a geographical curiosity had it not been for a triple discovery — Leander Perez, sulphur and oil. Perez was found first.

IN 1924 HE became district attorney, which meant he was overseer of every piece of county machinery, from the election board to the county councilmen (called the police jury in Louisiana). That was in the traditional path to power but Perez also dd something that wasn't. He managed to have passed in the state legislature a constitutional amendment concerning levee boards. Levee boards were responsible for building and maintaining the dikes that held back the Mississippi. To help defray their expenses the state allowed them to sell or lease certain lands. Perez' amendment stipulated that if a levee board was entirely within the borders of a parish (and Plaquemines' was) those revenues would be the responsibility of the police jury, not the levee board. When they struck a sunken sea of oil on those levee board lands, Perez and his parish were swept along on a gusher of prosperity. In 1923 Perez had borrowed $1,000 from his mother-in-law to buy a $6,400 home. Fifteen years later he told a friend he'd made his first million.

The voting history of Plaquemines at those times is almost as spectacular. In 1844 a steamboat had carried voters from New Orleans downriver to Plaquemines to produce a count larger than the male population, according to New Orleans newspaper accounts. Ninety years later they'd refined things by eliminating the steamboat. In 1930 with 2,454 registered voters neighboring St. Bernards parish, where Perez was also the power, cast 3,979 votes

"WE'LL DO better next time," said Sheriff L. A. Mereaux. They did. In 1932 there were 3,152 votes for Gov. O. K. Allen. His opponent: 0. The 1930 census completed that August showed one district had a population of 912. Babies, aged, white, Negro — every one. It cast 913 ballots three months later."

"The muskrats are voting down there," said the cynical in New Orleans.

Once, after five parish election commissioners had been convicted of vote fraud, Perez calmly explained: "Some of these Plaquemines folks didn't have any way of getting to the polls, so they used to ask their friends to cast votes for them. That's all that happened."

It was almost as hard to get on the ballot as to win a vote. In 1931 a group of dissidents sought out the parish Democratic committee to get on the ballot, only they couldn't find the committee or even who its chairman was. After the filing deadline, it turned out Perez' father had been named chairman, but no one had bothered to tell him. The dissenters sued their way onto the ballot but lost anyway.

MEANWHILE Perez, universally known as "judge" because of his first public job, extended his power from behind Plaquemines. Never a state official, he nonetheless had an almost perfect attendance record at the state legislature. He was behind the effort that saved Huey Long from impeachment as governor. St. Bernards provided the razor-thin margin that made Huey's son, Russell, a U. S. senator years later. How did such a small tail as Plaquemines wag such a large dog as Louisiana?

"Brains," says Hermann Deutsch, columnist for the New Orleans States-Item and a veteran recorder of Louisiana politics. As the judge himself said when asked who was behind a particularly clever maneuver in the parish: "Who the hell else has any ideas in Plaquemines?"

But there has been muscle, too. Perez doesn't like strangers nosing about the parish and reportedly keeps a private detective checking around. A newsman making a door-to-door survey to find how people in Plaquemines really had voted in a lopsided election, found the sheriff had learned of his mission by the time he'd reached the fourth house. More recently Perez has set aside an ancient fortress as a jail for any freedom riders who might invade the parish. It's reachable only by boat across snake-swarming bayous.

A WHITE GIRL who came down from New Orleans to watch a Negro religious celebration was called a Communist by seriff's deputies and thrown in jail for "disturbing the peace."

If it weren't for the mosqultoes and chiggers, Plaquemines would be a pleasant place to live. Perez' rule provides free ferries across the river, free boat yards for the parish fishermen, a tax rate of about $8 a year on an $11,000 home.

"We levy taxes just to keep people interested in government," says the judge.

He won't say how much revenue the parish derives from the more than $200 million in sulphur and oil taken annually from the bountiful bayous. "That's a secret," looking for him.

He has fought industry, too, when Freeport Sulphur was having troubles with the parish, Perez got the legislature to triple the tax on minerals mined. Compromise was reached soon after. But Perez doesn't want too many companies coming in with outside employes and upsetting the Plaquemines' way of life. When National Lead was looking for a plant site in the parish, Perez told one of their representatives: "Sir, you are wasting your time. I don't want you down here. Now with the Freeport Sulphur crowd, we've got to know them and like having them around, but we don't want any more." They didn't come.

HE'S BEEN AT war with the Navy over its base at Belle Chasse. Just last year, to keep Negro servicemen out of the parish and their children out of its schools, he declared Plaquemines off limits to Naval personnel. "We say the hell with you, the U.S. government," the judge told Read Adm. Charles Layman, district commandant. The Pentagon, he said, was "discouraging Negro servicemen from seeking the company of their own race and encouraging them to push themselves on white girls. And you know what would happen if Negroes pursued white girls in Plaquemines parish."

To Perez, a brilliant constitutional lawyer, the Constitution provides not equality but equal rights. "Are you and I equal?" he said the other day. "I'd make a hell of a correspondent and you'd make a hell of an administrator of the public's business."

His adamant stand has caused him to be excommunicated by his archdiocese.

"I had trouble with my archbishop," said Perez, born a Catholic. "I said 'If you think you can send me to hell, I'll ask you to go to hell.'

"THEN A GROUP of my friends organized our own church. We call it the Perezbyterians," he laughed jovially.

Deutsch thinks such irreverences have lost Perez support in the state, although he has come back from his low point of several years ago when his was about the only parish not to go for Russell Long. But there's no doubt who's in charge still in Plaquemines.

At a recent meeting of the parish commissioners it was all Perez. Two other commissioners sat stolidly head in hand following the leader.

A group of girl sociology students from Sarah Lawrence college in New York were in the audience as part of a field trip they were making on changing patterns of life in the south. Few gulfs are wider than that separating the beliefs of a Leander Perez and those of a sociology student at Sarah Lawrence where spirits are young, dress is Bohemian and liberal minds quest for causes to conquer.

Perez faced them across the table. With his gray mane of hair, his square, paternal face Perez, at 72, looked like every one's favorite uncle.

"PLAQUEMINES PARISH is the best governed, best run parish to be found anywhere," he told the girls. "It's the envy of anyone who knows anything about it. It has the most home rule." Perez not only believes in states rights but parish rights as well and has all but cut his freedom off from Baton Rouge its prying officials and restrictive regulations.

He read the girls from the Plaquemines charter. ". . . local self government sustains, supports and keeps alive the whole fabric of the nation's political life . . .," he read and looked up benignly.

"Doesn't that bring you back to the days of Thomas Jefferson?" The girls gave each other knowing grins that looked more like they came from the days of big government. Perez then took them on a tour of the newly refurbished courthouse, where once he stood off the National Guard, and its new $250,000 jail which he'd never visited before.

"Do you know why this water fountain is for whites only?" he asked. "Because almost all Negroes have communicable diseases. You can look up the statistics when you get back to New York." Then he handed every one a cigarette lighter that played "Dixie" when lit. "We ordered a gross of them," he said. They were made in Japan.

"DO YOU HAVE those electric cattle prods?" asked a girl as Perez showed off the county armory of assorted guns." We have everything, even something they haven't used elsewhere. Bushels of handcuffs. If they want trouble, this is the place to come. If Bobby Kennedy wants to invade Plaquemines, tell him he better bring the 101st Airborne Division," he laughed. The girls wanted into the cell block where they kept Negro women prisoners.

"We're with you," they told the sole inmate when Perez was out of earshot, "We mean REALLY with you." The prisoner stared bug-eyed at them.

Perez, who can narrow his eyes to a cold glint, explained a secret of his success. "You got to look 'em in the eye and never wince." One of the girls stared hard back at him until he chuckled and opened the door into the morgue.

"Is this for white only?" asked Bert Swanson, the girls' professor.

"I don't think so," answered the judge, ignoring the irony.

THEN HE playfully clanged shut a cell door on the girls. They giggled. "Don't let these Yankees out," the judge told the jailer.

Afterwards the judge stood everyone to a coke and a po' boy sandwich, a vast concoction of meat balls and a huge roll. A guest asked between chaws: "What about that time Earl Long asked you 'Whatcha gonna do, Leander, now that the feds have the atom bomb?' "

Perez removed his ever present cigar and its amber plastic holder from his mouth. "Well," he grinned, "we're still here. No bomb's hit yet."

And if it does, literally or figuratively, Perez said he has only to pick up a phone to rouse the citizentry of Plaquemines, latter day minutemen, he said, ready to bear arms to defend their parish.

THE JUDGE BADE farewell to the girls, asked them to come back and visit his fort where he'll put the Freedom Riders and saw them off across the river on his free ferry. On board a deckhand told them: "Sorry, you're on the wrong side. This side is for Negroes."

The girls scowled, tittered and moved obediently to the other side as the ferry moved into the current, beginning their long trip back to Sarah Lawrence. Behind, the river swirled in its timeless path past the levee. One was reminded of a veulogy spoken in 1960 when Perez stepped down as district attorney.

"History is not written by indecisive Milquetoast figures," said Rep. F. Edward Hebert of Louisiana, "but by controversial men who had something to say. He (Perez) is like Tennyson's brook. 'Men may come and go but I go on forever'."

LOUISIANA GEODETIC SURVEY QUADRANGLE SHEETS

Vertical and horizontal control maps prepared by the Louisiana Geodetic Survey, a W.P.A. project sponsored by the Louisiana Department of Highways. The maps are printed in black on a white background with waterways shown in blue. Printed on the back of the map are tangent distances, geodetic bearings, state plane coordinates, elevations and grid azimuths. A mimeographed sheet of bench mark descriptions accompanies each map.

The Survey was discontinued in 1942 after having completed only 98 of the proposed 242 quadrangle maps.

The 98 published quadrangle maps are listed below and are also shown by shaded area on the index map printed on page 12 of this price list. Scale 1/62500.

U.S. Judges Act in E. Carroll Case

TP 7-25-62

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge Edwin F. Hunter Jr. Tuesday acted to certify 26 Negroes as the first of their race to qualify as voters in East Carroll parish in 40 years.

Judge Hunter acted after a special three - judge federal court upheld the constitutionality of the section of the 1960 civil rights act, under which Judge Hunter acted.

million said he would appeal the decision to the U.S. supreme court but indicated he was not optimistic about his chances.

DECISION NOT STAYED

The decision will not be stayed pending appeal, meaning that most of 26 Negroes will be able to vote in Saturday's Democratic primary.

The court also issued a preliminary injunction to prevent state officials from interfering in the matter. A restraining order had previously been in effect.

The decisions came after a day of hearings before U. S. Circuit Judge John Minor Wisdom. He was joined in the constitutional decision by Judge Hunter and U. S. Dist. Judge Herbert Christenberry of New Orleans. Judge Wisdom issued the injunction and also dismissed a state court suit seeking to restrain Judge Hunter.

The judges ruled, in declaring the civil rights act constitutional, that "the power of the several states must conform to the standards of the 14th and 15th amendments of the constitution of the United States."

The 14th amendment guarantees due process and the 15th gives equal protection under the law to all citizens.

Judge Hunter disapproved voter applications of four Negroes, as a result of state objections filed during a hearing Monday.

Originally, he had approved 28, but two were added during the hearing — one on motion of the justice department and one by Judge Hunter.

SERVE AS REGISTRAR

Judge Hunter took jurisdiction in the case under a portion of the civil rights act that permits a federal judge to serve as a registrar if there is no other way to prevent discrimination.

East Carroll has been without a registrar since Cecil Manning's resignation June 14, just 16 days after he was enjoined from discriminating. Judge Hunter processed the applicants July 12 at Monroe, approving 28 and rejecting 25.

During the argument of the constitutionality of the civil rights act, Judge Wisdom was joined on the bench by Judge Hunter and U.S. Dist. Judge Herbert Christenberry of New Orleans. Three-judge federal courts are often convened to decide constitutional questions.

The state's main contention was that the act was unconstitutional because it gave a judge the administrative power assigned by the U. S. constitution to the executive branch. It asked that Judge Hunter be restrained from final action on the Negroes.

This was the same ground on which a state judge, Dist. Judge Frank Voelker Sr. of Lake Providence, restrained Judge Hunter's actions last Friday. But Judge Wisdom stayed the order Monday and heard arguments Tuesday on throwing it out.

ARGUMENTS HEARD

Arguments were also heard on the justice department's request that a preliminary injunction be granted to prevent interference by state officials, including Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion and Judge Voelker.

A temporary restraining order against them was issued by Judge Wisdom Monday.

Judge Wisdom, a member of the 5th U. S. circuit court of appeals at New Orleans, sat here as a federal district judge. Judge Ben Dawkins Jr., who usually sits at Shreveport, is on assignment in Florida this month.

Federal Judge Qualifies 28 In Registration Drive

Atlanta World

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La. — As a result of an NAACP Crash Registration Program in East Carroll parish, 28 Negroes were found qualified to vote in a hearing before a U. S. District Court judge.

Fifty-three Negro applicants were given written tests in the U. S. District Court and the 28 who passed the test were then questioned by Judge Edwin F. Hunter who found them all qualified. This was the first time that voter registration had been conducted under the direction of a Federal court.

The program was organized by John M. Brooks of Richmond, Va., NAACP voter registration director, and is under the local supervision of Rev. John H. Scott, NAACP voter registration coordinator of East Carroll parish. Rev. Scott has been assisted in the drive by three NAACP field workers who are residents of East Carroll parish, Miss Erma Milikin, Miss Inez Milikin and Miss Amize L. Jefferson.

5 Win EBR School Posts; Factors in Contest Studied

By MARTHA WILSON

Results of Saturday's East Baton Rouge Parish School Board election, which swept out two incumbent appointees of Gov. Davis and left a third Davis appointee trailing and facing a runoff battle, this morning were termed an expression against the governor by a victor in the race and by a leader in the forthcoming runoff.

Another factor which emerged in the results was the heavy vote against segregationist candidates in predominantly Negro precincts.

"I think a good percentage of the vote in Ward 3 was a repudiation of the governor's board packing action," said Randall Goodwin, political newcomer who piled up a surprising 2,552 votes against incumbent appointed member Charles S. Davis and political veteran and public servant Mrs. Stella Allgbin, who received 1,519 votes and 961 votes respectively.

Second-time candidate Lloyd Rockhold, leading in a four-year [illegible] in Ward 1 over incumbent appointed member J. M. Shelton, was further in his [illegible] that the election results were repudiation of the governor. "I don't think it was a vote just against the board packing move alone, but a vote against the governor himself. All school board members he had appointed in other parishes, just to fill unexpired terms, were defeated. However, I think my victory was a result of more than sentiment against the governor. I won over 8,000 supporters in my last race and I am sure many of those who voted for me cast a personal vote for me and not against any actions of the administration."

For more stories on Saturday's Democratic primary election, turn to Pages 4-, 6-A and 12-A.

One of the defeated incumbents, Chancy Calmes, an appointee of the governor, attributed his defeat to a light vote and the "confusion created by the Baton Rouge newspaper editors." Both the State-Times and the Morning Advocate had advocated defeat of the three Davis appointees on the grounds that the governor had violated principles of home rule.

Elected outright in the first primary were incumbent Ben Peabody and W. Harry Perkins to six-year terms in Ward 1; Naylor Cragin to a two-year term in Ward 2; Irving Boudreaux, who ran against a third Davis incumbent, elected a six-year term, and Goodwin elected to a six-year term in Ward 3.

Runoff Candidates

Entering runoffs for four year terms are Rockhold and Shelton, in Ward 1, and Albert T. Furr Jr. and Acie J. Belton, a Negro, in Ward 2.

One of the pictures emerging from the election results is the confirmation of the population change which has been going on for a number in Ward 3, which has shifted the balance of power from [illegible] of professional people and newcomers from the northeastern section of the United States.

An element in Ward 3 which makes no secret of its insistence that public schools be kept open, whatever the cost, attained a near-victory in the last school board race in that ward, when incumbent segregationist T. H. Montgomery defeated a young, liberal candidate, I. R. Schneider, born in the northeast, by only 77 votes. Schneider's campaign organization of amateurs and volunteers succeeded this time with Goodwin's victory in the first primary.

Goodwin actually was drafted to run in Ward 3 and the idea of his candidacy grew out of a luncheon meeting when a group of engineers and other professionals met to discuss finding a candidate to their liking. His was among several names suggested and he was urged to run. His entire campaign fund totaled only $1800, all of it coming in contributions ranging from $5 or $10 to $50. With no backing from any political faction, his victory was said to be in part the result of intensive work by women volunteers who mailed campaign letters, conducted a telephone campaign and held numerous neighborhood coffees at which the candidate was presented.

"We just got our voters to turn out this time," Goodwin said this morning, "and usually, in a light election, it has been the rural voters from the Central school area and boxes like that who have turned out. My running was in response to a group of independent voters who came to me and asked me to consider. We were thrilled at the outcome. I think a good percentage of the vote was a repudiation of the governor's board packing action." Goodwin intends to start attending board meetings to orient himself for the time he assumes office in January.

PAGE PARTIALLY ILLEGIBLE

Another picture which emerged from the election results is the fact that winners or runoff leaders were those who had made outright statements in favor of public education or moderate statements on school segregation. Candidates who announced their opposition to federal aid to education were defeated or trailed and left facing runoffs.

Negro Candidates

Another new factor is the surprising strength shown by the two Negro candidates in the school board race. The strength actually put a Negro, Acie Belton, into a runoff for the first time. Belton, with 2,363 votes will face Albert Furr with 2,651 votes, in a runoff for a four-year post in Ward 2.

In his first statement of his campaign, Furr made the moderate announcement: "I shall strive to see that educational facilities are separate but equal."

Dupuy Anderson, a Negro, chalked up 4,757 votes in the race for a four-year post in Ward 1, with Rockhold leading with 11,545 votes and Shelton following with 9,362 votes. The runoff will be a battle for Shelton, who is a staunch segregationist.

In his campaign statement, Rockhold, a moderate, came out flatly for keeping the public schools open while Shelton stated, in announcing his candidacy, "I will resist any effort to integrate our public schools, token or otherwise."

In the Ward 1 race for a six-year post, incumbent Ben Peabody, who came out flatly for keeping public schools open, polled 14,722 votes. W. Harry Perkins, who said only that "I am a believer in separate but equal facilities and will work toward this end. I am gravely concerned with the future of our public school system," piled up the second place with 11,848 votes in his first bid for a school board post.

Lawson Lott, who said he was for "warding off big government and federal control" and said to "infer support of school integration, either by omission or implication is patently dishonest," trailed fourth with 7,579 votes. Lott was ahead only of Charles W. Young, who resigned as principal from the school system recently following an investigation of his school's financial records.

Issue Statements

In a statement thanking his supporters this morning, Rockhold said, "I'm going to continue campaigning and hope my supporters will make every effort to get out the vote. With the second primary falling on Labor Day weekend, I want to remind those of my supporters who will be out of town to cast their absentee ballots well before the deadline for absentee balloting."

Shelton said he definitely would enter the runoff and said he would like to thank all of his supporters.

The trend away from the present philosophy of the school board majority also was indicated in the results of the race for a two-year term in Ward 1. Naylor Craigin, Baton Rouge executive who made no statement regarding segregation or federal aid to education, won by nearly 3500 votes over B. W. Brannan Jr., an instrument technician at Humble Oil and Refinery Co., who ran on the following platform:

"I am opposed to federal control, in any form of our schools . . .

"I am opposed to integration and pledge a never ending right for the benefit of both races against such an encroachment upon individual rights. For me to tell you that I advocate or would willingly accept integration would, in my opinion, tell you that I believe in retarding our school growth and degrading our entire system. This I would never do. I may, at gunpoint, see such a condition, but you may rest assured I would never accept it."

Victor in the six year post in Ward 2, Irving Boudreaux, made no issue of federal aid to education. His defeated opponent, Chaney Calmes, appointed by the gov- [illegible] federal aid to edu- [illegible] of Boudreaux said: "I want to express my appreciation to all of the wonderful people who supported and encouraged me during this campaign. I shall work toward continued improvement in our fine public schools. My chief concern as school board member will be to do those things which will improve the education of all our children. Finally, I wish to thank my employer, Richards Ford Sales, who so generously let me have time off from my job to campaign for this important civic office."

Boudreaux plans to attend the school board meetings until he takes office in December.

Asked if he considers his victory a repudiation of Gov. Davis administration, he said, "I have no comment."

Calmes said, "I want to thank my many white friends for their vote and support in the recent school board election. It was a disappointment that so few people turned out to vote, however, in view of the confusion created by the Baton Rouge newspaper editors, it is understandable.

"Since I have been a member of the school board, I have attempted at all times to conduct myself in the best interest of the people and the school system as a whole. I still have several months to serve, and will continue to do my utmost to improve and upgrade our schools. If, at any time, I can be of service to you, please let me know.

"Again, I want to thank those who worked so hard and diligently in my behalf."

After the complete returns were in Saturday night, Peabody thanked the voters for their support. Said he, "I'd like to thank all the people in Baton Rouge for the vote of confidence they gave me Saturday. I want to thank all my friends who mailed cards and telephoned in my behalf and I hope I can continue to work to improve the school system here in East Baton Rouge Parish. I think we have one of the finest school systems in the whole country and we want to continue to keep it that way."

Negro Vote

In the precincts with a heavy Negro registration at St. Agnes School, E. 15th St. Fire Station, Eden Park School, Sacred Heart, Noah Street First Station, East Polk Elementary, McKinley Senior High, all in Ward 1, and Devall Construction Co. and Scotlandville High in Ward 2, votes were heavy for Negro candidates where Negroes were running and, where white candidates contended, were top heavy against strong segregationist candidates.

The total of these precincts show that Brannan, a segregationist, won 516 votes against Craigin's 2,811 votes in these boxes.

In these boxes' totals, Boudreaux won 1,556 against Calmes, a segregationist who received 47.

Also in these boxes, Peabody won 2,999, Rockhold 343, Perkins, 2,791, and Young 282, compared to the votes for segregationist candidates, which went to Lott, 230, and Shelton, 210.

Where Negro candidates were running, Anderson piled up 3,175 votes and Belton 1,692 in these boxes.

In East Carroll—

Judge Qualifies 17 More Negro Voters

MONROE—U. S. District Judge Ben C. Dawkins Jr., gave voter qualification tests to 27 East Carroll Parish Negroes here Monday and found that 17 were qualified to vote under Louisiana law. Applications of the other 10 were dismissed.

One Negro who had said he would take the test failed to show up, and his application was dismissed without prejudice.

Judge Dawkins did not register the 17 to vote. He said that the court's findings would be made known to the state and the federal government, and he set Aug. 17 as the deadline for filing objections or exceptions. If exceptions or objections are filed, they will be heard at 9:30 a.m., Aug. 20, in Shreveport.

Will Be Issued Certificate

Those who are still on the qualified list after Aug. 20 will be issued certificates which will enable them to vote. If they registered as Democrats they will be permitted to vote in the Sept. 1 Democratic primary.

Monday's hearing was the second of its kind held at Monroe. Earlier, U.S. District Judge Edwin F. Hunter had conducted similar tests for 71 East Carroll Negroes and he found 28 of them qualified. The 28 became the first of their race to vote in East Carroll when they went to the polls July 28.

No Registrar of Voters

The tests were conducted by the federal judges because East Carroll does not have a registrar of voters. The former registrar, Cecil Manning, resigned, and he has not been replaced.

The court held that there was a "pattern of discrimination" against Negro voters in East Carroll and that in the absence of a registrar it was up to the court to decide upon qualifications.

Judge Dawkins was assisted in giving Monday's tests by Alton C. Curtis, clerk of court; Thomas [illegible] court probation of-

The applicants were required to fill out a voter registration application cards as prescribed by Louisiana law. They were permitted no more than two mistakes. They were also given a citizenship test containing 12 questions of which they were required to answer eight correctly. Also they were required to write the preamble to the U.S. Constitution in their own handwriting as it was dictated. Applicants also were required to read the preamble aloud from a typewritten copy furnished them.

Action in Voter Case Is Blasted

8-9-62

MONROE, La. (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion Wednesday blasted as "harassing and intimidating tactics" a federal move to cite former East Carroll Parish voter registrar Cecil Manning for civil and criminal contempt.

The Justice Department brought the action on grounds that under the state constitution Manning, who resigned June 14, should have continued to perform his duties until a successor is picked. The East Carroll Parish police jury has not named a successor.

HEARING SLATED

A hearing on the contempt charges is scheduled next Wednesday in Monroe before U. S. Dist. Judge Ben C. Dawkins Jr.

In a statement to the Monroe Morning World, Gremillion charged that the contempt action was "designed to embarrass state officials in handling matters that are under state control."

The statement continued:

"The Justice Department in its own pleadings in this case admitted themselves that the office was vacant. These court moves by the federal government are apparently designed to place fear of federal officials into the hearts of our registrars in order that these state officials will submit to federal authority instead of following historical and legal state laws.

PLANS DEFENSE

"This appears to be the commencement of a new campaign to gather additional strength for federal authority through use of contempt procedures.

"I have been enjoined by the federal court along with Dist. Atty. Thompson Clarke and other officials of East Carroll Parish from participating in this case. Nevertheless, we will defend Mr. Manning with all the available means at our command."

U. S. Dist. Judge Edwin F. Hunter registered 26 East Carroll Negroes before the July 28 Democratic primary and Judge Dawkins registered 17 more on Monday. The Negroes had applied to federal court in the absence of a parish registrar under the Civil Rights Act of 1960.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1963.

Candidates From Across U.S. Come to City for Campaign Aid

By RICHARD P. HUNT

The "buck-hunting season" is now open for the political campaigns of 1964, and out-of-state politicians are arriving steadily to prowl the rich financial preserves of New York City.

Another fund-raising campaign for a far-off candidate was opened yesterday, when G. Jack Rudolf Jr., a sales promotion executive, set out to collect $30,000 for Representative Gillis W. Long, one of 10 Democrats running for Governor of Louisiana.

By the standards of many of the politicians who come to New York for money, Mr. Rudolf's aims were modest. The odds were that he would be able to find most, if not all, of the $30,000 he seeks.

As the cost of running for public office has spiraled in recent years, more and more Democrats and Republicans from other states have been turning to the financial capital of the nation for the money it often takes to win.

The fund raisers for both the Republican and Democratic state organizations are distressed at this trend because it takes money from local political organizations. They agree, however, that there's nothing we can do to stop it.

In recent weeks four Democratic Senators—Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, Gale W. McGee of Wyoming, Frank E. Moss of Utah and William Proxmire of Wisconsin—have made quiet visits to the city to ask for money.

"And there will be others," said a wealthy Democrat who regularly gives $50 to $250 to each of a dozen out-of-state candidates in campaign years. He estimated that a popular Senator could easily take away $50,000 to $100,000.

Republicans Send Aides

The practice is just as common among Republicans, but the techniques are different. Republican candidates tend to send a fund raiser, like Mr. Rudolf, rather than come themselves.

One such effort will be made Dec. 3, when Senator Norris Cotton of New Hampshire, who heads Senator Barry Goldwater's unannounced campaign for Presidential delegates in that state, will be the guest of honor at a private dinner in the Plaza Hotel.

There will be no charge for the guests, but those invited are well aware that they will probably be asked for contributions. Among their hosts will be such financial leaders as these:

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., former board chairman of General Motors; Jeremiah Milbank Jr., chairman of the executive committee of the Commercial Solvents Corporation; Allan P. Kirby Jr., son of the board chairman of the Alleghany Corporation, and Charles Shipman Payson, a director of Armco Steel, whose wife is the former Jean Whitney.

A Democrat who watches where the money goes reported yesterday that typically an out-of-state Senator might make several visits a year to New York, dining with wealthy acquaintances and building a circle of contributors.

At campaign time, the money-wise Democrat continued, one wealthy New Yorker will give a dinner party or perhaps a cocktail party for the Senator. Some of the guests can be counted on for donations of $1,000 to $2,500 at every party.

Some Raise $250,000

A few weeks later the wealthy host will be invited by one of his former guests to a party for another Senator. Then it will be the ex-host who is expected to reach for his checkbook. Some candidates are said to have raised up to $250,000in this way.

An emissary, which the Republican candidates seem to favor, usually operates along Mr. Rudolph's lines. As he explained it yesterday, this is how he works.

Mr. Long, a distant cousin of Senator Russell Long and the late Senator Huey P. Long, was formerly a Washington lawyer, representing the interests of Howard Hughes, the financier.

The candidate has friends in New York's financial district, and has been a frequent visitor here. Mr. Rudolf lives here, and also has several prominent friends.

Now that money is needed for the Louisiana primary on Dec. 3, Mr. Rudolf will visit those friends "on a personal basis" and ask for contributions. He will explain that Mr. Long, although an orthodox Southern segregationist, is a man who wants to "expand business" in Louisiana.

"The 10 top corporations in the United States are interested in Louisiana," Mr. Rudolf said "and on a personal basis, most of his friends would be willing to controbute."

Their contributions, however, will not be tax deductible. Corporations are forbidden by law to contribute to political campaigns, and the gifts must come fro mindividuals.

"I always think," one Democratic contributor said, "when I'm reaching for my checkbook—this come off my income."

Madison Parish Adds Negroes To Voting Rolls

January, 1963

L.C. Amer. Press

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — More than 100 Negroes registered as voters the past two months in Madison Parish—the first this century—leaving only two parishes in the state without any registered Negroes.

The two without registered Negroes are Tensas and West Feliciana parishes.

Mrs. Katherine Ward, Madison's vote registrar, told The Shreveport Times Tuesday that 21 Negroes were put on the vote rolls in December and more than 80 were added in January.

She said many more were seeking to register.

U.S. Dist. Judge Ben Dawkins Jr. of Shreveport has taken under advisement a Justice Department suit seeking a federal court order to end alleged discrimination against Negro registration applicants in Madison Parish.

No decision on the suit was expected until the spring.

The Negro population of Madison Parish almost doubles that of the white population.

There were 10,677 Negroes and 5,767 white persons for a total population of 16,444 in Madison Parish, according to the 1960 federal census.

Of the total number of Negroes 5,181 were 21 years or older, according to the census. Of the total white population 3,334 were 21 or older.

Registration figures for the end of the year showed 1,866 white persons registered to vote in the parish.

All of the 21 Negroes registered during December became affiliated with the Democratic Party. It was not known how the others registered.

Louisiana's Long Clan Split As Long, Hot Summer Looms

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Twenty-eight years ago, a bullet killed Huey Long, but his family remains a political power in the state.

Today the political heirs left by Huey Long and his brother Earl are split — bitterly so — as they prepare for the governor's race.

Louisiana, where politics is even stronger than the coffee, is waiting to see which faction, if any, still has that old magic.

The No. 1 faction, based on elective eminence, has Sen Russell Long, D-La., throwing his weight behind a cousin, Rep. Gillis Long, D-La.

The widow of former Gov. Earl Long and two sisters of Huey are backing John McKeithen of Columbia, a public service commissioner.

Still another Long, State Sen. Speedy Long of Jena, was the first to issue a formal announcement as candidate for governor.

This campaign gumbo, coming rapidly to a steaming simmer, may be a major test for Senator Long, 44, the nervous image of his father, Huey.

Both Russell and Gillis know a governor is the real political chief in the state, no matter whom the voters send to Washington.

The senator's endorsement, coming before Gillis even formally announced as a candidate, was viewed as an effort to unite the clan.

Gillis, a nimble-witted freshman congressman from the 8th district, tickled some of the Long lieutenants with a campaign voice that rasped in the file - tongued style of the late Earl, one of the most colorful speakers to ever grace a stump.

But Gillis faces the dilemma of a three-way split plus the threat of numerous and experienced foes moving carefully around the outside looking in.

McKeithen, 44, also a pleasing orator, was House floor whip for the gallus-snapping, tempestuous Earl.

"I think he has an excellent chance of winning," said Mrs. Earl Long.

Speedy, a freckled little legislator, learned his politics from Earl as a campaign aide.

If McKeithen and Speedy don't withdraw, and they show no sign of it, Gillis could have his problems.

There were unconfirmed reports that Gov. Jimmie H. Davis and some of his backers seem to be leaning toward Gillis — but in politics anything can happen.

The field would jam up with high-stepping candidates if it looked as though the governorship might be up for grabs.

Any candidate would have to make a good showing in New Orleans, which has a fourth of the state's votes. Thus far, city politicos have remained mum.

Others making their plans include former Gov. Robert Kennon, the Eisenhower Democrat; deLesseps Morrison, the ambassador to the Organization of American States and four times mayor of New Orleans; Shelby M. Jackson, state education superintendent; Cap Barham, former lieutenant governor, and Claude Kirkpatrick, state public works director.

The first primary is Dec. 7. Th campaign won't really get started until July. Politically, it's going to be a hot summer.

Encouraging Evidence In Louisiana Voting

IT IS POSSIBLE to read too much into deLesseps Morrison's first-round lead in Louisiana's gubernatorial primary. The former mayor of New Orleans has always had a large and largely unshakeable personal following in and around his own South Louisiana bailiwick, but it has never been quite large enough to win a state-wide campaign—up to now. He has led the ticket in the first primary before, only to be ganged up on by the also-rans in the second round of fishing and bait-cutting.

It is also possible to read too little into Mr. Morrison's first-round lead, which normally would be regarded as substantial enough to bring into play the bandwagon factor.

If "Dellysoups," as the late and (as we now know) irreplaceable Earl Long used to call him, does manage to survive the run-off blood-letting, it will be possible to read a great deal into the accomplishment: Such a reversal of recent voter attitudes would have profound consequences for the state of Louisiana, would have some consequences regionally—although Louisiana is and always has been something of a special case, even for the South—and finally, would have some effect internationally, particularly among those Latin-American countries whose closest ties with the United States are commercial ties running through the great Port of New Orleans. The Latin Americans know deLesseps Morrison as a former United States ambassador to the Organization of American States and, as such, their steadfast — though never blindly uncritical — friend.

ALREADY, from the first primary placings alone, one can detect a desire on the part of the people of Louisiana to turn still farther away from the likeness presented to the rest of the world by a screaming minority of New Orleans mothers in the fall of 1960. All five of the serious candidates were called segregationists, but some professed themselves to be "more" segregationist than others, and the final returns showed the most unbuttoned of these—former Governor Robert F. Kennon and State Education Commissioner Shelby M. Jackson running fourth and fifth, respectively, well back in the field. Although the drumfire of anti-Kennedy campaigning had been considerably muted in the closing weeks, we can safely assume a continuing belief on the part of Mr. Jackson that the only way in which the Louisiana school system "failed" in the case of a Lee Harvey Oswald was in not force-feeding him enough of what the Shelby Jacksons of his country regard as "Americanism."

But it was the Kennon candidacy that was, in many ways, the most interesting of all. Here was a man who started out as a bona-fide no-nonsense economic conservative, a sort of spiritual forerunner of Barry Goldwater and such Goldwater disciples as the present governor of Oklahoma, Henry Bellmon. During his single term as governor of Louisiana, Mr. Kennon practiced what he preached, and, as a consequence, was, from all the evidence, saved from being defeated for re-election only by the non-succession clause in the Louisiana constitution. By then, the people of Louisiana had decided that they wanted another Long, Earl.

In his attempt at political reincarnation this year, Mr. Kennon largely submerged his economic conservatism to the most blatant sort of racism.

Similarly, Jimmie H. Davis, although he was never a "conservative" in any meaningful sense, came to power the first time as a "clean" candidate in a campaign in which race played no part. He came to power the last time by hollering "Nigger!" louder than anybody else, and with git-tar accompaniment and so did not have to pretend to fiscal conservatism.

We know what happened to Louisiana during these last few years. However, the really interesting question is, what happened to the principles of some of the men who have called themselves Louisiana's "leaders" during those same years? Ark. Gaz. 12/10/63

Louisiana primary sees vote bars fall in W. Feliciana

ST. FRANCISVILLE, La., —Unmentioned in most Dec. 8 newspaper accounts of the Louisiana primaries was the fact that colored people in West Feliciana parish voted for the first time since 1902.

The total number of colored people who came to the courthouse here to cast their votes was only 13.

But the precedent established was significant, in a parish where colored people faced intimidation by both threats and actual acts of violence in the course of CORE's voter registration campaign.

Among those who voted was the Rev. Joseph Carter, who was threatened with castration as he approached the courthouse on Oct. 17 to become the first colored person to register since 1902. Another voter was James Payne, who had been hit across the face with a rifle butt in an attempt to stop him from registering.

When the Rev. Mr. Carter first attempted to register in August, he was arrested for "disturbing the peace" and jailed overnight. He thereupon filed a $100,000 damage suit in Federal court accusing both the registrar and the sheriff of violating his civil rights.

AFL-CIO CAMPAIGNS TO INFORM MEMBERS

New Louisiana Registration Law Full of Tricks to Trip Voters

A campaign has been undertaken by the Louisiana AFL-CIO to familiarize local unions with new voter registration procedures to help union members and their families register despite new restrictive devices, State Council Pres. Victor Bussie announced.

Key to the new attempts to limit the vote is a series of written tests, many of which are loaded with trick questions, designed to keep thousands of people from registering.

In a letter to every local union in the state, Bussie said that he was "convinced that most working people who have little opportunity to keep abreast of governmental and political matters will fail these new tests unless they are given material beforehand to enable them to study for such tests."

Although the office of the Registrar of Voters was not making this material generally available, Bussie said the state AFL-CIO had secured copies of the material and the instructions issued to registrars under the law. The central body mailed copies of the 10 tests to locals and local central bodies, urged them to reproduce the material for their membership, and was also making copies available to locals unable to reproduce them.

"Remember, Louisiana will have a Governor's election in 1963," Bussie said in his letter, "and we must see to it that as many of our members as possible register immediately so that we can elect an administration that will treat Labor fairly."

The entire procedure is deliberately tricky, requiring the potential voter to complete a number of complicated interlocking forms, in addition to the citizenship test, before being eligible to register. Presumably the test will be administered uniformly to all citizens, instead of just to those registrars wish to exclude from voting.

But even so, the results will be discriminatory against many people who are not more than normally well-informed about the mechanics of government.

Some sample questions from the citizenship tests, of which there are 10 different sets, one of which is to be selected at random, and on each of which the applicant must answer four out of six correctly:

"The Constitution of the United States places the final authority in our Nation in the hands of—a. the national courts; b. the States; c. the people."

"Our towns and cities have delegated authority which they get from the — a. State; b. Congress; c. President."

"Limits are placed on the right to vote by the — a. National Government; b. States; c. courts."

"A government in which people delegate authority to chosen officials is — a. a totalitarian state; b. a republic; c. a monarchy."

"The powers granted to the National Government in the Constitution are called—a. delegated powers; b. denied powers; c. the final authority."

"Our Constitution has been changed — a. by the President; b. by the Congress and the people; c. by the Supreme Court."

In addition to providing copies of the questionnaires to locals, the State labor body has also provided a set of answers for union members to study. And, for the record, in case you find any of the above questions difficult, the official Louisiana answers to them are, in order, "c"; "a"; "b"; "b"; "a"; and "b".

Non-whites now on all La. vote books

ST. JOSEPH, La. — The recent registration of 15 colored citizens in Tensas Parish ended an era in which some Louisiana parishes had no colored registrants since 1902. Now there are colored persons registered in every parish.

This accomplishment was announced by J. H. Roberson and confirmed by CORE Field Secretary Ronnie Moore, who for over a year has coordinated CORE's voter registration campaign in southeastern Louisiana.

P. F. Ellis, district deputy master of the Prince Hall Mason's grand lodge, was among the first to register. He reported that the registration officials were cooperative and that there was no attempt at intimidation.

Vote Registration System Is Defended

By CHET FOLKES

Despite constant "harassment" by the U.S. Justice Department, the Louisiana system of voter registration will remain intact voter registrars from throughout the state were told here today.

Speaking at the first general session of the Louisiana Registrars of Voters Association convention at the Jack Tar Capitol House this morning, Hugh E. Cutrer Jr., director of the State Board of Registration, thanked the parish registrars for their continuing good service and cooperation despite the presence in some areas of U.S. Department of Justice officials.

"The big word this year is Bobby Kennedy and the Justice Department," he said, and added that he knew how many of them "were plagued by many suits" during the past year.

Cutrer also had words of warm praise for the state attorney general's office and Harry Kron, one of the assistant state attorneys general, "for doing a wonderful job in helping combat the justice department suits that have plagued us" this year.

He said, "We feel we have a wonderful program in this registration system."

Jack P. F. Gremillion, state attorney general, was the main speaker at the luncheon meeting of the convention at noon today, and Leander Perez, Plaquemines Parish political leader was slated to speak to the group tonight.

Other Speakers

Other speakers at the general session this morning were Mrs. Lillian Walker, representative-elect from East Baton Rouge Parish and W. E. Groves, consulting actuary. Mayor-President Christian, and Albert F. Fritchie Jr., vice president of the Baton Rouge Chamber of Commerce welcomed the group.

In outlining activity of the state board of registration during the past year, Cutrer said nine more parishes came under the permanent registration system, leaving only two parishes in the state which maintain the periodic registration system.

He said the order of the citizenship test questions were changed and distributed to registrars throughout the state and that the board worked with the legislative committee to see that several bills presented pertaining to registrars and registration were passed.

"This was election year and we managed to get the statistical reports out as speedily as was humanly possible so that total figures would be available for the election officials," Cutrer told the group.

He also said the board visited many registrars to see if any assistance was necessary, worked with various news media in making sure that accurate information was passed out to the public concerning voter registration, and distributed citizenship pamphlets to many citizens, as well as to the libraries and other organizations.

Yesterday meetings were held by the board of directors, the board of trustees and the Registrars of Voters Employe Retirement. The session was called to order and presided over by Myrth J. Judice, president of the association and registrar of Acadia Parish.

The convention ends tomorrow.

Report Voter Drive by CORE In 2 Parishes

6A

PLAQUEMINE (UPI) — The Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) will launch a voter registration drive in Ascension and St. James Parishes next month, it was reported Wednesday.

Dr. Berttrand Tyson, a Negro civil rights leader here, said six CORE task force workers will establish a headquarters April 1 at Donaldsonville in Ascension Parish.

Donaldsonville is on the West Bank of the Mississippi River about 40 miles south of Baton Rouge.

CORE has been spearheading a Negro voter registration drive in the Sixth Congressional District. However, last week a CORE spokesman said the militant integration group would open drives in Shreveport and Monroe.

PROFESSIONAL URGED AT POLL

Election Officer Under Civil Service Asked

La. Leg.

Orleans Parish Registrar of Voters A. P. "Tim" Gallinghouse Wednesday proposed passage of a law requiring the assignment of a professional election commissioner classified under civil service in each polling place in all primary and general elections.

Gallinghouse's proposal envisions that the professional commissioners would qualify for such status through civil service examination, but that they would be private citizens who would be paid only when serving as commissioners.

In primaries the names of three other commissioners would be drawn to serve in each polling place with the professional commissioner, Gallinghouse expained. This would make a total of four commissioners in each election precinct. The names of the other three would be drawn from lists submitted by candidates just as those of the five commissioners now required in each precinct are drawn under present law, he said.

GENERAL ELECTIONS

In general elections the system of one clerk and three commissioners would be continued. Besides the professional commissioners, the other commissioners would be of separate political parties, he explained.

In order to reduce the possibility of political manipulation in the assignment of professional commissioners, no professional commissioner would serve in the ward in which he resided, he said.

Gallinghouse, who is secretary of the Orleans Parish board of election supervisors, said that under the proposal the professional commissioner would be responsible for the operation of his polling place and his pay would be double that of other commissioners.

The plan would place the responsibility for expedition and accuracy in the submission of election returns, the registrar said.

OPTIONAL IN PARISHES

Under the proposed law each parish would have the option of adopting the system or of adhering to the existing system, he said.

John J. Caswell, chairman of the Orleans Parish Democratic Executive Committee, has urged enactment of a law under which all election commissioners would be required to pass an examination on election procedures and the names of commissioners would be drawn only from those of persons who had passed the examination.

Gallinghouse said that his plan would combine a civil service provision with the present system under which candidates submit the names of prospective commissioners.

Gallinghouse also said that he has proposed five other new laws pertaining to registration, some of which will be introduced in the House of Representatives Monday by Rep. Arthur A. Crais of the Eighth Ward.

LEGISLATION PROPOSED

The legislation proposed would:

1. Permit women who marry or any other persons who change their names through legal action to change their names on registration rolls by affidavit rather than having to re-register.

2. Authorize persons in the Armed Forces to reinstate their registrations by mail when they have lapsed because of failure to vote for two years, instead of requiring them to appear in person at the registration office; and extend the time in which registrations must be reinstated from 10 days to 30 days.

3. Clarify residence requirements for voter registration requiring that a person may register to vote only in the parish "where he ordinarily sleeps" or where he has applied for a homestead exemption.

4. Permit the present Ninth Ward branch registration office to move to a new location and serve both the Eighth and Ninth Wards.

5. Extend from the presently required three days to six days after an election the time in which boards of election supervisors must compile election returns. The law presently requires compilation of the returns before the voting machines are opened.

Crais will author all of the bills excepting those pertaining to commissioners and legal residence for voting. Rep. Philip C. Ciaccio and Reps.-elect Edward L. Boesch and Donald L. Fortier, all of the Ninth Ward, will join Crais in authoring the bill to provide for a branch registration office to serve both the Eighth and Ninth Wards.

INSTRUCTIONS TO REGISTRARS CCGNO

STEPS OF PROCEDURE TO BE FOLLOWED BY REGISTRARS AND THEIR DEPUTIES ACCORDING TO LOUISIANA LAW

1. The Registrar or Deputy Registrar shall interview and give examinations to only one applicant at a time. Applicants should not be near each other, in order to keep one from interfering with another during registration and examination. No other person shall be present for any purpose except the authorized representative of the State Board of Registration. During these examinations, no applicants except those being registered by the Registrar or his deputy should be permitted in the Registrar's office.

2. Have applicant properly identified.

3. If applicant has been registered in another parish of the state, take up registration card or certificate from previous parish or have applicant sign affidavit to be returned to his former parish for cancellation.

4. Registrar shall furnish applicant with card (identified as Form 11), so applicant can do the following:

   A. Execute affidavit.
   B. Read and write a portion of the preamble to the United States Constitution from dictation by the Registrar.
   C. Take citizenship test for registration.

   In order to have applicant complete his citizenship test, the Registrar must have applicant select one of ten cards numbered Form No.1 through Form No. 10, which cards contain the questions for such test. Cards for selection should be displayed, face-down, to the applicant. After applicant selects his card, the Registrar, for identification, immediately circles in ink the number of the card selected by applicant, in the space provided on Form No. 11 entitled (Question Form Selected).

   D. Complete balance of Form No. 11 which includes parish, date, signature of applicant, ward, precinct and address.

5. Registrar shall choose at random one of the five LR-1 cards; and after filling out applicant's home address, ward and precinct the registrar hands the form to applicant for completion. In the case of a married woman, Registrar should instruct her to write her first name, maiden name or initial, and married name.

6. Applicant should not be qualified or rejected by the Registrar or Deputy until all forms are completed.

7. If applicant fails the citizenship test on Form No. 11 or fails to properly fill out Form LR-1, both cards should be attached and filed alphabetically as provided by law.

8. If applicant correctly fills out application (Form LR-1) and passes the citizen ship test appearing on Form No. 11, Form No. 11 is to be attached to Form LR-1 for permanent filing. Applicant should then sign permanent registration voting certificate in duplicate, in case of permanent registration, or, where four year registration is in effect, the applicant must sign the proper precinct register, and the Registrar or Deputy must write out a registration certificate and give same to applicant. (In case of permanent registration, the confirmation post card notice is filed in later by the Registration Office and mailed to the address as shown on the registration application).

Dear Sirs:

The Monroe, Louisiana branch of the N.A.A.C.P. request that you take whatever steps are necessary to halt various discrimatory practices being employed by the Registrar of Voters .. Mrs. Mae Lucky.

Specifically we would like the following practices stopped:

I. LITERACY TEST...It is our belief that this test was devised to limit the number of Negro Voters. In numerous cases the Registrar would refer to a "book" in determining whether or not the applicant had correctly answered the questions. This lead us to conclude that the State of Louisiana is asking its citizenery to know more about the constitution than the persons administering the test. We also conclude that many law abiding, tax-paying citizens of color will be excluded from the voters rolls because of this rigid test. They will be called upon to meet all requirements of citizens, but will be denied their full rights as citizens, especially the right to vote. Our request of you is that you file suit at once .. on the legality and constitutionality of this new literacy test on our behalf.

II. Atmosphere in OUACHITA PARISH COURT HOUSE .. The Monroe Branch N.A.A.C.P. is protesting the general hostile attitude found in the Parish Court House. On many occasions our people were told to leave the building, others were told to leave the hallway at once, others were made to stand when there were seats available. On September 12, 1962 .. one of our youth .. Miss Sarah McCoy was arrested .. because she had been told to leave the building and never return .. When she did return .. she was promptly arrested. She is now on bail awaiting trial on the charge of vagrancy. These acts of hostility were performed by the Sheriff of Ouachita Parish and in some cases his Deputies. This we protest and seek an end to it. Our directive to you .. SEEK AN INJUNCTION preventing any person from interfering with persons seeking to register and persons who are assisting our people in seeking their rights.

III. Attitude of REGISTRAR OF VOTERS .. Mrs. Mae Lucky .. Ouachita Parish. The Monroe Branch N.A.A.C.P. would like to have the following practices stopped:
(a) Any word, action, or deed that could be interperted as being hostile toward an applicant or other intersted citizens.
(b) Any word, action, or deed that would serve to slow down the process of getting registered.
(c) Any word, action, or deed that would deter an applicant in his attempt to register.

The Monroe Branch N.A.A.C.P. documented various incidents that prove beyond a doubt that the Registrar of Voters is not conducting her office as it should be. One perfect example of this is:

> Mrs. Elouise Emmerson Ward has been a voter in Ouachita Parish for many years. She was a voter under her maiden name .. Miss Elouise Emmerson. Recently she went to the Registrar's Office to have her name changed to Mrs. Elouise Emmerson Ward. The Registrar should have taken her original application form from a file, turned the form over on the back and made the necessary change of name. Instead .. the Registrar .. took the permanent registration certificate of this person from a large book and said ... you are no longer a voter. Mrs. Ward questioned her actions but was told to become a voter again.. she must re-register. When Mrs. Ward attempted to re-register.. she was refused a card because she did not have "proper" identification papers. Mrs. Ward left and returned the next day. She was allowed to fill out cards and take test .. but was failed. This woman who has voted for so long is no longer a voter .. Why? Because she got married.

COPY

The Monroe Branch N.A.A.C.P. believe we are justified in asking that the United States of America act now to protect us from further incidents. We insist that your department FILE SUIT AT ONCE.

Very truly yours,

/s/ Dr. John I. Reddix,
President

/s/ Miss A. M. Pierce,
Secretary

Dear Mr. Marshall:

I am enclosing affidavits from Mrs. Elvira Whitaker, Earl A. Ambeau, Jr., Mrs. Delores L. Evans, and Thomas Whitaker, all residents of Iberville parish, Louisiana, complaining that they have been discriminated against by the registrar in that parish.

These complaints were submitted to us by Ronnie M. Moore, CORE Field Secretary, who works out of the CORE Field Office in Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

The CORE group has planned a parish-wide voter registration campaign in Iberville parish beginning November 12, 1962, but it appears that almost no Negro in that parish has been able to register since the registrar starting using the new Louisiana literacy test.

Any assistance your office can offer in removing these discriminatory barriers will be appreciated.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. Branton:

After spending about two weeks in Iberville Parish, I was able to persuade four persons to sign the enclosed complaints contending voter discrimination in the above mentioned parish. Mr. Mc Cain suggested that I forward these complaints to you. He has duplicate copies in his possession.

We have scheduled a parish wide voter registration campaign in Iberville beginning November 12, 1962. If you could get some federal action on these complaints by that time, it would help our drive and maybe we shall be able to get a few persons registered. According to residents in Iberville, no one has been able to register since the registrar has been using Louisiana new system of the literacy test, writing the preamble to the U. S. Constitution and etc.

I have met a similar situation in St. Helena parish. As soon as possible, I shall forward you some complaints from St. Helena.

Very truly yours,

Ronnie M. Moore

Four file vote complaints in La.

afro-amer. 11/17/62

IBERVILLE, La. — Four persons denied the right to register and vote in Iberville parish, have filed complaints with the U.S. Department of Justice.

One of the four, Earl Ambeau Jr., said in his complaint: "The registrar just looked at me and turned me down without even giving me a chance to take the constitutional test or anything else."

Another, Mrs. Deloris Baand, charged that the registrar Milton Dardenne had accused her of an error in her literacy test but had declined to state what the error was. "I contend I did not make an error," she said in her complaint.

THE OTHER two — Thomas Whitaker and Mrs. Elvira Whitaker — who had moved more than six months ago from East Baton Rouge parish, claimed their right to transfer registration to Iberville parish. The registrar, without any explanation, simply refused to register them.

Dear Mr. Branton:

I am enclosing 13 more complaints of voter discrimination in the parish of Iberville. Due to the fact that the Negro residents are willing to continue to fight for first class citizenship at the polls, we are continuing our voter registration drive for an additional month and we setting up a permanent clinic program.

Today, in Baton Rouge, the Louisiana State Sovereignty Commission is meeting to discuss ways and means of counteracting our registration drives in the Sixth Congressional District. We need some federal action to defeat such massive resistance to Negro suffrage.

Mr. Jim Mc Cain should forward to you within a few days two complaints of voter discrimination in Saint Helena Parish. In this parish, we have had poor participation on the behalf of the Negro residents in our registration drives because of fear and apathy. We have had very little success at the registrar's office. It took me several weeks to persuade two persons sign complaints. Federal action on these two complaints will help a great deal.

To prepare potential voters to meet Louisiana qualifications for registration, we must do the following: (1) teach the preamble to the United Constitution, (2) administer and grade a constitutional test of 47 questions of which only 4 out 6 answers must be correct to qualify, and (3) teach how to fill out the enclosed application form. If the right to vote is to be protected for all citizens, this system on literacy and constitutional law must be tested in our federal courts.

Any assistance your office or the federal government can offer in removing these discriminatory impediments will be appreciated.

Very truly yours,

Ronnie M. Moore

WHEN YOU GO TO REGISTER:

Remember to carry substantial proof that you have lived in Louisiana for one year.

The following is an example of how to figure your age to the exact years, months, and days:
Subtract your birthdate (year, month, day) from the present date (year, month, day).

YEAR	MONTH	DAY
1962	10	23
1922	2	20
40	8	3

ANSWER: 40 years, 8months, and 3 days old.

The following example is more difficult than the first example:

YEAR	MONTHS	DAYS
1962	5	23
~~1934~~	~~10~~	~~31~~

	16
1961	~~4~~	53
~~1962~~	~~5~~	~~23~~
1934	10	31
27	6	22

As you can see, we cannot take 31 days from 23 days nor can we take 10 months from 5 months, therefore, we must borrow to make 23 and 5 large enough to subtract 31 and 10.

The first step is to borrow one month (which is equal to 30 days) from the 5 months (which leaves 4 months) and add the 1 month (30days) to the 23 days, making 30+23=53 days. The second step is to borrow one year (which is 12 months) from 1962 (which leaves 1961) and add the 12 months (equal to the 5 months) [illegible]

Vote registrar under fire resigns pleading ill health

afro-amer. 12/8/62

IBERVILLE, La.— Milton Dardenne, the registrar named in 17 recent voter-bias complaints filed with the U.S. Department of Justice, has resigned because of "ill-health."

In reporting his resignation, TV Station WDSU in New Orleans said friends of Dardenne had attributed his "ill-health" to the colored registration drive in this area which is headed by Ronnie Moore, CORE field secretary. The complaints to the Department of Justice were an outcome of this campaign.

However, no immediate era of voting justice in Iberville parish is anticipated a core aide said, because, to replace Dardenne, the police jury has named Mrs. Ella Billings, a member of the White Citizens Council.

Nevertheless, the spokesman said, CORE is pursuing its voter education campaign. Since Dardenne's resigation, 10 non-whites have been registered and 23 rejected. Of the latter, some plan to file complaints with the Justice Department, he said.

6. That the Registrar refused to register him, and that he contends that he has been discriminated against because he is a Negro.

Additional comments: The plaintiff says that she was turned down by the named registrar because on the application form she said her occupation was "Housework". However, the registrar pointed out that "Housework" was the wrong answer saying, "How can a single woman do housework as an occupation and live? The plaintiff is a maid.

On the night of February 28, 1963, in LeFlore County, Mississippi, white men, from their moving car, shot and seriously wounded a young Negro registration worker. The victim was James Travis of Jackson, Mississippi, a field secretary for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. This attack, with intent to kill, was made by men who had been observed throughout the evening watching a building in Greenwood where registration workers were meeting.

After the meeting, Travis, Robert Moses, Director of the Council of Federated Organizations, and Randolph Blackwell, Field Director of our Voter Education Project, drove from Greenwood down U.S. Highway 82. Some miles outside Greenwood the attackers' car drove alongside and opened rifle or pistol fire. Fortunately, only Travis was wounded.

In a Press Release from the Voter Education Project

On the night of February 28, 1963, in LeFlore County, Mississippi, white men, from their moving car, shot and seriously wounded a young Negro registration worker. The victim was James Travis of Jackson, Mississippi, a field secretary for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. This attack, with intent to kill, was made by men who had been observed throughout the evening watching a building in Greenwood where registration workers were meeting.

After the meeting, Travis, Robert Moses, Director of the Council of Federated Organizations, and Randolph Blackwell, Field Director of our Voter Education Project, drove from Greenwood down U.S. Highway 82. Some miles outside Greenwood the attackers' car drove alongside and opened rifle or pistol fire. Fortunately, only Travis was wounded.

TRAVIS WAS returned to a hospital in Greenwood. The local police and the Department of Justice were promptly notified. On March 1, Travis was moved to a hospital in Jackson.

This is but the latest of brutal attacks in Mississippi, southwest Georgia, and other areas of the South, against registration workers and would-be Negro voters. These registration workers are people cooperating with the Voter Education Project. This Project, which has the endorsement of the chairmen both of the Democratic and Republican National Committees, is a large scale effort to find the best ways of increasing the electorate in the South, in order to bring into participation in American democracy citizens who have not before exercised, or been allowed to exercise, their responsibilities. In most areas of the South, work carried on in cooperation with the Project has been without disturbance, and in some cases even welcomed by local authorities.

BUT IN certain outlaw communities registration workers have been constantly harassed and put in danger of life. Negroes seeking to register have been cruelly treated.

These are intolerable conditions to expose people to, and they cannot be allowed to continue. Accordingly, there is a need to establish once and for all that in this land people do not have to be afraid to be free.

The state of Mississippi has repeatedly thrown down a gauntlet at the feet of would-be Negro voters, not only by the discriminatory practices of the registrars, but also by economic pressures, threats, coercion, physical violence, and death to Negroes seeking the right to vote. The time has come for us to pick up the gauntlet. LeFlore County, Mississippi, has elected itself as the testing ground for democracy and we are accordingly meeting the challenge there.

WE ARE, therefore, announcing that the full resources of the agencies cooperating with us in the Voter Education Project will be immediately concentrated in LeFlore County, Mississippi. Mr. Roy Wilkins of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Mr. James Forman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, and Mr. James Farmer of the Congress of Racial Equality, have agreed with us today to put all necessary support at once into a concerted campaign to get every qualified Negro in LeFlore County registered to vote, if he or she has any desire to do so.

Our methods will, at all times, be peaceable and lawful and will be conducted in the best traditions of American democracy.

The campaign will be conducted openly. Voter registration is a civic duty, and registration workers will dignifiedly and publicly carry on their activities, which will include literacy schools, meetings, and individual contacts.

BASED ON the unhappy experience of recent months we must anticipate that our efforts will be met by continued harassment and violence. The state of Mississippi and the United States government each have a responsibility to protect those seeking the right to vote for all citizens. The state of Mississippi has not only failed to provide this protection in the past but, in fact, has cooperated with those who would deny basic rights to American citizens of color. The federal Congress and Executive have, in the past, failed to meet the minimum requirements for protecting the rights of Negro citizens in Mississippi.

Recently, the Mississippi Advisory Committee to the United States Commission on Civil Rights has said: "This Committee finds that the Federal Government has not provided the citizens of Mississippi the protection due them as American citizens." We concur in this finding.

REGARDLESS OF past attitudes and actions, we are advising the Governor of Mississippi of our plans for action in LeFlore County and have asked that the state of Mississippi provide protection.

We have also notified the Attorney General of the United States that this campaign is being undertaken and we have called to his attention our past experiences regarding the failure of the state and federal governments to protect the citizens of Mississippi. We have requested that federal protection be provided immediately to assure the personal safety of those working in voter registration or who seek the right to vote. We are asking the Justice Department to take the necessary legal action to see to it that discriminatory practices by the registrar cease and desist.

Voting is a federally guaranteed right, and when its exercise is prevented by community lawlessness, the United States government has an obligation not only to punish that lawlessness but to put it down.

We, therefore, call upon the President of the United States to use his executive powers to help make meaningful the provisions of the Fifteenth Amendment — 100 years late.

Racial Violence Is Under Probe

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 7 (UPI) — City and county officers launched an intensive investigation today into the second flareup of racial violence within a week as tension mounted in this Delta community.

White men in an unlicensed station wagaon fired shotgun pellets into a car containing four Negro civil rights workers late Wednesday night a few hours after three other white men were released on bond in connection with a similar incident last Thursday.

The second shooting came on the heels of a statement by City Council urging calm among the citizenry and the local newspaper, the Commonwealth, fronted an editorial deploring the violence.

Police said none of the four Negro voter registration workers fired on Wednesday night were hit, but some suffered minor cuts from flying glass from the car's windows.

Sam Block, a field worker for the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee here, was taken to a hospital after the shooting, but was released after examination.

Police today recovered 13 shotgun pellets from the car and nearby buildings and found wadding from one shotgun shell embedded in the overhead lining of the car, indicating the blast came from close range.

Police continued to question Negroes in the area who said they either saw or heard the shooting, but received conflicting reports.

The shooting occurred in front of the Negro voter registration headquarters in this mid-Delta city between Jackson and Memphis, Tenn.

In the car with Block were Willie Peacock, 25; Essie Broome, 23, and Peggy Maryre, 19. Block is 23.

Block said he noticed the car after he had pulled up to the building and turned off his ignition. He said he ducked and then, "heard a big boom."

Block told officers that the station wagon in question, like the car used last week in the shooting of voter registration worker Jimmy Travis here, bore no license plate.

Travis underwent surgery following the previous incident for removal of a .45 caliber slug and was recuperating at his home in Jackson.

Negro leaders in the state immediately appealed to President Kennedy to halt the "reign of violence" here. The SNCC sent the President a telegram urging him to take immediate steps to halt racial violence.

Aside from the dollars involved in memorial construction, there are other important considerations. Who is to say whether a particular memorial blends with the overall Washington plan? Where are the new memorials to be placed?

The Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial Commission still is trying to come up with a design which will appeal to the National Fine Arts Commission. Representative JOHN H. KYLE, Republican, of Iowa, has proposed swapping the 10-acre site reserved for the $30 million National Cultural Center for the 27-acre site set aside for the F.D.R. Memorial. As KYLE sees it, the site for the cultural center is "the worst in the Nation's Capital from almost every point of view."

One of the big objections to the F.D.R. Memorial is the design calling for eight slabs of assorted sizes set at odd angles to each other. The design certainly would be out of harmony with the nearby Jefferson and Lincoln Memorials. KYLE has suggested a Franklin D. Roosevelt festival hall as a substitute for a monument. Such a building, requiring adequate parking facilities, would be even less harmonious.

Washington is a beautiful city with broad streets and wide expanses of park land. The indiscriminate placement of memorials can do nothing but detract from that beauty.

PROXMIRE's proposal seems reasonable. Without some guidelines for memorial construction, Washington could become a city cluttered with stony statutary and, as PROXMIRE suggests, economy will be clobbered.

Mr. PROXMIRE. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

THE RIGHT TO VOTE

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. President, in the March 4, 1963, issue of the Dallas Times-Herald there appeared a compelling editorial entitled "The Right To Vote." The editorial rightly describes the sense of outrage Americans feel when their fellow Americans are denied the right to vote. It concludes with this reflection:

> We must ask ourselves why the situation is such that Americans need special help from the Federal Government to obtain rights that were extended to them nearly a century ago.

Perhaps we can take further steps to remedy this situation during the 88th Congress, Mr. President. Certainly the support of newspapers such as the Dallas Times-Herald will help us to take these steps, just as the work of the Presiding Officer of the Senate, Vice President LYNDON JOHNSON, of Texas, was instrumental while majority leader in securing the first Federal laws protecting voting rights in 80 years.

I ask unanimous consent that this editorial may appear in the body of the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Dallas (Tex.) Times-Herald, Mar. 4, 1963]

THE RIGHT TO VOTE

The President's civil rights message deals in the main with a matter that should have been settled 100 years ago—the right of every American citizen to vote.

People have been shot in this country, not in 1863, but in 1963, because they believe the Constitution, because they think every amendment to the Constitution is basic to to whole document. One man was shot last week in Mississippi as he tried to help others obtain a place in the voting booth, a place so many of us take for granted.

President Kennedy is not asking the Congress to say who should associate with whom. The question is, do the rights guaranteed Americans in the Constitution apply to all citizens of the United States?

Congress can pass the laws that will make the answer an emphatic "yes."

States rights is not the question; it is individuals' rights. And the rights of an individual, guaranteed by the Constitution, should be of paramount concern.

The pity of the situation is not that the Federal Government is considering such legislation. The true concern should transcend even its passage. We must ask ourselves why the situation is such that Americans need special help from the Federal Government to obtain rights that were extended to them nearly a century ago.

OUTDOOR RECREATION—MODIFICATION OF UNANIMOUS-CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. HUMPHREY. Mr. President, yesterday the distinguished minority leader and the senior Senator from Minnesota worked out a unanimous-consent agreement relating to a vote on S. 20, a bill to promote the coordination and development of effective Federal and State programs relating to outdoor recreation.

There was an agreement to vote at 4 o'clock on Monday. However, some problems have arisen with respect to that agreement, and I would like now to modify the agreement, and, indeed, to offer a new unanimous-consent request, in the regular order of the unanimous-consent statement, that the Senate vote on the outdoor recreation bill, S. 20, Calendar No. 6, at 3 o'clock on Tuesday.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. HUMPHREY. That would mean that the time following the completion of morning business, whatever hour that might me, would be divided equally between the minority leader and the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. ANDERSON], or the Senator from Washington [Mr. JACKSON], whichever Senator was handling the bill at that time.

Mr. DIRKSEN. Mr. President, I reserved my right to object only to say that this request is indicative of the fact that there will be a session on Monday, and that there will be an opportunity on Monday to discuss this question, which is highly controversial. Therefore, the vote will go over until 3 o'clock on Tuesday, and the time after the morning hour on Tuesday and before 3 o'clock will be equally divided.

Mr. HUMPHREY. At the conclusion of the business of the Senate today, I will move that the Senate adjourn until Monday. Therefore, there will be notice with respect to this unanimous-consent request. I ask action on the request.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The unanimous consent as previously agreed upon yesterday contained some other provisions. Is it the Senator's intention to eliminate those other provisions?

Mr. HUMPHREY. No.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator merely wishes to modify the order originally entered.

Standard Oil Company dealers and agents in Greenwood, Mississippi and surrounding area were guests of the company on the occasion of its spring and summer education and sales promotional meeting held Monday night at The Travel Inn.

Many interesting and important subjects were discussed and demonstrations held — all bearing principally on automotive maintenance and services necessary to insure trouble free and pleasant driving during the hot summer months ahead.

W. H. Greenlee, host agent, welcomed both local and out-of town personnel. Discussions were concuted by C. O. Sheffield and J. H. Davenport, of Standard Oil's retail sales organization in the area. A delicious dinner preceded the discussions.

Those present learned that construction of the Company's massive, new Pascagoula refinery is proceeding on schedule and is expected to go "on stream" in July of this year.

Fire Chief Nips Negro Arson Talk

Nobody Broke Into SNCC Office, Says Investigating Authorities

Fire broke out late Sunday night in the Greenwood office of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee. An SNCC official charged it was set in retaliation for the vote registration drive the organization is conducting among Negroes.

Sam Block, 23 year-old field secretary for the SNCC said that the office's front door had been broken open and that a window in the rear room where the fire started had been smashed from the outside.

Greenwood Fire Chief J. C. Evans, being assisted by the State Fire Marshall's office, said after investigating the fire that no evidence could be found that the building had been broken into.

Evans said it would have been impossible for anyone to come into the building by way of the window as Block claims.

"Anyone coming in that way would have been severely cut by jagged glass around the window and there are no traces of blood anywhere" Evans added.

The front door of the building also was not broken open, the fire chief said. The door jam and lock hasp show no marks of force on them. The rust on the lock hasp has not been disturbed, there isnt even a scratch on the door, Evans added.

Capt. Billy Knox of the fire department said when firemen arrived at the scene there were a number of Negroes around the office removing things from the building.

"When we got there from a block away they had emptied the ffront office and were well on their way to getting the second room emptied," Knox said.

He said the fire was in the rear room of the three room offices. He said the fire never did get to the front two rooms.

The alarm was called into the fire department by a Negro woman at 11:45 p.m. and 2 trucks were sent, Chief Evans said.

When the fire was extinguished, Negroes continued to remove file cabinets and desks from the building.

Block said last night all his voter registration records had been destroyed along with voter material

However, a search of the debris at the scene this morning by a reporter could turn up no trace of any voter registration material that was burned or even partially burned.

James Campbell, Negro owner of the building said he has been trying for two weeks to get the SNCC to move out of his building.

'When I first rented them the space I thought they were going to use it for living quarters,' Campbell said.

"When I found out what was going on there I asked them to leave. They had already paid me a months rent so I let them stay. However, for the past two weeks I have been after them about moving.

Negroes Permitted To Register In Greenwood, Mississippi, But Later Attacked By Police Dogs

MINISTER BITTEN WHEN POLICE RELEASE DOGS

GREENWOOD, Miss. — (UPI) — Fifty more Negroes were permitted to register to vote in this tense delta town Thursday, but police turned snarling dogs on them when they grouped in front of the courthouse and marched away singing.

Witnesses said a Negro minister, the Rev. D. L. Tucker, was bitten by the dog and hobbled down the street, supported by two other Negroes. The rest of the crowd also dispersed.

The incident occurred after the group formed ranks in front of the Leflore County Courthouse, where the voter registration office is located, and marched away singing.

Before the marchers could cover a block, several police cars wheeled to a stop beside them. Officers jumped out and told the Negroes to disperse.

One of the policemen, James Switzer, held a German shepherd on a leash and threatened:

"Move, or I'll turn him loose."

By that time a group of whites had gathered, and one of them hissed at the dog:

"Sic 'em."

"Don't run," one of the Negroes shouted, but the crowd quickly broke up.

LEAPS AT MINISTER

The dog leaped at the Rev. Tucker, a minister of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. His church has served as a headquarters for an intensive Negro voter registration drive in the area.

Tucker later told United Press International the dog "first nipped at my feet, then knocked me down and bit me." He said he had "four scars" and that a physician had treated him.

The clash marked the second consecutive day that police have broken up demonstrations in this town, which has become the target of an intensive Negro voter registration campaign.

day went on trial Thursday. Six were convicted. Charges against two were dismissed. One was found innocent and two cases were continued until Friday.

The trials of Lawrence Guyat of Chicago and James Foreman of Atlanta, a leader of the voter registration drive, were put off until Friday. Guyat's trial was the first scheduled Thursday but it was halted after Guyat interrupted police chief Curtis Lary's testimony several times. Guyat was cited for contempt and returned to jail.

CALLS FOR ATTORNEY

Foreman's trial was delayed when he complained that his attorney was not present and no one had told him what charges had been filed against him.

In Atlanta, Dr. Martin Luther King, appealed to President Kennedy to "personally intervene in behalf of the safety and protection of citizens and workers involved in voter registration."

King sent the President a telegram saying he feared that unless federal action was taken immediately "a night will soon come darker than that night in Oxford." He referred to rioting last Sept. 30 when James Meredith was enrolled at the University of Mississippi by federal marshals and U. S. troops. Two persons were killed during the Oxford riot.

Outside law enforcement officers and additional police dogs were brought in during the night and authorities were all set for the demonstrators Thursday.

Greenwood, a city of 20,000, has been the scene of a series of racial incidents, including shootings, here in recent weeks.

"I don't see why somebody can't talk to somebody in the Justice Department and get some of this stuff stopped before it goes too far," Sheriff John Cothran said in an interview with United Press International. "We just need someone to get these agitators out of here.'

Negroes' Voter March Broken Up For Second Time in Greenwood

Greenwood, Miss., March 28 (AP.) —Another Negro voter registration march was broken up today as police kept a tight grip on a potentially explosive civil rights struggle.

A Negro minister, Rev. D. L. Tucker, who led the 50 marchers said he was bitten by a police dog during the confused action, a block from the courthouse. No arrests were made.

The brief skirmish between marchers and police highlighted a day of tense calm. Street barricades in front of the courthouse were raised and then removed a few minutes later. A similar demonstration was broken up yesterday.

Police said the marchers, who strode along the sidewalk, posed a threat to normal traffic. Negroes who arrived at the courthouse in smaller groups were not stopped.

Civilian volunteers, equipped with riot clubs and wearing yellow Civil Defense helmets, rode with the police in squad cars.

The voter registration drive in this delta plantation country, where Negroes outnumber whites nearly 2-1, has been spurred by several flashes of night violence —including bullets.

One Negro registration worker is recovering from bullet wounds. The FBI and Civil Rights Commission have had investigators in the area for weeks.

Urged on by their leaders, Negroes stood in line outside the courthouse registration office. They were admitted one by one to take the qualification test.

Sheriffs Gather

A group of sheriffs from surrounding counties gathered last night for a briefing by Sheriff J. R. Gilfoy of Hinds County (Jackson).

Gilfoy outlined procedures used in Jackson during the Freedom Rider troubles of 1961. A police department spokesman said the sheriffs were consultants, not reinforcements.

Officers said the minister was faking when he fell and clutched his ankle during the uproar of shouts and dog barking.

Police Commissioner B. A. Hammond said Tucker was examined and definitely was not bitten. Dr. Mabel T. Garner of Greenwood said she treated Tucker for "several severe bites" on his left ankle.

Earlier, Tucker had led several smaller groups into the courthouse where a deputy stood guard.

The City Council said the situation was due to "outside agitators" who were not satisfied with anything less than racial strife.

County officials contend Negroes can register as voters without difficulty if they qualify under state law.

The Justice Department's most recent survey of Leflore County —the only official source available—said about 470 Negroes were on the registration list.

Of the county's 46,000 residents, 30,000 are Negroes.

Single day in Miss. sees 100 seek vote

GREENWOOD, Miss. — Over 100 non-whites tried to register to vote Tuesday reported James Forman, executive secretary of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC). Forman is now in Greenwood working with SNCC's vote drive.

Forman said that this is the largest number to attempt to register in one day since the SNCC state-wide voter registration program began a year and a half ago. About 400 non-white, Forman said, had tried to register in Greenwood in the last month.

Over 150 in a period of two days had tried to register the week of February 25. Three days later, James Travis, 20, a SNCC Field worker, was shot in the shoulder and spine and required an operation in University Hospital in Jackson.

Accompanying Travis were Robert Moses, director of SNCC's Mississippi project. Neither was injured, but Moses said, "We were all within inches of being killed."

One week later, white assailants tried murder again. This time, SNCC Field Secretaries Samuel Block and Willie Peacock, and two Greenwood citizens, Essie Broome and Peggy Mayre, were shot at while their car stopped in front of the SNCC office here. Over 100 non-whites tried to register to vote Tuesday reported James Forman, executive secretary of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC). Forman is now in Greenwood working with SNCC's vote drive.

Forman said that this is the largest number to attempt to register in one day since the SNCC state-wide voter registration program began a year and a half ago. About 400 non-white, Forman said, had tried to register in Greenwood in the last month.

Over 150 in a period of two days had tried to register the week of February 25. Three days later, James Travis, 20, a SNCC Field worker, was shot in the shoulder and spine and required an operation in University Hospital in Jackson.

Accompanying Travis were Robert Moses, director of SNCC's Mississippi project. Neither was injured, but Moses said, "We were all within inches of being killed."

U.S. Acts to Help Negro Vote Drive

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 30 (AP) — The federal government stepped into a simmering civil rights controversy here Saturday and sought a court order to stop interference with Negroes registering to vote.

City officials said they would continue their normal routine—accepting Negro voter applicants in small groups but turning back mass marches.

In its injunction suit, the Justice Department charged Greenwood and Lefore County officials with using intimidation—including "arrest and prosecution" of Negro registration workers — to discourage them from registering.

The government called for release of eight Negroes jailed during a demonstration march.

The eight, sentenced to 4-month jail terms and $200 fines Friday on disorderly conduct charges, had vowed to stay behind bars until the federal government took action.

Their jailing climaxed a tense week in this Delta cotton land where Negroes, who outnumbered whites about 2 to 1, have pressed a voter registration drive. There are some 400 Negroes and 6,400 whites on the county vote rolls.

IN WASHINGTON, Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said in a statement that "The suit is bottomed not on law, but on politics, and for politics alone the Justice Department is now fishing in troubled waters."

Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. John Doar, who filed the suit, said actions of city and county officials were causing "irreparable damage" to the civil rights of Negroes of the area.

He indicated their actions prevented the large majority of Negroes from exercising their rights as citizens.

Police isolated the Lefore County courthouse with wooden barricades Friday but let Negroes enter to register in small groups. They kept pedestrians—Negro and white—scattered and moving.

The courthouse, normally open till noon on Saturday, was closed. The downtown area — crowded earlier this week with uniformed officers, police dogs and volunteers with riot clubs—was quiet.

Mayor Charles Sampson said he did not see what grounds the government had for an injunction. He added: "We'll continue on as we have been."

U.S. DISTRICT Judge Claud Clayton set a hearing for a temporary injunction for noon Monday at Aberdeen, Miss. The government's suit was filed in Oxford, one of several federal courthouse towns in the Northern District of Mississippi.

The Justice Department action would enjoin Greenwood and Leflore County officers from intimidating or trying to interfere with registration workers or applicants. It sought an order to prevent punishment for anybody registering, or trying to register, because of his race or color.

If granted by the court, the injunction also would bar injuries or threats of physical force against registrants. It would prevent use of police dogs, or any other means, to hinder persons from exercising their right to register and vote for federal offices.

THE SUIT charged that the arrests Thursday and the use Friday of a police dog—that reportedly bit a Negro man—were to intimidate and keep Negroes from registering.

In addition to Mayor Sampson and Fire-Police Commissioner Hammond, other defendants are: Police Chief Curtis Lary, City Prosecutor Gary Evans, Deputy Sheriff Wilbur Smith, County Atty. John J. Frazier and the City of Greenwood and Leflore County.

Evans said the city had not interfered with the right of any person to vote. After being served with papers on the federal government's injunction suit, the city prosecutor said:

"I think the application for an injunction is an unwarranted interference with the police power of the city and an irresponsible action by the Justice Department.

"The city has not interfered with any person's right to vote and doesn't intend to do so. If the police power of the city, county and state is suspended, then we cannot be responsible for anything that happens.

"It seems to me that the attorney general is trying to substitute his judgement for that of local authorities who are on the scene and have all the facts.

"The attorney general is in Washington and is not acquainted with the situation.

"Everything Greenwood has done has been to preserve law and order."

Report Lists Mississippi Negro Action

By PAUL VALENTINE

The Southern Regional Council in Atlanta has released a report listing 64 "acts of violence and intimidation" against Negroes in Mississippi in the last two years. The list ranges from homicide and physical mutilation to voter intimidation and excessive court penalties.

"We are sure this is not a complete list," says Wiley A. Branton, director of the voter education project which undertook the council report. "It does demonstrate conclusively, however, the pattern of discrimination and violence which exists in Mississippi, and makes constitutional rights virtually inoperative in that state."

He added that the list does not include any of the incidents of violence which occurred last September in Oxford during the riots stemming from Negro James Meredith's entry into the University of Mississippi.

THE 64 ACTS are listed in chronological order from January, 1961, through early 1963. More than 50 of the 64 incidents occurred in only six counties of the state, usually in areas where Negro voter registration campaigns have been concentrated.

Leading counties, according to the report, were Pike (12 incidents), Leflore (11), Sunflower (9), Hinds (8), and Amite and Coahoma (both 6).

The report lists three instances in which Negroes were shot to death by law officers or other employes of local government.

In Taylorsville, Smith County, Negro Army Cpl. Roman Ducksworth was shot and killed by police officer Bill Kelly when, according to an NAACP release, the Negro "insisted on his right to sit where he chose on an interstate bus." Officer Kelly claimed the Negro was drunk and started fighting.

In McComb, Pike County, officer B. F. Elmore shot and killed Negro motorist Eli Brumfield after stopping him at 4 a.m. for speeding. The officer claimed the Negro drew a knife and attacked him. A coroner's jury ruled the officer fired in self-defense.

And in Liberty, Amite County, Herbert Lee, a Negro active in voter registration, was shot down by "white state Rep. E. H. Hurst. . . . No prosecution was undertaken, the authorities explaining that the representative had shot in self-defense."

DURING THE spring of 1961, several Jackson white youths in Hinds County riding in an open convertible "lassoed" a 9-year-old Negro girl with a wire and dragged her along the street. She suffered a deep gash in her head, cheek bruises, a laceration of her right shoulder and burn marks on her neck.

In September of that same year in Tylertown, Walthall County, John Hardy, Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee registration worker, took two Negroes to the county courthouse to register. The registrar said he "wasn't registering voters" that day. As the Negroes turned to leave, the registrar, John Q. Wood, drew a pistol and struck Mr. Hardy on the head from behind. Mr. Hardy was subsequently arrested and charged with disturbing the peace.

In Jackson, another SNCC worker, Dion Diamond, was arrested for running a stop sign, described in court by the arresting officer as a "freedom rider" and fined $168.

IN ANOTHER Jackson incident, Negro Rafford Johnson was beaten by two law officers after he had been involved in a minor collision with a car driven by a white woman. The Negro underwent surgery for skull injuries.

A 19-year-old Clarksdale Negro woman in Coahoma County was arrested and accused by police of a theft. In jail, she said, she was stripped of her clothes and beaten with a belt.

Aaron Henry, state president of the NAACP, was charged with and convicted of making homosexual advances to a hitchhiker, despite the support of sworn witnesses to the contrary. Later, when he publicly stated the prosecutor and police chief in Shelby, Bolivar County, had framed him, he was successfully sued for defamation with an all-white jury awarding $25,000 to the prosecutor and $15,000 to the police chief.

These and other reported incidents fill the 17-page chronology by the council's voter education project.

PROJECT director Branton noted that the U.S. Department of Agriculture "made a welcome contribution to Negro morale by successfully pressuring (Leflore) County to resume, on April 1, distribution of federal surplus food, which had been cut off by the county last fall."

But, he added, "the federal government has done little to protect the peace in Leflore or elsewhere in Mississippi. . . . The peace of the United States is broken and shattered by the lawlessness in Mississippi. The federal government has an obligation, which it is not fulfilling, to restore it."

CLARKSDALE, Miss. (AP) — Trial is scheduled in city court today for three University of Iowa students on charges of ranging from running a stop sign to resisting arrest.

The three Iowans, who reportedly were delivering food and clothing to needy Negro families in the area, were arrested Saturday and released on bond.

Police Chief Ben Collins said Roswell Danielson of Burlington and John Goulet of Iowa City Were stopped at the same time, while Donald Flockhart of Boone was arrested 1½ hours later.

He said Danielson and Goulet were charged with running a red light and failing to give a proper turn signal, then released on $81 bond.

Asked if the three were delivering items to Negroes, Collins said: "I don't know what they were doing. We don't ask people why they came today."

He said he didn't know they were in any way connected with each other. Greenville Commonwealth

Entertainer Set to Lead Negroes in Vote March

Arkansas Gazette
Little Rock 4-2-63

Greenwood, Miss., April 1 (UPI).—Negro comedian Dick Gregory told a cheering crowd of more than 1,000 Negroes tonight that he would join a march of Negro voter applicants to the Courthouse of racially tense Leflore County tomorrow.

Earlier, in federal court at Aberdeen, Miss., Judge Claud Clayton refused a Justice Department request for a temporary injunction banning interference with Negro voter registration efforts here.

The Chicago entertainer vowed to join the parade of Negroes who have engaged in week-long demonstrations here against County officials who they contend are hampering their efforts to register as voters.

Gregory told a crowd at the Wesleyan Methodist Church tonight that he was "heart-broken over what has been going on here."

"If the reports are true and these things had happened anywhere in the world, America would be at war," Gregory said. He charged that the federal government was failing to protect rights in Leflore County while protecting foreigners all over the world.

Gregory, who earlier organized a food distribution program which Greenwood officials said triggered the week-long demonstrations here, likened the cutting of surplus commodities in Leflore County last fall to Stalin's blockade of Berlin in 1948.

"Russia found out that America was too big for it," Gregory said, "and these people will find out that America is too big for Mississippi."

Gregory lashed out at some members of his own race, especially Negro teachers and preachers, for their lack of support in the voter registration movement. He added that somebody in his ancestry must not have believed in racial segregation since, "I'm half-white."

"They say that we have the greatest crime rate of any group in the United States," Gregory said, "but it is a funny thing that you look at these TV shows and see all those gangsters and ain't none of 'em us."

The Negro drew a round of applause from the standing-room-only crowd when he added, "And I'll tell you another thing, we ain't never lynched nobody."

Hearing Thursday

Judge Clayton's refusal to issue an injunction, in effect, puts off a decision on the Justice Department's suit until after a formal hearing. He set the hearing for 10 a. m. Thursday in federal court at Greenville.

Negroes went to the courthouse in small groups today to apply for voter registration. One demonstration of 30 marchers was broken up, however. Wooden barricades used last week to thwart mass marches had been taken down. Traffic flowed normally.

County officials resumed a full-scale program of giving out surplus food to needy families. The program is financed by the federal government and the operation resumed under the government's threat to take over if county officials didn't get it under way.

Trouble Laid To 'Outsiders' At Greenwood

Washington, April 2 (AP).—Mississippi's senators today blamed "outside agitators and professional troublemakers" for stirring up federal injunction proceedings against Greenwood and Leflore County, Miss.

Senator John Stennis, (Dem., Miss.), took issue with Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy's request last week for an injunction to halt interference with Negroes attempting to register to vote in the Mississippi Delta town.

Stennis told the Senate the injunction request was "a blanket law suit" without basis of fact.

Both he and Senator James O. Eastland, (Dem., Miss.), denied any attempt had been made to prevent Negroes from going individually or in small groups to file applications for registration.

Instead of proceeding to seek registration in this way, they said, agitators formed marching parties of Negroes to parade through the main street, blocking traffic, creating disorders and purposely trying to inflame the public and mislead local Negroes.

Senator Jacob K. Javits, (Dem., N. Y.), said, however, he approved of the attorney general's action.

"When it looks unhealthy in a community on the right to register to vote," Javits said, "the United States has the right to go in there and see that it is healthy to register."

Eastland said there had not been a single allegation of any attempt to keep people from applying to vote. More than 300 applications have been received in the past few days, he said.

"What you've got are outside agitators going around picking up Negroes" with promises of social security, commodities and relief and getting them to march through the city, Eastland said.

He said officials of the city and county have been unjustly condemned for maintaining order.

"That is at the heart of this lawsuit," Eastland added. "It's not a voting rights suit—it's a questioning of people maintainng order."

Stennis touched off the denunciations with a prepared speech saying reports stemming from pressure groups have "painted a very unfair and wholly unjust picture" of the people and officials at Greenwood.

Under the guise of assisting Negroes to register, he added, these groups have "organized one of the most bitter hate campaigns ever devised."

Stennis said the Justice Department "should stop its well-known practice of filing suits right and left" whenever a minority group makes an allegation "unsupported by the proof and contrary to the facts."

Rights Bill Submitted

The Kennedy administration sent to Congress today a draft of proposed "voters rights" legislation as outlined by the president in a February message.

Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy called it a four-point, "do-it-now" bill aimed at speeding up the registration of Negro voters.

The Kennedy administration sent to Congress today a draft of proposed "voters rights" legislation as outlined by the president in a February message.

Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy called it a four-point, "do-it-now" bill aimed at speeding up the registration of Negro voters.

He predicted enactment of the measure would result in the registration of several hundred Negroes in the South immediately, and of more than 500,000 over a longer period.

The proposed legislation described by the attorney general would:

1. Provide for temporary referees to pass on the qualifications of Negro applicants in any county in which court action has been brought charging discrimination against them and in which fewer than 15 per cent of those old enough to vote are actually registered.

2. Require that judges be appointed to handle voting-right lawsuits immediately, and that these judges process the cases "in the most expeditious way possible."

3. Require election officials to use the same tests and other standards for all applicants seeking to vote in a federal election.

4. Establish a presumption that anyone with a sixth-grade education is literate enough to vote in a federal election.

Police at Greenwood Halt Negroes; Decline To Arrest Comedian

From Gazette Press Services

Greenwood, Miss., April 2.—Police today broke up three demonstrations by Negroes seeking faster voter registration among members of their race. They refused to arrest Dick Gregory, the Negro comedian, despite his insistence that they do so.

"It was the comedy of the century," Gregory said.

The Chicago entertainer led 50 Negro voter registration applicants on a four-block march away from the Leflore County Courthouse. They ignored repeated commands from Police Chief Curtis Lary to disperse.

Officers finally halted the marchers on a street corner and told them they were all under arrest. The Negroes applauded.

Gregory and three others were shoved into a squad car and driven away. The police took them not to the city jail but to the headquarters of a Negro voter registration campaign, where they were released.

Gregory climbed into a private automobile and was driven back to the corner where most of the marchers and the police were still waiting. He fell into line with the others. But the police declined to pick him up a second time.

One policeman drove four of the demonstrators to the jail, but under orders from a superior he then took them to the voter headquarters.

A youth who urged the marchers to disobey police orders was dragged kicking to a police car. He too got a free ride to the voter offices.

Leaders of the registration campaign announced that they would attempt to hold another mass march to the Courthouse tomorrow. The police said any further demonstrations would be dealt with sternly.

When Gregory sought to lead another group out of the Courthouse and ignored an order to disperse, a policeman twisted his left arm and hustled him across the street. He was released at once by police officials who obviously wanted to avoid the controversy his arrest would have aroused.

Landy McNair, 19, a voter registration worker from Jackson, Miss., was arrested and jailed on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Gray Evans, the city prosecutor, said that the McNair arrest was "all a mistake" and that he had been set free.

The incident took place as 40 or more Negroes marched away by twos from the Courthouse after a few had applied for voter registration. Chief Lary ordered them and white bystanders again and again to break up into smaller groups.

A crowd of whites gathered quickly near the Courthouse grounds as a dozen or more policemen and auxiliary policemen halted Gregory's group. The whites made no move toward the Negroes.

Earlier, Gregory openly taunted 10 policemen headed by Lary after they had stopped 48 persons marching through a Negro residential section toward the courthouse. Lary told the marchers they must disperse into small groups. The Negroes refused and returned to the headquarters of the voter registration drive and took cars to the Courthouse.

As a voter registration worker argued with Lary, Gregory nodded toward the police around him and said, "there's your story, guns and sticks for old women who want to register."

"Look at them," he urged again, "A bunch of illiterate whites who couldn't even pass the test themselves. That's what you see, guns and sticks in America."

The police gave no indication that they had heard this challenge to their ability to pass the literacy tests required of prospective voters in Mississippi.

"A disgrace, unbelievable," asserted Gregory as he turned to follow the line back to the headquarters. "There's no law that prevents you from going down town in a group."

Explains Reason

Back at the headquarters, Charles McDew explained the reason for the Negroes' refusal to break up into smaller groups.

"We've taken a position that as citizens of this country we have the right to walk the public streets of Greenwood," he said. "The very act of breaking up the people * * * is an act of intimidation to keep people from registering and voting because many of these people have expressed a fear of going down alone."

McDew is chairman of the Student Nonviolent Co-ordinating Committee, which began the voter registration drive in this delta agricultural and industrial center of 23,000 persons last August. The Committee is now co-operating with other major civil rights organizations in a saturaton drive, which resulted from attempts by whites to discourage the original campaign through violence.

A Justice Department attorney and six or more agents of the FBI observed the turning back of the marchers and their dispersal at the Courthouse.

Greenwood Police Grab 19; Gregory's Taunts Ignored

From Gazette Press Services

Greenwood, Miss., April 3.—Nineteen Negroes marching to register to vote stood their ground here today after police repeatedly ordered them to break up their mass march.

Police grabbed them one by one, pushed them into a bus, and jailed them on disorderly conduct charges.

But they refused for the second day to arrest Negro comedian Dick Gregory despite a stream of abuse he directed toward B. A. Hammond, the police commissioner, and other officials.

The entertainer was left standing in the street as policemen and auxiliaries jerked the others out of a line of 24 persons marching by twos to the courthouse.

His voice booming over a bullhorn, Police Chief Curtis Lary told the Negroes at least half a dozen times to disperse in small groups. He said they would not be stopped if they scattered.

"We will not disperse," Ida Hallen, a Negro girl at the forefront replied.

Uniformed officers and auxiliary with riot sticks started picking off the group from the end of the line and herding them into the bus.

Officer Roy Logan spun around a Negro man who resisted and, with the aid of another officer, half-dragged, half-carried him to the bus.

Federal Judge Claude Clayton has set a formal hearing here tomorrow on a government request for a court order banning interference with Negro voter registration efforts.

The Justice Department suit asked release of eight Negroes jailed in last week's demonstrations.

"Greenwood is apprehensive and doing everything to keep law and order," Hammond said.

Hammond said police offered to take the Negroes back to their vote registration headquarters—as had been done after police broke a march yesterday. They refused, he said.

Hammond said police had no choice but to lock them up. Gregory said he had canceled his nightclub engagements.

"I will stay here until the federal government does something about police brutality," he said, "and allows these people to go to the courthouse to vote."

Home Rule For D. C.

One of the more embarrassing questions asked by visitors to this country, this citadel of democracy, is this: Why are the citizens of the District of Columbia not permitted to elect their own mayor and local government? Going on from there, with little side excursions into the philosophy of self-rule, any reasonably well informed visitor can make us look sick.

The fact is that there are no very sensible or persuasive answers to the question. The good arguments are all on the side of making District of Columbia equal citizens with the right to govern themselves. As long as they do not have this right, the question will be — and rightly, too — an embarrassing one.

Under the present anachronistic system, a board of commissioners named by the President governs the District of Columbia. Congress enacts its local laws and, often in rather niggardly fashion, provides for its financial needs. At the last session of Congress, a measure giving District residents the right to choose their own mayor and local government failed to pass. Now basically the same measure has been sent to Capitol Hill by the President.

Congress thus has another chance to remove one of the principal black marks on our record as champions of self-rule. It should not fumble the ball again, but enact legislation granting District residents this measure of equality.

Chopping Plan

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi Employment Security Commission said today its local offices are compiling detailed preseason estimates of factors affecting the need for cotton choppers.

The commission said the officers, and farmers, county agents and others, are also compiling factors that would affect the supply and location of off-farm workers.

The commission said the information is gathered county by county and includes acreage to be chopped, number of off - farm workers needed, amount of cross-plowing and herbicidal treatment expected, and known sources of workers.

The compiled data, the commission said, will be compared to 1962 happenings.

The entire compilation will be studied April 17-18 by a meeting at Greenville of managers and farm placement men from areas of demand and supply.

Fraiser Sees Inside Threat

SIDON--County Attorney John Fraiser called for the Aermican people to "demand the truth before it is too late" in an address to the Lions Club here last night.

Fraiser spoke at the regular meeting of the club in the school cafeteria.

"Americans are being misled by managed news and slanted reporting," the prosecutor said. "Our freedom is being threatened, not from without, but from within."

It is time, he maintained, for the American people to demand to truth before it is "too late and the freedom on which this nation was founded is gone."

Fraiser praised officials and police of the city of Greenwood and all Leflore Countians for their conduct during the recent racial crisis.

Negroes Walk To Courthouse In Lexington

LEXINGTON (special) -- Sixteen Negroes led by Sam Block walked to the Holmes County Courthouse here this morning to apply for registration to vote.

A deputy sheriff ordered them to break into smaller groups and enter the office of Circuit Clerk Henry McClellan one at a time.

As they walked to the courthouse city policemen, deputies, and specially deputized citizens watched. Officials said the officers were there to keep order.

'We're not trying to prevent you from registering," the deputy told the Negro group as they approached the courthouse "But you all scatter out.

After the Negroes dispered, the officer had them gather under a shade tree in the corner of the square and enter the clerk's office one at a time.

Block, a field secretary of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, has headquarters in Greenwood. He has been one of the leaders of a voter registration drive in Leflore County that has been in prgress for a year.

Most of the Negroes at the courthouse this morning were from Tchula and Mileston, some 10 to 15 miles from Lexington. One said that the SNCC had been holding voter registration school in that part of Holmes County for some time.

Observing the proceedings were Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, who had been informed last night that the Negroes would walk to the courthouse this morning.

Out Of State Donors Send Checks, But More Needed

The Greenwood police department is appreciated in other places, it would seem from a report today from a group sponsoring a drive for "overtime" pay for the officers

The group began a "Police Appreciation Fund" last week and reported that contributions "are coming along fine."

But the $3000 goal--enough to give each man a $100 in overtime pay--hasn't been reached and the sponsors are asking that more folks chip in.

Checks can be sent to Box 848 Greenwood. They will be deposited in a separate bank account for distribution to the officers when the fund is complete.

Donations so far--besides those coming from Greenwood — are from as far away as Kokomo, Ind and as close as Moorhead, reports Frank Miller of Delta Jewelers, spokesman for the fund raising group.

One woman sent a note with her check which said in part:

'Your police officers and leaders not only did an excellent job for Greenwood, but for all the people of Mississippi.'

The fund was started when a group if citizens checked with City Council and found that policemen would receive no overtime pay for round-the-clock, no-days-off duty during the recent racial crisis.

The department, led by Chief Curtis Lary, was universally praised by local citizens for its excellent police work in the face of abuse and provocation on the part of some negro demonstrators.

Here is a list of the towns and cities from which donations have come besides Leflore County: Paragould, Ark., Mobile, Kokomo Memphis, Rich, Brookhaven, Carrollton, Batesville, Moorhead, Philadelphia Jackson, Greenville, Leland, Anguilla, Clarksdale, Canton, Cleveland, Indianola, Lexington, Rolling Fork, Shelby, State College, Tchula, Yazoo City, and Meridian.

That box number again is 848.

Negroes Return

LEXINGTON, Miss. AP) — Negroes planned to return to the Holmes County courthouse today and continue their drive to become registered as voters.

About a dozen Negroes showed for the second straight day Wednesday to wait outside the 69-year-old courthouse while one of their number took voter registration tests inside.

Justice Asks To Eye Records In Carroll

The Department of Justice has given Carroll County until tomorrow to give an answer to its request for a look at the voter registration records in that county.

Circuit Clerk George Turbeville, Jr., said in Vaiden this morning that the Department asked to see the records on Monday of this week. He said "They have given us until Friday to answer their request"

Turbeville said he could not say at this time what the county's answer will be to the request.

Broad Mix Suit

4-13-63

CLARKSDALE, Miss. (AP)—A suit filed in federal district court here called Saturday for an end to segregation of public facilities in all Mississippi cities and towns.

The suit was filed by H. Y. Hackett, and Rev. J. D. Rayford. Hackett is an insurance salesman and Rayford is pastor of the Rayford Chapel Missionary Baptist Church. Although the suit was filed about 12 hours before a bombing incident on a Negro integration leaders home, Clarksdale authorities said they did not feel the two events were related.

The suit, filed under the 14th Amendment, called for an end of segregation in Clarksdale's public buildings and recreation facilities.

It attacked sections of the state code specifically and asked relief for all other Negroes in Clarksdale County and the state "who are similarly situated because of race or color."

Named as defendants in the suit were 29 city and county officials.

The suit sought a temporary and prmanent injunction and requested a speedy hearing.

The next federal court here is scheduled in October.

Arson Charged

CLARKSDALE, Miss. (AP) — Arson charges have been lodged against two young white men who admitted hurling flaming Molotov cocktails into a Clarksdale home where Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., a Negro, was an overnight guest.

Theodore A. Carr, 24, a college student and former resident of this North Mississippi Delta town, and Luther Aubrey Cauthen, 26, of Clarksdale, remained in Coahoma County jail in lieu of $10,000 bonds each.

Police Chief Ben C. Collins said both men admitted the 2 a.m. attack Friday, but asserted they were "just having fun" and didnt know Diggs was in the house.

They said they didn't know whether the occupants were white or Negro.

"The emotional impact of being awakened by a bomb out of a dead sleep is tremendous," said Diggs, a resident of Detroit.

He was here to study the Negro vote registration drive in Greenwood—scene of arrests and demonstrations in past weeks.

Diggs was an overnight guest at the home of Aaron Henry, a druggist and president of the Mississippi branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

One of the two Molotov cocktails —a softdrink bottle filled with gasoline—crashed through a picture window and exploded, setting draperies on fire.

On Living Together

Readers last week were given a hint about an editorial which appeared in the Washington Star that purpeted to give Greenwood's side in the recent racial-voter controversy.

From Senator John C. Stennis' office comes a copy of the Congressional Record in which Stennis inserted the editorial.

We carry both Stennis' comments about the editorial and the editorial in full. The Star, we say, couldn't have done a better job, had he been writing for the Commonwealth.

Mr. STENNIS. Mr. President, the Evening Star published in Washington D. C., in its issue for Monday, April 8, 1963, carried an editorial entitled "On Living Together."

Mr. President, this editorial has to do with recent events at Greenwood, Miss., and on the border subject of racial relations among the people who live in the Deep South.

The author of the editorial has clear understanding, great tolerance, and a very practical approach ano viewpoint upon this matter. This is one of the best editorials I have ever read written outside of the immediate area in question. I commend the editorial writer and the Evening Star highly. It is only through better understanding and a consideration of the practical points involved that we avoid trouble and make progress.

I wish to give this publication to my colleagues as well as to the people of the United States; therefore I ask unanimous consent that the editorial may be printed in the body of the Record.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

On Living Together

The legal "truce" which has been arranged in the clash over registering Negro voters in two Mississippi counties strikes us as being a rational settlement of what looks very much like a phony issue.

Several days ago the Justice Department asked a Federal judge in Greenwood, Miss., to issue a temporary restraining order barring any interference with registration of Negro voters The judge declined to issue such an emergency order, and set Thursday of last week as the day for a hearing in which the Mississippi officials could be heard. Somewhere along the line a closer look apparently was taken, the so-called truce was arranged, and the court hearing was put off until October.

We doubt that it will ever be held. For the indications, or at least those available in press reports, do not suggest that there has been any concerted plan or effort to prevent Negroes from registering as voters in Greenwood Leflore County.

Not having been born yesterday, we do not think that the white people in those counties, heavily outnumbered by Negroes, would like to encourage

Not having been born yesterday, we do not think that the white people in those counties, heavily outnumbered by Negroes, would like to encourage Negro voting. The fact is, however, that the Associated Press has reported day after day that the local authorities in the two counties were permitting Negro registration by individuals and in small groups. What the police were breaking up were marches on the registration places by large groups of Negroes — some of whom certainly were not. After all, the risk of incitement to race riot in Mississippi is something that cannot be ignored.

Why the Department of Justice at first jumped eagerly into this situation, and then backed off, we do not know. If the real purpose was to help insure the right of qualified Negroes to register as voters, that was both necessary and proper. If, on the other hand, the purpose was to grab some of the headlines from such as Negro comedian Dick Gregory, the action of the Justice Department was wrong and unworthy.

At one meeting in Greenwood, a Negro preacher from Texas said that mass demonstrations were unwise. "We've got to live together," he said, "and all the fault is not in the white man." An audience of some 350 Negroes called him an "Uncle Tom" and shouted him down.

In modern vocabulary, "Uncle Tom" has become a term of opprobrium. It suggests that any Negro who is not actively fighting the white man is betraying his own race. We suspect, however, that in time it will be shown that the preacher in this instance, the Reverend W. R. Fairley, was right. For when the last demonstration is over, when the Justice Department has made its last gesture, when all Negroes who went to register and who are qualified have been registered, the truth of the Reverend Mr. Fairley's statement will remain, "We've got to live together."

4 Citizens Report Reprisals After Seeking Registration

Four Negro citizens who have registered or filed applications to register to vote in Sunflower County told of violence and economic reprisals taken against them. They testified before the Mississippi Advisory Committee to the U. S. Civil Rights Commission in Jackson.

Jeff Surney and Mrs. Fannie Hamer said they were fired and forced out of their homes, and Mrs. Irene Johnson told of harassment by Ruleville Mayor Dorrough. Joe McDonald reported that Dorrough has refused to enter his name on the city's voting list although he is registered and he also testified about a shooting into his home.

Put Off Plantation

Surney said that he applied to register at Indianola in August, 1962. He stated that a few days later, the owner of the Ruleville plantation where he picked cotton fired him and ordered him and his family, including 9 children, off the land.

He said the owner refused to pay him for 2300 pounds of cotton he and his children had picked; he had been promised $2.50 per 100 pounds.

A Negro farmer hired Surney, but was pressured into letting him go. The farmer said that credit would have been cut off.

Not Ready

Mrs. Hamer also applied to register in August. When she returned to the Dee Marlow plantation near Ruleville, Marlow told her that he had received three phone calls about the registration attempt.

He said, "We're not ready for that in Mississippi," and said that she would have to leave if she didn't take her name off the list. He added that she might have to go even if she did take her name off.

Mrs. Hamer declared, "I said I didn't register for him. I registered for myself." She has worked on the plantation for 18 years; her husband has worked there 30 years.

When Mrs. Hamer was put off, her husband wanted to go too, but she said Marlow wouldn't let him, and told Hamer that if he stayed to help with the harvest, he would keep his belongings.

Took Car

When the harvest was over, much of the Hamer's belongings had been stolen. Hamer had also made payments to Marlow on a used car for five years and had thought that they were completed. However, as he was about to move, the plantation owner took the car and told him that it hadn't been paid for, Mrs. Hamer said.

Mrs. Johnson applied to register in August also. She picked cotton, but has gotten no work since she tried to register.

In September Mayor Dorrough personally came to shut off her water. When she spoke with him later, he reportedly told her, "No you don't have any justice at all . . . We put you in jail for what we see fit to put you in jail for."

Shot Into Home

Joe McDonald of Ruleville, who had three Negro voter registration workers living in his home, checked his 1953 registration in August. In September, his home was fired upon.

McDonald reported that police came to investigate the shooting shortly after it occurred even though he had not called them. They had been called by Jack Bennett who lives a few blocks away; his home was also hit by gunshots that night.

The police searched McDonald's home and took away his gun without a warrant or permission. McDonald said he didn't see how the police knew his home had been shot into.

McDonald also reported that

Registration Attempts Continue In Holmes

Negroes are beginning to make attempts to register to vote in Holmes County, Miss. Tuesday, April 9, 16 people went to the County Court House in Lexington to register.

They were met by six plainclothesmen and told that they were parading without a permit. Police ordered them to wait outside under a tree and permitted one person at a time to enter the Court House. White men took pictures of them while they were waiting there.

There are 19,488 Negroes and 7,595 whites in Holmes County; only 41 Negroes are registered.

More Registration In Greenwood

Another Greenwood citizen has lost her home and job in the wake of white opposition to the voter registration movement there. Nevertheless, about 20 adult Greenwood citizens have joined students in canvassing to urge other Negroes to register.

Mrs. Fannie Harris reported that when her son Army Lee Jones registered, his name appeared in the local newspaper in accordance with Mississippi state law. Mrs. Harris' landlady, Mrs. Simpson, saw his name there and ordered her to move.

"Disgrace For Cop"

Mrs. Simpson reportedly said that her son-in-law was a policeman and it would be a disgrace to his job to have her there.

Mrs. Harris, a domestic, and her husband Warren Harris have both been fired from their jobs since then. After she lost her home and job, Mrs. Harris went to the Court House to register to vote.

Voter registration leader Bob Moses reported that vote workers are stationed in the Court House to help people study the form as they wait in line.

Met With Mayor

Miss Annell Ponder, head of the citizenship education schools, said that she met with Mayor Charles Sampson and Police Chief Curtis Lary last Wednesday to invite them to speak at voter classes.

Sampson agreed to attend classes to explain local government and Lary said he would be happy to discuss law enforcement.

Negro Vote Worker Jailed In Holmes

LEXINGTON — Robert Moses, 32-year-old Negro voter registration worker, was arrested early this morning in Holmes County and is now being held in the county jail here.

Sheriff Mrs. Andrew Smith said Moses was taken into custody in the Mileston Community south of Tchula.

He was charged with "impeding an investigation."

Mrs. Smith said deputies were in Mileston investigating a shooting at the home of Hartman Turnbow when Moses appeared with a camera and started taking pictures.

He was reportedly taking pictures inside the house when a deputy placed him under arrest.

She said her husband, who serves as her chief deputy, was back in Mileston this afternoon investigating an alleged fire bombing of a Negro house.

Negro voter registration workers claim three gasoline fire bombs were thrown into a Negro house at 3 a.m. this morning. When the occupants of the house woke up they noticed two white men standing outside. The Negroes said," the white men started shooting into the house and the Negro man got his rifle and started shooting back. In all 30 shots were fired."

Sam Block, Negro field secretary for the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee said he had telephoned John Doar this morning in Washington and told him of the incident. Doar, Block said, had already been informed by Moses earlier this morning about the shooting incident.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents were said to be investigating.

5 Negroes in Vote Drive Charged With Arson in Mississippi Blasts file letter clips NYT 5-10-63

LEXINGTON, Miss., May 9 (UPI)—Five Negro civil-rights leaders were charged today with having set fire to a home near here to stir racial tension and bolster a voter-registration drive.

Hartman Turnbow, whose house was burned, and Robert Moses, a field secretary for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, were among those jailed on arson charges.

Chief Deputy Andrew Smith said his investigation showed that three bombs were thrown into Mr. Turnbow's home before dawn yesterday "in a plan to get the colored population excited, because Negroes had lost interest in this voter campaign.

Mr. Turnbow reported that the bombs, beer bottles containing gasoline, were thrown while he, his wife and teen-age daughter were sleeping. He exchanged gunfire with some white men who were outside, he said.

Mr. Moses, a New York native, who has headed the committee's operations in Mississippi several months, was arrested soon after the fire for "impeding" officers in investigation. They said he had refused to stop taking pictures at the scene.

The other Negroes were arrested last night. They were Hollis Watkins, Laverne Hampton and Zack E. Ball.

Mr. Turnbow has been leading a registration campaign in Holmes County. Deputy Smith said Mr. Ball had been in the county several months working ion the campaign. The others, he said, apparently entered the county Tuesday.

At Greenwood, Medgar Evers, state field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said he had protested the arrests to the Justice Department.

"There is a complete reign of terror in the Delta arta against Negroes seeking to register to vote," he declared. "The Federal Government must take positive steps in this situation."

He called the arrests "harassment and intimidation."

Incident at Raleigh

RALEIGH, N. C., May 9 (UPI) — A state trooper forcibly ejected a Negro from the new Statehouse restaurant today shortly after Mayor W. G. Enlope had appealed for steps to prevent Raleigh from becoming "another Birmingham."

It was the second such incident at the restricted restaurant in two days. Three Negroes were arrested there yesterday for trespassing. The Negro involved today was not taken into custody.

Ninety-three Negroes were arrested last night for trespassing in racial demonstrations at two downtown restaurants and a theater. They remained in an overcrowded jail under a $25 bond each. Mayor Enlope suggested that a group of businessmen be formed to deal with Negroes in working out racial problems.

"Let's not try to settle this thing by laws or creeds, but by human beings dealing with one another," he urged.

Nashville Protests Go On

Special to The New York Times

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 9 — Mass anti-segregation demonstrations, marked by shoving, occasional blows and exchanges of epithets were held in downtown Nashville for the second straight day today.

About 500 Negroes and a few whites, mostly high school and college students, marched on the business district to protest against segregated restaurants and express sympathy for racial demonstrators in Birmingham. The police moved quickly to avert clashes.

The Rev. J. Metz Rollins, a leader of the Nashville Christian Leadership Council, said more demonstrations were planned tomorrow, but only college students and adults would participate.

In City Court, meanwhile, a young white man was fined $25 for his part in yesterday's demonstrations, white charges against a Negro youth were dismissed. The two had fought in front of an empty store, smashing a window.

F.B.I. Investigating

WASHINGTON, May 9 (UPI) —The Justice Department said today it was investigating the arrest of a Negro registration worker in Lexington, Miss. Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation are at the scene, it said.

2 Whites Indicted in Shooting

GREENWOOD, Miss., May 9 (UPI) Two young white men were indicted today in the shooting of a Negro civil-rights worker.

The Leflore County grand jury returned felonious-assault indictments against William H. Greenlee, former service-station employe, and Wesley Kersey, service manager at a heavy-equipment company.

It did not indict a teen-age boy, who was also charged in the shooting Feb. 28 of Jimmy Travis, a worker for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee.

Negro Marchers Found Guilty

Release Children To Their Parents

Forty-five Negro marchers, out of a group of 57 arrested Tuesday night in Itta Bena, were tried and sentenced before Justice Joe Rusticic in Itta Bena late yesterday.

There were 17 in the group between the ages of 12 and 17. This morning the Youth Court certified all those children 14 years and older to the Justice of Peace court for trial.

Those children 14 and under, Youth Counselor Charles Deaton said, will be turned over to their parents when they come to the county jail to pick them up.

County attorney John Fraiser, Jr. prosecuted the Negroes in court on a charge of distrubance and breach of the peace.

Twenty eight of the men were found guilty and fined $500 each and sentenced to six months on the county farm. Seventeen of the women found guilty were fined $200 each and sentenced to four months on the county farm.

Bonds were set at $750 each for the men and $500 each for women. No bonds have been posted Sheriff John Ed Cothran said and all convicted persons have been transferred from the county jail to the county farm.

The Negroes were arrested Tuesday night shortly after 10 p.m. in Itta Bena when they started throwing bottles and stones into the streets. They broke windows in seven cars owned by deputy sheriff Ed Weber. Weber has a used car business in Itta Bena.

Sam Block, field secretary for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee said the Negroes started walking, "not marching" after a gas bomb was thrown into a church where a voter registration meeting was being held.

Block said the Negroes wanted to talk with deputy sheriff Weber about the gas to see what action could be taken.

Authorities said a complete investigation of Block's charges has been made and there is no evidence that a gas bomb had been thrown as the Negro charged.

Block is out on an appeal bond after being convicted in city police court earlier this year on a charge of making a statement calculated to cause breach of peace.

The City Council met this morning for just routine payment of bills.

Representatives of the local Veterans of Foreign Wars were also present and asked permission of the council members to have a carnival here sometime in July, sponsored by the V. F. W. The council gave their approval.

The council also adopted two ordinances drawn up by City Attorney Hardy Lott, making it unlawful to curse, insult, deride, ridicule or use abusive language toward policemen, auxiliary policemen and firemen engaged in proper performance of official duties.

Also amending the present traffic ordinance so as to set forth the purposes for which streets and sidewalks are maintained by the city and to make it unlawful for any person or persons with certain exceptions to parade or march or to sit, kneel, or recline, or to engage in public speaking, group shouting or group singing, or to assemble in organized groups carrying signs, on the sidewalks or streets of the City of Greenwood or to interfere with the normal use of sidewalks and streets, without permission of the Chief of Police and to make it unlawful to place debris on streets and sidewalks.

GREENWOOD, MISS., IS DEEPLY DIVIDED

Negroes and Whites Hold Firmly to Their Positions

By FOSTER HAILEY

Special to The New York Times

GREENWOOD, Miss., July 7 —The Yazoo River is neither so wide as the ocean nor so deep as the sea as it flows southwesterly here to join the Mississippi. But there is a gulf of almost those dimensions between the Negro area on the south bank and the predominantly white areas of lovely homes and spacious lawns on the north bank.

After the slaying of Medgar W. Evers, an integration leader, in Jackson, Miss., and the arrest of a Greenwood man, Byron de La Beckwith, on charges of murdering him, the division between whites and Negroes here is so wide that many wonder if it can ever be bridged again.

"There just isn't any communication here any more," one member of the white community said today, "and I don't see now how it can be re-established."

On both sides, the mood seems to be one of determination to make no concessions. There are apparently few voices of moderation here. All the more important white persons are active members of the segregationist Citizens Council.

Split by Registration Drive

The gulf between the white man and black man in this prosperous cotton country began to widen about a year ago when several young Negroes, caught up in the new ferment for equality, began a campaign to stimulate voter registration.

Greenwood has a population of about 25,000 and Leflore County, of which it is the governmental seat, has 40,000. The city population is almost evenly divided between whites and Negroes. In the county as a whole, the ratio is Negro 2 to 1. Yet there were only 400 registered Negro voters in the city to 4,000 whites, and in the county only 600 among perhaps 8,000 voters. No Negro holds any public office.

The voter registration campaign went quietly and not very successfully through the fall and winter. Then a Negro was shot and wounded by three white men and the militant Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee of Atlanta sent in some representatives.

In March the Justice Department brought suit against the voting registra. Dick Gregory, the Negro monologist, came here to help the Negro cause, and Greenwood was in headlines around the world .

Beckwith Pleads Not Guilty in Slaying of Evers

JACKSON, Miss., July 8 (AP) Byron de La Beckwith pleaded not guilty today in State Circuit Court on his indictment for the murder of Medgar W. Evers, Negro integrationist leader.

"Not guilty, sir." Mr. Beckwith replied quickly after District Attorney William Waller read the indictment and asked for a plea. The arraignment was held before Circuit Judge Leon Hendrick.

Mr. Waller met with Mr. Beckwith's three defense attorneys shortly afterward. A pretrial hearing next Monday at 2 P.M. was agreed upon. At this hearing a trial date will be set and any preliminary motions would be presented.

Mr. Beckwith's plea was not mandatory, as he was represented by counsel. Mississippi law requires a plea of not guilty in capital cases if the accused does not have a lawyer. Mississippi has no degrees of murder.

Mr. Beckwith, 42 years old, is accused of having shot Mr. Evers, who was state field secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, from ambush with a high-powered rifle just after midnight on June 12.

At Mr. Beckwith's home in Greenwood today, a White Citizens Legal Fund spokesman announced that the group, which will pay legal expenses for Mr. Beckwith, had chosen 14 Greenwood business and professional men as a board of directors.

Mississippi Group Is Named to Direct a Legal Fund for the Defendant

"When you consider the awesome spectacle of one man standing alone against the preponderous power, authority, wealth and ingenuity of the Federal Government, including civil rights investigators, special agents of the F.B.I., Federal marshals, the Jackson Police Department and all other police authority of the Stae of Mississippi, not to mention $27,000 reward money, it staggers the imagination," the fund spokesman said in a written statement.

He said that while the Beckwith case had led to the fund's inauguration, it was planned as a broader operation to furnish legal aid to white persons who need a fund similar to the N.A.A.C.P. Legal Defense and Education Fund.

Becalse Mr. Waller has said he would seek the death sentence, Mr. Beckwith, a fertilizer salesman, faces death in the state gas chamber if convicted as charged.

A jury, however, could reduce a sentence to life by recommending clemency or failing to agree on a sentence.

In the rear of the Hinds County courtroom today, about a dozen Negroes watched. Several of them were leaders in a desegregation drive that was led by Mr. Evers, who was 37.

Mr. Beckwith was arrested last month by the Federal Bureau of Investigation after a telescopic sight attached to a .30-06 rifle had been found near Mr. Evers' home.

The Jackson police indentification head, Capt. Ralph Hargrove, found a latent fingerprint on the sight. The police said the fingerprint matched that of Mr. Beckwith's right index finger. Captain Hargrove testified at a preliminary hearing that the print, in his opinion, was 12 hours old.

A Washington F.B.I. expert, Richard Poppleton, testified at the hearing that the bullet that killed Mr. Evers had come from a .30-'06 Enfield rifle. But he said it could not be determined that it had been fired from the rifle found by the police. He said the bullet was the same make, variety and lot as of others found in the rifle's magazine.

Jimmy Ward," commented Friday on seven separate developments. Each comment contained some derogatory reference either to a Negro, to President Kennedy or to a University of Mississippi professor.

Typical was the comment on the killing of a policeman, William Baumfeld, by two holdup men in New York City.

"The punks [the holdup men] one 17 and the other 20, may escape punishment, for one of them is a hulking Negro and the N.A.A.C.P. is expected to free them with another PACKED Harlem jury," Mr. Ward wrote.

Despite the ferment, life on the surface goes on much as usual. Under the hot summer sun, one of the better cotton crops in recent years appears in prospect. Everyone is prosperous if not happy.

Leflore County had an income from agriculture last year estimated at $20,000,000 and an income from industry of $7,000,000. There is little unemployment.

Greenwood has felt no repercussions from the unfavorable headlines it has been winning in the Northern press because it is not making any real effort to attract new industry. What industry it attracted from the North in earlier years—Baldwin Piano, Supreme Electronics Conmar Zippers and Medart Lockers, to name the principal four—seemed happy enough.

The Negro community does not seem to be showing the interest here that it has shown in other cities. In a year's campaign, only 1,200 new applicants have applied to vote.

A visitor looking for the campaign headquarters of the N.A.A.C.P. and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, had to make several inquiries in the Negro quarter before he found someone who could direct him. Some Negroes seem as suspicious of the white visitor from the North as do some local white residents.

Few Southern whites deny now that the old order is changing, that the white man and cotton no longer are joint kings south of the Mason-Dixon line. But they do not like it and they are not reconciled to it.

As one Southern philosopher put it: "We survived the war and Reconstruction. I guess we can live through this new invasion by the Kennedy boys and the rest of you Carpetbaggers."

Ayub Says Red China Gains When West Bolsters India

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan, July 8 (Reuters) — President Mohammad Ayub Khan warned today that small Asian nations would be driven to seek the "protection" of Communist China if Western arms support to India continued.

President Ayub Khan said at a political meeting that the West was contributing to the spread of Communism in Asia by forcing into Chinese arms nations that feared a strong India. He included the Soviet Union in his criticism. Moscow and the West hve moved to bolster India since Communist China attacked her northern border last year.

The United States and Britain, President Ayub Khan said, are "overoptimistic" in hoping smaller Asian nations will look to India after her military strength has been built up.

Negroes and Whites Hold Firmly to Their Positions

By FOSTER HAILEY

Special to The New York Times

GREENWOOD, Miss., July 7 —The Yazoo River is neither so wide as the ocean nor so deep as the sea as it flows southwesterly here to join the Mississippi. But there is a gulf of almost those dimensions between the Negro area on the south bank and the predominantly white areas of lovely homes and spacious lawns on the north bank.

After the slaying of Medgar W. Evers, an integration leader, in Jackson, Miss., and the arrest of a Greenwood man, Byron de La Beckwith, on charges of murdering him, the division between whites and Negroes here is so wide that many wonder if it can ever be bridged again.

"There just isn't any communication here any more," one member of the white community said today, "and I don't see now how it can be re-established."

On both sides, the mood seems to be one of determination to make no concessions. There are apparently few voices of moderation here. All the more important white persons are active members of the segregationist Citizens Council.

Quiet, but Tension Lingers

In April, under the terms of a truce, the Justice Department withdrew its suit and Mayor Charles Sampson agreed to withdraw any real or imagined barriers to registration. This brought a period of quiet, if not a lessening of the underlying tension.

Then last month, Mr. Evers, field secretary for the National Association for the Advnacement of Colored People in Mississippi, was killed by a shot in the back and Mr. de La Beckwith was indicted for his murder. The city was aagin on the front pages.

Why did it have to be Greenwood? residents asked inquiring visitors, referring both to the voter registration drive and to the Evers slaying. It is small comfort to residents to have it pointed out that Greenwood is not unique—that what has been happening here has been happening all over the South.

They know this, if they read their newspapers. Integration is the big news day after day. For instance, the leading article in this morning's Jackson Clarion-Ledger and Daily News, which is widely circulated here, was an interview with James H. Meredith in Chicago. The headline said: "Wilkins, N.A.A.C.P. Blast Cause Meredith to Cry."

There were other integration articles on inside pages.

The afternoon daily of Greenwood, The Commonwealth, also finds space for one or more integration stories in its limited columns each day. This is true especially if the news was unfavorable to the Negro or indicates a rift among Negro leaders.

The editor of the Jackson Daily News, in a column called "Covering the Crossroads with Jimmy Ward," commented Friday on seven separate developments. Each comment contained some derogatory reference either to a Negro, to President Kennedy or to a University of Mississippi professor.

Typical was the comment on the killing of a policeman, William Baumfeld, by two holdup men in New York City.

Vote Worker Says Red Friend, 'Not Associate'

Hearing To Free Registration Marchers Opens In Greenville

GREENVILLE--- The top Negro voter registration worker in the state testified in federal court here today that he wasn't a communist.

But Robert Moses told Leflore Board of Supervisors Attorney A. H. Bell that he is a friend of a known communist, Carl Braden.

The testimony came as Bell cross examined Moses on his work in voter registration in Mississippi and Leflore County.

The forum was a U. S. Department of Justice suit against the county seeking to have released from the county farm and Parchman 45 arrested at Itta Bena on June 18.

Bell asked Moses the questions after he had described his Negro registration activities in Lelflore County for Justice Department attorneys.

Handling the case for Justice this morning were John Doar, special assistant U. S. attorney general for civil rights, and John Martin, another Justice attorney.

Defending the county and the various officials named in the suit were Bell and Guy Rogers, a state assistant attorney general.

Several county officials have been summoned to testify in the hearing, due to resume at 2 p.m. today and expected to last for several days. U. S. Judge Claude Clayton is presiding.

Justice attorneys also requested that the county's voter registration records, in the custody of Mrs. Martha Lamb, circuit clerk,be taken to Greenville to be available at the hearing there and the Leflore supervisors agreed. It wasn't immediately apparent why the Justice Department wanted the records at Greenville.

On the subject of Braden, Moses denied that he was "associated" with the Louisville, Ky., communist, but that he knows him.

"I consider him a friend," Moses said.

The Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee field secretary added that he had seen Braden recently in Atlanta when both attended a workshop sponsored by the Southern Conference Education Fund.

Bell also questioned Moses, of New York, on why he is working in Mississippi.

"Because I am interested in helping my people in Harlem," Moses answered. "If Mississippi Negroes can help defeat with their votes the men in Congress who block and defeat worthwhile legilation, then all Negroes will benefit."

Moses said he also came here to "help alleviate injustice."

Still under cross examination by Bell, Moses said that he felt that Mississippi's voting laws are unjust.

Bell also questioned Moses on Food distribution by SNCCto needy Negroes in the County early last Spring.

The supervisor attorney asked Moses whether they had required recipients of the food to attempt to register to vote before receiv-cause of his voter registration activities.

"Have your meetings been interferred with?" asked Bell.

"No," said Magee.

"Have you ever been refused police protection?"

"I don't know," Magee answered, " I don't know if we have or not."

Marshals Take County Prisoners To Greenville

U. S. marshals have taken 27 Negro prisoners to Greenville today to testify in Federal Court in a suit filed by U. S. Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy seeking the release of 45 Negroes arrested and convicted in Itta Bena on a breach of the peace charge.

Marshals took 23 of the prisoners from the County Penal Farm and four from the State Penitentiary at Parchman.

Those taken from Parchman were Lawrence Guyot, Hollis Watkins, Henrietta Kingston and Annie Lou Thomas.

Prisoners taken from the County Farm were Clint Loggins, Betty Jean Anderson, Willie Ester Baxter, Millie Brown James Brown, Calton Ginn, Nick Hampton, Scott Harris, Anthony Jackson, James Earl Jones, Charles King and Ilene Loggins.

Willie McGee, Charles Moorhead, Willie L. Pate, Leola Perkins Willy Lee Ray, James Reed, Willie B. Stewart, David Strong, Robert Strong, Roosevelt Walls and John B. Williams.

Those prisoners taken from Parchman are part of a group of 23 taken to the state penitentiary after they refused to work on the County Farm.

Bell also questioned Moses on Food distribution by SNCCto needy Negroes in the County early last Spring.

The supervisor attorney asked Moses whether they had required recipients of the food to attempt to register to vote before receiving the food.

"We required that as a minimum requirement," Moses answered, "because there was a shortage of food and we didn't have enough to go around. But there were cases of great individual need when we gave the food without requiring that they agree to apply to register."

"It is true that your workers have a credit card to call the U. S. Department of Justice collect at anytime?" demanded Bell.

"No," said Moses. 'We usually pay for the calls ourselves. When there is a matter that the Justice Department is particularly interested in we sometimes call collect. I remember making one collect call to Washington myself."

Moses added that SNCC workers are paid their expenses, room and board and "$10 a week when we have the money."

Also testifying this morning as the Justice Department suit got under way were voter registration workers Willie Baxter, a 19-year-old woman from Itta Bena, and William H. Magee, 22, also from Itta Bena. They are among 27 county prisoners called to testify in the trial.

The Baxter woman testified that a teargas bomb had been thrown into a church in Itta Bena on June 18 while a voter registration meeting was in progress.

Then Magee testified that the group, after the bomb was thrown, had decided to go "looking for police protection."

He said that at one point they found an unidentified officer about two blocks from the church, so the Negro group decided to go back and continue the meeting.

"But the church was still full of gas," he said, "and we came out again. The officer we saw-- I don't know who he was -- was gone so we decided to go looking for protection walking two-by-two."

The Negro continued that when the group of people got near the post office in Itta Bena another group of Negroes began throwing bottles and bricks at them and that then they were arrested.

Arresting officers testified at the original trial, however, that the group from the voter meeting was doing the throwing.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:

The writer attended Federal Court in Greenville yesterday as a spectator, the case where Bobby Kennedy is seeking an injunction against the peace officers of our county.

The writer was shocked to observe how our country has become so completely involved in race hatred, from the demonstrations I saw there, what I saw and heard would be a disgrace even in Russia.

There were about fifteen white men in the spectator section of the court room, the rest was filled with colored. I heard colored women use some of the most vulgar profanity imaginable. I regret that it was not possible for Bobby Kennedy to be sitting where I was, so that he could have heard the remarks that were made about the white people, and what they were going to do with the white race when they take over.

To be very honest, I fear for the safety of white people everywhere, should the so called civil rights bill become law as proposed by our socialist president.

Speaking of the injunction, should this injunction be granted, our peace officers will be powerless to maintain law and order.

I trust that good people everywhere will soon wake up to realize that we have a president, who has plans to make our country socialist, and ruled by a dictator.

The Kennedy brothers have sowed the wind with race hatred and will reap the whirlwind of chaos.

Respectfully,
W. S. Curry

It might be a good idea for more Leflore Countians to attend the rest of that hearing.

The county begins its defense of the injunction proceedings Friday morning at nine in the federal court room at the post office building in Greenville.

Wasted Effort

Several Greenwood residents have brought to the Commonwealth's attention a mimeographed sheet being mailed about the city by the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

It is apparently a crude effort to turn white people against white people.

If the tenor of the hate sheets weren't so ridiculous, they might be dangerous.

Certainly they are uncalled for and show a pitiful lack of understanding of human relationships on the part of the senders.

Actually, these letters are just another one of the constant probings certain Negro groups are undertaking in an effort to cause trouble in Leflore County. Everything they have tried has backfired up to now, and probably their efforts will continue to backfire.

Also receiving attention currently from the Negro groups is the campaign to get local Negroes to flood the federal court room in Greenville Friday when a hearing on a Justice Department pressed injunction against the county resumes.

The Justice Department is seeking to force Leflore County to free 45 Negroes arrested during a march at Itta Bena. The injunction proceeding is also designed to tie local law enforcement hands.

Elsewhere on this page we are publishing a letter by a man who attended last week's hearings. He expresses the wish that other white people could have seen what he did. He certainly has a good point.

The law enforcement officers and attorneys who will be working and testifying in the court room tomorrow are looking out for Leflore County's interest.

Some folks might want to show their interest by attending the hearing.

We predict it will be an eye opener.

Deputies Say Group Threw Bottles, Yelled

Injunction Suit Reopens In U.S. District Court

GREENVILLE--- H. E. Weber and Harlow Pittman, Leflore County deputy sheriffs, both denied in federal court here today that they had made any attempt to prevent Itta Bena Negroes from registering to vote.

Both Weber and Pittman are defendants in a suit brought by the U. S. Justice Department to obtain a temporary injunction against them and two other Leflore County officials accused of interferring with voter rights in Itta Bena.

Other defendants are John Fraiser, Leflore County Attorney, and John Arterbury, director of the county penal farm.

The suit also seeks the release of 45 Negroes arrested after a voter registration meeting June 18 at the Hopewell Baptist Church in Itta Bena.

Weber testified that he and the other deputy drove by the Hopewell meetings at night because the Negroes had asked for police protection for their meetings. He said he never saw any disturbance which made him think they needed protection.

He testified that a group of 75 to 100 Negroes gathered in front of his home about 10:30 p.m. on the night of June 18. 'They were hollering and throwing bricks and bottles," he said.

Weber went out to the group and Pittman was already there.

Both stated that Weber asked the Negroes three times what the trouble was all about.

"I then gave them an opportunity to go home, and when they would not, I arrested them," Weber said.

Pittman testified that before Weber reached the group he had arrested one Negro, Charlie King, with a bottle in his hand.

On cross examination, Pittman stated that he and several other men had been deputized about two months ago, after racial distrubances in Greenwood.

"I was deputized for the protection of all the citizens of Itta Bena, not just those at the Hopewell meeting who had asked for protection," he said.

Weber stated that he "looked around and tried to find out some thing" after some of the arrested Negroes told him about another group of Negroes throwing bottles at members of the Hopewell Church group. But, he added, he couldn't find out anything about it.

Mrs. H. E. Weber also took the stand during the morning. She testified that no members of the Negro group which was creating a disturbance in front of her house on the night of June 18 came up to the house to ask for police protection.

Hearing the suit is U. S. District Judge Claude Clayton. Assistant Attorney General John Doar is bringing the injunction suit and attorneys for the defense are Aubrey Bell, Leflore Supervisors attorney, and Guy Rogers, assistant state attorney general.

Arguments In Hearing Set For Monday

Leflore Co

GREENVILLE--- Gene Bidwell, formerly a biological and chemical warfare officer in the national guard testified in federal court here yesterday that he found no evidence of teargas in the Hopewell Baptist Church after a Negro voter registration meeting was disrupted there by what Negroes claimed was teargas.

The defense rested its case late Friday afternoon in a suit by the U. S. Justice Department against four Leflore County officials.

Court was adjourned until 10 a.m. Monday when oral argument will begin.

Bidwell, who said he entered the Hopewell Church building within about an hour after the meeting broke up, testified that teargas would have remained in the church for three days. He found no sign of any noxious gas in the church, where the doors and windows were closed when he arrived, he said.

The Negro meeting, which took place on the night of June 18, erupted into a march into downtown Itta Bena when Negroes were "hollering and throwing bricks and bottles", according to several witnesses.

John Arterbury, director of the Leflore County penal farm, H. E. Weber, and Harlow Pittman, both deputy sheriffs who live in Itta Bena denied that they had done anything to interfere with the voting rights of Itta Bena Negroes.

The three, with John Fraiser, Jr., Leflore County prosecuting attorney, are defendants in the suit brought by the Justice Department to obtain a temporary injunction to prevent them from interferring with voter registration in Leflore County.

Defense attorneys, who opened their case Friday morning, introduced a series of witnesses who were longtime residents of Itta Bena to testify that to their knowledge the defendants had done nothing to interfere with Negro voter registration efforts.

James Green, a member of the Leflore board of supervisors, Paul Stowers, mayor of Itta Bena, and Cleveland Davis, city attorney for Itta Bena, each testified that they didn't know of any case where any of the defendants had tried to prevent Negroes from registering to vote.

John Doar, Justice Department attorney, consistently questioned each of these as to whether there are now or ever have been Negro officials or law enforcement officers in Leflore County.

Each replied negatively.

Stowers also stated that two Negroes from the Hopewell Church down tile and gravel for a parking had asked that the town put place at the church. He said that this was done as requested by the Negroes.

6,980 Voters Eligible For August 6

Greenwood Commonwealth

7-26-63

Leflore Co

The Leflore County election committee has finished purging the election books and stated today that 6,980 people in the county are qualified to vote in the Democratic Primary election August 6.

The largest block of votes is in Beat 3, which includes the City of Greenwood with 4,984 voters qualified.

The next largest Beat is Beat 4 with 639 qualified voters. The smallest Beat in the county is Beat 2 with 386 voters, just 3 votes less than Beat 1 with 389 votes.

Beat 5 has 582 votes.

This morning the Leflore County Democratic Executive Committee secretary met with elections officials to discuss the laws governing the primary election. They included such things as procedure to follow when counting the ballots, the fact that candidates can not have workers handing out cards and soliciting votes within 50 feet of the polling place and number of other laws.

The ballot this year will be as long as it was four years ago when county election officials counted on into the morning before they had completed all boxes.

U. S. Seeks To Bar La. From Using Bias Vote-Test Form

WASHINGTON — (NNPA) — The Justice Department went to court this week to prevent the State of Louisiana from further use of its voter application form as a means of discriminating against Negroes.

In a suit filed in Baton Rouge, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy asked the U. S. District Court in that area to declare unconstitutional any local laws requiring use of the application as a registration test.

Named as defendants were the Louisiana Board of Registration and the State of Louisiana, along with Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock, J. Thomas Jewel, who is Speaker of the Louisiana House of Representatives, and Hugh E. Cutrer, Jr., director of the board.

The complaint said the history of the state's adoption and use of the test demonstrates that its purpose has been to disenfranchise Negroes and to maintain white political supremacy. Lt was filed under the Civil Rights Acts of 1957 and 1960.

INFORMATION ASKED

The form in question asks for information about applicants for registrars' records, yet registrars are required by the state constitution and state laws to use the application fom as a strict qualification test.

Use of the form for this purpose is wholly arbitrary and unreasonable, the complaint said, and is not related to any legitimate interest the state may have in limiting the right to vote.

According to the complaint, Negroes have been required to fill out the form completely and correctly without assistance and have rejected for technical errors or omissions. Only "perfect" applications pass, although what constitutes a "perfect" application varies from registrar to registrar.

Meanwhile, whites with similar mistakes or omissions have been registered, or have been assisted in filling out the form, the complaint said.

Registrars also have used a constitutional interpretation test to discriminate against Negroes, the complaint added. In December 1961, however, the Justice Department brought a suit, similar to that filed Monday, challenging the constitutionality of that test.

The interpretation has been tried by a three judge court in the Eastern District of Louisiana and is awaiting decision.

GRADING STANDARD HIT

In September 1962, the complaint continued, the Board of Registration advised registrars to stop using the interpretation test, but to enforce the application form test even more rigidly.

"The tightening of the grading standard is itself a racially discriminatory practice," the complaint said, because a greater percentage of whites is already registered and thus not subjected to the [illegible] test. [illegible] the state's eligible [illegible] registered, while only 29.2 percent of the eligible Negroes were registered.

Filed as exhibits with the complaint were reproductions of 36 application forms showing that Negro registration applicants were rejected for "inconsequential errors or omissions" on the forms.

The Attorney General noted that on one application a Negro was refused registration because, in giving his age in years, months and days, he miscalculated by one day.

Another was rejected in one parish (county) for stating his color was "brown" instead of 'Negro," while in a second parish, an applicant was refused because he responded "Negro" instead of 'brown."

Negro Ignores Threats, Signs Voters' List

ST. FRANCISVILLE, La. (AP)—A minister ignored threatening white men Thursday to become West Feliciana parish's first Negro voter since Reconstruction.

Rev. Joseph Carter entered the parish (county) courthouse by a side door after white men blocked the front entrance.

One of the men cursed him and warned him that he would be emasculated if he entered the building.

The minister was one of 43 Negroes who arrived at the courthouse in a school bus. It was the first mass voter registration attempt here in the Congress of Racial Equality campaign.

Several FBI agents were on hand, snapping frequent photographs throughout the day. State agents also were active with cameras.

The day opened with an air of tension. A Ku Klux Klan cross was burned at midnight in front of the office of Aldero Stevenson, Negro assistant to the county agent.

The parish has a population of about 8,500—68 per cent of them Negro.

Carter was arrested when he tried to register last Aug. 10. He filed a $100,000 federal court suit later accusing Registrar Fletcher Harvey and Sheriff Percy of violating his civil rights.

Louisiana's Odd Interpretation Of Vote Tests Hit In U. S. Suit

Court asked to bar biased practices, outlaw state laws

WASHINGTON (NNPA) — "Inconsequential errors or omissions" on application forms and in tests are used in Louisiana to deny colored vote registration while the same mistakes are overlooked with white registrants, the Justice Department said this week.

In a suit filed in Baton Rouge, La., Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy noted that on one appliction a colored man was refused registration because, in giving his age in years, months and days, he miscalculated by one day.

Another was rejected in one parish (county) for stating his color was "brown" instead of "Negro," while in a second parish an applicant was refused because he wrote "Negro" instead of "brown" on his application, the suit points out.

THE SUIT, filed in U.S. District Court, asks that Louisiana be prevented from further use of its voter application form as a means of discriminating against colored applicants, and any local laws requiring use of the application as a registration test be declared unconstitutional.

THE COMPLAINT said the history of the state's adoption and use of the test demonstrates that its purpose has been to disenfranchise colored voters and to maintain white political supremacy. It was filed under the Civil Rights Acts of 1957 and 1960.

MR. KENNEDY said that in September 1962, some 73.7 percent of the state's eligible whites were registered, white only 29.3 percent of the eligible non - whites were registered.

Continuing Registration Bias Attacked

Birmingham World

WASHINGTON — Negroes seeking to register to vote in West Feliciana Parish, Louisiana face a continuing pattern of unlawful discrimination and delay even though a few Negroes have registered recently in the parish for the first time in almost 60 years, the Department of Justice asserted in a civil suit filed Tuesday.

Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy said the complaint asked the United States District Court in Baton Rouge to forbid the parish (county) registrar to continue delaying Negro applications unreasonably or to engage in other racially discriimnatroy registration practices.

Named as defendants were the registrar, Fletcher Harvey and the State of Louisiana. The suit was filed under the Civil Rights Acts of 1957 and 1960.

Mr. Kennedy said the case was brought only after the Department was unable to secure guarantees of non-discrimination from local officials in informal conferences.

The complaint said the registrar has unreasonably and discriminatorily delayed the receipt of applications from Negroes and has applied more stringent standards to Negroes than to whites.

Until October 17, before any Negroes were registered in the parish, Negro applicants were required to produce two registered voters to vouch for their identity, the complaint said.

Since October 17, Negroes have been subjected either to this "voucher system" or have been required to document their length of residence to an unreasonable extent. Negroes, unlike whites, have not not been permitted to register on the strength of their own sworn statements regarding length of residence.

Such discrimination will continue the complaint said, unless enjoined by the court.

Louisiana Vote Case

11-30-63

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The U. S. Supreme Court was asked Thursday to strike down a Louisiana law requiring publication of the race on nomination papers or the ballot, of each candidate for public office.

Jack Greenberg, Director- Counsel of the Legal Defense Fund, pointed out in the brief that "the statute unconstitutionally makes racial discrimination possible and encourages the practice."

(The high court will hear a half hour of argument from each side Wednesday, November 20th or Thursday, November 21st, depending on the pace of previous proceedings.)

Louisiana is "requiring disclosure of information with no bona fide public purpose, much less a compelling interest," the Legal Defense Fund brief states.

James M. Nabrit, III was of counsel to Mr. Greenberg during the argument. He too is an attorney for the Fund.

Taking the point a step further, the brief states that Louisiana's constitution limits Negro participation in community life just as much as the more obvious forms of discrimination and physical segregation.

The evil of the practice is spelled out by the fact that "designation as a Negro (in Louisiana) identifies the candidate with a group that is .... by state policy, unfit for office."

Louisiana, the Legal Defense Fund brief shows:

"has selected a single, highly prejudicial factor for universal publication. This denies the individual the liberty to seek office and campaign according to his own estimate of effective campaign tactics."

The case is being argued on behalf of Deputy H. Anderson and Acie J. Belton, Negro citizens of East Baton Rouge parish.

Both were candidates for nomination to the school board in their

Louisianans Vote First Time Since 1902 Election

ST. FRANCISVILLE, La. — Unmentioned in most December 8, newspaper accounts of the Louisiana primaries, was the fact that Negroes in West Feliciana parish voted for the first since 1902.

The total number of Negroes who came to the courthouse here to cast their votes was only 13. But the precedent established was significant, in a parish where Negroes faced intimidation by both threats and actual acts of violence in the course of CORE's voter registration campaign.

Among those who voted was Rev. Joseph Carter, who was threatened with castration as he approached the courthouse on October 17 to become the first Negro to register since 1902. Another voter was James Payne, who had been hit across the face with a rifle butt in an attempt to stop him from registering.

When Rev. Carter first attempted to register in August, he was arrested for "disturbing the peace" and jailed overnight. He thereupon filed a $100,000 damage suit in federal court accusing both the registrar and the sheriff of violating his civil rights.

Federal Jury Frees 5 In Mississippi Beating

OXFORD, MISSISSIPPI — Five Mississippi law officers, charged by the U. S. Department of Justice with seven counts of conspiracy to deprive five Negroes of their civil rights, were set free here by a Federal jury.

The five were accused of beating five civil rights workers arrested in Winona, Mississippi after they entered a white rest room at a bus station there.

State highway patrolman John L. Basinger, Montgomery County Sheriff Earle Wayne Patridge, and Winona Police Chief Thomas J. Herod, Jr., all claimed they were innocent of the seven charges brought against them by the Justice Department.

The Justice Department called six witnesses, including four of the Negro complainants, and two FBI agents.

ALL CLAIMED BEATING

June Johnson, Euvester Simpson Rosemary Freeman, and Lawrence Guyot, all testified that they had been beaten in the Winona jail.

Mrs. Fannie Lou Hammer old the court that she was kicked by Sheriff Patridge after he yanked her off a bus in front of the bus station in Winona. She testified that she had remained on the bus while her four companions entered a segregated lunch room. All five were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct.

Annelle Ponder, a field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, testified that three of the defendants beat her in the Winona city jail on June 9. She said, "And I'm not completely over 't yet."

James Harold West, a SNCC worker, told the court he was beaten by policemen and two Negro prisoners who were ordered to beat and kick him. He said he was later forced by a policeman to sign a statement saying that no beating took place.

Two Negroes who were in the jail testified that they had been "paid" a pint and a half of corn whistkey for beating West.

BONDSMAN BEATEN

Guyot, a SNCC field secretary, told the all-white jury he was "kicked, punched and beaten with a slapjack" when he went to Winona to post bond for West and the women. Guyot said Sheriff Eearl Patridge ordered him to "get out of Winona and stay gone" but he was stopped by highwayman Basinger and knocked down because he rufused to say "sir" to the officer.

Then, said Guyot, he was forced to disrobe and was beaten in the sheriff's office before he was jailed for "disturbing the peace."

FBI agents took the stand to introduce photographs showing injuries to the five. One agent testified he had examined a bloodstained shirt worn by Miss Johnson while she was under arrest.

Sex Question Causes Losing Right to Vote

DeSoto Parish's registrar rejected the registration of a prospective voter in January because he couldn't tell the sex of the person seeking to register.

Sidney Wells Platt, the registrar, reported the rejection was among six in January in his parish in the monthly report now required of some 21 parish registrars.

The document in U.S. District Court here Friday said the applicant "stated on LR 1 card (voter registration card) that sex was male. This person was dressed like a woman. Therefore, I doubted the answer to this question and ruled it answered incorrectly. In view of this fact, sex of this applicant is unknown."

The U.S. District Court order requires registrars to give such pertinent information as name, date of birth and sex of those who register and who are refused registration.

Platt reported 21 whites and 10 Negroes registered during the month with six Negroes turned down. Total registration in the parish at the end of January included 8,152 whites and 771 Negroes.

Gallinghouse Denies Any Discrimination in Office

Registrar Disputes Claim of Marshall

Orleans Parish Registrar of Voters A. P. "Tim" Gallinghouse denied allegations of discrimination by his office against Negroes in its registration procedures.

Gallinghouse's statement was issued following Tuesday's release of testimony by the Justice Department [illegible] testimony [illegible] head of the department's civil rights division.

Marshall listed Orleans Parish and 33 other Louisiana parishes as among a total of 189 counties in eight Southern states "where the right to vote is denied to thousands of Negroes." He made the statement in testimony before the U.S. House of Representatives appropriation subcommittee last January.

"I wish to make it clear," said Gallinghouse, "that at no time since my appointment as registrar on July 24, 1961, has any favoritism been shown in our office. I took a sworn oath that I would uphold the constitution and the laws of the state of Louisiana and this I have done and will always do. My abiding and irrevocable purpose is to serve the people of my community with efficiency, fairness and impartiality, without regard to race, color, creed or political affiliation.

SAYS STATE, OUTDATED

"This stale and outdated information apparently stems from testimony given by an assistant United States attorney general before a congressional committee on Jan. 28, 1964. No official notice has been given to me by any federal authority concerning discrimination in the Orleans Parish office. No federal complaints have been made by anyone.

"The doors to our office, 1E03 City Hall, are open to all persons with legitimate business and wholesome purposes. If any applicant has a complaint, then I suggest that he visit our office and I will be most happy to discuss it with him.

"I think it should be pointed out that although our office has conducted its business without bias, this is obviously not enough to satisfy some people. They are not content to receive equal consideration. They want special concessions because of their color. These I will not grant.

"I am proud to state that the Orleans Parish registration office has reached a high point in its operation. So long as I am registrar, we shall not deviate from our avowed purpose to serve the public and serve them well. Our personnel should be commended for performing well under the most trying conditions and during the most troubled times."

BOW REQUESTS DATA

During the hearing at which Marshall testified, Rep. Frank T. Bow, R-Ohio, asked for a list of counties where Marshall had said the right to vote is denied thousands of Negroes. Marshall submitted the list of 189 counties later.

He said the list was compiled on the basis of "statistical and other information available to this (Civil Rights) division (which) indicated that there was reason to believe that . . . Negroes may have been denied their voting rights. . ."

However, the Justice Department added:

"In some of the counties listed, no investigation has yet been made by the department to determine whether this is so, or whether, if so, the discriminatory practices have ceased. In others, action has been taken, either by investigation, records analysis, negotiation or litigation."

N.O. Registrar Questioned on Voter Cards

Justice Department attorneys quesitoned Orleans Parish Registrar of Voters A. P. "Tim" Gallinghouse today regarding voter applicaiton cards in preparation for a suit alleging discrimination against Negroes.

The oral depositions were taken from Gallinghouse and a number of his employes at federal district court.

GALLINGHOUSE SAID many of the cards about which he was questioned were filled out shirtly after he became registrar and before his policies had been adopted.

He said persons rejected for certain errors on the cards would not be rejected if they attempted to register today.

The suit against Gallinghouse and other Louisiana registrars is not set for trial yet.

THE QUESTIONING was handled by Frank Dunbaugh, Alexander Ross and Richard Parsons, all Justice Department officials from Washington.

Assistant Louisiana attorney general Harry J. Kron Jr. represented Gallinghouse.

Group Urges Return Of Forms Unsigned

Greenwood Commonwealth 1-21-65

By BILL RICHARDSON

The Greenwood Citizens' Council directors adopted a resolution yesterday calling for the city and county school boards to return unsigned the desegregation compliance agreements sent out recently by the federal government.

The city and county school boards each have until March 1, to make a decision on the matter.

The resolution said, "if the schools of this state are to be integrated and are to receive federal money, then any thinking citizen will realize it is better that this be done by a court decree rather than by a voluntary contract surrendering our schools to the complete domination of a federal bureau which reserves the right from time to time to change the rules as suits its pleasure.

"By signing such a contract, we Mississippians, for money, would be selling the best interest of the white children of this State, violating the principles we have proclaimed over and over again, and laying the foundation for the destruction of our public schools".

The local directors of the Council said, "we urge our citizens to use their influence to see to it that neither local school boards nor the State Board of Education signs any such foolish contract with the federal government."

The seven points listed by the directors in their resolution upon which they have based their decision were:

1. The school board must agree with the federal bureau on a detailed specific plan for integrating all of its schools; and the school board must then sign a binding contract enforceable in court to carry out this specific plan for the integration of its schools.

2. The specific plan for integrating the schools must be satisfactory to the federal bureau and must be agreed to by it. Surely, by this time, even our most trusting citizens must be aware of what this will mean.

3. The school board must agree with the federal bureau on specific methods of giving wide publicity to the terms of the agreed school integration contract so that all prospective patrons will be aware of these terms.

4. The school board must put the integration plan in operation.

5. The school board must further contract to keep such records and to submit to the federal bureau such compliance reports as the bureau specifies. It must also agree that all of its records and facilities will be open to inspection by the bureau's branch which is being established for the sole purpose of investigating compliance with such school integration contracts.

6. Even then, the school integration plan is not final since by the contract the federal bureau reserves the right from time to time to redetermine whether the integration plan is adequate to accomplish the complete integration of all schools.

FBI Agent Says He Felt National Guard Was Needed Here Last Year

Greenwood Commonwealth 1-26-65

Federal Suit Against City Officials Is In Second Day

By BILL RICHARDSON

GREENVILLE, Miss. — A Federal Bureau of Investigation agent told a three-judge federal panel here today that at one time during integration attempts at the Leflore Theatre he felt the situation was so serious "it warranted calling out the National Guard."

The testimony came during the second day of a Justice Department suit against Greenwood Mayor, Charles Sampson, Commissioner B. A. Hammond, Chief of Police Curtis Lary and Assistant Police Chief Miller Wyatt. The suit charges that the defendants engaged in practices and patterns of resistance which denied Negroes the full enjoyment of the facilities of the Leflore Theatre.

Special Agent John P. Quinlon, a 14-year veteran of the FBI, told the court that on the night of July 26, two Negroes, Jake McGhee and Silas McGhee were both injured as they left the theatre by glass from a broken bottle.

Under cross examination by attorney Stanny Sanders of Greenwood, Quinlon said that he did not see the two injured as they left the theatre. He told the court that he was not aware of any incident when the Negroes left. 'The crowd had gathered around the entrance to the theatre and from the place where we were parked the crowd had cut off our vision of the entrances and exits of the theatre.

'I left the theatre and went to have something to eat. I then received a call that there was some difficulty at the hospital. Another agent picked me up. When I arrived at the hospital I saw two uniformed policemen, two deputy sheriffs and one highway patrolman. They were standing outside the entrance to the hospital."

Quinlon then described the scene at the hospital saying, 'There were about 15 men standing out on the lawn and 10 to 15 cars crossing back and forth.

'The facts as I saw it, this was the proper situation for the calling of the Guard to protect the safety of the people."

District Judge Claude Clayton, a member of the panel and a general officer in the National Guard, asked the agent if he thought the Guard was needed to protect 15 persons?"

"Yes, sir," Quinlon replied.

'I disagree with you," Clayton said.

It was brought out by Sanders in cross examination of Quinlon that there were as many law enforcement officers present at the hospital as there were persons standing outside on the lawn.

Earlier in the morning a former Greenwood Commonwealth editor wound up his testimony, started near the end of the first day of the trial.

Thatcher Walt of Jacksonville Fla., said today that he had filed an assault warrant against a Greenwood man after an incident at the theatre last summer.

Under cross examination by attorney Hardy Lott, Walt said he withdrew the charges after deciding that he had not actually been assaulted by Fred Conner, the man charged in the warrant.

Near the end of the first day of testimony Walt had testified that Mayor Sampson had told him last July 6 that 'we aren't going to have anyone think we are helping those Negroes to integrate the Leflore Theatre."

"I was at the time negotiating with a future employer and didn't want to get too involved in the matter," Walt said, "but it just looked like the town was going to pot. There seemed to be very little law and order."

Walt said he went to the office of chief of Police Curtis Lary and spoke with him briefly.

"I also saw Mayor Sampson and mentioned to him the fact that the theatre had been integrated. I asked what they were going to do.

"Sampson told me I'll tell you one thing, we aren't going to have anyone think we are helping those Negroes."

The appearance of Walt in the courtroom caught the defense attorneys, Hardy Lott and Stanny Sanders by surprise. Neither said they had any idea why Walt was being called by the government.

However, just before court was recessed for the day Walt told of the night of July 17 he attended the Leflore Theatre with his wife, two boys and a young girl visiting with them in their home.

"When we arrived at the theatre we were stopped by a white man whom I knew," Walt added. "He told us we had better not go into the theatre. We passed several words back and forth and after a bit the man said several things to my wife which upset me.

"I told him if I had any more telephone calls or harrassment I would hold him responsible. He told me he had not been calling," Walt said.

It was this point that U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Judge John R. Brown interrupted Walt and asked him the name of the man who had stopped him at the theatre entrance. Walt replied," it was Fred Conner, your honor, I have known him for sometime."

Immediately after Walt had identified Conner the court was recessed for the night.

Earlier in the day theatre manager Harry Marchand had traced for the court the incidents that had taken place at the theatre since the passage of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Marchand told the court that he talked with the city officials prior to the passage of the Civil Rights Act and informed them that his office had advised him that the theatre would comply with the law when it was passed.

"I went to see the city officials and told them this," Marchand stated. "They told me they were sorry, but there was nothing they could do. It was a kinda darned if you do and darned if you don't situation."

Marchand described the various times that Negroes had come to the theatre and said under cross examination by city attorney Hardy Lott, that his business at the theatre has dropped off to practically nothing.

Lott then called for figures from the theatre manager who said he did not have them available. John Rosenberg, Justice Department attorney then supplied figures which he said had come from the theatre's main office in New Orleans. Lott read into the court record the figures for the first five days of the month of December which showed the attendance at the theatre was averaging about 20 patrons per day. The only particular day he pointed out was Band Festival Day when over 500 persons attended the theatre.

Marchand told the court of the crowds that gathered in front of the theatre shortly after it had been integrated describing the pickets that appeared in front of the theatre carrying Rebel flags and signs.

He also told of incidents of "stink bombs" being released in the theatre and of another time when tear gas was released in the theatre. He said over a period of 15 to 17 days the theatre was attacked by vandals.

Lott asked Marchand if he knew who had done the vandalism at the theatre and received a negative reply. He asked him if the FBI knew, again Marchand said he didn't know.

Marchand was the first witness called by the government in the suit which was originated last September. He told the court that he had been manager of the theatre in Greenwood for 23 years.

The second witness of the day was Negro Silas McGhee who told of his efforts to integrate the theatre.

Under cross examination by Lott, McGhee admitted that he had never had any difficulty gaining admission to the theatre.

He told of being struck while in the theatre and being chased when he left the theatre.

Under examination by Lott Marchand said the last incident of trouble at the theatre in regard to vandalism was on December 5. It had started he said earlier on about July 11.

"Isn't it a fact that your business at the Leflore Theatre has fallen off to practically nothing?" Lott asked — "yes sir," Marchand replied.

Marchand then said, "If I were to write to New Orleans I would tell them about 90 percent of the people were for us at the theatre, but the telephone calls, fears, damaged cars and other things have kept many of the people away."

Judge Brown then interrupted and asked, "If the public officials were to authorize a statement that they would protect your patrons, both white and Negro do you think it would help?"

Marchand replied I don't know.

The case is expected to take about three days and then upon its completion the court will under take another case involving a second theatre in Greenwood.

The suit was brought against the Paramount Gulf Theatre and T. G. Solomon of McComb owner of the theatre and Mrs. Elizabeth Rogers, manager. It charged they have denied Negroes the facilities of the theatre.

The court has allotted about five days for both cases.

Local Men Go On Trial Next Week

Three Greenwood men will go on trial next week in a federal court at Greenville in connection with the alleged beating of a Leflore County Negro who had spearheaded desegregation of the Leflore Theatre.

The three men, Willie Belk, 47, his son, Jimmy Belk, 19 and Sam Shaffer were all indicted by a federal grand jury last month in Oxford on charges that they 'did unlawfully conspire to injure, oppress threaten and intimidate Silas McGhee in the free exercise and enjoyment of his rights and privileges."

FBI agents arrested the Belks and Shaffer here last July 23, about two weeks after the 1964 Civil Rights Law had been signed into law. Their arrests were the first in the nation under the new law. Since their arrest they have been free on $1,000 bond each.

The FBI said at the time of the arrest the Belks and Schaffer had beaten McGhee in connection with his efforts to desegregate the Leflore Theatre.

The case will be heard by U. S. District Judge Claude Clayton who last week sat as a member of three judge federal panel in connection with two cases involving two Greenwood theatres.

Attorneys for the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party, contesting the election of the Mississippi delegation to the U. S. Congress, have had subpeonas issued for several Greenwood officials for questioning next week.

Among those who have been subpeonaed for testimony are Mayor Charles Sampson, Commissioner B. A. Hammond and police chief Curtis Lary.

Meanwhile three Chicago attorneys, Alex Polikoff and two Negro attorneys, Carl McCormick and Edward A. Hunter, Jr., continued taking depositions from Negroes at St. Francis School today.

Three members of the Leflore County Bar Association were there representing Congressman Jamie Whitten, whose election is being contested by Fannie Lou Hamner. The attorneys were headed by W. M. Whittington, Jr., Charles Deaton and James M. Pierce.

During the morning session three witnesses were questioned, they included Eddy Lane of 214 Avenue H. Henry Smith of 701 Broad Street and Alberta Brown of 509 Avenue I.

Smith told the attorneys he had been to the Leflore County courthouse ten times to register to vote.

"I went up there the first time. I can't read or write. She told me you can't read or write there's no need to come up here".

Smith was referring to Mrs. Martha Lamb, Circuit Clerk of Leflore County when he said, "she said you have no need to come up here."

Under cross examination by Whittington, Smith was asked, "you can't read or write anything?".

"No I can't."

"You have never written a single answer on that paper?"

"No I didn't."

Whittington then asked Smith if he could not read, how did he expect to read the names that would be listed on a ballot.

Polikoff objected to the question, claiming that in Chicago they have what is called voter assistants who will assist persons.

Smith replied to the question after Whittington asked it again, "Everyone knows who he wants to vote for'.

The questioning of the witnesses at the hearing this morning are being conducted without anyone having authority to rule on the objections being filed by both sides.

Smith also claimed that one time when he went up to register to vote the clerk had taken a white man in first and had helped him.

Under cross examination he finally admitted the white man had already been there in line before he and the other Negroes with him arrived at the Circuit Clerk's office.

Whittington asked him, "how do you know Mrs. Lamb was helping him with a voter form. It could have been a marriage license. You are not able to read so how do you know what type of form it was?"

Smith replied, "it was just one of them forms.'

Another witness called this morning, Alberta Brown said she had been to the courthouse three times to take the voter registration test.

The 71-year-old Negro woman said, "I told her I couldn't write very well and she told me I would have to do the best I could."

"What did you do "

"I wrote my name and handed the paper in."

Whittington asked. "you just filled out your name and didn't answer any of the questions?"

"Yes sir," she replied.

HIGH COURT DELAYS SUIT TO BAN RACE DESIGNATION

10-Beaumont Enterprise

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

BATON ROUGE, Oct. 20 — The U. S. Supreme Court has decided to put off a hearing in a Louisiana suit to eliminate racial designation on the ballot, Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion said Sunday.

The postponement by the high tribunal assured the Dec. 7 Democratic primary for governor will be held as scheduled.

HEARING WAS SLATED THURSDAY

A hearing in the suit by Dr. Dupuy Anderson, Baton Rouge Negro dentist, and Acie Belton, Scotland Negro, had been scheduled for Thursday.

But Gremillion said he was advised by the clerk of the U. S. Supreme Court a postponement until some time in November was ordered.

ELIMINATES ANY INTERFERENCE

Gremillion said this eliminated any possible interference with the Dec. 7 primary, a point he made in his brief of Sept. 13 supporting a three-judge federal court ruling which upheld the constitutionality of the Louisiana law requiring that the race of candidates be designated on ballots.

The U. S. Department of Justice, meanwhile, has filed a brief in the suit as "friend of the court."

The government petitioned the Supreme Court to reverse the three-judge court ruling.

U. S. Dist. Judges E. Gordon West and Frank Ellis voted to uphold the law and U. S. Circuit Judge John Minor Wisdom voted with the Negro plaintiffs.

Gremillion said reversal of the three-judge court decision at this time could have forced reprinting all of the ballots for the upcoming gubernatorial primary.

Procedures of Registering To Vote in St. Helena Parish

First the registar told me to write a part of the preamble of the U. S. Constitution namely "do ordain and establish this constitution."

Second, the registrar put ten faced down cards before me on his desk and then told me to pick one, answer four out of six questions and I did so.

Third, I had to sign an affidavit without seeing the content on the back stating or giving my name, address and date.

Fourth, the registrar gave me the registration application form, I filled it out and gave it back to him and to the best of my knowledge without error.

Fifth, he looked the application form and compared the form with the affadavit and then told me that my application for registration could not be accepted.

WHEN YOU GO TO REGISTER, remember to carry substantial proof that you have lived in Louisiana for one year.

The following is an example of how to figure you age to the exact years, months and days:

	Year	Month	Day
Substract your birthdate (year,month, day) from the present date (year, month, day).	1961	5	23
	1921	2	20
ANSWER: 40 years, 3 months, and 3 days of age.	40	3	3

The following example is more diffocult than the first example:

As you can see, we cannot take 31 days from 23 days nor can we take 10 months from 5 months, therefore, we must borrow to make 23 and 5 large enough to subtract 31 and 10.

Year	Months	Days
1961	5	23
1934	10	31

The first step is to borrow one month (which is equel to 30 days) from the five months (which leaves four months) and add the one month (which is equelto 30 days) to the 23 days, 30+23=53 days. The second step t is to borrow one year (which is 12 months) from 1961 (which leaves 196 and add the one year (which is 12 months) to the 4 months, 12 + 4 = 16 months. It will then look like this:

Year	Month	Day

A PROGRAM OF THE SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL

ROOM 206 / 5 FORSYTH STREET, N. W. / ATLANTA 3, GEORGIA

May 18, 1962

Mr. Robert Moses
714 Rose Street
Jackson, Mississippi

Dear Bob:

I attempted to call you on Thursday in Jackson, and today in Cleveland and Holly Springs, but was unable to reach you prior to my departure for Detroit.

Mr. William Peters of CBS is interested in doing a documentary on voter registration in the South, and has asked me if I know of any registration office in the South where registration is currently going on and where the registrar practices such open racial discrimination against Negroes that it would be apparent to anyone in the office at the time that a Negro was attempting to register. If you know of any such situation, I would certainly appreciate your letting me know so that arrangements could quietly be made to do a documentary.

Mr. Peters will be coming to Mississippi and Louisiana within the next few days and he would like the names of some people to talk to while gathering information for his story, and I am sure that you could help in this regard also.

I would appreciate it if you would phone me on Monday, May 21, if you are back in Jackson or if you otherwise receive this letter by that time. Perhaps at that time I can also tell you something regarding my trip to Jackson pursuant to your letter of May 17.

Sincerely yours,

Warren County Citizens Improvement League

PRINCIPAL WORK PROJECT
For
1962

Prepared by J, M. Houston, Acting President, during December, 1961, for presentation to the League at its Annual Meeting, January 5th, 1962.

PRINCIPAL WORK PROJECT FOR 1962

A

To enroll 200 new members. Establish a subordinate organization in each voting precinct in the city of Vicksburg and Warren County, in order to increase the Negro voting strength.

B

The subordinate organizations shall be known and referred to as Precinct Departments. Each precinct organization shall have a president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and a board of supervisors, composed of five members. And shall have a number of such other lesser ranking officers as may be necessary to accomplish the purpose of the organization.

C

To devise ways and means to raise $2,000 to finance the minimum cost of the league's operation in connection with this project, to increase the voting strength in Warren County, during a period of twelve months, beginning March 1, 1962.

This may be done by a specially organized finance committee. Each Negro family will be asked to contribute one dollar. And they are now and hereby assessed that amount. There are about 4,200 Negro families in Warren County. We may expect one out of four to give the one dollar, this will amount to $1,050.00. We may reasonably expect to receive an average of $5.00 each from 105 churches, the amount of $525.00. About $225.00 from fraternal societies and social clubs. About $250.00 through a variety of other fund-raising efforts.

D

The league shall hire a man to work daily in promoting the league's program and efforts to increase the number of qualified Negro voters.

He must be a man who is known in all parts of Warren County, and be familiar with the conditions and circumstances under which the people live therein. He shall be a resident citizen of Warren County and an elected member of the board of directors of the Warren County Citizens Improvement League.

He shall work under the supervision and direction of the board. He shall be appointed by a vote of the majority of the board. But, not dismissed except by a vote of two thirds of the board.

PRINCIPAL WORK PROJECT FOR 1962

His position shall be known and referred to as "Field Director". It shall be his duty to superintend the work of organizing the precinct units, to direct the work of the precinct supervisors and their assistants.

He shall supervise and direct an educational program, instituted by the league, and designed to encourage and inspire people to study and learn how to solve the problem of becoming qualified to vote, and otherwise meet the requirements of first class citizenship.

He should be one who has proven his loyalty to the league, his love for the cause, and his devotion to such work. His economic circumstances should be such as will permit him to do a lot of work for a very little money. He shall be required to work three hours a day, or 18 hours per week. He shall receive pay for services at the rate of $1.00 per hour for not more than 18 hours per week, and shall be paid on the first and fifteenth of every month, and in accord with rules made by the board.

The Field Director shall be either the chairman or the Secretary of the committee organized to raise the funds to finance this project.

E

These funds shall be kept separate and apart from the general funds of the league, and shall not be used for any other purpose.

Funds raised for this project shall be used as follows:

Field Director's salary for 12 months at $18.00 per week, or $72 per month	$ 864.00
Gasoline and oil for his use, $12.00 per month	120.00
Some unfore-seen expense connected with his work, $5.00 per month	60.00
Clerical Service, typing, memographing, etc., $25.00 per mo.	300.00
2,400 four cents stamps	96.00
2,400 three cents stamps	72.00
5,000 sheets of typewriter paper	25.00
3,000 Envelopes	21.00
Printing, over 12 month period	350.00
Miscellaneous	17.00
	$1925.00

Just how, when and where these various amounts, or any part thereof shall be paid, shall be predetermined by three members of the executive committee of the Board of Directors of the League.

Prepared by J. M. Houston, Acting President, during December, 1961, for presentation to the League at its annual meeting the first Friday in January, 1962.

MEMORANDUM

To: Wiley A. Branton

From: Jack Minnis

Here are some facts about the Mississippi election which you may find useful:

Negroes of voting age	422,256
Whites of voting age	748,266
Total voting age	1,170,522
No of votes cast in 8-27-63 primary	456,518
% of voting age Mississippians who voted	38%
If 70% of the registered Negroes voted this would have been	17,500
Then there would have been white votes of	439,018
% of white Mississippians who voted	58%

Assuming that the Johnson votes represent the real rabid whites of Mississippi, and that few, if any, Negroes voted for him, we can suggest that only 261,424 out of the 1,170,522 Mississippians of voting age, or 22% actively support the extreme racist position. This is truly government by the few to the detriment of the many. Again, the Johnson votes represent only 35% of the white Mississippians of voting age. The rest of the whites either voted for the less extremist position of Coleman, or they didn't vote.

Now, I know very well that these interpretations from the election results don't have much significance so far as the official policies we can expect from Mississippi are concerned. But they indicate, I think, two things. First, Mississippi government, as it has been for generations, is minority government in the sense that even the whites are by no means solid behind guys like Barnett and Johnson. And if the race issue were really a grass roots concern among all Mississippi whites, I can't believe that more than 58% of them wouldn't have bothered to vote. In other words, the rece issue is apparently not a orime issue to something like 40% of the whites, or more of them would have come out and voted on it. Second, when Negroes finally break the barriers in Mississippi, they are bound to begin raising political issues which will be of prime importance to many thousands of whites who are not now voting, and to many thousands more who indicated in this latest election that they were less than incurably ill by voting for Coleman.

KILL THE TWO-PARTY THREAT NOW!
KEEP MISSISSIPPI UNITED AND FREE!

MISSISSIPPI "STAND FAST" CONSTITUTIONAL CONSERVATIVE DEMOCRAT

The people of Mississippi have rejected decisively the influence of the National Democratic Party since it has become dominated by integrationist liberals of the Kennedy ilk.

Mississippi's own Democratic Party, "segregated" from both national parties and solely an instrument of the citizens of this State, today is safely in the hands of the conservative, responsible majority of Mississippi voters.

The leaders you have selected in the August Democratic primaries have a clear mandate to continue opposition to unconstitutional federal authority, and to continue and accelerate the soundly-based growth of the State's economy. An uncommon degree of unity has been exhibited by Mississippi's Democratic majority towards these goals.

But a silk-stocking group, calling themselves "Republicans" insist on annoying the people with another political campaign — a "third primary." They didn't even have a primary election; they just hand-picked a few men to run as Republican candidates.

The pig-in-a-poke they're trying to sell is the "two-party system." They propose to split white conservative Mississippians into two political camps. Every thinking Mississippians knows that competition between our white conservatives will give unprecedented influence — even the "balance of power" — to Negroes and Mississippi's handful of liberals.

These Republicans — just like their counterparts 100 years ago — are willing to create a liberal "frankenstein's monster" in our state, and to sell out all you hold dear, just to achieve their selfish political goals.

Kentucky, a two-party state, has elected the first Negro woman to its legislature. On Sept. 13, at Los Angeles, she said (Associated Press report): "The Negro will not be politically liberated in the South unless the Republican party is strengthened to give the area a two-party system."

Look at Kentucky . . . and California, New York, Michigan, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and other states enjoying the "benefits" of a two-party system. Do you want this system in Mississippi? If your answer is a loud clear "No!", then make your voice heard on November 5.

Even a respectable showing at the polls would be a moral victory for the Republicans. Help get out the biggest vote in Mississippi history. Let's bury these overnight Republicans under such an avalanche of ballots that they'll be another 100 years digging out!

Project Mississippi

—An account of the National Lawyers Guild program of Legal Assistance to Civil Rights workers in Mississippi: Summer, 1964.

". . . . I will never reject, from any consideration personal to myself, the cause of the defenseless or oppressed, or delay any man's cause for lucre or malice . . . ."

This report is dedicated to the courageous people—Negro and white—whom these lawyers went to Mississippi to defend.

The right of every man accused of a crime to a fair trial, and to representation by legal counsel of his choosing, is recognized in practically every civilized part of the world. In the United States it is guaranteed in the Sixth Amendment of the Federal Constitution.

Yet, for 100 years, Negroes in Mississippi have been largely denied that right, and in recent years so have white civil rights workers helping to win full citizenship for Negroes. Denial of the vote and of elementary civil rights, acts of violence and lynchings of Negroes have established social patterns in Mississippi that symbolize and epitomize unequal treatment and unequal justice in our country.

To a conscientious lawyer, the conclusion is inescapable: the double standard of justice for which Mississippi has become notorious would not have arisen if lawyers in the state had accepted their obligation to uphold the Constitution and their oath. Some 2,100,000 people live in Mississippi, nearly 1,000,000 of whom are Negroes. These people are serviced by 2,100 white and four Negro lawyers.

Until this summer, only three Mississippi lawyers—all Negroes—would handle civil rights cases. The one or two white lawyers who did represent civil rights clients eventually found they could not practice in the State. As a result, many Mississippi Negroes and civil rights workers were unjustly convicted of crimes and served time in jail without a conscientious lawyer to arrange bail, appeal a verdict or remove a case to Federal Court. Once in jail, they were often beaten or tortured by law officers or fellow prisoners.

The "crimes" with which they were charged were generally not, on their face, political crimes: authorities preferred to charge them with "disturbing the peace," "trespass," "reckless driving," "refusal to obey a police order," or "contributing to the delinquency of a minor."

But, in the vast majority of cases, there was no question that arrests of those who disrupted the racially segregated social order were politically inspired.

Almost invariably, the Negro or civil rights defendant faced a hostile judge or jury determined to convict, irrespective of the evidence. Usually, he faced this certain conviction alone, or with a court-appointed white attorney who was unwilling to use the Federal Constitution in his client's defense, thus preserving the form of right to counsel, but not its substance.

Where, the defendant might have asked, is my lawyer?

And where, responsible American lawyers might ask, is a state bar determined to see that its members observe their oath of office?

"Any bar association," says Ernest Goodman, National Lawyers Guild President, "has an obligation to insure minimum representation of all persons accused of a crime. This is necessary to any system of justice which recognizes lawyers as an essential part of its administration."

In the opinion of many northern lawyers, the system of justice in Mississippi, its courts, its lawyers and the State Bar, have not provided this minimum guaranty.

THE SPADEWORK

The National Lawyers Guild, active for twenty-seven years in the defense of civil rights, civil liberties and due process of law, has long been aware of the special legal problems of the Deep South. It has always had, as members, a few courageous and independent-minded white lawyers who love the South and practice there because it is their home, while rejecting segregation and discrimination in all its forms. These Southern lawyers have attended Guild conventions since its formation and have described their experiences in seeking justice in Southern courts. They have been in touch with Southern Negro lawyers, who have also joined the Guild in increasing numbers as the civil rights struggles have intensified.

Two years ago, the Guild set up a committee, now known as the Committee for Legal Assistance in the South (CLAS), whose announced purpose was "to help fill the need created by the refusal of practically the entire bar in the South to provide effective legal representation to Negroes and their white supporters in the effort to achieve their constitutional rights."

The Committee helped its Southern members prepare lengthy pleadings and briefs; conducted two interracial legal conferences—the first of their kind—in Atlanta and New Orleans for Southern lawyers; sent lawyers to the South for trial work and to argue cases in Appellate Courts; issued a Handbook on Civil Rights and Liberties Law now in use as a practical guide for lawyers and a supplementary source book for law students; and arranged for students in Northern law schools to clerk in the offices of Southern civil rights lawyers during the summers of 1962 and 1963.

The Committee sought the cooperation of the American Bar Association and, as a result, a meeting was held in Washington in June, 1962, at which members of the Guild Committee and lawyers from the American Civil Liberties Union sought to convince the ABA Special Committee on Civil Rights and Racial Unrest to take vigorous action to improve the administration of justice in the South. President Kennedy invited Committee co-chairman George Crockett to the famous White House conference of leaders of the bar in the summer of 1963 in order to spark bar association activity on civil rights problems.

"We have only scratched the surface of the problem," the Committee stated in its report to the Guild's annual convention in Detroit in February, 1964: "As of today, due process and equal justice do not exist in most sections of most Southern states for persons identified with the integration movement, or who seek to challenge, in any way, the pattern of segregation."

The report concluded: "Our primary duty, as it should be for every bar association, is to take the practical steps necessary to transform the system of justice in the South from one which supports an illegal, unconstitutional system of segregation to one which supports the Federal Constitution."

The need to expand the Guild's program in the South was clear. The question was: how?

". . . what chance has an indigent Negro?"

"The U.S. attorney general suffered disgraceful delays in attempting to get justice in the federal district courts of Mississippi in the cases of Meredith vs. Fair and United States vs. Lynd.

"If the awesome power of the United States as it is expressed in the office of the Attorney General cannot get adequate and expeditious justice in those courts, what chance has an indigent Negro?

VOLUNTEERS, STEP FORWARD

Present at the February, 1964 Guild convention was R. Hunter Morey, legal coordinator for the Council of Federated Organizations (COFO), a coalition of civil rights groups in Mississippi.

Morey outlined COFO's plans for a massive Mississippi summer project, with nearly 1,000 volunteers coming into the state to register Negro voters and teach in "Freedom Schools." He called attention to the pattern of intimidation which had greeted such activity in the past, and the prospect that the summer project would provoke even more massive retaliation.

For this reason, he said, there was an "urgent need" for volunteer attorneys to render legal assistance to the COFO workers.

As Guild lawyers pondered his request, the question arose: what happens when the system of justice breaks down in one part of the country; what is the obligation of lawyers who practice elsewhere?

When the convention chairman asked for a show of hands of those who might volunteer for Mississippi the response was electric. No one raised his hand; instead, scores of lawyers jumped to their feet. Thus began the enlistment.

PLANS TO ENFORCE THE SIXTH AMENDMENT

The Guild announced plans in April for at least 60 lawyers to represent civil rights defendants in the State over the twelve-week summer period, to function in all sections of Mississippi where COFO was active.

George W. Crockett, Jr., of Detroit and Benjamin Smith of New Orleans undertook to head the organization's field office in Jackson — four rooms upstairs over a store at 507½ North Farish Street.

In early June, shortly after the office was opened, most of the sixty-nine volunteer lawyers, some of them unaffiliated with the Guild, met in Detroit for a two-day briefing by civil rights attorneys and specialists in constitutional law.

They held workshops on the Mississippi Constitution and statutes; Mississippi criminal law and procedure; Federal removal in civil rights cases; and Federal habeas corpus. Veterans of the movement spelled out the do's and don'ts for Northerners in Mississippi.

Aware that it was entering hostile territory, the Guild moved openly into Mississippi. In a letter to Edward J. Currie, outgoing President of the Mississippi State Bar; Guild President Ernest Goodman advised him of the Guild's project and why it was undertaken. He stressed that the Guild is not a civil rights organization, that its commitment is that of a bar association only.

"Our concern in the Mississippi Project is to attempt to redress the lack of available lawyers in Mississippi, ready, willing and able to handle civil rights cases," his letter said. "And we would hope that our example might bring an increasing awareness of their professional obligation to members of the Mississippi Bar, which would permit us to reduce and eventually withdraw our commitment."

The field office had been outfitted with supplies and a secretary; lawyers had been briefed; the stage was set for an unprecedented "wealth" of lawyers in a state where, for half the population, the word "justice" evoked only a bitter laugh.

". . . the most gutsy . . ."

"Guild lawyers were generally acknowledged to be the most gutsy and the most experienced in civil rights cases . . ."

—The Nation, Sept. 14, 1964
Article on the Mississippi Project

Planning the project are Attorneys Ben Smith of New Orleans, Claudia Shropshire, Detroit; George Downing, CLAS Secretary, George Crockett and Myzell Sowell of Detroit.

"98 ARRESTED AT GREENWOOD"

The Jackson field office was the servicing center for the volunteer attorneys, who served a week or more without fee, most of them paying their own expenses.

It was designed to make lawyers immediately available where they were needed, or, as George Crockett described it, "to put a client in touch with a lawyer."

Beyond that, it was office space, a legal secretary, a source of background information—and legal advice.

Crockett would receive a call from the COFO legal department: "Ninety-eight arrested at a Freedom Day in Greenwood," and the Guild office would begin to hum.

CLAS lawyers already stationed in Greenwood had to be called—"What was that charge? . . . Yes, they should be out of jail by nightfall if possible . . . No trial date? Even so, we want the removal papers filed in Greenville and those kids released as soon as possible. We'll give you some help on that. Two of our attorneys, Sam Fancher of Spokane and Ben Smith have rented a plane, and they'll fly the release papers up for the Federal Judge's signature . . . Yes, Judge Clayton . . . Perhaps both places: it depends where his Court is sitting this week. They may even have to fly up to Tupelo, where he lives . . . All right, you file the removal papers and don't you get arrested."

Legal forms had to be run off on the mimeograph machine . . . One law clerk had to research the statute the 98 were accused of violating; another had to gas up the Guild station wagon for a drive to Greenwood with bail money.

". . . The old ways . . ."

"I was particularly impressed with the young people at the Palmers Crossing 'Freedom School,' near Hattiesburg. They were alert, well-dressed, intelligent and militant about not following the old practices of having faith in the Lord and letting things go as they will. They are determined to secure their rights . . ."

—Atty. Oscar Baker of Bay City, Michigan

BAIL—FROM $49,000 TO $12,100

The 98 were not released by nightfall. But neither were any of the COFO workers beaten in jail, a circumstance attributed in part to the mere presence in Greenwood of Northern lawyers.

A hasty trial of the 98 in City Court was declared invalid only because the CLAS lawyers under Greenwood office head Lawrence Warren of Detroit, had acted quickly to remove the cases to Federal Court.

Bail for the demonstrators, who had assembled at the Courthouse to dramatize a Negro voter registration drive, was set by the City Judge at $500 each, or $49,000. Once the cases were removed, CLAS lawyers were able to get the Federal Court to reduce bail to a more manageable $12,000—$200 apiece for the 23 out-of-staters, and $100 apiece for local citizens.

In the war against injustice in Mississippi, lawyers are not front line troops. But as Attorney Pauline Epstein of Los Angeles put it, after her week's stay in Greenwood in August: "There was a healthy respect and appreciation by the Negro community for the lawyers, without whom they felt their cause would have no sustaining support."

"TO QUIET THEIR FEARS"

The week for volunteer attorneys generally began on Sunday with the trip into Jackson from the airport.

"Most of the trip was spent trying to quiet their fears," said Crockett, "without at the same time making them too complacent. Often they were mildly surprised that no one insulted or arrested them as soon as they stepped off the plane.

"All too frequently they went from one extreme to the other. By mid-week they wanted to be just as militant as the COFO workers and take part themselves in voter registration work. We constantly had to remind them that their job was to get people out of jail and not to land there themselves."

Crockett said that none of the volunteer lawyers actually wanted to leave after his week's tour of duty in the field. They tried to think of reasons why they should stay another week. They wanted to telephone their secretaries and postpone things. Crockett had to tell them, "Look, I have another crew of eight coming in next week all itching to do their bit, and there just isn't work for 16 lawyers. Come back in December—that's when we'll need you!"

CASE BRIEFING

The first volunteer attorneys to come South, Donald Loria, of Detroit, and Charles Markels of Chicago, were barely off the plane when they were treated to what would become standard practice each week of the summer—a case briefing.

The day before, 35 Negroes had been arrested as they prepared to picket three national five-and-dime stores in Meridian. They were protesting the stores' refusal to serve Negroes at lunch counters and discrimination in hiring in one of the few demonstrations of its kind in Mississippi history.

Attorneys Don Loria of Detroit and Charles Markels of Chicago preparing a case in Jackson with George Crockett.

Crockett and his full-time legal assistant, Lawrence Warren, who witnessed the demonstration, had prepared briefs on the case over the weekend. Now they made recommendations to the lawyers on how to proceed, given local conditions and legal practices.

THE MERIDIAN CASES

The next day, Loria and Markels stood before a Municipal Judge in Meridian, raising the question of a segregated courtroom, challenging the unconstitutional vagueness of the "blocking the sidewalk" ordinance the 35 were accused of violating.

". . . never sold out a Negro client . . ."

Bidwell Adam, Gulfport attorney and chairman of the Mississippi Democratic Party, was interviewed in his law offices on June 1, 1964.

Q: Mr. Adam, you have expressed a belief in the inferiority of the Negro race. But I notice a number of Negro clients in your waiting room.

A: I've defended as many Negroes as any lawyer living today—for rape, murder, burglary, robbery, all charges. And none of them has ever said I sold them out, or connived with the prosecutor to convict, or betrayed or deceived or tricked them in any way.

Q: Are there other lawyers in Mississippi, apart from yourself, who have sold out their Negro clients, or connived with the prosecutor to convict?

A: Well, let's put it this way. Some lawyers may not be exercising much energy in defending their Negro clients.

They argued that the young demonstrators, walking in single file with small cardboard signs, were no more blocking the sidewalk than the portly police officer who arrested them. They further contended the arrests were in violation of the pickets' right of peaceful protest under the First Amendment to the Constitution.

Ten defendants under 16 years old were released. The other 25 were convicted. Reasonable bail was obtained and these cases were removed to Federal Court jurisdiction.

The Meridian cases, and those of most of the other defendants represented by CLAS attorneys over the summer, are still pending in Federal Court. The Guild intends to follow each of them through to completion.

PUTTING OUT THE FIRES

CLAS lawyers operated primarily from three bases in the field – Greenwood, Hattiesburg and Meridian – serving as a sort of "house counsel" to the COFO workers and to local Negroes involved in the Freedom Movement.

Essentially, they were on hand to put out the fires—get people out of jail, arrange bail, or present removal papers before the appropriate Federal Judge in time to head off a trial in the first instance.

Occasionally, when a case needed to be tried in a City Court or Justice of the Peace Court, they would argue it. In one such case, Loria and Markels defended a COFO worker charged with drunk driving in Vicksburg, and the verdict, atypically, was acquittal. COFO found it hard to believe—older Mississippi residents were astounded.

The lawyers were continually called upon to give advice. Harriet Buhai, a San Diego attorney, was stationed in Hattiesburg, where people had begun to sit where they pleased on buses. On being refused service, they were contemplating a bus boycott.

"We lawyers were asked to interpret the various Code sections involving boycotts," she said. "We did so and advised them about the legal restrictions. Both COFO and the Negro community made us keenly aware of the reassurance and security they felt at our presence."

Attorneys Loria, Markels and Warren prepare to go to the Hattiesburg Courthouse in the CLAS station wagon.

TRIPLE LYNCHING

Perhaps the single most pivotal event of the summer in Mississippi was the lynching near Philadelphia of three civil rights workers. The trio had been investigating the burning of a Negro church and the pistol whipping of three parishioners.

An integrated team of three CLAS lawyers and two law students went to Philadelphia on June 23—two days after the trio's disappearance—to interview the sheriff and inquire into the church burning incidents.

"We felt that as attorneys we could accomplish such a routine task without the difficulties encountered by the COFO students, to whom the sheriff had given conflicting stories," said Attorney Anna Diggs, wife of Michigan Congressman Charles Diggs.

". . SO PANICKY HE CHOKED UP"

Attorney David Finkel of Los Angeles described their arrival in Philadelphia: "We stopped at a filling station on the outskirts to ask our way to the courthouse. A Negro attendant started to tell us something but got so panicky he choked up."

Before they could enter the courthouse a crowd of 100 closed in on them. Finkel's way was blocked by a local resident, who demanded his identity, residence and reason for being there.

When George Crockett led the way into the sheriff's office, the townspeople had so filled the hallways of the courthouse and the office itself that, in Mrs. Diggs' words, "we were effectively intimidated by their number and threatening attitude before a word was exchanged with the sheriff."

Nevertheless, Crockett introduced each member of the party to the sheriff, stating their business. The sheriff said there had been no injuries at the church and that the State was investigating.

The sheriff gave them directions to the burnt-out church, Finkel related, "but he gave them so loud, he obviously was telling everyone in the courthouse we were going there." They worked their way back to their car, forced to pass through a milling throng, screaming hate-filled epithets.

NO ONE IS SAFE

The incident was not an isolated one. The previous day, Lawrence Warren had been detained in Mathiston, Mississippi by townspeople led by the president of the local bank.

In Marks, Mississippi, on the same August day that the FBI uncovered the bodies of the missing trio, a New York City lawyer had his head rammed into the side of an automobile by a police officer's fist. He was one of the volunteers from the Lawyers Constitutional Defense Committee, which also provided counsel in the South during the summer.

"It is apparent," Mrs. Diggs wrote in a telegram to President Johnson, "that what we experienced is what all civil rights workers face in their efforts to aid Mississippi Negroes.

"If lawyers have no safe access to a county courthouse, it is apparent that the students who are arriving in this State will not be safe without Federal protection."

"YOU CAIN'T PRACTICE HERE"

Several times during the summer, the right of CLAS attorneys to practice in a State court was challenged. By Mississippi law, an out-of-state lawyer must withdraw if any two Mississippi attorneys challenge his qualifications.

In late June, two Columbus, Mississippi attorneys invoked this law in challenging Henry McGee, Jr., a Negro lawyer and former assistant prosecutor for Cook County, Illinois, and Ralph Shapiro, of New York, a specialist in labor and constitutional law.

McGee and Shapiro were defending seven Negro youths accused of distributing leaflets without first obtaining the police chief's consent. The leaflets contained a synopsis of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, just signed by the President.

Ordinances imposing prior restraints on freedom of speech have consistently been condemned by the courts as violating the First Amendment, the CLAS lawyers contended.

The seven cases were removed to Federal District Court, on grounds that the State court did not allow the defendants to have counsel of their own choosing, and that at the time of arrest, the seven were exercising a Constitutionally protected right. Later, Guild lawyers filed suit in Federal Court to declare unconstitutional the State statutes limiting appearances by out-of-state counsel and to permit lawyers Shapiro and McGee to appear in Mississippi State Court to represent their clients.

"No trial, and six months in jail . . ."

"In 1963, a young lady spent six months in a Mississippi jail. There was no trial; she was just sentenced. And there was no appeal made.

"Why? Because there just weren't any lawyers around who would defend her.

"The response of the Guild here is heart warming; it gives us hope. It looks like, thanks to you, we may be entering a new era for legal defense in Mississippi."

—R. Hunter Morey, COFO legal coordinator, addressing Guild volunteer lawyers at the Mississippi orientation conference; Detroit, June, 1964.

CIVIL RIGHTS REMOVAL

The civil rights removal statute was part of the Reconstruction package passed by Congress after the Civil War.

In recent years, lawyers, "rediscovered" the removal provisions, and used them to circumvent the long and costly process of appealing civil rights convictions through State Appellate and Supreme Courts and to the United States Supreme Court. The practical effect of this removal procedure is to free civil rights workers from the courts and the jails to do the job for which they had come to Mississippi.

"THEY BEAT THE WHITE KIDS"

One of the by-products of the Guild effort in Mississippi was the creation of the Mississippi Emergency Bail Fund. Much of the money was raised in New York by attorney, William Meyers, one of the trustees. The co-chairman of CLAS, George Crockett and Ben Smith, are co-trustees.

A briefing session at the NLG office in Jackson. L. to R.: Law Clerk, Connie McDougall of the Harvard Law School; George Crockett, Benjamin Smith (Co-Chairmen, CLAS); Attorneys Ralph Shapiro, of New York, Henry McGee of Chicago, D. William Maki of Detroit

Crockett described how the fund worked after the arrest of two COFO workers in Jackson.

"Speed in posting bond is particularly essential if a youngster is white. The reason is that he must usually share a cell with other white inmates who, having been alerted by guards that he is a COFO worker, are likely to beat him.

"These kids must be bailed out as fast as possible, and by all means they must not stay in jail overnight. COFO workers are normally not allowed to place a phone call from the jail, so even if their parents have the money, the youngsters cannot contact them.

"We get them out immediately; then the parents reimburse us."

"SQUARELY FACING UP . . ."

In July, the Mississippi State Board of Bar Commissioners called on the state's lawyers to represent anyone charged with a crime, regardless of the attorney's opinions.

The board said it was "squarely facing up" to charges of inadequate representation by local counsel of "unpopular persons or causes" and charges that these persons cannot receive a "fair and impartial trial in state courts."

"Mississippi lawyers," the statement said, "have sought and will continue to seek to accord to all persons such basic constitutional rights."

The Board called on the State Bar to appoint a liaison committee to hear any grievances concerning lack of competent counsel.

It is doubtful that the board would have made such a public statement without the presence of a national bar association office in Jackson and a large number of Northern lawyers throughout the State.

It was a step forward, however, and the Guild applauded —although such a drastic change in attitude must still be seen to be believed.

LANDLORD EVICTS LAWYER

As the summer progressed, only two white lawyers stepped forward to associate themselves with civil rights cases. One of them was Leonard Rosenthal of Jackson. His landlord kicked him out of his office; a relative chased him with a shotgun; business fell off—but Rosenthal continued to accept cases. Now he has agreed to serve as associate counsel in the Guild's Mississippi cases.

But if the Guild's Mississippi program had some slight, tangential effect on the Mississippi Bar, its influence on the "Northern Bar" was more noticeable.

Inspired by the Guild's example, numerous other lawyers from Northern firms came to Mississippi to assist COFO.

LAW CLERKS BRIEF THE LAWYERS

The Guild sponsored a pilot project for law students to clerk for individual civil rights lawyers in the South in the summers of 1962 and 1963. In 1964, the Law Students Civil Rights Research Council, a newly formed organization, placed sixty law clerks in the South. This summer, some 25 law students served all or part of the summer in Mississippi under COFO direction.

"In a sense," said Crockett, "they were the cement that held the program together. They were our continuity."

Three law students served at least part of their summer in the Lawyers Guild field office in Jackson; one served CLAS lawyers in Greenwood. From time to time they were sent on trouble-shooting missions in the provinces.

In addition, COFO placed "resident law students" at key projects in Canton, Meridian and Hattiesburg. These were the "veterans" who briefed the one-week lawyers on the status of cases in their area.

". . . Bathed in an iron washtub . . ."

"I moved in with a Negro family for half of my stay. The bathing in a galvanized iron washtub, which had to be filled with buckets of water, was more than offset by the privilege of getting to know people who are completely committed to obtaining some semblance of human dignity. The courage and strength of the local people who are involved in this movement is something wonderful to behold . . ."

—Atty. Harriet Buhai from San Diego, after her week in Hattiesburg.

All of these volunteers go back to their communities to recount their first-hand experiences. In this way, people across the country are coming to have a clearer understanding of what it is like to be a Negro in Mississippi.

The individual lawyer who worked in Mississippi alongside the movement almost invariably expressed profound changes in his own outlook and understanding. He had experienced a new set of legal values, a different system of legal practice and a strange, uncomfortable set of human relations. His personal beliefs were obviously and deeply affected.

Attorney Jessie Brown of Jackson, Mississippi speaking at Detroit NLG Orientation Conference.

"Bunch of Niggers . . ."

"JACKSON, Miss., March 8—Federal District Judge Harold Cox is expected to rule Wednesday on a Justice Department suit to speed up the processing of Negro voter applicants at Canton . . .

"At yesterday's hearing Judge Cox . . . repeatedly referred to Negro applicants as 'a bunch of niggers.'

"He said he was interested in eliminating discrimination in the registration of voters, 'but I am not interested in whether the registrar is going to give a registration test to a bunch of niggers on a voter drive."

"More than 200 Negroes tried to apply for registration at Canton on a 'Freedom Day,' Feb. 28. Judge Cox said it 'appeared that these people went to a church and were pepped up by a leather-lung preacher, and they gathered in the streets like a massive dark cloud and descended on the clerk.' . . .

"Mr. Doar (a Justice Department attorney) contended, 'there is nothing un-American about registering to vote,' and 'I think it is quite proper for people to assemble to do it.' . . .

"Judge Cox asked: 'Who is telling these people they can get in line and push people around, acting like a bunch of chimpanzees?' "

—New York Times, March 9, 1964, page 42.

LAWYERS: A DETERRENT

CLAS lawyers saved COFO workers countless days that might otherwise have been spent in jail, as well as many dollars in fines.

"Our mere presence is a real deterrent," said Michael Starr, a law student from Georgetown University who worked for CLAS. "With the lawyers here, the chances of a person's being beaten are much less and the chances of getting a person released on his own recognizance instead of by putting up a lot of bail are much better."

"There have not been nearly so many arrests this summer," said Crockett, "and certainly not as much police brutality and harrassment as did exist here last summer."

Attorney Nelson Brown of Chicago, who served a week in Meridian, plans to come back for a second tour in the fall—"just to be present."

"I think just the presence of someone who could legally interpret what was happening was of value," Brown said. "I think the need will be greater after the exodus of most project workers. I think the police and officials are waiting for that day.

"Without all of us around, Mississippi will be a rough place for a Negro and for those Civil Rights workers who remain."

ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE LAWYERS' PROJECT

The overall gains obtained by the Guild's Mississippi project are significant, even though the victories are intangible and difficult to measure.

The cases tried and won, including those remanded to Federal Courts, provided a turning point in legal treatment of and attitude toward cases involving Negro clients. Moreover, the continuing effort promised by Guild commitments will bolster and expand the confidence of the people in the true meaning of "equal justice for all." Southern lawyers were profoundly affected by the obvious sincerity of their Northern colleagues.

The "lift" given to Negroes and sympathetic Southerners was invaluable. Not a small part of the profound impact of the summer project is the undeniable preventive effect of the project: no longer can legal rights be violated with impunity and courtroom behavior be so lax. If no other achievements are credited to the project, this new respect, this new appreciation of the inviolability of the rights of even the lowest and the poorest has changed for all times the legal climate pervading the courts of Mississippi.

8 September 1964

Dear Atty. Crockett:

COFO wishes to warmly thank both you and the Guild for braving Mississippi with us this summer by providing a large number of volunteer lawyers. You also aided us by expanding the work individual Guild members have always performed with us and brought into the state many new attorneys who will continue working with us.

This fall and winter will not bring any let-up on the part of the State of Mississippi, but on the contrary, increase brutality and harassment, particularly on local people, is expected. Volunteers will be necessary. We therefore request as much continued aid as the Guild can provide.

Cordially,
Robert P. Moses
COFO Program Director

AFTER THE SUMMER

The Guild's project is far from over. Most of the summer cases are still pending and will have to be tried either in Federal Courts or in State Courts, depending on the outcome of the removals.

In addition to the 66 who came to Mississippi, there is a reserve team of approximately 90 lawyers, each of whom has agreed to perform up to 40 hours of research or field work for the Committee.

The target of the Guild, as for COFO, is the toughest State for immediate and tangible legal victories. It represents the very fountainhead of segregation.

But the project, a giant act of love, has already cracked for all time the walls of exclusion and hate in Mississippi. Much, much, more will be required before they crumble.

The Guild closed its Jackson office on August 30th. But within days, new and more serious arrests of civil rights workers and Mississippi Negroes were reported. Felony charge of "sedition" for violation of state laws carrying long prison terms supplanted "disturbing the peace" charges.

Although the new charges are palpably unconstitutional, without adequate legal representation, the civil rights movement is seriously threatened. In urging the Guild to continue its project, the Council of Federated Organizations (COFO) said: "The National Lawyers Guild made a tremendous contribution this summer, a contribution which COFO is deeply appreciative of. Hopefully, your organization will find it possible to continue to aid and support COFO during the coming year."

On October 10th, the Jackson office was reopened with the arrival of Harry Nier of Denver, the first volunteer lawyer for the Guild's winter project.

MORE THAN LIP SERVICE—The Role of the ABA

The Mississippi State Bar, like most state bar associations, has close ties to the American Bar Association. The ABA's sole contribution to advance the cause of justice in the South consists of resolutions at its 1963 and 1964 conventions urging its members to undertake their professional responsibilities in the "present civil rights controversy." Even these resolutions show a total lack of awareness of the nature of the legal problem in Mississippi, or an unwillingness to face this problem. The 1963 resolution states in its opening paragraphs:

> In an effort to solve this difficult situation (conflict over civil rights), respect for the Constitution of the United States and of the several states, the various applicable statutes, and the decisions of federal courts and the courts of the various states must be observed, and observed with respect.

". . . Across the knuckles with a blackjack . . ."

". . . While I was in Greenwood, a 17-year-old girl was arrested, and while she was being taken into a building at the county farm, she warned the girls she was with to be careful as the police may be rough. At that point one of the policemen hit her, turned her around and hit her in the stomach, and then hit her on the back of the neck with either a club or a blackjack. As she reached for the railing of the stairway, one of the other officers hit her across the knuckles with a blackjack . . ."

—Atty. Walter Soroka
Chicago, Ill.

This resolution was adopted at a time when thousands of Southern Negroes and civil rights workers were being beaten and jailed because they exercised federal constitutional rights in violation of city ordinances and state statutes, and when the federal government was bringing injunction suits against state officials for violating federal law.

In the irreconcilable conflict between the Federal Constitution, which is intended to guarantee equality to the Negro, and state laws, which are designed to maintain segregation, the Constitution must prevail; and no bar association can remain aloof from this conflict by calling upon the Negro people to obey both. The ABA has a clear responsibility to act. As the Guild pointed out in an August, 1964 letter to ABA President Walter E. Craig:

"Perhaps the reality behind the system of justice in Mississippi for those who oppose the pattern of segregation may best be understood by the fact that only one lawyer (white) has responded to our direct written requests to hundreds of lawyers in Mississippi to accept civil rights cases."

"This courageous man has already begun to suffer the economic and social reprisals which have uniformly hounded Southern white lawyers who have associated themselves with the defense of these cases.

"Of even deeper concern has been the frequency with which persons, engaged or suspected of being engaged in civil rights work, have been beaten, injured and murdered; and property, including numerous churches, burned and destroyed.

"Yet rarely has the perpetrator of the crimes been apprehended and even more rarely has he been brought to trial and convicted. On the other hand, hundreds of persons who are assisting the Negro people of Mississippi in the exercise of their rights have been arrested, jailed and convicted for minor infractions.

"If the bar of our country is to give more than lip service to the concept of equal justice under law; if it is to take seriously the belief that social change can occur without violence only where aggrieved people have available a ready and friendly forum for the judicial enforcement of their legal rights; then American lawyers must undertake to act now and effectively to make justice available to every person in Mississippi and other areas in the South where justice is not 'equal' and where the judicial system, with rare exceptions, cannot or will not vindicate the rights of the Negro people."

". . . He was sick of the white face . . ."

". . . In the car, Mrs.____ filled me in on what gives with Mississippi justice. She and her family are harassed; the youngsters at home are in danger of being run over if they cross the street; white persons stop by to curse into the house; her son was shot into through the cheek bone, down the neck and shoulder (the path of the bullet).

"He is so sick of the way white people in Mississippi are he could not bear to be talked to by the FBI because he was sick of the white face. And she expressed herself to the effect that the white man has so disgraced Mississippi that any decent human being would want to paint his face black so as not to be identified with those who are acting as they do.

"I'm convinced the Negro community has been terrorized and that they have taken up their own defense out of desperation . . ."

By JAMES W. SILVER

Reprinted from THE JOURNAL OF SOUTHERN HISTORY, Vol. XXX, No. 1, Feb. 1964

Dear _____

The Negro people of Greenville and Washington County were doing a very effective job of registration and poll tax gathering for the short time they were able to keep their office open; January 8th-February 24th, 1962.

They opened their office, January 6, with a ful-time secretary, 9:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M., salary, eighteen ($18.00) dollars per week. They hired people to stand in the Sheriff's office and the various banks where they were collecting poll tax to urge Negroes to pay their poll taxes. They were in contact with some fifty-five ministers in Greenville who were cooperating in their churches. They even sent the following letter to the chief of police:

Honorable William C. Burnley, Police Chief
Greenville Police Department
Greenville, Mississippi

Dear Honorable Burnley:

We request your cooperation in seeing or asking that each policeman on your force, will immediately pay their poll tax, before the deadline February 1, 1962.

This a.plies to the Negro Policemen and their wives, and the Negro Policewomen and their husbands.

Enclosed is a blank for your convenience in letting one of your employees, (merely a suggestion: Willie Carson, Or Lee Andrew Lane), collect the Poll tax from Negro Police on your force.

Hoping that you will cooperate with the request of the Chamber of Commerce, Washington County Officials, The Democratic Club of Washington County, and the Washington County Voters League, I am,

Very truly yours,

Dr. Noble R. Frisby,,Chariman of County Executive Committee

The local newspaper, "The Delta Democratic Times", reported that some 11,000 people paid their poll tax, thousands more than ever before, and it is estimated that one-half of these were Negroes. There are some 19,000 whites of voting age and some 20,000 Negroes of voting age in Washington County, and some 2,500 Negroes are registered.

~~Voter Registration Violations~~

RE: The subjedt of this memorandum is to narrate instances of ~~voter registration violations interference conduct~~ by private persons or public ~~persons~~ officials which have an effect of interfering with the Right to vote towards persons associated with the Voter Education Project.

~~In May of 1962, the "Ray Brannon of Vicksburg, Mississippi~~

~~The Student Non-violent Coordination~~

As soon as the Voter Education Project began to carry on its activity, it had determined to carry on a voter ~~education program~~ registration program in Mississippi, ~~participated with the Student Non-violent Coordination Committee and in cooperation with NAACP and CORE and for~~ VEP 2-5 participation ~~with~~ by the Student Non-violent Coordination Committee in cooperation with NAACP and CORE; SNCC received a grant to carry on a program for 90 days in Marshall County of the 2nd Congressional district; 3rd Congressional district, 4th Congressional district, Jackson, and Hattiesburg, May 4, 1962.(See VEP-2-5). For this period our files contain no instaces of incidents pertaining to our subject matter.

Soon, several civil rights groups, SNCC, CORE, NAACP, SCLC with programs in Mississippi decided to organize a co-ordinating council called the Council of Federated Organizations(COFO). ~~Mr~~ Dr. Aaron Henry, was president of this group. On Sept 5, 1962, VEP 2-16 VEP decided to ~~support~~ support a voter education program in Mississippi through COFO since SNCC, NAACP, SCLC, and CORE was participating in this manner of association in way. This program was retro-active to August 1, 1962 and extended untill March 31, 1963. Emphasis was to be in the Delta, but other programs were allowed in counties outsided the Delta.(See VEP 2-16 #1).

From correspondence from Aaron Henry, Sept. 21, 1962, ~~xxx~~ COFO workers supported and governed by VEP ~~[illegible]~~ BEGAN TO BE arrested and bailed to the expense of VEP, including attorney's fees. One arrest entailed harrasment of Dewey Green. The others involved Bob Moses, Samuel Blair, Charles McLaurin, Albert Gerner, and John Hodges. This was a conviction on a plea of guilty for violation of an ordinance regarding distribution of literature without a permit, ~~xxxxx~~ Sept.7, ~~1962~~ 1962. ~~[illegible]~~ ~~Mr. Wiley Branton~~ (Aaron Henry, by telephone to Wiley Branton, indicated that he was just afraid to have a trial in that court(~~In~~ Indianola Mayor's Court).

On a typical day, October 26, 1962, Charles McLaurin was stopped andcursed by city policemen , arrested and required to pay $103.00 for cash bond and $10.00 for the towing of his car. why? He was a COFO-VEP worker present in and around the registras oficice in Clarkedale, Mississippi, assisting Negroes attempting to registrar. CHARGES NOT KNOWN (See Oct. 29, 1962 memorandum).

.....

~~But with the urging of COFO and VEP, the United States Governemnet hs not been non-busy, and as Oct. 29, 1962, Atty. Bob Owens, the U.S. Civil Rights Atty for Mississippi was involved in 10 cases involving Mississippias Mississipians assisted by COFO-VEP people.(See Just. Dept files-Sept 1)~~

.....

VEP2-16 In the December, 1962 Memo to VEP, Bob MOses submitted a sad report which reflected the "Ole Miss" unfortunate incident; it reflected the lack of the Justice Department to initiate suits to stop intimidation- and evictions and the poll tax have been shon to be formidable barriers. "One result is that people believe theat the "Registration Test" is legal and therefore will have to prepare themselves and need to study, which all contributes to failure to attempt to register."

.....

VEP2-16 Before the year ended, there had developed a pattern of several kinds of resistance to Negro voter registration conducted by the Voter Education Project through the aegis of COFO. From acts of violence directed towards the people who were subjected to the tryann y of a enforced caste society, Mississippi Officials began to apply more sophisticated "pressures" of intimidation, as described above. Laws and rules began to be abused i inorder to effect of cutting negro support of the VEP program, using techniques such as adjudicatting Mrs. Laura Magee of Greenwood, "incompetent", appointing a guardian for her while falsely imprisoning her, and then disposing of her property -to which she never got the benefit off.(See Willie Peacock report, Nov. 11, 1962).

Yet, the Negro Mississipian, did not retreat to accept its role the white racists would have them; amd soon, Negro Mississipians began to come to the fore as indigenous leaders. On December 3, a short dumpy Negro woman from a White-owned plantation (BARLOW) went to the Registrars Office in Ruleville to find out whether she had passed the registrar's test. From her "Upptiness", she was forced to leave the plantation where she had worked for more than 20 years for the owner. But she didnot gather her belongings in a cardboard box and boarded the Illinois Central Railroad to Chicago. She stayed. And when the Welfare Departnemtn in the dead of a very winter terminated any surplus foods to her People. She Fought back. She did all of this because she was Fannie-Lou Hammer-and became a COFO-worker in the VEP program. (See Diane Bevel Nash Memo) allowing its premises to be used for voter registration meetings,q. On September 3, 1963, the church received notice that its tax exemption had been canceled and the city would no longer furnish free water as it had been furnishing other churches because of the use for "other purposes" than religion. U.S. Fidelity and Guaranty Company, Baltimore, Maryland, through Walton and Pentecost, Ruleville, Mississippi, cancelled the Churche's $2000.00 fire insurance. No other agencies would insure the church. (See Sept 17 WAB letter and subseq. Clarence Mitchell letter).

In the rural areas, open violence broke out by persons most upon Negroes who have been contacted by COFO-VEP workers, and on September 10, a Negro home was fired into, seriously injuring two girls. meanwhile, during this month, other violence was confined to harrassing traffic violations in Hattiesburg and the unlawful arrest of Layayette Surney and Lawrence Guyot, COFO workers, on suspicion that they are "Cubans". (See Robert Moses September Montly Report).

Atty. William Higgs, a white mississipian still present in Mississippi in December, 1962, received a request from COFO-VEP worker Charles Cobb that he represent him and on behalf of other Negroes and COFO -VEP workers who have beein harrassed such as the ordinacne to prefvent leafleting, threats, and discrimination in USDA services, Ruleville, Miss.

VEP2-16 In a memor or essay, entitled "Begginning of the End", narrates the work of COFO-VEP worker Frank Smith in Marshall County (Holly Springs). In this report, dated December 16, 1962, Bob describes in detain the kinds of private and official methods to interfere with voter registration. From the daily traffic-harrassment arrests of Frank Smith, the "Closed Society" to warnings-"If you can afford to vote, you don't need a loan"- and then proceedings to lower cotton acreage allotments and the raising of taxes. The Chancery Court would then sell the land for taxes, and banks would refuse to give loans. People who attned voter registraion meetins have their tag numbers taken and then their parents or relatives who have public jobs are fired. (See Beginning of the End-December 16)

.....

VEP2-16 Another brilliant memorandum, dated November 19, 1962, is entitled ("Preliminary survey on the condition of the Negro farmers in Ruleville, Mississippi, at the close of the cotton season".) by COFO-VEP worrkers.

Charles Cobb and Charles McLaurin entered in The Black Delta without the benefit of national publicity and the protection of may afford. They indicated how in August, it was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sisson in Ruleville which was shot into by night-riders, seriously injuring their two daughters. Why? Because the Sissons tried to register to voge. Kinds of economic pressure is that of the local government to exercise its option of not distributing Federal "commodities", which are necssary to sustain Negroes.

Merry Christmass, Happy New Year, and other fiddle-faddle.

On about December 22, 1962, John Due, a law student at FAMU, and Patricia Stephens stopped on their way from Tallahassee to Indianapolis, at the home of Carl and Ann Braden, staff members of SCEF. Ann wanted to do a story on Patricia for the SCEF newsletter. While there, they met Ivanhoe Donaldson and Mr. Benjamin Taylor. The latter two were not COFO-VEP workers, but both have been SNCC field representatives, who were then attending Michigan University. During the Christmas vacation, they had been able to procure an old pick-up truck, and when John Due saw them, they had gathered food, clothing, and medicine in and around Louisville, Ky-and at Sunset, after being stuck in the mud and snow, went on their way to Clarksdale, Mississippi to distribute their collected items among Negroes victimized by the Economic repression by the local offials reacting against the VEP voter registration drive in the Delta, supported by the COFO Emergency Relief Program.

After retrurning to Louisville, Mississippi and getting another load, these two dedicated people(Ivanhoe-is not an American, but a British West Indian), were arrested by the Clarksdale City Police, ostensibly because the medicine contained narcotics. Bond required for each of these people were $15,000 a piece. They had been arrested December 28. (See report of Jack Minnis telephone conversation, January 4th, 1963). Dr. Aron Henry assured VEP that no narcotics were involved in the donations by the Louisville Doctrors.

3-3 Soon afterthis telephone conversation, Jack Minnis, the research assistant made a field trip to Clarksdale, Mississippi, January 9 -11, 1963. Jack Minnis found that on behalf of Voter registration conducted by the Coahoma County Council of Federated Organizations(NAACP), it was necessary to carry on an extensive relief program. Also, that VEP had to use its funds to relieve at least in a minimal way the victims of economic pressure(Fannie Lou Hammer, Fred Hicks etc., when no other agency or the government was prepared not todo anything about it. (Jack Minis field report). (Particular(names and incidents reported by COFO-VEP worker Charles McLaurin from August through the Christmas season is reported , relating to the areas around Cleveland and Ruleville).

~~Greenville, Mississippi has the reputation of being a "liberal" city in the heart of the River in the Delta. And example~~

3-3 After 1963 had survived its "birth pains"-Mississippi began to settle down from the Ole Miss riots and founds ways to accomodate to the VEP -COFO voter registration drives, such by arresting COFO VEP workers passing out literature without city permits, taking away the tax exemption of churches which allowed themselves to be used for voter registration purposes, and economic reprisals against those who are so to apply to register and and then have their names published. (See Jesse Harris Indianola Report and other field wofkers reports), . In this new era of the technique of non-violent resistance by Mississippi, VEP field representative Randolph Blackwell chose to study the methods of voter registration among unregistered Negroes. It was hoped that this research would indicate why Negroes dont exercise their duty as citizens and would also indicate new ways to motivate Negroes and to arouse them from their apathy. Mr. Blackwell chose as his target area, Leflora County, and the City of Greenwood. On February 28th, 1963, Mr. Blackwell was in this area ond had left the local station of VEP research, the SNCC office. He was accompanied by the COFO-VEP director, Bob Moses, and a COFO-VEP field worker, James Travis, all three in a car rented by Mr. Blackwell . Mr. Moses was driving. They were followed by a 1962 Buick containing unknown persons. Mr. Sam Block, COFO-VEP field worker, who had chosen to remain at the office, also observed a City police car follow after the 1962 Buick. In due time, the 1962 Buick drew up to Mr. Blackwell's car which Mr. Moses was driving inordinately slow, and from this Buick came many shots which was described to be like automatic fire, and then drove away. Mr. James Travis was seriously wounded. Upon receiving news of this incident, Mr. Wiley Branton, made the usual appeals to the appropriate Federal officials- and of course, as usual, the Government could not be a Federal "police force" here. ~~(I was not able to see any Randolph Blackwell field report on his trip which might indicate research why Negroes dont register and new methods to motivate them to register).~~ See Publicity Filem March 1, 1963 and Jack Minis Memo-VEP 2-1-63 VEP 2-16 #3.

In reaction to this incident, VEP decided to carry on an intensive effort in Greenwood, Mississippi, and received the full support of the national organizations of NAACP, CORE, SCLC, and SNCC . Amonvg the incidents that occured, a Fire Bomb was thrown into the home of Mr. Aaron Henry, Chairman of the COFO-VEP drive, on Good Friday, April 12, 1963.(See Aaron Henry letter to Robert Kennedy 2-16 #3). And with the coming with the Spring- was the coming of the use of the German Sherpherd-To bite and tear the clothes and flesh of people urged by COFO -VEP staff workers to register to vote. See Eric Raimey's report. And then back in Greenwood, in a much more successful attempt, around May 4, the Drug Store of Aaron Henry was bombed.

In November 12, 1963m, VEP terminated its support of the COFO program in Mississippi, and was not engaged in carrying on a voter registration program in Mississippi untill July, 1964. During this interim ~~xxxx~~ period, VEP did support the COFO program in Mississippi in other indirect ways. ~~xxxxxxxxxxxx~~ On March 13, it loaned its intern, John Due to COFO in his capaicity as an attorney on behalf of persons arrested and detained in the Madkson County Jail who have been active ~~in~~ as COFO-VEP workers. Sheriff Jack Cauthern refused John Due to see these clients, and on subsequent occasions, John Due was refused by the sheriff and Cith officials to seee prisoners incarcerated in the coutny or city jails.(May 28, 29, 30th). Canton, Madison County. On Monday Evening, May 2, John Due was stoped in Amite, Liberty Coutny ~~xxx~~ for a driving violation, and while under arrest, the sheriff of Liberty County, D'nierl Jones, was called who iellegally ~~xxx xxxxxxxxxx xxxxxxxxxxxxxx~~ searched his rented car and seised vaulable papers. Because this same sheridd was said to be involved in the killing of one Herbert Lee, a Negro voterpregistration worker, John Due was of reasonable apprehension to be caused not to demand the return of such papers immediately. Said John Due was not able to obtain return of his papers except with the intervention and assistance of Mr, Courtney Siceloff, assistant tothe U.S. Civil Rights Commission, the next day.

II. Analysis of above statistics.

There are three counties in the district, Hinds, Adams and Warren counties, in which Negroes may vote without fear of economic reprisals and physical violence, and may register if they persist in their efforts.

Analysis of the above statistics reveal that these three counties have a total of 56,214 Negroes of voting age, or 57.7% of all the Negroes and 24.2% of all the people of voting age in the district.

Further these are areas of increasing population and will become more important as the years pass and as the reapportionment support given by the Supreme Court takes effect. Hinds county increased its population by 31.6% and Jackson, the county seat and state capital, by 47.0% in the years 1950-60. Adams county experienced a 17.0 increase and Natchez, its county seat, a 4.6% increase, in these same years,

III. Proposed Industrial Basin.

The new four lane thru-way from New Orleans to Chicago will parallel highway 51 through the south-west portion of Mississippi. Several small cities along this highway deserve separate attention: Crystal Springs, Hazelhurst, Brookhaven, and McComb. They are all increasing their population in an area which is otherwise decreasing; They reflect the South-wide trend of movement from rural to urban areas, and are located in a basin designed for extensive industrial expansion.

City	Population	% increase	% non-white
Crystal Springs	4,496	22.3	34.6
Hazelhurst	3,4000	0.1	51.6
Brookhaven	9,885	26.7	37.4
McComb	12,020	15.6	28.4

In these cities and counties (Copiah, Lincoln and Pike), local leadership will probably not lend their name in public to a voting program though they will push it in the Negro community by word of mouth and through some of the churches. The publicity and projection of the program should be carefully worked out with these leaders.

We anticipate in these areas covert white resistance, taking the form of economic reprisals and whisper campaigns. It is not likely that physical violence will erupt over voting in these counties.

We have contacts in all of these cities, and McComb ~~and~~ is ready to receive a group of student and adult workers.

IV. Rural Counties.

The remaining counties, Walthall, Amite, Wilkinson, Franklin, Jefferson and Claiborne are rural, without any urban areas at all. The chief institution in the rural community in which we may find leadership and support will be the Church. The chief leaders, however, will not be ministers, since, in most cases, they do not live in the community and only offer service once a month, their active support is, however, indispensable.

In these areas any sustained voting drive successful in getting Negroes to attempt to register, is likely to be marked by physical violence, as well as economic reprisals, It is these areas of Mississippi which are accurately described by the following section of a report on voting issued by the Southern Regional Conference:

All forms of violence, intimidation, and discrimination reported from other states were found here. Where other sections usually rely on one or two means of limiting Negro registration, Mississippi, home of the White Citizens Council, apparently uses them all. As a result, the state which has the highest percentage of Negroes in the county has the lowest percentage registered.

We have contacts in each of these rural counties and recent work in Claiborne county has led to investigations by the Justice Department in the past month.

Dear Mr. Branton:

I wish to acknowledge receipt of your telegram of March 1, 1963 to the Attorney General, as well as of the copy which you sent directly to me. Please be assured that the Department of Justice is conducting a thorough investigation into the two recent shootings which have occurred in Leflore County, Mississippi. The three persons believed responsible for the first such shooting have been apprehended and charged with felonious assault under Mississippi law. Investigation of the second shooting commenced immediately after its occurrence. The Department is also presently conducting an investigation of the fire which took place in Greenwood on the morning of March 25.

The Department of Justice will continue to take prompt and vigorous action wherever voting rights of citizens are threatened.

Sincerely,

Burke Marshall

Despite the denials of Greenwood police, a minister was actually bitten by a dog being used by police yesterday in unlawfully interfering with a group of Negro citizens who were walking back to their church from the courthouse where they had gone to register. Rev. D. L. Tucker suffered severe shock and injuries to his leg when bitten by the police dog. He was given emergency treatment by a private physician and then treated at Greenwood hospital. Local police have not only failed to protect people seeking to register but now use violence and intimidation themselves against Negro citizens active in voter registration. I urge you to act at once to restore law and order to Leflore County, Mississippi and protect the lives and property of Negro citizens. Will you please inform me as to what steps will be taken to aid these citizens.

Field Report

March 9, 1964
Edward S. Hollander
CORE Field Secretary

Jackson, Mississippi

CANTON, MISSISSIPPI

On the evening of Freedom Day (Friday, February 28) Milton Esco, 17, of Canton, was arrested outside the Freedom House at 7:15 PM. By being around the Freedom House he had, apparently, violated a juvenile court order directing him not to be involved in civil rights activities. Esco had been arrested on January 23 for violating an ordinance hastily passed by the city on January 21 requiring a permit to distribute leaflets. Unlike his first arrest when he was not held in jail, this time he was kept in the county jail all week until his juvenile court hearing on Friday, March 6. The staff in Canton thinks he is out but no one has gotten the details of what happened at the hearing. Also, no one has yet verified reports that he was roughed up in jail the night he was arrested.

On the evening of Freedom Day there was a mass meeting of over 200 at Asbury Methodist Church on Cameron Street.

On Saturday, February 29, about 50 people stood in line at the courthouse to register; only two were admitted to take the test. On Saturdays the courthouse closes at noon. During the afternoon a police car cruised through the Negro areas (don't know about the white areas) announcing over a loudspeaker that Canton Mayor L. Stanley Matthews had called a 10 PM curfew for all citizens and that anyone on the streets after that time would be picked up for questioning. During the week leading up to Freedom Day the state legislature passed a bill, among others that seemed related to the Canton situation, authorizing municipalities to restrict the movement of any and all citizens to protect the public safety. It is not known whether the Mayor was acting under the new statute. The curfew has continued through the present (Sunday, March 8, this being written March 9). On Friday, March 6, George Raymond, CORE Task Force worker, called the police station and was told that the curfew was on indefinitely. In its first nine days there are no known arrests for violations.

On Sunday, March 1, between 7:30 and 8:00 PM a young man phoned the Freedom House and said in a slow, almost sing-song voice, "in about an hour we're going to throw a bomb up there." Lenora Thurmond, CORE Task Force worker, who took the call acknowledged the message with something like "Oh yeah" and the caller hung up.

On Monday, March 2, the students at Rogers Junior-Senior High School staged a boycott. Monday's attendance figures for Canton Negro schools, as given by D. M. Allen, Superintendent of Canton Public Schools, were: 2,625 absent and 915 present. At the Rogers school 1,396 were absent and 316 present, these figures obtained by James Anderson, a student there, who called the school. The students, who organized the boycott almost completely by themselves, gave 13 reasons for it.

1. Books in poor repair and not enough of them
2. Not enough chemicals and equipment for the chemistry laboratory
3. Typewriters in poor condition and not enough of them
4. Home economics laboratory poorly equipped
5. No physical education for high school students

Orig (make file copy)

6. No foreign languages taught
7. Insufficient first aid equipment
8. Insufficient library
9. Inadequate shop facilities
10. Overcrowded and broken buses
11. Overcrowded classes
12. Building in poor repair
13. No lockers for students

During the boycott about 115 students participated in a Freedom School held at the Pleasant Green Holiness Church. In the morning they discussed nonviolence, what was wrong with their school and why they were participating in the boycott. After lunch they organized themselves, set up committees and discussed plans for the future. Nothing has come of their request to meet with a representative of the Board of Education on Friday, March 6.

On Tuesday, March 3, all the students who were absent were given letters to take home to their parents, addressed to "Negro School Patrons of the Canton Schools," it was signed by parents to explain why their children were absent on Monday. Students unable to provide excused absences would receive zeroes for their work, the letter admonished.

On Monday, March 2, Sheriff Jack S. Cauthen stopped James Collier, SNCC field worker, two white ministers and two other field workers from canvassing in the sawmill quarters. With the Sheriff were about a dozen other men, mostly in pickup trucks, one of whom claimed to be the owner of the land who said he wouldn't let the canvassers on his property. Sheriff Cauthen also told Collier that he "had heard all about" him and that up to now he had been protecting him but now that Collier was playing with dynamite (apparently canvassing with white ministers in Negro areas) he would have to leave town. Cauthen told Collier that something would have happened to him long ago were it not for the protection he had received.

Tuesday about 10 AM the Sheriff stopped Collier as he was going up the steps to the courthouse grounds, leading some people to register. Cauthen told Collier that apparently he hadn't gotten the message the previous day but that he had really meant it. He gave Collier 30 seconds to get off the steps and told him not to come back again. Later in the day Collier talked with city attorney Robert Goza about the possible lifting of the curfew. After that Cauthen told Collier that if it were lifted, he'd see that it was put back on, adding something to the effect that he thought Collier might try something like that.

On Tuesday evening about 7:30 PM Collier was stopped by about 6 white men in two pickup trucks (one red, one blue and white) while he was walking on Hickory Street with Joe Lee Watts, Marcellus Byrd and Henry Lee Chinn. They told him that there were people in the community who would rather kill him that Medgar Evers.

On Tuesday a Negro teacher, Tom Summers was arrested for driving with a revoked license (which is true). He paid his fine and was released on Wednesday.

On Tuesday night there was a mass meeting in the Pleasant Green Church of about 80 people.

At about noon on Monday, March 2, George Raymond was arrested for driving a faulty car (bad brakes). Raymond says that the owner of the car is a mechanic and that he says there was nothing wrong with the brakes. He was released from the city jail on Tuesday, about 12:30 PM after paying a $16 find and $2 jail costs. In the jail Sheriff Jack Cauthen told Raymond to shave his beard off or he would do it for him. George did it himself.

On Tuesday, March 3, about noon the owner of the car and Matt Suarez CORE Task Force worker, went to pick up the car which was in the custody of Campbell's Wrecker Service. They went first to his house where the car was parked, but Campbell (Charles E.) was having lunch and told them to go to his place of business. They went there about 1:30 and paid $30. They went back to Campbell's house, got the car keys from his wife and got into the car which was still outside his house. They discovered that the brakes had been removed and that a hole had been punched in the muffler. They had driven about two blocks when stopped by police and given a ticket for improper brakes. Suarez explained that they had turned the motor off before the police had come close enough to have heard the faulty muffler.

On Monday night there was a mass meeting of about 140 people at the Pleasant Green Church.

On Wednesday morning, March 4, at least several hundred students were turned away from Rogers High School because they didn't have their absence excuse slips for Monday. It is also reported that on Wednesday morning James Johes, Jr., principal of Rogers, made a complaint to police as a result of a discussion he had with Scott Smith (identified below).

About 10:30 Wednesday morning nearly the entire city and county police forces raided the Freedom House. Most waited outside while Sheriff Cauthen, Deputy Billy Noble and five or six Canton police came inside. Asked for a warrant, the police said they didn't need one as they walked into the building. They sent the local adults and children who were there at the time home and arrested everyone else for "investigation," a total of 12.

James Collier, SNCC field worker, Negro, 28, from Jackson, Miss.
George Raymond, CORE Task Force, Negro, 21, from New Orleans
Mattheo Suarez, CORE Task Force, Negro, 26, from New Orleans
C. O. Chinn, CORE Task Force, Negro, 42, from Canton
Joe Lee Watts, CORE Task Force, Negro, 20, from Canton
Theodis Hewitt, CORE Task Force, Negro, 25, from Canton
Richard Jewett, CORE Task Force, white, 30, from New York City
Andrew Lee Green, SNCC field worker, Negro, 29, from Hattiesburg, Miss.
Marcellus Byrd, Canton volunteer, Negro, c. 21
John Newman, white, 20, from Kalamazoo, Mich., with the National Conference of Methodist Youth Fellowship
Stanford Brown, volunteer from Chicago, Negro, 20 (back in Chicago now)
Scott B. Smith, Jr., volunteer from Chicago, Negro, 29 arrested 5 minutes after the others, at Pleasant Green Church.

Lenora Thurmond was not at the Freedom House at the time. The rest of the staff were either in the rural areas or outside the county at the time of the arrests.

In the county jail everyone was questioned about whether they had been on school property that morning. They also received lectures on the error of their ways (that the students should be in school, that the higher the school's average daily attendance, the larger their budget, etc.). They were told that they could be charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, aiding and abetting disorderly conduct, and disturbing the peace.

Also at about 10:30 AM Rev. Frank Gibson of Cincinnati was asked to come to the Sheriff's office for questioning which he did.

Between 4 and 5:30 PM all but wo were released. C. O. Chinn was held for disturbing the peace and carrying a concealed weapon and Scott Smith for disturbing the peace. They appeared before Justice of the Peace Milton H. Sandidge on Thursday, March 5. No staff attended and they haven't checked to find out just what happened at the trial. What they think is that Smith was sentenced to $500 and 6 months and that Chinn, for some reason, wasn't tried. Chinn's bond is reportedly $1,000, Smith's, $500, both required to be property or surety bond.

On Wednesday night, March 4, there was a mass meeting at the Pleasant Green Church of about 100 people.

Property was secured in Canton for Chinn's and Smith's bond. James Collier went to the sheriff's office on Friday, March 6, to get the two out. The deputy in the sheriff's office was filling out the papers when Billy Noble came in and asked Collier if he were a lawyer. When Collier said no, Noble told Collier to get out, that they wouldn't give him the time of day. George Raymond went down and was told that he would have to get a lawyer's seal on the papers. On Saturday George went again and this time Noble told him, "You have our registrar in Jackson, we have these niggers in jail. Come back Monday."

On Wednesday afternoon, March 4, three boys were arrested in the town of Madison, Madison County. They are Floyd Bouldin, 19, trespassing and resisting arrest; Ernest Bouldin, 16, trespassing and resisting arrest; and Arthur Lee Bouldin, 18, trespassing, resisting arrest and carrying a concealed weapon. The story which came to us third hand is this. The three, plus a brother Samuel (who was driving) and a sister Benny Lou, were driving in Madison. They pulled out onto a street behind a highway patrol car and in front of the car of Constable Bruno Holley. All three cars happened to stop at a store a little way down the road. Constable Holley gave the Bouldins a hard time, claiming they had pulled out too close in front of him. The highway patrolmen left without saying anything, indicating that they hadn't done anything wrong. The Bouldins and Holley then went to their respective homes, but the Bouldins decided to go to Holley's house and apologize to him (one of them had mowed his lawn and knew him to some degree). When Holley saw them walking toward his house he must have thought he was being attacked for he came out of his house and fired a pistol to the side of them. He had another man hold a rifle on them while he handcuffed the three brothers. Benny Lou and maybe Samuel watched this from their car. The three were taken to the county jail in Canton. Their father was at the sheriff's office arranging to post bond when someone there said that he had been seen on Freedom Day trying to register and they wouldn't let his sons out. The brothers were tried on Friday but no one knows the results yet.

On Thursday, March 5, the US Justice Department filed a suit in US District Court for the Southern District of Mississippi charging Madison County registrar L. F. Campbell with discrimination and asking the Court to issue a preliminary injunction against him and the State of Mississippi, named as a codefendant in the suit. A closed hearing was held Saturday; March 7, in Judge Harold Cox's office. He has asked for briefs to be submitted by Tuesday, March 10. His decision is expected Wednesday.

On Friday night, March 6, about 9 PM Andrew Lee Green was arrested in Sharon, Madison County. He was arrested while sitting in the Pleasant Green Church by Billy Noble at the request of Forrest County (Hattiesburg) Sheriff. The charges against him were speeding, driving without a license (which is true) and an unpaid traffic ticket. He was taken to Hattiesburg on Saturday morning and was being held for $40 or 40 days. The staff in Canton sent money to get him out but they don't know if he is out.

There are not very accurate records of the people going to the courthouse. The staff is trying to improve on this. The best available for last week are:

	Went to Courthouse	Took Test
Monday, March 2	15	5
Tuesday, March 3	12	9
Wednesday, March 4	5	3
Thursday, March 5	11	10
Friday, March 6	12	8
Saturday, March 7	unknown as the staff was in Jackson, hoping to be present (with some Madison Co. locals) at the hearing of the Justice Department's suit

During the week the following incidents were reported to the staff; none has been really checked on.

1. Lank Williams (40, a truck driver) and his family live and work on a plantation owned by Joe Smith and Billy Leadbelly, northeast of Sharon in Madison County. He has lived in Madison County all his life. On February 27 Smith told all his employees that anyone who went to try to register on Friday (Freedom Day) would be fired and would have to leave their homes on the plantation. Lank Williams' two sons had already decided they would go and they did. On the afternoon of the 28th Leadbelly told Lank that he had seen his sons at the courthouse and that they (the sons) would have to get off the place. They did immediately and a week later Lank and his wife (no information about any other members of the family) moved off to keep the family together.

2. Lilly Mae Murphy worked in a clothing store in "downtown" Canton. Her boss told her that if she tried to register she would be fired. She tried to register on Freedom Day and was fired.

3. It is reported that on Friday, February 28, the "boss" of the county maintenance department order space cleared in the large truck shed, saying it was for demonstrators if the jails didn't have enough room. He told his employees that if they tried to register they would be fired. Apparently addressing his employees, he told all of them who were "with me" to come over to the side of the shed where he was standing. It is reported that less than half of the 50-75 employees went over, but as far as is known none tried to register.

The staff has heard that the gasoline pumps of a man named Otto Williams have been taken out, but there are no details at all on this.

Miscellaneous notes:

The front springs on Dave Dennis' car were apparently stolen in Canton. They were discovered missing after the car returned from several days there.

The Madison County Movement (Negro) put out the first issue of a mimeographed newsletter, the Madison County Citizen on Sunday, March 8.

The ministers left on Saturday, February 29, but another group came on Monday, March 2. All of them had left by Thursday morning, March 5.

The redistricting program now before the Mississippi legislature, will eliminate the second congressional district, dividing it between the first and the third. In this case, Jamie Whitten, representing the 2nd and Frank Smith, representing the 3rd, will be thrown together in a race for the third congressional district. Whitten is a rabid segregationist, Smith, a liberal, by comparison.

The liberal whites are pushing hard for Smith already and the Negro vote, might, for the first time, be able to s eing a Mississippi congressional election one way or the other. It will be an unprecedented opportunity to arouse interest among Negroes and get thousands in this county to register.

Mississippi Voting Project:

1. Basis considerations.

Any long range voting program in Mississippi must take into consideration that registration is open all year round, while poll tax paying occurs only during the months of December and January. Registration and the payment of poll tax two years in succession are the prerequisites for qualified electors to vote.

2. The agencies for effective voter registration campaigns:

Our experience in Mississippi has lead to the conclusions that the most effective agency for a voter registration program must be organized at a state-wide and county level and enjoy the sponsership and participation of local citizens.

Accordingly, we have been working with the Council of Federated Organizations in an effort to help develop such an agency. The C.O.R.E. and the S.C.L.C. have agreed to cooperatedin this program, with the understanding that the field secretaries of the three Civil Rights organizations will be responsible to the Voter Education Project for the execution of the program adopted by the Council.

We had a share in developing this program and the report submitted to the project director, "A Program for a Statewide Voter Registration Campaign in Mississippi", was drawn up with the members of the Council and the help and approval of James Bevel, Tom Gaither and Bob Moses, field representatives of the S.C.L.C, the C.O.R.E., and the S.N.C.C., respectively.

3. Implementation of the program.

Already, in four of the districts there are local organizations ready and anxious to continuevoter registration campaigns. We intend to work with them, providing personell, materials and financial assistance: Warren County Citizens Improvement League, Washington County Voters League, Coahoma County Council of Federated Organizations, Natchez Business and Civic League.

It is our intention to help the formation of similar organizations in the other districts. There are the beginnings of such organizations in Port Gibson, McComb, Hattiesburg, Cleveland, and Jackson, Mississippi.

The field secretaries of C.O.R.E., S.C.L.C. and S.N.C.C. would, in general, join these local organizations in discussing the planning, timing and focus of the voter registration projects in the state.

4. Summer project.

We are in favor of utilizing volunteer student workers over the summer. The following program would allow for a task-force of fifty students to work across the summer. It is urgent that we know within afew days how much of this program will be covered by the Voter Education Project so we may have time to recruit students.

The fifty students would work from six to ten districts. These would include: Districts, 1,2,3,4,5,6,15,18,19,13. (see accompanying table)

The program would begin with a two week orientation period at Toogaloo College, starting June 15. We would draw on local people for resources. Bill Higgs has agreed to be in charge of a political education program, based around his Mississippi Political Handbook.

The following budget is a general estimate of the cost of the program based necessary costs.

Room @ $10 per wk. per student	$5,000
Board @ $14 per wk. per student	$7,000
Personal expense @ $6 per wk. per student	$3,000
Transportation @ $25 per week per car -ten cars-	$2,500
Travel for students within the state	$ 400
Office rent @ $35, per month	$ 420
Printing	$ 600
Telelphone	$ 400
Office supplies	$ 500
miscelaneous	$ 200
Total for ten weeks	$20,000

It is assumed that staff people for C.O.R.E., S.C.L.C., and S.N.C.C., in Mississippi would work full time with this group and be responsible to the V.E.P. for carrying out the program.

Shooting Stirs Negro Voter Drive

Four national civil rights organizations pledged Friday to pour voter registration workers into LeFlore County, Miss., in the wake of the shooting of a 20-year-old Negro.

James Travis of Jackson, Miss., a field secretary for the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee, was reported shot by three white men from a passing car as he was leaving a Negro voter registration office in Greenwood, Miss. Thursday night.

Travis was taken to a Jackson hospital from Greenwood after doctors found a bullet lodged near his spine. Travis was reported in satisfactory condition Friday.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy was urged to take immediate action. A similar request went to Gov. Ross Barnett.

The Justice department said Friday night that it is entering the case. The FBI entered the case, the spokesman said, after a telegram was received from the Congress of Racial Equality asking Atty. Gen. Kennedy to provide protection for Mississippi Negro citizens who try to register to vote.

In Atlanta Friday Wiley A. Branton, director of the Voter Education Project, pledged all necessary support in "a concerted campaign to get every qualified Negro in LeFlore County registered to vote, if he or she has any desire to do so."

Negro leaders promising immediate support include Roy Wilkins of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, James Foreman of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee and James Farmer of the Congress of Racial Equality.

9,000 Pounds Of Food Given Miss. Negroes

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — The Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee said it distributed an estimated 9,000 pounds of food to needy Negroes Wednesday in Leflore County.

The group said all applicants received food, more than 300 persons. More will be distributed each Wednesday, it said. The first distribution was made last Feb. 13.

The committee charged that Negroes in the county became destitute after county officials dropped a federal food program because of Negro activities in voter registration.

County officials denied the charges, citing the lack of need and abuse as the reasons for halting the program.

4 BUILDINGS BURNED IN GREENWOOD, MISS.

GREENWOOD, Miss.—Samuel Block, field secretary for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, reported Thursday that four Negro businesses on the same block as the SNCC office here were burned to the ground February 20.

Block said that Mrs. Nancy Brand, a worker in the SNCC office here, reported an anonymous telephone call in which a man's voice asked her if she ever came to the office. When she said yes, the voice said, 'You' won't be going down there no more. That's been taken care of."

Block said that the burned businesses were Jackson Garage, George's Cafe, Porter's Pressing Shop, and the Esquire Club. He said that a pressing shop is next doo rto the SNCC office, and that it was his contention the businesses were burned by mistake.

Block said, "I believe it was their intention to burn this office."

SLEPT IN OFFICE

He said that field secretaries had been sleeping in the office, but they would no longer do so.

SNCC Chairman Charles McDew wired Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy:

"We protest the burning of four businesses in Greenwood, Mississippi. Our field secretary there, Samuel Block, charges that the arsonists meant to burn his office from which he assists Negroes who have been denied the right to vote and who are being starved out of Leflore County because they tried to register. FBI offices in Memphis and Atlanta have been evasive in this matter. Will the Federal Government act to protect him and others who daily risk their lives to bring emocracy to Mississippi?

Block said he and other SNCC workers had distributed food to 561 persons Wednesday and that two loads of food had been sent to Negro families in Sunflower County, where the Justice Department filed suit last month charging voting violations.

"We still need food", Block said, "and appeal to Americans to aid Negro citizens here in Mississippi who are suffering because of their belief in democracy."

Still appeals fine in Mississippi case

GREENWOOD, Miss. — (NNPA)—Lawrence Still, a writer for Jet Magazine, has appealed a fine of $100 levied by the Leflore County court for drunken driving.

In Chicago, Robert Johnson, the publication's editor, said Mr. Still has been "harassed" by Mississippi authorities even since he went there "to expose the injustices" being done to destitute colored families.

Vocational College Negroes Charged

GREENWOOD, Miss. (UPI) — Five Negro students at Mississippi Vocational College were charged Friday with assault with intent in connection with a rock throwing incident, officers said.

Leflore County deputies said the five Negroes admitted throwing rocks Wednesday night at several white youths.

The five were identified as Charles Tuggle of Gulfport, Otis Funches of near Leland, Swancy Brown of Ackerman, Murry Bacon of Natchez and Lorenzo Plasent of Yazoo City.

Negroes Threaten 'Test' Of Leflore

GREENWOOD, Miss. (UPI) —A civil rights leader, angered by the shooting of one of his workers, said Friday the nation's most powerful integrationist groups will pool their resources to make Leflore County "the testing ground for democracy."

The challenge was made to Gov. Ross Barnett in a telegram from Wiley A. Branton of Atlanta, director of the Voter Education Project, who also alerted Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy.

"The campaign will begin immediately. You must anticipate that this campaign will be met by violence and other harassment," Branton told Kennedy.

"We are notifying you in advance so that you can provide at once the necessary federal protection to prevent violence and other forms of intimidation against registration workers and applicants."

Branton said the shooting of Jimmy Travis, 20-year-old Negro voter registration worker, here Thursday night was not the first harassment of such workers.

Travis was struck twice by a fusilade fired at a car in which he and two other civil rights workers were riding. One of the other occupants of the car, Bob Moses, Greenville, Miss., field worker for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), said the shots came from a car containing three white men. Neither Moses nor Randolph Blackwell, a companion, was hit by the bullets.

A 45-caliber bullet lodged near Travis' spine was removed Friday and turned over to the FBI, which is investigating the incident. Travis, who also suffered a shoulder wound, was reported in satisfactory condition in a Jackson hospital.

"We are accordingly...announcing a concentrated, saturation campaign to register every qualified Negro of Leflore County" he said.

The "full resources" of a number of cooperating agencies would be concentrated immediately in the county, Branton said. He listed these agencies as SNCC, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), and the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

Delta Shooting Starts Negro Voting Drive

4 Civil Rights Groups Join For Mass Registration Effort In Mississippi; U.S. Aid Asked

By CLAUDE SITTON
The New York Times News Service

ATLANTA—Four major civil rights organizations announced yesterday that they were joining forces immediately in a saturation campaign to register Negro voters in Leflore County, Mississippi.

The action followed the shooting of a Negro registration worker Thursday night on a highway west of Greenwood, seat of the rich farming and industrial county in the heart of the Mississippi delta.

The victim, James Travis, 20, was moved early yesterday to a Jackson hospital. He was being treated for a gunshot wound in the neck received when his car was fired on from a passing auto. He was expected to recover.

(Travis and two companions in the car at the time of the shooting, Robert Moses of Greenville, Miss., and Randolph Blackwell of Atlanta, are all active in a voter registration drive, the Associated Press said.

(MOSES SAID the bullets came from a white car that passed them about seven miles out of Greenwood on U.S. Highway 82 as they were driving toward Greenville.

(Several bullets ripped into the car and smashed windows, Moses said. Neither he nor Blackwell was hurt.

(Blackwell is associated with the Southern Regional Council's voter educational project. Travis and Moses are field secretaries for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, a desegregation group.

(Moses said the same white car, carrying three white men, had been observed earlier circling around the committee office here.)

The registration drive was announced here by Wiley A. Branton, director of the voter education project. The project was established last year by the SRC "to find the best ways of increasing the electorate in the South.'

BRANTON ALSO telegraphed President Kennedy that he must anticipate that the campaign would be met with violence and should be prepared to provide federal protection. He said this protection had not been extended in the past.

Similar telegrams went to Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi, Dr. John Hannah, chairman of the federal Civil Right Commission, and other federal officials.

"This is but the latest of these vicious assaults against registration workers and applicants in Mississippi, the telegrams said.

"This can no longer be tolerated. We are accordingly today announcing a concentrated, saturation campaign to register every qualified Negro in Leflore County."

Branton said the following organizations, all active in the voter education project, had pledged their full resources to the drive: The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; the Congress of Racial Equality, and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

Leflore joined Sunflower County, home of Sen. James O. Eastland, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and birthplace of the militantly white supremacist Citizen's Councils.

The locale of the campaign and the forces behind it promise to make it a major test of Mississippi's resistance to racial change and the Kennedy administration's determination to enforce the rights of Negroes. This was underscored in the three-page announcement issued by Branton.

"The state of Mississippi has repeatedly thrown down a gauntlet at the feet of would-be Negro voters, not only by the discriminatory practices of the registrars, but also by economic pressures, threats, coercion, physical violence, and death to Negroes seeking the right to vote," he asserted.

"The time has come for us to pick up the gauntlet. Leflore County, Miss., has elected itself as the testing ground for democracy and we are accordingly meeting the challenge there."

Branton emphasized that methods would be peaceable and lawful and that the campign would be conducted openly through literacy schools, meetings, and individual contacts.

"BASED ON the unhappy experience of recent months we must anticipate that our efforts will be met by continued harrassment and violence," he said.

Scranton contended that both the federal government and that of Mississippi had a responsibility to protect voter registration workers.

However, he said, "the state of Mississippi has not only failed to provide this protection in the past, but, in fact, has cooperated with those who would deny basic rights to American citizens of color."

"The federal Congress and executive have, in the past, failed to meet the minimum requirements for protecting the rights of Negro citizens in Mississippi."

Voting is a federally guaranteed right, declared Branton, and the United States has an obligation not only to punish community lawlessness that interfers with this right but also to put it down.

"We, therefore, call upon the President of the United States to use his executive powers to help make meaningful the provisions of the 15th Amendment—100 years late."

Negro's Shooting Spurs Voter Drive

BY FRED POWLEDGE

The shooting last week of a young Negro civil rights worker has set off a widespread call for "a concerted campaign to get every qualified Negro" registered to vote in LeFlore County, Miss.

The results, observers said, could be a significant three-way confrontation on the voting issue among Negroes, the white power structure in Mississippi, and the federal government.

IT COULD BE, they say, as important a step in voter registration as the Freedom Rides were in interstate transportation. Or it could be another showdown between Mississippians and the federal government, like the one last September which accompanied James Meredith's entrance at the University of Mississippi.

What brought the new campaign about was the wounding Thursday night of 20-year-old James Travis, a Mississippian and field secretary for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. Mr. Travis and two other young men who are working on a voter registration campaign in LeFlore County were shot at by an unidentified group of whites about seven miles from Greenwood, Miss., the county seat.

Mr. Travis' two companions, SNCC field secretary Bob Moses and Randolph Blackwell, were not hit by the bullets. Mr. Moses said the bullets came from a car, containing three white men, which bore no license plates.

Mr. Blackwell is a field director of the Voter Education Project, an Atlanta-based agency which coordinates a Southwide registration campaign.

The three young men had just finished what, for them, was a satisfying week's work. An estimated 135 Negroes had started the registration process in LeFlore, a county where less than 1 per cent of the voting-age nonwhites are registered. Mr. Moses called the action "the first real breakthrough in Mississippi."

WHEN NEWS of the shooting reached the headquarters of civil rights organizations, their directors drafted the plan to start a concentrated registration campaign. Wiley A. Branton, director of the Voter Education Project, announced in Atlanta:

"These are intolerable conditions . . . and they cannot be allowed to continue. Accordingly, there is a need to establish once and for all that in this land people do not have to be afraid to be free.

"The State of Mississippi has repeatedly thrown down a gauntlet at the feet of would-be Negro voters, not only by the discriminatory practices of the registrars, but also by economic pressures, threats, coercion, physical violence and death to Negroes seeking the right to vote.

"The time has come for us to pick up the gauntlet. LeFlore County, Miss., has elected itself as the testing ground for democracy and we are accordingly meeting the challenge there."

Mr. Branton said "the full resources" of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Congress of Racial Equality, and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference are going into the campaign.

HE EXPLAINED that each of these organizations—predominantly the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee—would send voter registration workers from other areas into LeFlore "immediately." The total work force could amount to 35 or 40 persons, where two or three have been working in the past.

Mr. Branton said he was asking Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi to furnish protection for the workers, but he also wired U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, saying:

"You must anticipate that this campaign will be met by violence and other harassment. We are notifying you in advance that you can provide at once the necessary federal protection to prevent violence and other forms of intimidation against registration workers and applicants."

IN WASHINGTON, a spokesman for the Justice Department said the FBI had already started an investigation of the shooting. He said no specific action had been taken on the subject of Mr. Branton's announcement.

The announcement of the campaign was interpreted by some observers as meaning that civil rights organizations feel President Kennedy should be placed in the position of taking a definite stand on the degree of federal protection he should allow for voter registration workers.

The President last week outlined his civil rights legislation for Congress, and voting headed his list. The President asked for federal voting referees to register Negroes when voting suits are filed in counties where less than 15 per cent of the Negroes are registered.

In LeFlore County, according to statistics compiled by the U.S. Civil Rights Commission from 1960 census figures, .9 per cent of the voting-age Negroes are registered. The nonwhite population of the county makes up 64.6 per cent of the total population.

No Negroes are registered in 13 Mississippi counties, and 42 other counties count less than 10 per cent of their voting-age Negroes as registered. In 1954, in the state as a whole, there were about 500,000 voting-age Negroes, but only 4.4 per cent of the total was registered.

James Travis, the victim of the Greenwood shooting, was born in Jackson, Miss. He joined the Freedom Rides in the summer of 1961, and was sent to Parchman Penitentiary for 14 days.

He has worked in voter registration campaigns in Vicksburg, Miss., and Orangeburg, S.C.

ST. LOUIS, March 2 (AP) — A Girl Scout leader became a United States citizen, bursting into tears on discovering that her scout troop had watched the ceremony.

Mrs. Elisabeth Johanna Stevens of Crystal City, Ma., took the citizenship oath with 37 others before U. S. District Judge Roy Harper.

Then, noticing her 43 Girl Scouts, she burst into tears and said, "these are my friends from Crystal City."

The girls, from Troop 2289, served coffee and cookies to all the new citizens.

Mrs. Stevens met and married her husband, Louis, in her native Holland. She has been in the United States since 1959.

Mississippi Shooting Brings Voter Pledge

GREENWOOD, Miss. — Further efforts to sign up every qualified Negro voter in Mississippi were being formulated Saturday in the wake of the shooting of a young civil rights worker, who had been pushing voter registration in the state.

Jimmy Travis, age 20, was shot in LeFlore County in a hail of bullets from a car in which three white men were riding less than 24 hours after President Kennedy asked Congress to make into law a civil rights package designed to strengthen protection of voting rights.

Kennedy had hit at what he termed the "disease of discrimination," and called for protection of voting rights.

Intention to get every possible Negro in Mississippi registered to vote was announced to Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, who has filed numerous suits against the practice throughout the south.

Another of the bullets, reportedly fired by three white men from a passing car, ripped through Travis' shoulder, but the shoulder wound was not believed to be serious.

Wiley A. Branton, director of the voter education project, wired the attorney general from Atlanta saying that conditions as they now exist in Mississippi no longer can be tolerated.

"We are accordingly today announcing a concentrated, saturation campaign to register every qualified Negro of Leflore County," Branton said.

A similar telegram went to Gov. Barnett.

Bob Moses of Greenville, Miss., field representative for the pro-integrationist Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, SNCC, the shooting occurred Thursday night as he, Travis and Randolph Blackwell, both of Atlanta, were leaving Greenwood in a car. Moses and Blackwell were not hit by the hail of bullets.

Moses said the shots came from a car occupied by three white men wearing sunglasses. The attack car bore no license plates.

"They shot into the car as they passed. Jimmy shouted he had been hit and the car went out of control," Moses reported.

Leflore County Sheriff John Cothron was reported to have later taken Travis' rented car into custody.

Negroes Halt March, Blame Fire Truck

A group of 40 Negroes marching from the Student Non Violent Coordinating Committee office on Avenue N turned around on their own initiative this morning and headed back.

The Negroes, being led by comedian Dick Gregory, who walked behind two others, turned around after going about five blocks claiming they did not want to be a part of a manufactured situation.

Wylie Branton, Negro attorney from Atlanta told newsmen: 'the group turned around this morning because someone was trying to create a traffic situation and we do not wish to be a part of a manufactured situation."

Branton was referring to a fire truck which came down Broad Street past the marchers answering an alarm.

Fire Chief J. C. Evans said an alarm was received at 10:50 a. m. this morning from a woman who said there was a fire at 908 Broad Street. Evans said, "the fireman on the telephone asked the nature of the fire and she said she didnt know. The number 2 fire truck was dispatched to 908 Borad Street. When they reached Broad Street they saw the marchers and passed them. At 908 Broad Street the woman told the firemen she had not called and knew nohing about it. It was a false alarm," the chief said.

Commissioner B. A. Hammond said, "we have no idea why they turned around. They are calling all the shots.

"The police or the firemen were not trying to create a traffic situation as claimed by the marchers,' he added.

Branton told newsmen he felt sure the marchers would leave again sometime today for the courthouse, but the time was not definite.

The Law: Color Blind Or Color Conscious?

Let us suppose for a moment that this afternoon's newspaper carried a story from somewhere in Mississippi headlined, "White Youths Seriously Injured By Marked Negroes." Suppose the story went on to describe how a car full of Negro men pulled up next to a car carrying several young white men, let loose with a fusilade of shots, then roared away into the ngiht leaving one of the ycungsters seriously injured. Need we bother even to guess what the public and official reaction would be?

Not really. Not many hours would pass before a steady procession of suspects would be trooping through the jailhouse doors, undergoing intensive questioning. Every car which fitted the description of the assailants' car would be hauled in for investigation. Every informer used by the police would be contacted. Almost without doubt, the criminals or someone who could be charged with the crime would be apprehended in short order. And most private citizens would be incensed at the outrage.

A SHOOTING such as the one we've described occurred last week. One young man was hit twice. His car was riddled from front to back. What has been the reaction?

So far, the Leflore County sheriff's office has found the car and charged two men with assault. The sheriff says his investigation is continuing. What will be interesting to note will be the fate of those charged.

But the public's reaction has been something less than horrified. Why? Is it because the people who were shot were not white, but colored? Or that they were engaged in work which many white Mississippians hate and fear, but which is aimed at nothing more sinister than the attainment of basic American rights for their people? Or that the men who did the shooting were white?

We would like to think not, but this is the way it looks. Nor can we ease our conscience about such action, and inaction, by pointing the finger of condemnation at Washington, D.C., or some other metropolitan area which has immense problems of its own. We live in Mississippi, not Washington. It is up to us to clean up our own backyard.

WE COULD make a good start toward it, as private citizens, by letting those around us know that we do not and cannot condone the kind of incident which took place outside Greenwood last week. The criminals who did it undoubtedly felt they had community approval for their action. There are others waiting to perpetrate their own deeds of violence, waiting for the apparent go-ahead from the "respectable" members of the community. The green light could be nothing more than a joking reference to the Leflore County gunmen as "our kind of criminals."

There is always another alternative, of course. We can continue to remain silent, to refuse to press for the apprehension and conviction of those who break the law—no matter what their color—and we can be sure that the federal government will move in to fill the vacuum. Again it does no good to rail against the government and against outsiders. Only by meeting our own responsibilities can we forestall such intervention, and in this case our responsibility is very clear indeed. The law must be color blind, and the victim and assailant of one incident must be treated no differently from the victim and assailant of another, no matter what their color.

Two Charged In Greenwood Gun Incident

Whites Accused Of Opening Fire On Negro Leader

GREENWOOD, Miss. (Special) —Two Greenwood white men were charged today in the shooting last week of a Jackson Negro who was a leader in Negro voter registration activities in Leflore County.

Officers jailed William H. Greenlee, a Greenwood bulk gasoline dealer; and Wesley Kersey, service manager for a Greenwood earthmoving machinery dealer.

Both were held in the Leflore County jail on charges of felonious assault, Sheriff John Ed Cothran said.

They are accused of shooting Jimmy Travis, 20, of Jackson, as he drove along Highway 82 west of Greenwood in a rented automobile last Thursday night.

Travis was treated at a Greenwood hospital and transferred to University Hospital in Jackson Friday for surgery to remove a bullet from his shoulder. He was released from the Jackson hospital Sunday afternoon.

LOCATE AUTOMOBILE

Arrest of the two white men came yesterday afternoon shortly after Cothran announced that sheriff's officers had located an automobile fitting the description of the one Travis' assailants drove.

The sheriff said the car was found abandoned in Carroll County, 10 miles east of Greenwood. He said it was taken to Greenwood for examination.

Robert Moses, Negro, also a voter registration worker, first reported the shooting Friday. He said an automobile carrying three white men pulled alongside the car in which he and Travis rode. Occupants of the car pumped several shots in the Negroes' automobile, Moses claimed.

Officers found 13 bullet holes in Travis' automobile and the slug taken from his shoulder was reported to be a copper-plated 45 caliber. There was speculation among some officers that the shots were fired by a sub-machine gun. Cothran has not revealed whether his officers recovered a weapon with the arrest of Greenlee and Kersey.

There were reports that additional persons were being questioned in Greenwood concerning the shooting.

Moses and Travis were leaders in a voter registration campaign among Negroes in the county. Both identified themselves as field secretaries for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee.

PLEA FOR ACCORD

Greenwood's City Council yesterday called on members of white and Negro races in the area to "continue their normal pursuits in the spirit of friendship and good will that has always prevailed among us."

A statement by Mayor Charles Sampson and Commissioners W. G. Mize and B. A. Hammond said members of both races in the area "have lived together in an atmosphere of harmony, understanding and cooperation."

"Unfortunately," the statement continued, "there are now present in our community individuals and organizations from other areas who, activated by motives other than the welfare of our people, are dedicated to creating disunity and discord among us."

"We take this means of urging all of our citizens of both races simply to ignore these outsiders and to continue their normal pursuits in the spirit of friendship and good will that has always prevailed among us."

"Hate and violence have never had a place in Leflore County," the statement said, "and let's not permit ourselves to become victimized by those whose sole purpose in being here is to bring about upheaval and unrest."

"When it becomes apparent to these ill-advised persons and groups from other places that they cannot sow the seeds of strife here, they will move on, and we will continue, in the future as in the past, to manage our own affairs for the mutual benefit of all," the statement added.

3 Accused Of Shooting At 3 Negroes

V+I South

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP)—Three white persons, including a teen-ager, were arrested Tuesday in connection with a shooting attack on three Negroes who were trying to register voters.

A 17-year-old boy, who was not identified in keeping with policy regarding young first-offenders, will be turned over to LeFlore County Juvenile Court. The boy was charged with felonious assault.

One Negro, Jimmy Travis, 20, of Jackson, Miss., was wounded in the neck and shoulder by bullets during the attack last Thursday.

Sheriff John Ed Cochran said the investigation was still under way. He identified the other prisoners as William H. Greenlee and Wesley Kersey, both of Greenwood.

Greenlee, a bulk gasoline dealer, and Kersey, service manager of a roadbuilding equipment firm, were picked up at work. They were charged with felonious assault.

The attack came last Thursday night. Robert Moses, Greenville, said a hail of bullets came from a car that passed the auto in which he and Travis were riding.

Both Travis and Moses are field secretaries for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee. Moses and Randolph Blackwell, Atlanta, also in the car at the time, were not hurt.

Three Held For Shooting Vote Worker

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 6 (AP)—Three white persons, one a teen-ager, were held Wednesday on charges of felonious assault in connection with the shooting of James Travis, Negro voter registration worker.

Sheriff John Ed Cothren identified two of the three as William H. Greenlee, a bulk gasoline dealer, and Wesley Kersey, service manager of a roadbuilding equipment firm. No bond was set pending completion of the investigation.

The third person was identified only as a 17-year-old youth. He will be tried in youth court in Leflore County.

Travis was wounded in the neck and shoulder near here late last Thursday night by gunfire from a passing car.

Others in Travis' car escaped injury. They were Robert Moses of Greenville and Randolph Blackwell.

Travis and Moses are field secretaries for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee. Blackwell is a research assistant with the voter education project in Atlanta.

Randolph---

Here's AP identification of the three arrested in the shooting, and in my experience and observation of news handling is entirely routine and adequate. In other types of stories, not police or criminal, it is customary to identify persons by trade, when the story is big and full enough for identification, and not to name the company for which they work, in order not to give a free plug to commercial outfits---except, that is, in obits, murders by prominent people or other news so big or sensational as to suggest every detail about the person, even where he works.

You may be right that the wire services and papers should say "Standard Oil" employe, but I think Standard, Shell, Purdil and all of them are just as big and dirty capitalists---and imperialists, too, I reckon---and, for my reading, I don't care which one. Shell could just as easily support the "power structure" and encourage its hired help to shoot Negroes on behalf of the banks or cotton planters or oil companies, or fire them when they do.

You, Travis and Moses are already publicly identified, and self-identified, even, and to get press protection by suppressing your connection, when it is the target of the shooting, would seem to me ridiculous, not to mention inadequate, reporting. The papers and news agencies are not responsible for your unease in Mississippi; it is entailed in your dangerous work, which they more or less adequately report.

I think.

3rd Suspect Arrested In Greenwood Shooting

GREENWOOD (UPI) — Two men and a youth faced charges of felonious assault today in the shooting of a civil rights worker last week.

The youth, a 17-year-old whose name was withheld as a first offender, was arrested late Tuesday, 24 hours after Leflore County Sheriff John Ed Cothron arrested William H. Greenlee and Wesley Kersey.

The youth faces a hearing next week before Charles Deaton, county youth counselor. The hearing will determine whether the high school student is punished as a juvenile or turned over to the grand jury with the two adults.

The arrest of the youth apparently wrapped up the probe into the shooting of Jimmy Travis Thursday night.

THE charge of felonious assault could result in a maximum penalty of five years in prison. A charge of assault with intent to kill would require a greater sentence.

Travis, of Jackson, and two other voter registration workers, Bob Moses of Greenville, and Randolph Blackwell of Atlanta, were fired upon about seven miles from here by three men who drove by them in a car.

Travis was the only one hit in the hail of bullets. He underwent surgery at University Hospital in Jackson for removal of a .45 caliber slug and was released from the hospital Sunday.

The arrests came soon after officers located a 1962 (Buick) hard-top Monday afternoon which matched the description given by the victims as the one used by the three men.

Cothron and other officers impounded the vehicle and refused to discuss ownership of the vehicle. However, it was learned from reliable sources the car belonged to Greenlee.

* * *

THE car, found on a secluded rural road in neighboring Carroll County, bore no licens plates.

Cothron has declined to answer any questions about the suspects, including whether they had made any statements concerning the case.

Greenlee is the local agent of an oil company and Kersey is service manager for a tractor distributing concern.

A voter registration campaign has been underway in Leflore County for several months and it is one of two Delta counties where food recently collected in Chicago has been distributed to underprivileged families.

Delta Lodge Will Elect Officers

Officers will be elected in the Delta Lodge of Perfection at a meeting of the Delta Bodies of Scottish Rite Masons to be held at the Masonic Temple Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Willard McIlwain will address the meeting on the subject of "Masonry and Patriotism."

The announcement of the meeting was made today by the Rev. Carl L. Oakes, secretary of the Delta Bodies of Scottish Rite Masons.

Greenwood Tension Eases—Gregory Ready to Leave

By United Press International

GREENWOOD, Miss.—Dick Gregory and other civil rights leaders prepared to leave this Mississippi Delta city today as much of the momentum appears to have vanished from the voter registration drive.

"I feel the situation has improved about as much as it could," Gregory said. "We got all we can get out of them."

Gregory, negro comedian from Chicago who led several voter marches here, had vowed to remain for 10 years if necessary to "put down police brutality." He said yesterday however, he would leave as soon as $6000 in bond money was raised to free 12 marchers convicted in City Court yesterday. He said he would put up the money if it couldn't be raised locally.

The executive director of the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee (SNCC), James Foreman of Atlanta, said he too planned to leave during the week end. "We feel the situation is less tense," said Foreman, one of the first group of marchers to be arrested here.

City Commissioner B. A. (Buff) Hammond has agreed to give negro applicants bus transportation of the Leflore County Courthouse. The transportation was asked by Foreman, and Hammond said a school bus "will be available next week if the same conditions prevail and we think it is expedient to use it in order to prevent incidents."

City Judge Ormand L. Kimbrough sentenced the 12 marchers convicted yesterday to a 30-day jail sentence and a $100 fine for disorderly conduct. Eight negroes arrested on similar charges in an earlier march were sentenced to four months in jail and a $200 fine. City Prosecutor Gray Evans said the second group got lighter sentences because he submitted the cases on the City Court docket rather than the Justice of the Peace docket as in the first cases.

3 Accused Of Shooting At 3 Negroes

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP)—Three white persons, including a teenager, were arrested Tuesday in connection with a shooting attack on three Negroes who were trying to register voters.

A 17-year-old boy, who was not identified in keeping with policy regarding young first-offenders, will be turned over to LeFlore County Juvenile Court. The boy was charged with felonious assault.

One Negro, Jimmy Travis, 20, of Jackson, Miss., was wounded in the neck and shoulder by bullets during the attack last Thursday.

Sheriff John Ed Cochran said the investigation was still under way. He identified the other prisoners as William H. Greenlee and Wesley Kersey, both of Greenwood.

Standard of N.J.

Greenlee, a bulk gasoline dealer, and Kersey, service manager of a roadbuilding equipment firm, were picked up at work. They were charged with felonious assault.

The attack came last Thursday night. Robert Moses, Greenville, said a hail of bullets came from a car that passed the auto in which he and Travis were riding.

Both Travis and Moses are field secretaries for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee. Moses and Randolph Blackwell, Atlanta, also in the car at the time, were not hurt.

2 Arrested In Shooting Of Voter Registration Worker, Others To Face Jail In Mississippi Issue

Felonious Assault Charged By Police

GREENWOOD, Miss. (UPI)—Two white men are charged with felonious assault Tuesday in the shooting of a civil rights worker. More arrests were expected.

Local officials, meanwhile, issued a call for "friendship" between the races in this community, which leaders have threatened to turn into a battleground in the fight for Negroes' rights.

The shooting last week of 20-year -old Jimmy Travis brought an announcement from the Justice Department in Washington that federal agents were looking into the incident.

Local authorities Tuesday refused to answer any questions concerning the two suspects now in custody, except to disclose their identities. The two, arrested Monday night, were identified as William H. Greenlee, an agent for an oil company and Wesley Kersey, service manager for a distributing firm.

They reportedly talked with police, but Sheriff John Cothron refused to disclose what was said or to even release such routine information as their ages.

The felonious assault charges lodged against the two could result in prison terms of five years each.

Travis, who was shot last Thursday, underwent surgery for removal of a .45 caliber slug from an area near his spine. He was released from the hospital Sunday.

Travis and two other voter registration workers were fired upon by three white men from a moving car.

A vehicle, identified by the civil rights workers as the attack car, was found abandoned Monday afternoon.

Negroes Go To Courthouse In Autos—Gregory Says He Is Leaving

By SARA CRISS
Special to The Commercial Appeal

GREENWOOD, Miss., April 5.—The tense situation which has existed in this Delta city for the past 10 days eased considerably Friday as the Negro voter registration drive appeared to have lost much of its momentum.

In sharp contrast to previous days, there were no mass marches of Negroes to and from the Leflore County Courthouse. The few Negroes who appeared at the courthouse to take registration examinations traveled by automobiles and there were no incidents.

Negro comedian Dick Gregory, who vowed Wednesday to stay here 10 years if necessary to "put down police brutality," said Friday he is leaving.

"I feel the situation has improved about as much as it could," Gregory said.

James Forman, Negro of Atlanta, executive director of the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee, Friday asked Police Commissioner B. A. Hammond if the city would furnish a bus to transport Negroes to the courthouse to apply for registration to vote.

Mr. Hammond told Forman this "all depends on the circumstances" and that the city has no policy on buses transporting any group to any place.

Mr. Hammond said what city officials "do in this matter will depend on what they think is expedient at the time."

Twelve Negroes arrested Wednesday on charges of disorderly conduct calculated to cause a breach of peace were found guilty in City Court Friday afternoon by Judge Orman L. Kimbrough.

Receiving sentences of 30 days in jail and $100 fines were Ida Holland, 18; Levi Hamilton, 25; Milton Hancock, 27; James Sanders, 28; Matthew Hughes, 19; Henry Smith, 59; John Turner, 48; Henry B. Gilmore, 22, and Willie McGee, all of Greenwood; James Sanders, 28, and Oscar Broom, both of Chicago, and Robert Kinloch, 40, of New York.

The jail sentence was suspended for two years pending good behavior for Smith, Gilmore and McGee. Turner received a suspended sentence on 20 days of the 30 for two years pending good behavior.

The 12 were among those who participated in a march Wednesday toward the courthouse, accompanied by Gregory. Seven others were released from the Leflore County Jail Thursday.

TENSION BUILDS UP AFTER GUN ATTACK

Voter-Registration Drive Is Intensified After Leader Is Wounded by Volley

By CLAUDE SITTON

Special to The New York Times

GREENWOOD, Miss., April 5—The night of Feb. 28 was mild with a hint of early spring as the black sedan rolled westward along U. S. Route 82 across the Mississippi Delta.

One of its three Negro occupants recalled later that as a string of traffic faded to the rear near Itta Bena, a car that had trailed them from Greenwood pulled alongside. Two white men sat in front, one in back.

Bursts of gunfire rang out. Thirteen 45 caliber bullets stitched a ragged seam of finger-sized holes along the sedan's left side and one copper-jacketed slug burned into the drivers shoulder to within an inch of his spine.

The wounded man, James Travis of Jackson, Miss., recovered. He has since returned here to his voter registration work as a field secretary for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

3 Whites Arrested

Five days after the shooting Sheriff John Ed Cothron of Leflore County arrested three Greenwood whites, who were charged with felonious assault. Two are well-known citizens—William H. Greenlee, a petroleum products wholesaler, and Wesley Kersey, service manager for an industrial company. The third is a juvenile.

This shooting incident, the first of several, set off a string of events that has turned Leflore County into a major battle ground in the Southern civil rights struggle.

Mr. Travis' companions in the car were Robert P. Moses, a field secretary of the student committee and director of the Council of Federated Organizations, and Randolph Blackwell, field director of the Voter Education Project.

The council, known as Cofo, is a coalition of Negro organizations that began a concerted voter-registration drive in the Delta last summer. The voter education project, established last year by the Southern regional council, has provided funds for Cofo's work.

The attack on the three men set off an angry flurry of activity in the project's headquarters at 5 Forsyth Street in Atlanta.

Big Campaign Planned

Wiley A. Branton, director of the project, announced a saturation campaign to register Leflore's Negroes, who make up abo[illegible] of the count[illegible] ty's voter registration campaign a Communist plot. Mayor Charles E. Sampson, a loyal member of the Citizens' Council, echoed their sentiments last week when he said that "the only purpose of these agitators is to follow the Communist line of fomenting racial violence."

There are a number of whites who disagree with this attitude and who contend that some compromise must be made with the demands of the Negroes But they are afraid to speak out publicly.

The Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee began a registration campaign last August in Leflore County. This committee, which grew out of the 1960 sit-in demonstrations against lunch counter segregation, has headquarters in Atlanta.

Two young Delta Negroes were designated as field secretaries for the project—Willie B. Peacock of Charleston, Miss., and Samuel T. Block of Cleveland, Miss.

A tall, gaunt youth of 25, Mr. Block became the chief target of white animosity in the campaign's early stages. He initially called attention to himself by asserting that he had been beaten by whites at a local automobile parts business. This drew the first in a long string of denials from whites, who said that they had seen no bruises on him.

The Leflore voter drive met little success last year, according to Mr. Moses. The 28-year-old Negro, who holds a masters degree in philosophy, left his job as a mathematics teacher at the Horace Mann School in New York in July, 1961, to come to Mississippi as a field secretary for the student committee.

10 More Negroes Seized in Birmingham Sit-Ins

Mass Demonstrations Fail to Develop—Some Pin Hope on a New City Regime

By FOSTER HAILEY

Special to The New York Times

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 5—Ten more Negroes were arrested today when they sought service at lunch counters in two downtown drugstores.

This brought to 35 the number arrested since Wednesday when local Negro leaders began their direct-action campaign to force abandonment of segregation practices.

Twenty-four of those have been arraigned in Recorders Court, found guilty of trespass and sentenced to 180 days in jail and fines of $100 each. One of the first 25 arrested was found to be a minor and was remanded to Juvenile Court.

Promised mass demonstrations have not been held, however, and there appeared to be a possibility tonight that the campaign might be temporarily abandoned.

A new administration is scheduled to take office April 15 unless the court upholds the right of the old City Commission to retain office. It is composed of men who are believed to be more moderate than their predecessors. They might be willing to follow Atlanta, New Orleans and other Southern cities in instituting token integration.

Many prominent members of the Birmingham Negro community are known to have opposed a direct-action campaign at this time. They believe that the new administration should be given an opportunity to disclose its intentions.

Some of them have met with the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., leader of the Southern Christian Leadership Council of Atlanta. Dr. King flew here Wednesday night at the invitation of campaign leaders but he has not participated in any of the sit-ins.

A spokesman for Dr. King discounted this afternoon the possibility of a truce until April 15, but it is known that course has been urged on him by some of those with whom he has met.

Mayor-elect Albert Boutwell, a former Alabama lieutenant governor, said at a luncheon of the Advertising Club today that if "outside elements and agitators" would only go away Birmingham could work out its own problems.

'Outsiders' Are Blamed

"We citizens of Birmingham understand and respect each other," he said. "When these outsiders learn they are not going to get any more publicity out of this thing they will move on to more profitable fields."

His talk was applauded by the advertising men and their guests.

The sit-ins and arrests have attracted only curious attention and there have been no anti-Negro demonstrations. The lunch counters are closed when the Negroes arrive. They then are asked to leave. When they refuse they are arrested under a local ordinance popularly known as the "trespass after warning" law.

The two local daily newspapers have carried only brief stories about the arrests on inside pages. Their restraint and a bus strike this week that has sharply curtailed visits by local people to downtown probably have helped in the maintenance of a calm atmosphere.

Dick Gregory, the comedian, arrived in Greenwood last Monday. Although he taunted the police as he led groups of Negroes in attempts to walk to the courthouse throughout the week, he was not arrested.

Meanwhile, the Justice Department had filed a request for a Federal court order against city and county officials before District Judge Claude F. Clayton Jr. It sought to force them to take the following actions:

¶Release the eight registration workers from prison.

¶Refrain from further interference with the campaign.

¶Permit Negroes to exercise their constitutional rights to assemble for peaceable protests and to protect them from whites who might molest them.

First Such Intervention

The action marked the first time in the civil rights struggle that the department had interceded to preserve the right of peaceful protest.

However the department and the city agreed yesterday that Justice Department attorneys would delay their attempt to obtain the injunctions and the city would stay execution of the sentences against the eight registration workers.

The Department reportedly was concerned over the threat of violence in Greenwood and the possibility that mass demonstrations might lead to a riot.

There is considerable evidence that an explosion has been averted here so far only because leaders of the Citizens' Council have restrained the more emotional whites. The council's members here include the city's ment, suggested that the incident was a hoax.

"Either by good luck or prearrangement, none of the occupants of the car was injured by the gunfire," he said.

No explanation was offered for the fact that three occupants had been cut by flying glass.

Fire On Theater Crowd

cording to Police Commissioner B. A. Hammond, the city will permit groups of no more than 20 or so to walk to the courthouse together so long as there is no threat of disorder.

Despite the violence, harassment and intimidation, the campaign has picked up momentum. Hundreds of persons packed the mass meetings in the city's Negro churches to cheer top leaders in the civil rights movement.

If local whites could hear the statements being made they might question the accuracy of the Commonwealth's recent observation that "nothing will be changed after democracy has been tested here."

"The white folks are scared," asserted the Rev. James Bevel at one such session. "That's why they turned the dog loose."

Blame Many Factors

Leflore County's whites have blamed the voter registration workers, the Kennedy Administration and the "Communists," in about that order, for the racial crisis.

"It's outsiders that's causing it," said Mayor Sampson recently. "We give them everything. We're building them a new swimming pool. We work very close with the nigger civic league. They're very satisfied."

However, some whites conceded readily in private that it would take more than a new swimming pool to resolve the controversy. Sooner or later, they said, the county will be forced to administer "reasonable" voting tests and to place all qualified persons on the rolls.

Gregory Leaves Greenwood

GREENWOOD, Miss., April 5 (UPI) — Dick Gregory announced today he was leaving Greenwood.

The Negro comic, who vowed two days ago to stay here 10 years if necessary to "put down police brutality," explained:

"I feel the situation has improved about as much as it could. We got all we can get out of them."

Big Campaign Planned

Wiley A. Branton, director of the project, announced a saturation campaign to register Leflore's Negroes, who make up about 64 per cent of the county's population of 47,142.

"The State of Mississippi," he asserted, "has repeatedly thrown down a gauntlet at the feet of would-be Negro voters, not only by the discriminatory practices of the registrar, but also by the economic pressures, threats, coercions, physical violence and death to Negroes seeking the right to vote," he said.

"The time has come for us to pick up the gauntlet. Leflore County has elected itself as the testing ground for democracy and we are accordingly meeting the challenge there."

Leflore County lies on the eastern bulge of the Delta, a football-shaped expanse of fertile fields, pasture lands and swampy stands of hardwood. This alluvial plain, bounded roughly by the rolling loops of the Mississippi and Yazoo Rivers, stretches flat as a table for 200 miles between Memphis and Vicksburg.

The tree-screened beauty of its Greek-revival mansions contrasts with the weather-beaten squalor of the shacks of clapboard and tar paper that stand amid the long brown furrows that lie waiting for the cotton and soybean seed.

In recent years, increasingly efficient machines and chemicals have revolutionized agriculture here.

Need for Labor Cut

But mechanization has slashed the need for labor by more than half. Many Negroes have moved away but many still remain.

Greenwood is the state headquarters for the Citizens' Council, a militantly segregationist organization founded in 1954 in adjoining Sunflower County.

Few Able to Qualify

His explanation for the poor showing is the same one repeated privately by white officials: under present state voting regulations, few if any Negroes can pass the test.

Most whites of voting age were registered when the more stringent regulations went into effect.

Mrs. Martha T. Lamb, Leflore County Circuit Court Clerk and Registrar, said she did not know how many Negroes were registered because records were not kept by race. She and six other Mississippi registrars are defendants in a broad scale legal attack on the voting laws that is now before a Federal Court.

The Justice Department, which brought the suit, states in its complaint that there are 10,274 whites and 13,567 Negroes of voting age in Leflore County. Approximately 95.5 per cent of the whites and 1.9 per cent of the Negroes are registered.

The suit contends that white political supremacy is maintained by regulations that include the following:

¶Registrants must be able to read, write and interpret any section of the Mississippi Constitution to the registrar's satisfaction.

¶Registrants must be of good moral character, as determined by the registrar.

¶Names of applicants and their addresses must be published for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the county.

Says It Applies to All

"It applies equally to all, white and black alike," said a member of the County Board of Supervisors with a grin in defending publication of the names.

Despite their dismal prospects, Negroes began applying for registration in increasing numbers in February.

The key factor in the increased applications for registration, according to Mr. Moses and a number of white observers, was the growing hunger among the field hands and the refusal of the county to relieve it by distributing surplus food provided by the Federal Government.

Until last fall, Leflore gave the food to public welfare recipients all year long. It expanded the program during the winter months to include all needy persons.

The county spent only $38,000 of its $2,095,874 budget for the 1961-62 fiscal year to store and distribute the food to 27,000 persons, about 90 per cent of whom were Negroes.

Malnutrition Reported

But the Board of Supervisors voted to drop the program for non-welfare recipients last fall. They explained recently that it had cost more than the county could afford and was not needed because of a bumper crop.

Four Justice Department lawyers who toured the county earlier this month reported that they had found widespread evidence of malnutrition.

Among the cases they describe was that of a mother who could offer her children only a breakfast of fried hoecake and syrup made from water and sugar. Another family had had no breakfast at 10 o'clock and said their dinner the night before had been pinto beans and blackeyed peas.

Other families said they had one big meal a week—chicken for Sunday morning breakfast.

A 34-year-old widow with nine children, ages 1 to 13, had only one bed and a bottomless chair in her shanty home. She said the plantation manager had given her $3 a week "furnish money" to be repaid from her earnings and those of her children. She was asked what she did after the cotton chopping and picking seasons.

"Ain't nothing to do but just wait on the calendar," she replied.

A night visit by two newsmen to a plantation cabin found a 57-year-old Negro hand, his wife and 11 of their 13 children crowded before an old television set in one of four rooms.

The crisp stage setting of the Mikado, which they were watching, contrasted with the few pieces of sagging furniture, the split and peeling paper on the walls, the pine floor studded with patches of ancient linoleum and a two-eyed wood stove resting on an automobile wheel rim.

Has $10 Left Over

The man, a carpenter and mechanic's helper in the plantation's repair shop, said he made 40 cents an hour or about $20 a week. He receives $10 after payments on a Christmas loan and medical bills are deducted.

The family had just finished a supper of cornbread and fried potatoes. There was no milk for the children.

He was asked what he would choose if granted one wish.

"Rights," he replied. "Freedom, free to speak, free to have a voice, to speak, not be condemned or nothing like that. You know we don't have no voice out here."

As a result of the Justice Department's investigation, the Department of Agriculture told the county that the Federal Government would pay the cost of distributing the surplus food. If the county still refused, the department said, the Government would step in and do the job.

The Board of Supervisors agreed reluctantly to resume the program, with the Government paying the cost. And this week hundreds of Negroes flocked to a warehouse here to receive the food.

Hunger Helps Drive

Hunger and the urging of the voter registration workers brought more and more Negroes to the county courthouse on the Yazoo's south bank to register. Committee officials obtained a three-room office in a ramshackle building on McLaurin Street and the harassment resumed.

The campaign workers reported another violent episode the night of March 6. Mr. Block said a station wagon had pulled alongside a car in which he and three others were sitting. A shotgun roared once.

The charge of buckshot was fired at such close range that it failed to disperse as it smashed one front window of the car and then the other before gouging into the wall of a home, the Negroes said.

City officials, in a statement, suggested that the incident was a hoax.

"Either by good luck or prearrangement, none of the occupants of the car was injured by the gunfire," he said.

No explanation was offered for the fact that three occupants had been cut by flying glass.

Fire On Theater Crowd

The next night, Mr. Moses reported, a sedan carrying four whites drew up in front of a Negro theater. One pulled out a pistol and fired toward a group waiting on the sidewalk. No one was hit.

Last week brought more violence and the Federal intervention that the city had sought to avoid. Nightriders fired two blasts of buckshot into a voter worker's home Monday.

"Again, through good fortune or advanced planning, no one was hurt," Mayor Sampson and the City Commissioners said in a statement.

The next morning, about 100 Negroes marched to the City Hall to protest the incident and to demand protection. At the Mayor's orders, the police dispersed them with a German shepherd dog. The dog attacked two voter registration workers.

In all, nine of the workers, including the top leaders, were arrested. Eight of them were later given the maximum penalty for disorderly conduct — four months in prison and a $200 fine.

Will Keep Up Campaign

Campaign leaders issued a statement yesterday pledging continued attempts by prospective voter applicants to walk in groups to the courthouse.

However, a temporary truce in the crisis was reached today between voter-campaign leaders and city officials. The latter agreed that while racial tensions made it necessary they would provide bus transportation between the drive's headquarters and the courthouse.

Orleans and other Southern cities in instituting token integration.

Many prominent members of the Birmingham Negro community are known to have opposed a direct-action campaign at this time. They believe that the new administration should be given an opportunity to disclose its intentions.

Some of them have met with the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., leader of the Southern Christian Leadership Council of Atlanta. Dr. King flew here Wednesday night at the invitation of campaign leaders but he has not participated in any of the sit-ins.

A spokesman for Dr. King discounted this afternoon the possibility of a truce until April 15, but it is known that course has been urged on him by some of those with whom he has met.

Mayor-elect Albert Boutwell, a former Alabama lieutenant governor, said at a luncheon of away Birmingham could work out its own problems.

'Outsiders' Are Blamed

"We citizens of Birmingham understand and respect each other," he said. "When these outsiders learn they are not going to get any more publicity out of this thing they will move on to more profitable fields."

His talk was applauded by the advertising men and their guests.

The sit-ins and arrests have attracted only curious attention and there have been no anti-Negro demonstrations. The lunch counters are closed when the Negroes arrive. They then are asked to leave. When they refuse they are arrested under a local ordinance popularly known as the "trespass after warning" law.

The two local daily newspapers have carried only brief stories about the arrests on inside pages. Their restraint and a bus strike this week that has sharply curtailed visits by local people to downtown probably have helped in the maintenance of a calm atmosphere.

Meredith Says Students Intercept Phone Calls

OXFORD, Miss., April 5 (AP) — James H. Meredith said today that white students at the University of Mississippi had intercepted his telephone calls and made speech commitments and engagements for him.

"It has happened many times," said Mr. Meredith, the first known Negro to attend the university. "I found out about it first when a person here in Oxford saw me and wanted to know why I didn't meet him as I had agreed to on the telephone. I never talked to him."

Mr. Meredith said he would not speak tonight at a rally in Baton Rouge, La.

"It's a misunderstanding and I thought it had been straightened out," he said.

2 Jailed in Mississippi Shooting

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 5 (UPI)—Sheriff John Ed Cothron announced today that two Greenwood white men had been charged with felonious assault in the shooting of a Negro voter registration worker.

Cothron identified the men as William H. Greenlee and Wesley Kersey. Greenlee is a local agent for an oil company, and Kersey is service manager for a tractor supply company. The two men were held in jail and the sheriff said his investigation was continuing.

The two men were charged in the wounding of Jimmy Travis, a Negro voter registration worker, last Thursday night. Travis and two Negro civil rights workers were traveling in a car near here when another car containing three white men pulled alongside and several shots were fired at them, they said.

Travis had been conducting a drive to register Negro voters in the Greenwood area.

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 7 (AP)—Gunshots tore through the windows of a car carrying four Negro voter registration workers at this Mississippi Delta town Wednesday night—the second such incident in a week.

The shots didn't hit any of the Negroes, but three of them were treated at a hospital for cuts inflicted by flying glass.

Police Chief Curtis Lary said witnesses told him the shots came from a station wagon that pulled alongside the Negroes' car at a curb near their voter registration headquarters. He issued an order for officers to check station wagons in the area.

The chief identified the Negroes as Samual Block, 23; Willie Peacock, 25; Miss Essie Broome, 24, and Mrs. Peggy G. Marye, 19, all of Greenwood. Miss Broome was the only one escaping injury.

JAMES FORMAN, executive secretary of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, with headquarters in Atlanta, said all four had been working in the organization's campaign for increased Negro voter registration.

Forman said he telegraphed President Kennedy asking that he send National Guard troops into Greenwood "to maintain order."

The chief said Miss Broome told him the gunshots came through the windows on the left-hand side of the car a few moments after it came to a stop in front of the SNCC headquarters.

Forman said Peacock told him the car apparently had been trailing them.

The shooting occurred shortly before midnight (CST).

JAMES TRAVIS, 20, of Jackson, another member of SNCC, was wounded in the neck and shoulder while riding in a car a few miles from here last Thursday night. Two other occupants of the car escaped injury.

Three white persons were arrested on charges of felonious assault in the Travis shooting. They posted $5,000 bonds and were released Wednesday.

They were William H. Greenlee and Wesley Kersey, both of Greenwood, and a 17-year-old youth who was not identified because of his age.

WHITES FIRE VOLLEY FROM AUTO, WOUND SNCC FIELD SECRETARY

Nat Guardian 3/7/63

Shot fells Negro vote campaigner in Mississippi

JAMES TRAVIS, a 20-year-old field secretary for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee working on voter registration in Mississippi, was shot Feb. 28 from a passing car. A .45 caliber bullet was removed from Travis's neck, and he is recovering at University Hospital, Jackson, Miss.

Travis was driving along U.S. 82 from Greenwood, Miss., to Itta Bena accompanied by Robert Moses, director of the coordinated Mississippi voter registration drive, and Randolph Blackwell, field director of the Voter Education Project which finances the vote drive. A car without license plates pulled up beside them, and three white men in it opened fire on the Travis auto. Seven bullets ripped into the car. The front seat on the driver's side was torn by the slugs, and front windows on each side were smashed.

The shooting followed a series of events linked to registration of Negroes. On Feb. 21 four buildings in the block where the SNCC office is located in Greenwood, Leflore County, were burned. A SNCC field secretary, Sam Block, who said that he thought the fires were an effort to destroy the SNCC office, was arrested the next day on a charge of "circulating breach of peace." He was held until Feb. 25, when he was found guilty, sentenced to six months in jail and a $500 fine. He was released on an appeal bond of $500. At his trial the courtroom was filled with Negro spectators and more than 200 waited outside.

A BREAKTHROUGH: The next day more than 150 persons lined up at the registrar's office to register. More than 100 completed applications. Moses called it "the first real breakthrough in Mississippi voter registration." On the two succeeding days dozens of people went to register.

Following the shooting SNCC chairman Charles McDew wired President Kennedy: "Based on your speech yesterday on voting rights for Negroes in the South, we urge you to protect our workers in Mississippi . . . James Travis, Robert Moses and Randolph Blackwell almost died last night. This incident is clearly connected with the fact that at least 150 Negroes have tried to register in Greenwood this week. We urge you to take executive action to prevent murder in Mississippi."

Wiley Branton, Voter Education Project director, announced that a concerted campaign to get every qualified Negro in Leflore county registered would begin immediately .He said each organization cooperating in the project—the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the NAACP, the Congress of Racial Equality and SNCC—would send additional people to the county. At least 30 or 40 SNCC workers from all over the state will concentrate in Leflore ounty.

SNCC is conducting a food and clothing drive for Negroes of the area who have been cut off federal surplus commodity rolls for attempting to register to vote.

ZELLNER CASE: In neighboring Alabama SNCC won a victory Feb 27 when a jury failed to convict field secretary Robert Zellner of a false pretenses charge. The all-white, all-male jury deliberated for more than four hours but could not agree to convict. Circuit Judge Eugene Carter declared a mistrial.

Zellner's attorney, Charles Morgan, Jr. of Birmingham, had applied to the Federal District Court and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals to enjoin the prosecution of the case. A complaint against Alabama officials to enjoin them from harassing Zellner is still pending before Federal Judge Frank M. Johnson.

Zellner had been arrested Jan. 8 on the campus of Huntingdon College, in Montgomery, and charged with conspiracy. Later the charge was changed to vagrancy. While he was in jail the additional "false pretenses" charge was brought. The state said Zellner had given a check for $85 to a pawnshop for a camera knowing that he did not have sufficient funds in the bank to cover. Funds were deposited the same day, but the check was never presented for payment. The vagrancy charge was dropped by the city of Montgomery Feb. 19.

Car Pulls Up-- Shots Fired At Negroes

Second Incident At Greenwood

By United Press International

GREENWOOD, Miss.—Four negro voter registration workers were fired upon by white men in the second such incident here in the past week.

None Was Injured

Negro leaders appealed to President Kennedy to "halt the reign of violence" here.

Sam Block, a field worker for the Student Non - Violent Co-ordinating Committee, said he and the others were fired on by men in a station wagon which pulled up beside their car last night. The windows on one side of the negroes' car were broken.

"I heard a big boom," said Block, who was with fellow civil rights worker Jimmy Travis Thursday night when Travis was wounded in a fusillade from a passing car.

Block said the car had no license plates.

More Violence In Greenwood, Miss.; Shots Miss Four

GREENWOOD, Mississippi — Workers for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and Greenwood citizens were shot at again here last week.

Samuel Block and Willie Peacock, two SNNCC field secretaries, and two young women from Greenwood, were leaving a church here when white men in a 1958 Dodge station wagon — with no license tags — shot at their car.

James Forman, SNCC executive secretary, reported from Greenwood that window glass had been shattered, but no one was injured.

Forman added that 28 Greenwood Negroes had gone to the county courthouse yesterday to register, and 22 had actually been registered.

The latest shooting followed almost exactly one week on the heels of the shooting of James Travis, a 20-year-old Negro SNCC field secretary, in Greenwood. Travis was shot in the shoulder, and another bullet was lodged behind his spine at the base of his skull. Doctors in University Hospital in Jackson removed the bullet in an operation March 1, and reported that had the bullet penetrated Travis' body with a little more force, he would have died instantly. Travis is recovering satisfactorily now at his parents' home in Jackson.

The Atlanta- based Voter Education Project announced a concentrated campaign in Leflore County, of which Greenwood is the county seat, the day after Travis' injury, and said that many civil rights organizations — primarily SNCC — would send workers in to the area to step up the voter-registration campaign. ELSEWHERE on the racial scene:

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals turned down a request that all tax-supported recreational facilities in Jackson, Miss., be opened to all Negroes in Mississippi.

The appeals court at New Orleans agreed with a lower court's refusal to grant an injunction and a declaratory judgment desegregating the facilities.

Attorneys for the City of Jackson contended the three Negores who filed the suit a year ago had never been arrested while using the public facilities.

U.S. District Judge Sidney Mize ruled last May that each of the three plaintiffs had the right to use the facilities. But he denied their request that the court order desegregaion in behalf of all Negroes in the state.

Gov. Ross Barnett told his news conference at Jackson, Miss., that he felt it was not in the best interests of the state "or either of the races" for the Mississippi State basketball team to take part in the NCAA playoffs.

SEGREGATION forces have opposed participation in the events because Mississippi State might meet a team with Negro players.

Mississippi State won or shared the Southeastern Conference title for the third year in a row and MSU President D. W. Colvard said he would permit the team to represent the conference unless stopped by a higher authority.

The State College Board has scheduled a meeting Saturday to discuss the matter.

At St. Louis, the information director of the Civil Rights Commission said many of the public schools have become what he called resegregated.

William Taylor said in an interview this situation developed because the school board failed to change district boundaries. There are some schools where more than 98 per cent of the pupils are Negroes because they are in neighborhoods almost totally populated by Negroes, he said.

No Laughing Matter

It would seem that Greenwood folks weren't the only ones who went unamused by comic Dick Gregory's show biz bomb here last week.

The National Observer, a weekly publication with a newspaper format published by the Wall Street Journal folks, had this to say:

"Dick Gregory, the Negro comedian, put on a show of sorts in Greenwood, Miss., last week which does this talented young man no credit.

"Flipping in from Chicago, he thrust himself into the midst of the Negro voter registration drive in Greenwood. He marched, he taunted, he got his arm twisted and his picture in the papers, and he said a lot of unfunny things. 'I don't know why you're afraid to die,' he scolded some hesitant Negro demonstratiors, 'beacuse you haven't a damn thing to live for.'

Such extravagant talk doesn't help, and Gregory's decision at the weekend to leave Greenwood was wise, for his actions there made a bad situation worse. While there has been remarkably little violence as desegregation has gone forward around the nation, the potential for explosion is always present. Having a comedian around is no laughing matter."

IN WELFARE INCIDENT

Investigation Asked Of Delta 'Corpsmen'

State Welfare Commissioner Fred A. Ross said today he had asked the FBI to check on claims of three Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee representatives that they also represent the "Domestic Peace Corps."

The Washington County welfare agent in Greenville, Ross said, reported Peace Corps membership was claimed by three Negroes who came to her office to make inquiries about the commodity distribution program.

The report said James Foreman of Atlanta, Charles Cobb of Springfield ,Mass., and Jesse Harris of Jackson told the welfare agent, Mrs. Lena Gail Wood, that they represented the Student Non Violent Coordinating Committee and that they also were "a part of the Domestic Peace Corps."

Ross said that so far as he knew and could learn, Congress had never authorized the establishment of a Domestic Peace Corps. For that reason, he said, he had sent a copy of Mrs. Wood's report to Federal Bureau of Investigation Director J. Edgar Hoover, with an inquiry as to whether or not these individuals can legally represent themselves as being a part of the U S. government's "Domestic Peace Corps," if no such agency exists.

Ross said he had also turned copies of the report over to Albert Jones, director of the State Sovereignty Commission, since the report indicated that "some of the recipients of commodities have been shipping the commodities to Detroit, Chicago and Memphis."

Ross added that "there would be action taken on these cases because the policy was that if a person: were not using the commodities themselves and did not need them, he was ineligible to receive the commodites."

Mrs. Wood reported to Ross that the three Negroes came to her office and asked what reasons she could give fr "Leflore County's situation." When she told them she could not speak for Leflore County they started asking questions about the Washington County commodity program, Mrs. Wood reported.

The trio told her, Mrs. Wood reported, that they had been giving foods to people to encourage registration for voting and they knew there were possibly people receiving food from them and also from the commodity program. Mrs. Wood said she agreed that this could be so.

When they told her they represented the Student Non Violent Coordinating Committee and then said they were a part of the Domestic Peace Corps, "this made me wonder," Mrs. Wood said.

Mississippi Is Hurt By Gunfire

Within space of only a week two incidents have occurred in which Negroes involved in voter registration efforts in the Leflore County area have been wounded slightly by gunfire. Apparently Negro voter crusaders are watched. Both shootings came when they were riding in automobiles.

Mississippi white citizens in some or even great number may resent such registration activity. But privilege of citizens to work without physical risk for registration to vote must not be denied. The incidents represent brutal, un-American effort to intimidate.

The tragedy is compounded in that, far from bringing easing of effort at which such gunfire is aimed, it is certain to intensify it. Shootings in Mississippi in connection with voter registration also are certain to produce added argument in Washington for federal legislation to bypass courts and given specially-appointed voter referees power to act in precisely such a situation.

Mississippi has many citizens of responsibility and integrity. They should make sure that the situation is controlled.

Government Should Act In Dixie Vote Violence

THURSDAY NIGHT a week past, James Travis, a young Negro registration worker who had been trying to register Negro voters in LeFlore County, Miss., was shot and seriously wounded from a moving car while driving along U. S. 82 outside Greenwood.

The assault was but one of a number of brutal assaults which have occurred in Mississippi, southwest Georgia and other Southern states against registration workers and Negroes who attempt to claim their right to the franchise.

According to officials of the Voter Education Project—a project, incidentally, bearing the endorsement of the chairman of both the Democratic and the Republican national committees — in most areas of the South voter registration is being carried out with little or no violence.

"But in certain outlaw communities," says VEP officials, "registration workers have been constantly harassed and put in danger of life . . . . Mississippi has repeatedly thrown down a gauntlet at the feet of would-be Negro voters, not only by the discriminatory practices of the registrars, but also by economic pressures, threats, coercion, physical violence, and death to Negroes seeking the right to vote."

In all the areas of unenlightened, obstinate prejudice it is in protecting the sanctity of the ballot that the federal government can most swiftly and most forcefully move without provoking criticism — except from the usual wool-hat sources which are despised for the most part even by those who are hostile to school integration and equal job opportunity for races.

And it is the right of the ballot which will eventually secure for the Negro those rights to which he is today denied. The Irish of Boston won their economic and social freedom after winning elections.

If the federal government can spend millions and use troops to enforce school integration, then surely it can undertake similar unfortunate, yet obviously necessary, steps, where needed, to give to the Southern Negro his right to vote.

Parents Ask For Injunction To Open Jackson's Schools

Six Jackson parents have asked a federal court to issue an injunction ending segregation in the city's public schools. The group Monday filed a suit against the Jackson Municipal Separate School District on behalf of their 10 children and "all other Negro children and their parents" in Jackson.

The group petitioned the school board last August 15 to take immediate steps to end school segregation; there was no answer to their request.

Students And Teachers

The suit, filed in U. S. District Court, asks that the school district, the superintendent and the board of trustees be stopped from assigning students and teachers on the basis of race.

The group also asked for an injunction preventing the defendants from approving budgets and employment and construction contracts which maintain segregated schools. They sought an end to the use of separate attendance zones based on race.

Seek School Plan

If these requests are not met, the parents ask that school officials submit a complete plan for desegregating the schools within a time limit set by the court.

The parents filing the suit are Medgar Evers, Samuel Bailey, Ame Logan, Edna Marie Singleton, Elizabeth White and Kathryn Thomas. Their attorneys are Jack Young of Jackson and Jack Greenberg, Constance Baker Motley and Derrick A. Bell of the NAACP legal staff.

Law Forbids Integration

Mississippi law forbids the attendance of whites with Negroes in any public elementary, junior or high schools on penalty of jail and fines. Jackson has 34 white schools and 16 Negro schools.

Mayor Allen Thompson met with officials of the city and of the school board Tuesday to discuss the suit.

The case will be heard by District Judge Harold Cox.

Co. Tries To Refute Claims Of ILGWU

The hearing in Hattiesburg involving the International Ladies Garment Workers Union and Movie Star, Inc., moved into its second week. Several of the company's witnesses tried to show that they had left the union "because of the confusion."

This countered the many employees who earlier testified that their jobs had been threatened if they did not withdraw from the union. The company is trying to avoid negotiations with the union by claiming that the union no longer represents a majority of the workers.

Bad Faith

A manager of the plant located in Poplarville testified that he was threatened by E. T. Kehrer, regional director of the union. The union has claimed that the company has refused to bargain in good faith ever since it opened negotiations last summer.

Movie Star, which manufactures ladies garments, has six plants in South Mississippi with a total of more than a thousand employees.

President Requests Federal Voting Referees For South

President Kennedy has asked Congress to protect the rights of Negro voters, to further school desegregation and to increase the powers of the U. S. Civil Rights Commission.

The NAACP and a group of House Republicans called the program inadequate. Civil rights supporters in the U. S. Senate said that the filibuster would probably defeat any rights measures this session.

Voting Referees

The President asked that federal referees be appointed to pass on the qualifications of voters whenever a voter suit was filed in a county with less than 15% of a minority group registered. This includes about 200 counties in Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina.

Negroes would thus be able to register and vote immediately instead of waiting several years for the outcome of the court case. Now federal referees cannot be appointed until a court declares that discrimination exists.

The referees would follow state voting laws and their decisions could be challenged in the courts.

Equal Tests

Kennedy asked that voting suits be given priority in the federal courts. He also requested a ban on the use of different application tests and standards

Supreme Court Overturns S. C. Students' Conviction

The U. S. Supreme Court has set aside the conviction of 187 Negro students arrested in March, 1962, when they marched on the State Capitol of South Carolina.

The youths had been arrested for breach of the peace when they demonstrated in Columbia to protest segregation. All South Carolina courts had upheld their convictions.

A columnist in one of the daily papers here often comes up with a tidbit that amuses me, but probably not in the way that he intended. Recently, he had the following to say:

It is hoped that Rubel Phillips and Wirt Yerger, both dashing and handsome young men, aren't trying to generate a fake issue by suggesting that the Mississippi State basketball team gander off and do a "little" integrating in that forthcoming Michigan tournament. That's the trouble with overnight conservatives. They integrate you and then blame it on the Liberals. That's been the Republican tactics for over 100 years. We can see those press photos pouring off the wires now. A big, lanky Chicago Negro hugging Red Stroud and the headline saying, "Brotherhoodin' Lesson for "Mississippi State." Wirt and Rubel ought to leave well enough alone and dig up a more worthy issue upon which to seek votes among rabid basketball fans who can't see farther than the scoreboard. Besides, spring examinations are just around the corner and a week of education is more important than any one ball game.

Like I say, he is amusing—or perhaps, disgusting.

Manpower Act

Teacher's Skills That Lead To Better Jobs

The Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962, signed into law by President Kennedy on March 15, 1962, sets up a nationwide Federal program to provide vocational and on-the-job training for unemployed and underemployed persons.

Although there is a terrific need for the labor force of Mississippi to get more training, the provisions for this bill are such that it is not able to be very effective here.

Approval for the training cannot be granted until there is a reasonable expectation that those being trained can be placed into jobs upon completion of the training.

Mississippi does not have industry partly because it does not have a trained labor force. Without the industry to provide jobs, it is difficult to get approval for the training. It is something of a vicious circle.

In the cases where there is a need for more skilled people, and there definitely are some in Mississippi, the Act operates in the following way:

There exists a demand in Jackson for skilled business machine repairmen. A training center is found where the proper training can be given. In this case, the center located at Hinds Junior College where there are facilities to train people to be repairmen.

All men who are presently unemployed or underemployed (receiving too low a salary to maintain his family) are eligible for the training.

In addition, the men must be married. They are given a series of tests to determine if they are capable of learning the material.

When the program begins, the trainee will receive government money to cover expenses. Although this payment is small, it permits subsistence until the training is received.

The trainee attends the classes which meet for varying lengths of time, from a minimum of five weeks to a maximum of fifty-two weeks, depending upon the skill which must be learned.

Although the program is financed by Federal funds, the program is administered by the state. The selecting is done by the State Employment Security Commission. The decision to establish a training center and where it will be located is the job of the State Department of Education.

Open To All

Although the training centers are being held at institutions within the state that maintain segregation, an official at the Jackson Employment Service said that the training would be available to anyone who applies.

There are two centers in operation in the Jackson area, and several more around the state. There are funds and possibilities for several more.

A person interested in receiving training under the Manpower Development Training Act should register at his local office of the State Employment Service.

People all over the state have been pushing for the team to go if it won the SEC title, which it did. The reflection of the attitude of many could be seen in one Jackson sports writer's comment, "If those officials (MSU officials) show the guts and courage displayed by the Bulldogs, their chances of going will be greatly improved."

Last Saturday, following the 75-72 defeat of Ole Miss, MSU President, D. W. Colvard announced that the team would enter the NCAA tourney at East Lansing. Although little reaction against the decision was reported, there were these.

For instance, a state representative felt "the decision will be misinterpreted as a sign of weakness in our stand for segregation."

Another, a state Senator, who was undoubtably thinking back to the good ole days when he was a cheerleader for MSU, called the decision, "a low blow to the people of Mississippi." Apparently to insure future generations of getting a proper education about the thing, he advocated, "a substantial decrease in the financial appropriations," to any Mississippi institution that would engage in integrated activities.

At the university, President Colvard said that the school student senate had unanimously passed a resolution in favor of playing. He also noted that a petition bearing the names of 3,000 students had been added to the many communications from interested alumni and friends of the institution in support of the team entering the tournament.

The president said, "My feelings and my faith are that the reception of our team, in recognition of their conduct and spirit will serve to allay the concern of those who question the wisdom of these participations.

President of the State Board of Trustees, Thomas Tubb called a special meeting of the Board at the request of five of the 13 members. Obviously the meeting is to discuss the MSU decision.

What will the reaction be when all these people who are so jubilant about going, are told; 'tut tut, better not go—some of them are dark.' Some people are going to be mighty mad.

Throughout the nation, many people have taken a turn at moralizing upon the ugly episode that took place on the Oxford campus last fall.

But no words that we have seen have shone forth as brilliantly as these of Karl Wiesenburg, representative to the Mississippi state legislature from Jackson County.

This week, thhe FREE PRESS prints the last of the five articles written by Rep. Wiesenburg which originally appeared in the Pascagoula-Moss Point Chronicle.

His articles are brilliant, not only from the standpoint that they are accurate and well written, but that they are the true response of a Mississippian—A response that reflects the rising tide of feeling among responsible people of both races in the state that we must speak out against these state powers that have for so long held Mississippi on the bottom of the nation.

We cannot afford to repeat the errors that led to the riots at Oxford. We cannot continue to elect office politicians who think they can curry public favor by advocating defiance of constituted authority, disrespect for government and open defiance of the law.

Out of the teargas murky darkness of September 30th has come a clear voice for change, for clean-up, for progress.

The essence of government is leadership. The essence of a good democratic government is good leadership that responds to a responsible electorate.

Karl Wiesenburg is an elected official of the state. And we expect that he shall be reelected. He stands forth as a clear voice expressing the feelings of responsible Mississippians.

The narrow minded press has not recognized those elements here that desire a change. It has not let their voice be heard.

But Mr. Wiesenburg knows about the people who want a better Mississippi. He is a leader willing to speak out to say what these people are thinking and saying. And the Chronicle is willing to print it.

We are proud to see a leader and voice for responsibility. We hope that there will be more in the halls of our legislature when it next convenes.

(Wiesenburg and Joe Wroten of Washington County were the only voices that consistently contested the measures passed at the height of the Ole Miss crisis).

We have been honored to reprint the articles. Copies of the complete set of five articles will be sent, upon request, by the FREE PRESS.

From North Carolina

Governor Speaks Out Good Sense

From an address by the Honorable Terry Sanford, Governor of North Carolina; Governor Sanford was speaking before the North Carolina Press Association at the Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill last month. His address was entitled:

"The American Negro was freed from slavery one hundred years ago. In this century he has made much progress, educating his children, building churches, entering into the community and civic life of the Nation.

Toward Fulfillment

"Now is a time not merely to look back to freedom, but forward to the fulfillment of its meaning. Despite great progress, the Negro's opportunity to obtain a good job has not been achieved in most places across the country. Reluctance to accept the Negro in employment is the greatest single block to his continued progress and to the full use of the human potential of the Nation and its States.

Time Has Come

"The time has come for American citizens to give up this reluctance, to quit unfair discriminations, and to give the Negro a full chance to earn a decent living for his family and to contribute to higher standards for himself and all men.

Cannot Rely On Law Alone

"We cannot rely on law alone in this matter because much depends upon its administration and upon each individual's sense of fair play. North Carolina and its people have come to the point of recognizing the urgent need for opening new economic communities for Negro citizens. We also recognize that in doing so we shall be adding new economic growth for everybody.

Will Do It

"We can do this. We should do this. We will do it because we are concerned with the problems and the welfare of our neighbors. We will do it because our economy cannot afford to have so many people fully or partially unproductive. We will do it because it is honest and fair for us to give all men and women their best chance in life."

The Good Neighbor Program

"In North Carolina we will attempt to provide leadership for the kind of understanding America needs today.

"To carry out these hopes we will do five things right now:

"1. We have established the North Carolina Good Neighbor Council.

24 Outstanding Citizens

"We will also name an additional advisory committee to reach more sections of the economy and the State.

"The Council will have a two-fold mission (1) to encourage employment of qualified people without regard to race, and (2) to urge youth to become better trained and qualified for employment.

All Mayors Participate

"2. We are asking all Mayors and Chairmen of County Commissioners to establish local Good Neighbor Councils.

"3. We have issued a memorandum to heads of State agencies, and institutions, asking them, if they have not already done so, to examine and formulate policies which do not exclude from employment qualified people because of race.

Wise Leadership

"4. Being aware that complete success cannot be achieved without wise and vigorous leadership from private business and industry, we will conduct a conference this spring, inviting leading industrialists and businessmen to participate.

"5. We call on church leaders, pastors, civic organizations, to support the objectives of the Good Neighbor Councils in their own effective ways.

Gregory Will Help Mississippi Provide Federal Surplus Food To Needy Negroes

Dick Gregory is seeking to raise $37,000 to pay the cost of distributing federal surplus foods to Negroes and whites in Leflore County. The money will come from the sale of Gregory's LP record, "My Brother's Keeper," which was made from an interview at San Diego State College, Calif. It will sell for $1.60.

The Leflore County Board of Supervisors has claimed that it withdrew from the food program—which provides butter, milk, cheese, flour, potatoes and other staples—because they could not afford the storage and distribution costs of $37,000 a year.

Gregory has charged that "voter registration attempts touched off enough anti-Negro sentiment to give the white groups which have always been opposed to the program enough power to force the county board of supervisors to discontinue it."

Leflore County has 31,000 Negroes out of a total population of 47,000. There are 312 Negro registered voters.

Yearly Earnings $300

Most Negroes in Leflore County pick cotton—and get paid between $3 and $4 per 100 pounds. A top picker can average about 125 pounds a day working 12 to 14 hours. The average yearly earning for Negroes is $300.

About 26,000 people received food last year; more than 90% were Negroes.

Gregory said, "From all that I can determine, the Mississippi officials acted in reprisal simply because Negroes attempted to exercise their rights as citizens."

and civil rights groups continue to collect food and clothing for needy Mississippians.

Appeals Court Rejects Recreation Request

The U. S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals has rejected a bid to open all public recreation facilities to Negroes. The federal court turned down a request by three Jackson citizens who asked for an injunction desegregating the zoos, parks, playgrounds, libraries, swimming pools and golf courses.

The suit was a class action filed on behalf of the "thousands of Negroes in Jackson and all parts of Mississippi who are similiarly situated because of race and color."

Says Segregation Voluntary

The court upheld the ruling of District Judge Sidney Mize who said last May that there was nothing to disprove the city's statement that the segregation was voluntary.

Mize also said that the three were not authorized to represent anyone but themselves. He said that they could use Jackson facilities on an unsegregated basis, but didn't say that all Negroes were entitled to do so.

States' Rights, Responsibilities

This is the last article (slightly condensed) of a five part series, "The Oxford Disaster—Price of Defiance," by Karl Wiesenburg, Jackson County representative to Mississippi's lower house.

In his introduction of the series, Pascagoula Chronicle Editor Ira Harkey declared that the articles are "a major contribution to the welfare of Mississippi and form a reasoned viewpoint around which may rally all Mississippians who are appalled at what is happening in their state."

The first responsibility of a state is to preserve law and order within the state by the exercise of its police powers...

If citizens of this state can be permitted to defy laws they do not like and obey only such court orders as they may agree with, then we will have no government at all. Anarchy and confusion will prevail.

Maintenance of law and order at the University of Mississippi, or at any public school in the state, is the primary responsibility of the state.

State's Responsibilities

If we want to maintain our state's rights, we must accept our state's responsibilities.

The people of Mississippi were deluded into believing that Gov. Barnett had some well conceived plan that would insure him the final victory in the Oxford crisis.

The truth is he had no such plan. So long as he had only to contend with a few unarmed federal marshals, he was a lion in his defiance.

Faced with the full power of the federal government, he unconditionally surrendered.

He made a serious mistake in believing that he could bluff the President of the United States. . . .

Still Defiance

But many political "leaders" still maintain their attitude of defiance, and still urge the people" change their attitude further bloodshed is inevitable . . . .

Politicians Cause Bloodshed

Shall every school become a battleground? Shall innocent blood again be shed for political advantage. . . .

We must have leaders who will maintain law and order within the state with the police powers of the state, even if they disagree with such court orders.

We cannot afford to repeat the errors that led to the riots at Oxford.

We cannot continue to elect to office politicians who think they can carry public favor by advocating defiance of constituted authority, disrespect for their government and open defiance of the law.

A public officer of this state who invites imprisonment by defying court orders violates both his oath of office and his public trust.

'Some Newspapers'

"Law and Order" seems to be controversial in Mississippi. Pastors, businessmen and other citizens of this state who have spoken out in favor of a return to law and order have been castigated by some newspapers whose columns are filled with vitriolic denunciation of the federal government. . . .

Must Speak Out

have law and order, that we cannot continue to condone open defiance of our courts, and who now remains silent must accept full responsibility for other tragic events that inevitably will take place.

Let us join together in a common resolve that the Oxford tragedy shall not be repeated, that the public schools of Jackson, Greenville, Pascagoula and elsewhere in our state shall not be invaded by mobs.

This will take courage. Men will have to take a stand, to speak out and make themselves heard. . .

Must Influence Politicians

When you speak out for law and order, the politicians will speak out for law and order.

The lunatic fringe that would destroy our schools, our state and our nation must be exterminated from political life as ruthlessly as vermin from the kitchen.

Our school boards, both on the state and local levels, must receive our full support in their efforts to meet the problems of today and tomorrow.

Our schools must remain free, public and open.

Our administrators and faculty must be allowed full academic freedom. . . .

We need to let our public officials know, the nation know, and the world know that we insist on the maintenance of law and order. We can do this with dignity, honor and pride. The price of defiance is destruction, disgrace, disaster and death.

Meanwhile, labor, student and civil rights groups continue to collect food and clothing for needy Mississippians.

Two tons of supplies were sent to Greenwood this week after a month-long drive by the Louisville Defender (a newspaper) and the Louisville, Kentucky, chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality.

Union Men Helped

Local 89 of the Teamsters Union donated a truck to transport the food and clothing and two union members, one Negro and one white, volunteered to drive the supplies to Mississippi.

At Howard University, members of the Nonviolent Action Group (NAG), have begun a drive for food and clothing to aid Negroes in Mississippi.

grammed Atty. Gen. Kennedy that a "concentrated, saturation campaign to register every qualified Negro of Leflore County" would begin at once. Branton asked for immediate "federal protection to prevent violence and other forms of intimidation against registration workers and applicants."

Justice Dept. Asked

The Justice Department has also been asked to take legal action to end discriminatory actions by registrars. "Voting is a federally guaranteed right, and when its exercise is prevented by community lawlessness, the United States government has an obligation not only to punish that lawlessness, but to put it down," said Branton.

"The compaign will be conducted openly," Branton declared. "Voter registration is a civic duty, and registration workers will dignifiedly and publicly carry on their activities, which will include literacy schools, meetings, and individual contacts." He predicted continued harassment and violence against registration workers.

Branton charged that Mississippi has not only failed to protect workers, but has actively denied their rights. Nevertheless, Branton has informed Gov. Barnett of the new effort and has asked the state for protection.

Called On J.F.K.

Branton called "upon the President of the United States to use his executive powers to help make meaningful the provisions of the Fifteenth Amendment—100 years late."

He asserted, "there is a need to establish once and for all that in this land people do not have to be afraid to be free."

wood, the trio were tailed by a 1962 white Buick, which was occupied by three men wearing sunglasses. Travis reported that the Buick pulled abreast of their car and began firing. He said that he felt a sting at the base of his neck and fell into the lap of Moses who was seated next to him. Moses grabbed the wheel and applied the brake to prevent the car from crashing. Neither Moses nor Blackwell was injured.

Rushed To Hospital

Travis was first driven to the infirmary of the nearby Mississippi Vocation College. A doctor was not on duty and a physician from Greenwood was summoned. The doctor advised that he be rushed to Greenwood hospital.

In Greenwood, he was treated for his shoulder wound, but the bullet which had lodged next to his spine was not removed until the following day after he had been taken to University Hospital in Jackson.

Will Be Back

Travis told the FREE PRESS that he was not able to have an anesthetic because of nearness to the spine. He reported that the operation to remove the bullet was extremely painful. He is recovering well, however, and hopes to be back on the job by the middle of April.

for different people.

The President asked Congress to declare that anyone who has completed the sixth grade is presumed to be literate. This proposal is weaker than the one made in the literacy test bill which was killed last year by a Southern fillibuster. That would have made sixth grade graduates literate for voting purposes. A presumption of literacy can be challenged by local officials in specific cases.

In other proposals, Kennedy asked that federal money and knowledge be made available to communities which request help in desegregating their schools.

Wants Expanded C.R.C.

He asked Congress to extend the life of the U. S. Civil Rights Commission for four years. The President also suggested that the Commission expand into a national clearing house to provide information, advice and technical help to public or private groups.

New York's Republican Governor Nelson Rockefeller criticized the program as too little and too late. He said that it covered only five of the 28 recommendations of the U. S. Civil Rights Commission.

No F.E.P.C.

Rockefeller said that the program did not meet Democratic promises to set up a fair employment practices commission, to let the attorney general seek injunctions to prevent discrimination and to make the Civil Rights Commission a permanent agency.

NAACP Executive Secretary Roy Wilkins charged that the President failed to call for laws banning discrimination in all federally-aided housing, setting a deadline for school desegregation or establishing a fair employment practices commission with strong enforcement powers.

Miss. Attacks

Mississippi Senator John Stennis said that the proposals were extreme and unconstitutional" and State Representative John Bell Williams said it was "an attempt to turn the government over to the NAACP."

Kennedy also said that he has told the Department of Justice to join in cases of union discrimination filed with the National Labor Relations Board and "to urge the NLRB to take appropriate action against racial discrimination in unions."

that a "concentrated, saturation campaign to register every qualified Negro of Leflore County" would begin at once. Branton asked for immediate "federal protection to prevent violence and other forms of intimidation against registration workers and applicants."

Justice Dept. Asked

The Justice Department has also been asked to take legal action to end discriminatory actions by registrars. "Voting is a federally guaranteed right, and when its exercise is prevented by community lawlessness, the United States government has an obligation not only to punish that lawlessness, but to put it down," said Branton.

"The compaign will be conducted openly," Branton declared. "Voter registration is a civic duty, and registration workers will dignifiedly and publicly carry on their activities, which will include literacy schools, meetings, and individual contacts." He predicted continued harassment and violence against registration workers.

Branton charged that Mississippi has not only failed to protect Negroes but has asked the state for protection.

Called On J.F.K.

Branton called "upon the President of the United States to use his executive powers to help make meaningful the provisions of the Fifteenth Amendment—100 years late."

He asserted, "there is a need to establish once and for all that in this land people do not have to be afraid to be free."

wood, the trio were tailed by a 1962 white Buick, which was occupied by three men wearing sunglasses. Travis reported that the Buick pulled abreast of their car and began firing. He said that he felt a sting at the base of his neck and fell into the lap of Moses who was seated next to him. Moses grabbed the wheel and applied the brake to prevent the car from crashing. Neither Moses nor Blackwell was injured.

Rushed To Hospital

Travis was first driven to the infirmary of the nearby Mississippi Vocation College. A doctor was not on duty and a physician from Greenwood was summoned. The doctor advised that he be rushed to Greenwood hospital.

In Greenwood, he was treated for his shoulder wound, but the bullet which had lodged next to his spine was not removed until the following day after he had been taken to University Hospital in Jackson.

4 More Shot At In Miss. Attack On Vote Workers

GREENWOOD, Miss. — (UPI) Four Negro voter registration workers were fired upon by white men in the second such incident in this racially-troubled delta town in the past week.

Immediately after the shooting Negro leaders appealed to President Kennedy to "halt the reign of violence" here.

Police said none of the four Negroes who were fired upon from a moving station wagon was injured.

Officers said they took Sam Block, a field worker for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating committee, to a hospital here but an examination showed he was not injured.

Block said he and the others were fired on by men in a station wagon which pulled up beside their car. The windows on one side of the Negroes' car were broken.

'BIG BOOM'

"I heard a big boom," said Block, who was with fellow civil rights worker Jimmy Travis when Travis was wounded in a fusillade from a passing car.

Police said they had questioned two Negroes who witnessed the shooting and both said last night's bullets were fired by a white man. Police said they did not know how many men were in the station wagon.

The shooting occurred in front of the Negro voter registration headquarters in this central Mississippi town.

In the car with Block, 23, were Willie Peacock, 25, Essie Broome, 24, and Peggy Marye, 19.

NO LICENSE PLATES

Block, who was driving, said he did not notice the station wagon until it was directly behind him. He said the car had no license plates.

He said he and the other Negroes were returning to the voter registration office to sort out food and clothing which was to be distributed to underprivileged Negroes in the area. He said he and the others would return to the office for work today.

The car used in the Travis shooting also had no license plates and later found abandoned in the next county. Two men and a 17-year-old youth were arrested on assault charges in that case. They were released on $5,000 bonds pending grand jury action on the charges against the men and a juvenile court hearing for the youth.

Civil rights activity had picked up considerably here since the Travis shooting. Various Negro groups vowed to work together to make LeFlore county "a testing ground for democracy."

Gray Evans Announces For Office Of County Prosecutor

Gray Evans, Greenwood attorney, made his formal announcement for the office of County Prsecuting Attorney today.

Evans has been in the active practice of Law in Greenwood since 1958 in the partnership of Deaton and Evans, with the exception of two years, 1960 and 1961, when he was an attorney on the staff of the Public Works Committee of the United States House of Representatives.

Evans moved here in 1958 from Quitman, Mississippi, where he had made his home for several years. He was reared and finished school in Choctaw County, Alabama.

After graduating from high school, he attended the University of Texas and graduated from that institution with a B. A. degree in political science in 1953. Evans returned to the University of Texas for graduate work and completed all course work toward a masters degree in political science in 1955.

He then came to Mississip for his law degree and graduated from the University of Mississippi School of Law in June 1958. While in Law School at Ole Miss he was elected to membership in ODK, honorary organization, and was appointed chairman of the Moot Court Board for the Law School by the law faculty.

Evans is presently prosecuting attorney for the city of Greenwood. He is a member of the Leflore County and Mississippi Bar Associations. He is married to the former Patricia Evans Ellington, is a member of the Pesbyterian Church and has been teaching in the Sunday School of the First Presbyterian Church of Greenwood for the past two years. He is member of Greenwood Elks Lodge and a veteran of the U. S. Navy.

Evans said, in making his announcement:

"I feel that I am qualified to serve the people of Leflore County as their prosecuting attorney because of my training and experience. It is my sincere desire to serve you in a courteous and efficient manner.

"I promise the people of Leflore County that I will devote all of my time that may be necessary to efficiently fulfill the duties of this office.

"If the people of Leflore County honor me by electing me to this office, which has traditionally been held by the younger members of the Bar who have time to devote to the duties of the office, I publicly pledge that after two terms, if I should be elected to a second term, I will voluntarily step aside in favor of the young members of the Bar.

"I plan to make an attempt to personally see every voter in Leflore County I had planned to start an active campaign earlier, but due to the unusually heavy demand on my time because of the recent difficiulties in Greenwood, I have been delayed.

"I will certainly look forward to seeing each of you and talking to you, personally, about my candidacy at the earliest possible time."

4 Groups Join Forces In Big Test

Youth Gunned In Car By Whites After Voter Meeting

Special Correspondence

JACKSON, Miss. — "LeFlore County, Miss., has elected itself as the testing ground for democracy" because of the Thursday night shooting of James Travis, 20, of Jackson, and intimidation of other Negroes working in vote drives, Wiley Branton of Atlanta director of the Voter Education project, said on Saturday.

Mr. Branton advised Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi and Robert F. Kennedy, U.S. attorney general that "the NAACP Southern Christian Leadership Conference Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee and Congress of Racial Equality have been pledged for a massive registration and vote drive in LeFlore.

HE ASKED both for protection of campaign workers and others.

"The campaign will begin immediately. You must anticipate that this campaign will be met by violence and other harassment," Mr. Branton told Mr. Kennedy.

"We are notifying you in advance so that you can provide at once the necessary federal protection" of registration workers and applicants.

MR. BRANTON said the shooting of Travis, a voter registration worker near Greenwood Thursday night was not the first harassment of such workers.

Travis was struck twice by a fusilade fired at a car in which he and two other civil rights workers were riding. Bob Moses, Greenville, Miss. field worker for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), who was with Travis, said the shots cam efrom a car containing three white men. Neither Moses nor Randolph Blackwell, a companion, was hit by the bullets.

A 45-CALIBER bullet lodged near Travis' spine was removed Friday and turned over to the FBI. Travis, who also suffered a shoulder wound, was reported in satisfactory condition in Jackson's University hospital.

Mr. Branton said "the time has come for us to pick up the gauntlet.

"WE ARE accordingly...announcing a concentrated, saturation campaign to register every qualified Negro of LeFlore County" who desires to do so, he said.

Mr. Branton said that the Vote rEducation Projec thas the NAACP , the Rev. Dr. pledges from Roy Wilkins for Martin Luther King Jr. of SCLC, James Forman of SNCC and James Farmer of CORE.

"Our methods will, at all times be peacebly and lawful and will be conducted in the best traditions of American democracy," he said.

"THE CAMPAIGN will be conducted openly....and will include literacy schools, meetings, and individual contacts.

Mr. Branton said that the attack on Travis was made by men observed watching a building in Greenwood where registration workers were meeting."

SEVEN BULLET holes were found in the car later. The right and left front windows were smashed.

In Greenwood, which is in Leflore county, 150 Negroes turned up at vote registration offices early last week. The county has 19,806 Negroes and 6,881 whites.

THREE NEGRO businesses were burned 10 days ago. SNCC field secretary Sam Block said the fir ewas an arsonist's attempt to destroy his office. Mr. Block was convicted on Feb. 25 of "issuing statements calculating to breach the peace" and was fined $500 and sentenced to six months in jail.

He said the judge offered to cut the penalty to a $250 fine if he promised to leave the state.

SNCC contends that three of its field secretaries escaped lynching last summer by fleein gfrom a smob of white men carrying chainsl ropse and pipes.

Greenwood Rotarians yesterday heard a rousing talk on citizenship with a Mississippi Angle from a coon-hunting Amite Countain.

The speaker, Jerry Clower, described himself as a registered, pedigree, deepwater Mississippian.

This, said Cloer, made him eligible to speak up on the following four points that a good community citien zshoud emphasiez size.

Register and vote.

Serve on juries; "it's your duty.'

Clower, who was introduced by program chairman Pe[illegible] DeLoach Jr., is a field representative for Mississippi Chemical and Coastal Chemical Corporation and lives in Yazoo City.

He did his coon-hunting in County as a boy and longs to get back, Clower told the regular noon Rotary meeting at the Greenwood Leflore Hotel.'

'TRUCE' CALLED IN GREENWOOD

South Rocking From Anti-Jim Crow Drive

MANHANDLED — A Negro youth is shown being hustled off to jail by a Greenwood, Miss., policeman as he, along with other Negroes again tried to march from the Negro registration headquarters to the Leflore County Court House. He also was one of 19 marchers arrested eight blocks from the court house for trying to register to vote.

Justice Dept. Sends Agents To Eye Scene

By JAMES RUNDLES

GREENWOOD, Miss. (Special)—An uneasy calm settled over this Delta city of 30,000 whites and Negroes as a temporary "truce" was called by both sides following a series of voter-registration marches through downtown Greenwood which led to tensions, mass arrests of Negroes and finally the appearance of agents from the United States Department of Justice.

Greenwood Negroes, led by Rev. D. L. Tucker, 31-year-old AME minister; James Foreman, Director of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, and famed comedian Dick Gregory, staged mass marches for five days into the downtown area toward the storied old Courthouse building located at Market and Howard Sts., in the heart of the city's business district.

The marchers, sometimes totalling 100 to 150 persons, were intercepted by police at temporary roadblocks set up several hundred yards from the courthouse and ordered to disperse into smaller groups of four and five or turn back. More than 20 Negroes were arrested during the demonstrations. Twelve still remained in jail late Friday evening as efforts were made by Negro leaders to raise $6,000 to be posted as bonds for the marchers who were convicted in city court.

To the casual observer entering Greenwood, it appears to be a typical easy-going little city in the Deep South.

NEGROES WHO WORK for white firms still report for work . . . this is especially true of the downtown section.

Negro shoppers are seen in downtown stores making their purchases unmolested, and the flow of traffic seems normal and unhurried.

At night, however, you begin to feel the tensions. Few people, black or white are on Greenwood Streets after dark. In the Negro section, those who go to church meetings and club meetings usually go in groups . . . telephone lines are jammed at night . . . everyone wants to talk but very few venture out.

NEGRO LEADERS of the registration drive have not sought a boycott against white merchants in the city, but merchants are complaining about business falloffs because whites and Negroes who live in the rural areas ten . . . twenty . . . and thirty miles outside the city, and usually come into town to shop each week, have stopped coming for fear of being "caught up" in the controversy.

A series of moves by Greenwood city officials, coupled with court actions by the Justice Department brought on the temporary "agreement" between the two groups.

First, the U.S. Justice Department withdrew a petition for a preliminary injunction halting police dispersal of organized Negro marchers.

The petition was withdrawn on the grounds that eight Negroes jailed for "disorderly conduct" would be released . . . this was done.

Secondly, Police Commissioner A. B. Hammond agreed to furnish bus transportation to the Registrar's Office for Negroes if the parade type marches were called off.

Negro leaders agreed to this. Third, Police and auxiliary police dotted the line of march and photographed the participants . . . many turned away apparently fearing intimidation.

BOTH SIDES claim a victory. Robert Moses, youthful leader in the SNCC movement, told The Courier "We are trying to get people registered, and when the city agreed to furnish transportation on a day-to-day basis to the courthouse we agreed to stop walking.

"We want to get a thousand people registered. I believe that if our people walk to the courthouse in small groups they'll be intimidated.

Right now we're trying to get the police department to stop using civil defense workers from riding through the Negro neighborhoods . . . they're constantly patrollong and this is enough to upset you."

Moses added that during the last voter march cars and trucks and a fire engine suddenly appeared on the street ahead of the group. "This was a rigged attempt to prove that the walkers were blocking traffic . . . and the fire engine was thrown in to prove that we were blocking an emergency vehicle."

In continuing Moses stated that "one of our men, Landy McNair (19-year-old Jackson, Miss. youth) was arrested, and they wouldn't even let us bail him out at first, but we've been negotiating with them and now I'm pretty sure he's going to be freed."

Investigation proved that McNair had been charged with disorderly conduct. Police claim he first obeyed one order to leave the courthouse then returned and attempted to reorganize the group as they left the scene."

AN ANCHORING influence in the Greenwood Voter Drive is dynamic, young (31) Rev. D. L. Tucker.

An AME minister of ability, Rev. Tucker has exerted wide influence over Negroes throughout the Delta.

His church, Wesley Chapel, has been the scene of several mass meetings designed to inform and arouse the potential

His parsonage, along with SNCC headquarters, is the hub of activity. On Friday morning John Doar of the U.S. Justice Department, visited him for a conference. Dick Gregory, the Reverend's houseguest, was present.

Rev. Walker walks with a slight limp . . . he was bitten by a police dog during one of the marches . . . little people "drop in" for advice on what to do.

FOLLOWING A MASS meeting at the Gennis Church Friday night Dick Gregory and James Foreman announced they would soon leave the area. "We've got all we can get now" said Gregory, who had cancelled several club engagements to stay in the Delta tinder box.

"We haven't given up our rights to march or walk" Foreman said to the Courier, "We'll go down there anyway we have to go. The main thing we're going to keep on going down there until we get enough people registered then you'll see a change."

Greenwood has quieted down, but several isolated incidents denote high feelings on both sides.

Bob Moses told us of one Negro with an account in a downtown store where the owner looked up as he entered tongue lashed him for being one of the "marchers" and pointed a pistol at him demanding payment in full on the spot of his account.

ON THE WHOLE however it appears that Negroes and whites want the situation resolved peacefully, but from a visitor's objective glance at the Delta town . . . it's going to take a lot of effort to keep Greenwood green.

Racists in Mississippi shoot up second auto

Pittsburgh Courier

THREE STUDENT Nonviolent Coordinating Committee voter registration workers were injured slightly by flying glass when their parked car was shot up in front of the Greenwood, Miss., SNCC office March 6. The shooting occurred six days after James Travis, 20-year-old SNCC field secretary, was struck in the neck when bullets riddled the car he was driving near Greenwood.

The shots in both instances came from untagged cars. Three persons have been arrested and charged with felonious assault in the Travis shooting. They have been released under $5,000 bonds.

The three injured March 6 are: Samuel Block, 23; Willie Peacock, 25, and Peggy Marye, 19. Another person in the car, Essie Broome, 24, was not hurt. James Forman, SNCC executive secretary, wired President Kennedy requesting protection. Block, who has been arrested five times in Mississippi, was arrested earlier March 6 on a reckless driving charge when he was taking Negro voter registration applicants to the registration office.

Travis is convalescing at his home in Jackson after an operation at University Hospital there. SNCC doctors reported that had the bullet penetrated a little deeper, he would have died instantly.

C-R Prober Arrested At Bus Station

A white civil rights investigator from Washington said today he was arrested here last night for refusing to leave the Negro waiting room at the bus station.

Chester F. Relyea claimed he was arrested, then released without charge by Deputy Sheriff W. W. Smith.

Smith routinely checks incoming and outgoing buses each day at the station.

The deputy was unavailable for comment this morning.

Relyea was in Greenwood several weeks ago investigating charges by Negro Sam Block that Negroes were excluded from commodity rolls in reprisal for voter registration efforts. After his investigation, Relyea told the Mississippi Advisory Commission on Civil Rights in Jackson that he and another investigator could find no proof of the charges.

Relyea, a lawyer, was in the county this time looking into shooting indicents involving the vote workers.

The investigator told Associated Press today that he arrived at the station aboard a bus and that Deputy Smith was directing whites to one door and Negroes to another.

He said he went into the Negro side and was followed by the deputy. When he refused to leave, he said, the officer told him: "you are under arrest.

Relyea told Associated Press Smith released him after making several phone calls. He added that the deputy drove him back to his hotel.

The Civil Rights investigator had checked out of his hotel this morning and couldn't be found.

He is scheduled to confer with members of the rights advisory group in Jackson next week.

Mississippi Told to Open Vote Records

Suff. Miss.

JACKSON, Miss., March 15 (UPI)—Voter registration records in four Mississippi counties have been ordered opened for federal inspection in a lawsuit which seeks to overturn two state voting requirements.

U.S. District Judge Harold Cox signed an order directing circuit clerks in Amite, Claiborne, Lowndes and Leflore Counties to turn over to federal investigators all records pertaining to voter registration.

Specifically mentioned in the order were "all books, documents and papers used in administering the state's constitutional interpretation test, or if the test was administered orally, all books, documents and papers used in administering the duties and obligations of citenship requirements and in testing the good moral character of the applicants . . ."

A FEDERAL suit has charged that the voter requirements asking applicants to read and interpret any section of the state constitution and to have a "good moral character" were set into the law to discriminate against Negroes.

The order also directs Gov. Ross Barnett, Atty. Gen. Joe Patterson, Secretary of State Heber Lander and the State Board of Election commissioners to open state voter records to federal investigation.

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—The Civil Rights Commission said Friday one of its staff members was arrested in Greenwood, Miss., Thursday night for refusing to use segregated facilities at a bus station.

The commission said the staff member, Chester F. Relyea, its assistant general counsel, was released after being held for about an hour.

Relyea was in Greenwood investigating complaints of voter intimidation, shootings and discrimination in the surplus food program there, the commission said.

Greenwood has been the scene of three recent shootings, the spokesman added.

RELYEA WAS arrested by Deputy Sheriff Wilbur Smith of Leflore County after he refused to obey an order to use the "white" waiting room at the bus terminal, the commission said.

While he was held at the police station, the deputy sheriff told him, Relyea reported, that some charge would be "thought up" to hold him because it was necessary that "the races be kept separate in Greenwood."

General Counsel Clyde Ferguson said formal complaints would be lodged with both the Justice Department and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

He said the commission will continue to seek an end to "the unconstitutional and illegal practices" still existing in Mississippi."

Greenwood Citizens Attempt To Register

More Gunfire Aimed At Youth; Bishop Golden Speaks Monday

Charles F. Golden, Bishop of the Methodist Church for Mississippi and several other Southern states, is scheduled to speak at a mass meeting Monday, March 18, 7:30 p.m. at the Wesley Methodist Church in Greenwood.

Golden will be the second in a series of nationally known figures to address meetings in support of voter registration in Leflore County.

Dr. John Marcel, assistant to Roy Wilkins, will speak March 25, and Rev. Martin Luther King and Michigan Congressman Charles Diggs have been invited to speak in the future.

Last week at the Christian Church over 150 people heard Rev. Merrill Lindsey, former candidate for Mississippi congressman, talk about "The Responsibility of the Negro in these Changing Times."

National Support

These noted men will speak as part of an all-out drive to register every qualified Leflore County Negro who wants to vote. Five national organizations have pledged their full support to the effort.

Voter registration workers reported that another 50 people applied to register in Greenwood last week.

Registration Classes

Two citizenship classes have begun to train 20 people to take over registration schools in Greenwood and other parts of the county.

However, many Greenwood Negroes have been intimidated by the recent shootings. March 4 the deacon of Locust Grove Church locked out Negroes who had gone there for a mass meeting.

The Mayor of Greenwood made spot appearances on television all day March 5 telling the people that outside agitators were coming to Greenwood and calling on both whites and Negroes to ignore them.

Leaders Must Be Heard

Bob Moses, who heads the voter registration project, expressed the hope that Negro leaders would come out in the open and back the program.

One day after the Mayor's statement, four young people were shot at as they parked across the street from the office of the Miss. Council of Federated Organizations.

Shotgun Blasts

Willie Peacock reported that four white men driving a 1958 light colored Dodge station wagon—with no license tags—pulled alongside their car just before midnight and blasted the left front window with a shotgun. Investigators later said that a 12 gauge shotgun had been used.

Miss Peggy Marie, Sam Block and Peacock were treated for glass cuts, but Miss Essie Broome escaped unhurt.

Police Car Seen

Police investigating the shooting said that someone inside the car must have broken the windows and shot into the house where bullets were found. Peacock told the FREE PRESS that the group had seen a police car following the car which shot at them.

The day of the shooting, 28 Negro citizens had attempted to register at the court house and 22 had succeeded in filling out forms.

Greenwood workers also reported that Monday a group of students placed bumper stickers on the cars of Broad Street High School teachers. The stickers said: "Be a first class citizen. Register and vote."

Gregory Fired, Charges Race Prejudice

NEW YORK (AP)—Negro comedian Dick Gregory has been fired by a local night club. Gregory said it was because he donated his salary to the integration dispute in Mississippi, but the club said it was because he was late for Tuesday night's show.

Gregory said he intended to sue the Galaxy Supper Club, in Queens, for breach of contract. He was in a one-week engagement.

"I guess it just bugged them that all that money was going down there," said Gregory, who was paid $6,500 a week.

But a club spokesman insisted that Gregory was fired because he showed up late.

"We went along with him Friday, Saturday and Sunday even though we were peeved," the spokesman said. "But last night we lost our entire back room. Everyone left."

The spokesman said Frank Krulik, owner of the club, has been active in civic organizations in many parts of the city, including Harlem, and "most of his closest friends are Negroes."

Gregory said he objected to the show's content. He said he told the audience that the only reason he didn't quit was because he was giving the money to the people in Mississippi.

He recently participated in voter registration drives in Greenwood, Miss.

"I've been going on at 11:30 since I started there and all of a sudden I'm told I was supposed to be there at 10:30,' he said. "The only conclusion I can draw is that the club just didn't appreciate my remarks about sending my salary to Mississippi."

Comic Raps Club Firing, Cites 'Gift'

New York, April 17 (AP).—Negro comedian Dick Gregory has been fired by a local night club. Gregory said it was because he donated his salary to the integration leaders in Mississippi but the club said it was because he was late for last night's show.

Gregory said he intended to sue the Galaxy Supper Club in Queens for breach of contract. He had a one-week engagement.

"I guess it just bugged them that all that money was going down there," said Gregory, who earned $6,500 a week.

But a Club spokesman insisted that Gregory was fired because he showed up late for last night's show.

"We went along with him Friday, Saturday and Sunday even though we were peeved," the spokesman said. "But last night we lost our entire back room, everyone left."

The spokesman also denied that the Club resented the comedian's gift of his salary to those supporting integration in Greenwood, Miss. He called it a "falsified statement."

CABARET IN QUEENS DROPS DICK GREGORY

N.Y.T. 4-18-63

Dick Gregory, the comedian, was dismissed Tuesday night in the middle of a week's engagement at the Galaxy Supper Club in St. Albans, Queens.

Mr. Gregory insisted last night that the action was not related to his showing up late, as asserted by the club's management. A spokesman for the club, at 117-13 Farmers Boulevard, emphasized, however, that the comedian had been dismissed because of the loss of business that followed his "late" appearances.

Meanwhile, Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, protested the incident in a telegram to Frank Krulik, co-owner of the club. He noted that Mr. Gregory had made "one of the most significant contributions to the civil-rights struggle" by his recent appearance in Greenwood, Miss., to help Negroes seeking to register and vote.

The comedian told an audience at the club Monday night thae he was donating his week's salary—$5,500—to the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee in Mississippi.

It is now up to the American Guild of Variety Artists whether Mr. Gregory is entitled to the $5,500.

Southerners Assail Mississippi Aid Cut Move

But Douglas Warns of States That 'Flout the Law'

WASHINGTON, April 17 (UPI) — Southern Senators challenged today a proposal of the Civil Rights Commission under which President Kennedy would consider cutting off Federal funds for Mississippi because of racial disorders there.

The denunciation of yesterday's proposal foreshadowed a fight later this session against the President's recommendation that the commission be given greater powers and its life be extended beyond the present November expiration date.

On the other hand, Senator Paul H. Douglas, Democrat of Illinois, said he felt that "our Southern friends" could continue to "flout the law and the Constitution and, at the same time, get all the favors of the national government."

Senator John Stennis, Democrat of Mississippi, said the "presumptuous and utterly ridiculous" statement by the commission was "proof positive that the commission should be permitted to die its long-awaited natural death later this year."

'Meddling of Busybodies'

"Its report regarding the State of Mississippi is but the latest example of the repeated meddling of busybodies acting beyond their assigned mission and purpose," he said in a statement.

Senator Douglas told a Columbia Broadcasting Company television interviewer that the commission had recommended "careful consideration" of a cut off in grants and that he did not favor passing judgment now.

Associated Press

John Stennis, Democratic Senator from Mississippi.

But citing reports of "brutal" acts of discrimination, he said it was clear that Mississippi's governor and law enforcement officials had not observed the equal rights and voting rights guarantees of the 14th and 15th Amendments.

If such acts continued, he said, there will have to be some way of "bringing recalcitrant local officials, who refuse to obey the Constitution, to order."

Senator James O. Eastland, Democrat of Mississippi, who is chairman of the Judiciary Committee, called the commission's proposal "the most monstrous libel that has ever been levelled against a state in this union." He called on the commission to direct its attention to the District of Columbia.

Senator A. Willis Robertson, Democrat of Virginia, challenged the constitutionality of any attempt by the President to act on his own to cut off funds for Mississippi. He said "our form of Federal union is gone" if the President could take such action.

Stennis Calls Commission's Plan 'Utterly Ridiculous'

Senator John J. Sparkman, Democrat of Alabama, called the commission's recommendation "absolutely ridiculous." He said he hoped the executive department would disregard it because it was "completely contrary to the intent of Congress and doesn't seem to represent clear thinking."

The commission told the President in a report Tuesday that the time had come to crack down unless Mississippi moved quickly to end shootings, jailings, bombings and the denial of constitutional rights for Negroes.

It said each week brought fresh evidence of the danger of a complete breakdown of law and order in the state.

Constitutionality Questioned

WASHINGTON, April 17 (AP — Senator Samuel J. Ervin Jr., Democrat of North Carolina, charged that the civil rights commission's plan "ignores the system of constitution government we have in the United States."

"All of the grants of money to any states in the union are made under the acts of Congress, which specifies terms and conditions upon which the grants are made," he said, and continued:

"The President of the United States has no legislative power and therefore no power to add any additional conditions or terms to the acts of Congress in providing for these grants."

Sheriff Slams Civil Rights Prober In 'Arrest' Incident

Sheriff John Ed Cothron charged Saturday night that a civil rights investigator from Washington was trying to create an incident when he arrived at the Greyhound Bus station here Thursday.

Cothron said that he had investigated the assertion by Chester F. Reylea, white Civil Rights investigator from Washington that his rights were violated when he allegedly was arrested at the Greenwood Greyhound Bus station by deputy sheriff W. W. Smith.

Cothron stated: "During the past three weeks this county has been the focal point for racial agitators from other states and law enforcement officers in the county have received a number of letters and telegrams demanding police protection for Negro voter registration workers arriving from other states."

The sheriff said he instructed his deputies to check points of public interest for the purpose of keeping a careful surveillance for suspicious persons who might cause trouble and strife between the races.

"In carrying out these duties deputy W. W. Smith was routinely checking incoming passengers at the Greenwood bus station on the night of March 14 when Reylea arrived on a bus from Clarksdale, Miss," the sheriff said.

Cothron continued: "Reylea had been in Greenwood since March 12, but did not inform the sheriff's office of his identity or that he was investigating possible Civil Rights violations.

"At the time of the bus station incident Reylea was actually registered at a Greenwood hotel and was certainly not an interstate bus passenger.

"It appears that Reylea went to Clarksdale from Greenwood for the express purpose of returning to Greenwood on a Greyhound Bus and creating the incident," Cothron added.

"When Reylea arrived in Greenwood he departed from the bus and immediately proceeded to a place in the bus station where a crowd of Negroes had congregated. His actions aroused the suspicion of deputy sheriff Smith who did not know Reylea and deputy Smith thereupon removed Reylea from the bus station in order to prevent possible trouble and to obtain his identity.

producing racial incidents, hampers local law enforcement officers in the performance of their duty, increases the possibilities of race trouble and causes missunderstanding and confusion.

"The only complaint of any civil rights violation received by me during my tenure of office and arising out of incoming and outgoing passengers at the bus station is the complaint of Reylea, a paid worker of the Civil Rights Commission who apparently traveled to the bus station for the express purpose of creating the incident of which he now complains, " Cothron said.

"When the identity of Reylea was established he was released without charge and requested to conduct himself so that he would not cause or contribute to any racial trouble or indicent.

"Reylea stated he would not promise to concuct himself in the manner requested," Cothron said.

The sheriff added: "I will continue to attempt to provide adequate protection for all the people of Leflore County, but acts of this nature, apparently designed and executed for the purpose of

Stennis Brands Negro Group Publicity Seekers, Shuns Them

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 30 white and Negro students who tried to protest to Mississippi's U.S. senators here Monday were rebuffed and dispersed.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., later said the demonstration was a "publicity stunt." Stennis said the students had advised the press in advance, and "they even had a photographer along."

Stanley Wise of Washington, a Howard University student, said they wished to protest to Stennis and Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., about the shooting in Greenwood, Miss., of James Travis.

Travis claims he was wounded while trying to get Negroes to register to vote in Leflore County

When the students converged on the Senate Office Building, Eastland's aides told them that Eastland was in Mississippi. Stennis sent word through an aide that he would not see the group.

Later, Stennis said at the time the group tried to see him he was in conference with Mayor John Scafide and City Commissioner J. C. Glover of Bay St. Louis, Miss.

Wise said the group also wanted to protest the shutting off of surplus foods in Leflore County and other areas in Mississippi, and to protest other alleged violence directed at Negroes.

Wise said he was chairman of the Non-Violent Action Committee, affiliated with the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, a national organization.

After being rebuffed at the senatorial offices and ordered by police to clear the corridors, the group said they would picket the senators' homes and would return to Capitol Hill every day this week in an effort to meet with one or both the Mississippi senators.

Kennedy Prodded On Bias Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bipartisan group of senators kicked off Thursday an effort to prod the administration and Congress into cutting off funds from any state which permits racial discrimination.

Such action was recommended Tuesday by the Civil Rights Commission, which singled out Mississippi. Some Southern senators have predicted that Congress will not even consider such a "preposterous" idea, as they called it.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., told newsmen he will introduce legislation to permit withholding funds in programs where the agencies in charge feel they do not have such authority. He said he has written the agencies asking them for their views.

If the agencies feel they do have the authority now, Hart said, he wants them to tell him why they haven't exercised it.

On the Senate floor, a number of speeches was led off by Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y. He requested that President John F. Kennedy issue an executive order requiring all federal agencies to insist upon nondiscrimination whenever any federal money is involved.

Southern senators, who have said Kennedy has no authority to withhold funds from any state because this is a province for Congress to decide, made no immediate reply. The token Senate session was attended by few members.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, of California, Republican whip and acting leader, agreed with Keating that the Constitution is part of "every one of our enactments" and racial discrimination is barred by the Constitution.

Mississippi County Bows, Resumes Welfare Food

Suff. Miss.

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP)—LeFlore County officials said Wednesday they bowed to federal pressure and agreed to resume a full-scale surplus food distribution program for one month.

The county board of supervisors said in a statement that representatives of the Agriculture department handed the county demands Tuesday to resume the program at government expense or have the government take over food distribution.

The board said it "was confronted with the proposition of accepting the offer of the Department of Agriculture to permit it—the board—to make the distribution at the sole expense of the federal government or to decline and subject the people of Leflore County to an invasion of federal agents and probably marshals."

An Agriculture department spokesman said in Washington, however, "They—the board—indicated, as they always have claimed, that they did not have the funds for this, and if the funds were provided, they would do it."

The spokesman indicated the cost at about $15,000.

The county charged the distribution program was unnecessary and the government contended it was.

Since the county decided to distribute surplus foods only to those certified as needy by the Welfare department, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee has charged the action was in retaliation for efforts to register Negroes as voters. The committee began collecting food for distribution in the county.

During the controversy, two groups of committee workers have been targets of shots and one was wounded by .45-caliber bullets.

The FBI and Civil Rights Commission have investigated.

Pressured Supervisors Vote For Commodities

This Was A Time To Resist

At an unheralded and hurriedly called meeting yesterday the Leflore County board of supervisors voted to surrender one of its prerogatives to the federal government.

The meeting was called at the behest of State Welfare Commissioner Fred Ross of Jackson who today refuses to comment on the meeting except to say that he "cooperates" with individual boards of supervisors in the state in welfare matters.

Also at the meeting were two U. S. Department of Agriculture officials, one out of Washington and one out of Atlanta.

In effect the USDA told Leflore County to furnish commodities to the masses of Welfare Cheats or "we will do it for you."

What the Commonwealth wants to know is why the Board didn't tell the USDA and State Welfare Commissioner Fred Ross to distribute the commodities direct if they wanted to, "but our original decision stands."?

Yesterday was the second time that Welfare Commissioner Fred Ross has come into Leflore County sticking his nose into business better left to local people. The first, you remember, was when CBS carried on national news an interview from a white family which wasn't able to get commodities here this year either.

This morning Mrs. Hermine Copeland, director of the County Welfare Department, who attended the meeting for the last few minutes, refused to tell the people anything about the department's position in the matter.

She wouldn't say how many people were given the commodities last year or whether the procedure for the enforced distribution will be changed from last year's policies.

Ross refused to agree that anything had been forced on the county saying that the program is strictly voluntary with the counties involved. When asked why then Leflore wasn't permitted to stay out of the program his comment was that stock-in-trade of the professional doler "no comment."

In other words, dole officials have cooperated with the federal government to apply pressure to the county board of supervisors and now refuses to be involved in the matter further. That is for the supervisors to worry about, of course, but we thought we'd give Welfare officials a chance to reveal their role in the matter.

It may be that the people of Mississippi might want to consider getting out of the welfare business altogether, because nowhere do the strings attached to federal money show up clearer than in that particular area which has become strictly an activity of the government, divorced entirely from the control of the people.

The supervisors take the position that they are saving Leflore County from an invasion of federal marshals.

This, they say, justifies a vote to go back into the program for 30 full days at a time when all other Mississippi counties in the program from the start will be getting out of it.

Can anyone fail to see the political strings that have been pulled from Washington? Who is going to believe that Leflore County runs its own affairs now?

It is argued that the reason for getting out of it was that the board of supervisors couldn't afford to spend the local money involved and that now the federal government is going to spend it for us.

Again we say that the money has come at a time when the need, if there was such great need, is dissolving because of increased labor opportunities with the coming of spring.

This tends to prove that a naked political sword from the Kennedy arsenal in Washington has flashed into Leflore County to encourage the groups of racial agitators now operating here, and the move had nothing to do with the welfare of any people of the county.

This was a time when resistance would have been not only morally right, but easy to defend.

The power move by the federal government should have been resisted.

(T. W.)

Do It Or Else,, Agriculture Officials Tell The County

The Leflore County Board of Supervisors did a turn about yesterday on the question of commodities and voted to go along with the federal government on the large program for one month.

The Board, in a statement, said its decision was based on the fact that if it had refused to go along with the program the federal government would move in and do it for them.

Board members said they felt it would be far better to have the program under their control than to surrender the control of the program to the federal government.

Under the agreement reached yesterday by the Board with James A. Hutchins Jr., deputy director of the distribution branch of the United States Department of Agriculture and Russell H. James, area field superintendent of Atlanta and Fred Ross, state director of Public Welfare, the federal government will pay for the entire cost of giving the commodities for the month of April.

The agreement yesterday was for a one time program, however, the federal people could not promise what would happen this fall.

Last year over 26,000 people received commodities in Leflore County. Out of this number 5,000 are still at this time receiving them under the program. The remaining 21,000 were taken off the rolls when the Board after a public meeting voted not to enter the large program because of the financial burden it placed upon the county.

During the previous years when the county did take part in the program workers at the commodity distribution point were furnished by the county from the County Farm, truck drivers and road workers.

However, it was disclosed this morning that the federal people had given the board of supervisors the authority to hire the necessary personnel for the distribution during April and this cost will also be borne by the federal government.

Before making a decision on the question of commodities last fall the supervisors called for a public meeting at which time the question of distribution commodities was discussed. At this meeting a vote was taken and it was the sentiment of those attending that Leflore County should not enter the large commodity program.

Since this decision was made the county has been harrassed by Negro agitators from within and without the state. Food was collected in Chicago and other northern cities for what the professional Negro agitators called "The starving people of Leflore County."

Members of the Board of Supervisors said they made the decision to go ahead with the program because they feared the federal government would move into the area with troops and marshals. However, it was learned that the USDA officials stated only that they would take over the program if the county refused to go along on a voluntary basis.

It was also disclosed this morning that the old rules will be used in certifying the persons to receive the commodities in April. One member of the board said because of the speed of the program, it will be impossible to use the new rules for April.

"The old rules and old certifications will be used and brought up to date," he said.

Another member of the board said it appeared from the way the proposal was made at the meeting yesterday the machinery for the direct federal program was alrealy set up and that if the county refused, the government was ready to move in.

Yesterday was the second time that Welfare Commissioner Fred Ross has come into Leflore County sticking his nose into business better left to local people. The first, you remember, was when CBS carried on national news an interview from a white family which wasn't able to get commodities here this year either.

This morning Mrs. Hermine Copeland, director of the County Welfare Department, who attended the meeting for the last few minutes, refused to tell the people anything about the department's position in the matter.

She wouldn't say how many people were given the commodities last year or whether the procedure for the enforced distribution will be changed from last year's policies.

Ross refused to agree that anything had been forced on the county saying that the program is strictly voluntary with the counties involved. When asked why then Leflore wasn't permitted to stay out of the program his comment was that stock-in-trade of the professional doler "no comment."

of the welfare business altogether, because nowhere do the strings attached to federal money show up clearer than in that particular area which has become strictly an activity of the government, divorced entirely from the control of the people.

The supervisors take the position that they are saving Leflore County from an invasion of federal marshals.

This, they say, justifies a vote to go back into the program for 30 full days at a time when all other Mississippi counties in the program from the start will be getting out of it.

Can anyone fail to see the political strings that have been pulled from Washington? Who is going to believe that Leflore County runs its own affairs now?

It is argued that the reason for getting out of it was that the board of supervisors couldn't afford to spend the local money involved and that now the federal government is going to spend it for us.

Again we say that the money has come at a time when the need, if there was such great need, is dissolving because of increased labor opportunities with the coming of spring.

This tends to prove that a naked political sword from the Kennedy arsenal in Washington has flashed into Leflore County to encourage the groups of racial agitators now operating here, and the move had nothing to do with the welfare of any people of the county.

This was a time when resistance would have been not only morally right, but easy to defend.

The power move by the federal government should have been resisted.

(T. W.)

would be far better to have the program under their control than to surrender the control of the program to the federal government.

Under the agreement reached yesterday by the Board with James A. Hutchins Jr., deputy director of the distribution branch of the United States Department of Agriculture and Russell H. James, area field superintendent of Atlanta and Fred Ross, state director of Public Welfare, the federal government will pay for the entire cost of giving the commodities for the month of April.

The agreement yesterday was for a one time program, however, the federal people could not promise what would happen this fall.

Last year over 26,000 people received commodities in Leflore County. Out of this number 5,000 are still at this time receiving them under the program. The remaining 21,000 were taken off the rolls when the Board after a public meeting voted not to enter the large program because of the financial burden it placed upon the county.

During the previous years when the county did take part in the program workers at the commodity distribution point were furnished by the county from the County Farm, truck drivers and road workers.

However, it was disclosed this morning that the federal people had given the board of supervisors the authority to hire the necessary personnel for the distribution during April and this cost will also be borne by the federal government.

Before making a decision on the question of commodities last fall the supervisors called for a public meeting at which time the question of distribution commodities was discussed. At this meeting a vote was taken and it was the sentiment of those attending that Leflore County should not enter the large commodity program.

Since this decision was made the county has been harrassed by Negro agitators from within and without the state. Food was collected in Chicago and other northern cities for what the professional Negro agitators called "The starving people of Leflore County."

Members of the Board of Supervisors said they made the decision to go ahead with the program because they feared the federal government would move into the area with troops and marshals. How-for April.

"The old rules and old certifications will be used and brought up to date," he said.

Another member of the board said it appeared from the way the proposal was made at the meeting yesterday the machinery for the direct federal program was alrealy set up and that if the county refused, the government was ready to move in.

The Board's Statement

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here is the full statement of the Leflore County board of supervisors in regard to yesterday's decision to go back into the full commodity program for a period of one month at U. S. Department of Agriculture expense.

STATEMENT

Yesterday morning the Board of Supervisors of Leflore County, Mississippi, was called into session at the request of Mr. Fred Ross, Commissioner, State Department of Public Welfare, to hear a proposal by the Department of Agriculture in Washington to reinstate the distribution of surplus food commodities on the expanded program which was stopped by the Board in September, 1962, on account of the financial inability of the Board to continue the same, and because the program was unnecessary.

Accompanying Mr. Ross were Mr. James Hutchins, Jr., Deputy Director of the Distribution Branch of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, and Mr. Russell H. James, Area Field Supervisor of the Department from Atlanta, Georgia. Mr. Hutchins stated that he had been sent to Leflore County, Mississippi by the Department of Agriculture to request the Board of Supervisiors to reinstate the distribution of commodities on the expanded program for one additional month only at the sole expense of the Federal Government. In discussing this proposal, the Board of Supervisors stated that in their opinion there was no actual need for food distribution other than that now being carried out through the Welfare Department. Mr. Hutchins stated that the Department of Justice had reported to the Department of Agriculture that its agents had found need for surplus food. The Board of Supervisors replied that this report was most likely made by professional agitators who had issued public releases that many Negroes were starving and hungry in the county. This, the Board branded as utterly false and repudiated any such statements.

Mr. Hutchins was asked by a member of the board, if the Board of Supervisors refused to accept the proposal of the Department of Agriculture what would be the result. He very frankly stated that the Federal Government would move in, take charge of the program and distribute the commodities whether the Board of Supervisors agreed to it or not. The Board, therefore, was confronted with the proposition of accepting the offer of the Department of Agriculture to permit it to make the distribution at the sole expense of the Federal Government or to decline and subject the people of Leflore County, Mississippi to an invasion by Federal Agents and probably marshals. Under this direct statement by Mr. Hutchins, that the Federal Government would by force distribute the commodities, the Board reluctantly yielded and agreed to administer the commodity program for an additional month even though the Board is of the opinion that it is unnecessary and will have adverse effect upon the economy of the county and its general welfare.

The Board of Supervisors calls upon all citizens of the county to cooperate in its action in being forced to make this decision and assures its citizens that it was done only in order to prevent Leflore County, Mississippi, and its citizens from being subjected to the ruthless invasion by Federal Agents.

The Board directs attention to the citizens and taxpayers not only of the State of Mississippi, but the entire nation of the unnecessary use of public funds for political domination by the present administration and urges all to join with the Board in resisting such forceful measures.

Mississippi County Bows, Resumes Welfare Food

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP)—LeFlore County officials said Wednesday they bowed to federal pressure and agreed to resume a full-scale surplus food distribution program for one month.

The county board of supervisors said in a statement that representatives of the Agriculture department handed the county demands Tuesday to resume the program at government expense or have the government take over food distribution.

The board said it "was confronted with the proposition of accepting the offer of the Department of Agriculture to permit it—the board—to make the distribution at the sole expense of the federal government or to decline and subject the people of Leflore County to an invasion of federal agents and probably marshals."

An Agriculture department spokesman said in Washington, however, "They—the board—indicated, as they always have claimed, that they did not have the funds for this, and if the funds were provided, they would do it."

The spokesman indicated the cost at about $15,000.

The county charged the distribution program was unnecessary and the government contended it was.

Since the county decided to distribute surplus foods only to those certified as needy by the Welfare department, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee has charged the action was in retaliation for efforts to register Negroes as voters. The committee began collecting food for distribution in the county.

During the controversy, two groups of committee workers have been targets of shots and one was wounded by .45-caliber bullets.

The FBI and Civil Rights Commission have investigated.

GREENWOOD, Miss. — When Chester F. Relyea sought to learn "is it true what they say about Dixie," he found out quickly.

It is.

Mr. Relyea, an assistant to Clarence Clyde Ferguson, general counsel for the Civil Rights Commission, was in Greenwood to investigate complaints that vote-registration workers were shot, colored citizens were intimidated to keep them from voting and that Mississippi scrapped its part in the federal surplus foods distribution program for fear that colored persons would get some.

MR. RELYEA sought to talk with a local colored man who was sitting in the jimcrow waiting room at the bus station. (Despite the 18-month-old order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, local waiting rooms are still segregated.)

When LeFlore County Deputy Sheriff Eilbur Smith ordered him to move to the "white" waiting room, Mr. Relyea refused. Deputy Smith arrested the civil rights prober and took him to the county jail.

He told him he would "think up" some charge to hold him on because a way must be found to keep "the races separate in Greenwood."

MR. FERGUSON was furious over the arrest of his assistant. He said the commission would "vigorously seek every remedy to put and end to such unconstitutional and illegal practices still existing in Mississippi."

The brilliant general counsel, on leave from his law professorship at Rutgers University, sent formal complaints to both the Justice Department and to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

He followed up the formal notices with personal huddles over the weekend.

DESPITE THE threat of sudden death, the SNCC and allied organiations are continuing their intensified drive to get colored citizens registered.

Cooperating with the SNCC in the drive are the NAACP, CORE, the Southern Regional Council and the Southern Conference of Christian Leadership headed by Dr. Martin Luther King.

At the same time, the drive continues on a nationwide basis to send food, clothing and economic aid to the victims of a massive economic squeeze put on colored Mississippians.

Aaron Henry Mississippi NAACP president, heads the Mississippi Council of Federated Organiations which is supervising the distribution of food, clothes and money to the needy.

He received last week a check for $1,000 from the NAACP to help meet current needs.

THE AMERICAN Civil Liberties Union urged Attorney General Robert Kennedy to defend the rights of Mississippians and the vote registration workers more vigorously.

"Stern measures" are needed, the ACLU said, because "the situation in Mississippi has so deteriorated and presents so little promise of improving. . ."

The ACLU said further, "It is common knowledge to all of us engaged in civil liberties and civil rights work, and to the nation at large, that the denial of constitutional rights to colored persons in Mississippi, as well as other parts to the deep south, is compounded by ruthless oppression of any activity — activity guaranteed by the First and Fourteenth Amendments — to relieve that oppression."

MISSISSIPPI HAILS ITS AID TO NEGROES

State's 'Sacrifices' Are Not Appreciated, Official Says

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP)—Mississippi's state welfare commissioner said today that the white residents of his state paid almost all the taxes, spent more on Negroes than on whites and still "receive, only national ridicule and abuse."

Commissioner Fred A. Ross, in a paper presented to the policy committee of the American Public Welfare Association, went on:

"The question arises as to how much longer the white population of Mississippi will consent to be taxed and drained of its sustenance for the benefit of a race, and a nation, which shows no appreciation for their sacrifices."

"It is not unreasonable to predict," he declared, "that public schools in Mississippi will be abolished, and it will be done sooner than we think."

Comments on Rights Plan

Withdrawal of Federal funds to orce Mississippi to dafeat guard Negro rights, as recommended last week by the Federal Civil Rights Commission, would hurt more Negroes than whites, Mr. Ross said.

In his department, where Federal aid provides about three-fourths of the funds, Mr. Ross said, 79.07 per cent of the money for aid to dependent children goes to Negroes, 20.4 per cent to whites and 0.46 per cent to Indians or other nationalities.

He cited similar figures for other phases of the welfare program.

In the public schools, the commissioner said, "63 per cent of the state's funds is being spent for Negro classrooms, although they constitute less than 45 per cent of the state's population."

Notes Teaching Salaries

However, he noted that a census in the school year of 1961-62 showed 329,215 white children and 337,871 Negro children.

In the same year, Mr. Ross said, teachers in white schools received $40,601,189 in salaries and Negro teachers were paid $25,107,469.

For almost two years ended June 30, 1961, he said, Mississippi spent $377,877 for charity white patients in private hospitals and $662,952 for charity Negro patients.

He said white persons owned 90 per cent of the real and personal property on tax rolls and, therefore, paid 90 per cent of the real estate taxes.

"The undisputed facts are that the white population of Mississippi give, monthly and yearly, more money, goods and services to the members of the Negro race than do the white people of any other state in the United States when the comparable ability to pay taxes is considered," he declared.

New Steel Process

U. S. Steel's development of a continuous casting process is an excellent example of how industry should react to competition and narrowing profit margins. This is the classic approach — to cut costs by making production faster and more efficient. It is an approach that makes far better sense than raising prices.

This is particularly true when, as is the case in the steel industry, the pressure of foreign competition is rising. Such competition, armed with the weapon of cheaper labor, cannot be dealt with by increasing prices; there must, instead, be a reduction in costs.

The prospect of major cost reduction, coupled with product improvement, is what makes the new continuous casting process exciting. As Chairman Roger M. Blough of U. S. Steel puts it in the company's annual report to stockholders, "Less than an hour is required to transform molten steel into high quality slabs ready for further processing, while in contrast the equivalent conventional processing requires many hours or, more frequently, days." The advantage of this is obvious.

There are other advantages. Blough says that once the experimental process is put into operation less capital will be required for sites and facilities. This is of particular importance to the steel industry, which has many billions of dollars tied up in plant and equipment.

Steel from abroad is not the only product that has made gains at the expense of American steel .Rival materials produced in this country — aluminum, concrete, glass, plastics — also have encroached on steel's traditional markets.

It is good to see U. S. Steel launching a competitive comeback based on improved methods. To the extent that it gave impetus to this development, the President's crackdown on price increases may have been a blessing in disguise.

SNCC Demands Troops As Negro Lists Burn

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 24 — Fire broke out late Sunday night in the Greenwood office of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee. A SNCC official charged it was set in retaliation for the vote registration drive the organization is conducting among Negroes.

Sam Block, 23-year-old Negro field secretary for SNCC here, said four Negroes spotted two white men running away from the area just before the fire was discovered.

Block said all of his vote registration material, including lists of persons SNCC had tried to register, were destroyed along with some office equipment.

The offices were empty when the fire broke out. There was no immediate estimate of damage.

MEANWHILE, SNCC Executive Secretary James Forman demanded federal troops be sent to Greenwood "to protect local citizens from shootings and arson attempts."

The fire was brought under control quickly by the Greenwood Fire Department, which had fire units battling a blaze at a nearby pressing shop when the fire at the SNCC office was reported.

Assistant Fire Chief L. C. Sheppard said the fire started in the [illegible] office of three rooms used by the SNCC in a building which also contained a clothes pressing shop and private residential quarters. Firemen got the call at 11:45 p.m.

Sheppard said his department had not determined the cause of the fire. An investigation was started.

He declined immediate comment on Block's charge that the fire was deliberately set.

Fire Probe Pressed By Police, FBI

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has joined the investigation of the fire Sunday night at the Student Non-Violent coordinating Committee offices.

FBI agents moved into the case yesterday as the State Fire Marshall's office and the police pressed forward their investiga ion.

During yesterday afternoon a ,number of witnesses were questioned by the police about the fire, but this mcrning they reported there were no new developments in the case.

Sam Block, Negro field secretary for SNCC, claimed late Sunday night that the offices had been broken into and fire started. Block said it was a reprisal for the SNCC voter registration work in the county.

Police and others investigating the case said they could find no evidence that the building had been boken into. James Campbell, Negro owner of the building said SNCC had been given until today to vacate the offices.

Campbell said yesterday he rented the group the offices thinking they were going to use them for living quarters, but when he found out what was happening there he requested they leave.

Campbell said he has been trying for two weeks to get the SNCC people out of the building.

Federal authorities moved into the case after James Forman,head of SNCC, sent a telegram to the president requesting federal troops

NIGHTRIDERS ATTACK GREENWOOD NEGRO'S HOUSE

GREENWOOD, MISSISSIPPI, MARCH 27 -- A midnight shotgun attack last night on the home of Dewey Greene, Sr. -- father of the second Negro to try to enter the University of Mississippi -- was protested strongly by Charles McDew, chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, today.

McDew wired Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy:

> These nighttime attacks on our staff and on Greenwood citizens must be stopped. We urge you to act immediately to insure the safety of all citizens in Mississippi, particularly those active in voter registration.

McDew also protested the shooting to Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett:

> Last night, nightriders attacked the home of a Greenwood citizen. The lawlessness in your state cannot be tolerated any longer. We urge you to use your executive powers to guarantee the safety of all citizens in Greenwood, Mississippi.

Last night about midnight, George Greene, a Greenwood high school student who has been working closely with SNCC's voter registration drive here, was driven home and immediately after he entered the house, two shotgun blasts shattered the front door and bedroom window. No one was injured.

Greene's eldest son, Dewey, Jr. is petitioning the Federal Court to enter Ole Miss.

Robert Moses, director of SNCC's statewide voter registration program, said early this morning that the shooting might have been an attempt to intimidate George Green from working with the voter drive.

Green said, "I do not intend to stop my work with SNCC until all Negroes are registered to vote in Leflore County."

Dog Used to Halt Delta Push; Vote Leaders From Atlanta Held Left Meac.

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 27 (UPI)—An estimated 100 Negroes on their way to register to vote were scattered Wednesday by police and another group of Negroes that gathered at the Leflore County Courthouse was dispersed when a white crowd gathered.

Eleven Negroes were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct and refusing to obey police orders to move on.

Police said about 50 Negroes gathered on the courthouse steps after the first group was dispersed in the streets by police using a police dog and backed up by a company of firemen.

The group gathered on the courthouse steps was dispersed and left in twos and threes after the white crowd gathered.

Negro leaders immediately protested the dispersals and arrests, the latest in a series of racial incidents in this north Mississippi city of 20,000.

In Washington, the Justice Department said it was "getting a full report on what happened and preparing to take whatever action that is appropriate as soon as possible." Asked for a clarification of what this meant, a spokesman said, "We're going to do something about it."

THE FIRST GROUP of Negroes was halted two blocks from the courthouse after being turned away from City Hall. One officer held the police dog on a leash until the Negroes scattered in small groups, then left the downtown streets.

Among those arrested were James Foreman and Frank Smith of Atlanta and Robert Moses of New York, leaders of the group conducting an intensive voter registration campaign here, and Lawrence Gyatt of Chicago.

Two shotgun blasts were fired Tuesday night into the home of the father of Negro Dewey Greene Jr., who recently was denied admission to the University of Mississippi.

No one was injured by the blasts which shattered glass in a front door and window at the home of Dewey Greene Sr.

tration campaign has been under way in the Greenwood area since a registration worker was wounded last Feb. 28 by a blast fired from a moving car.

The group formed today on the south side of this Delta community of 20,000 and marched to the City Hall, apparently to present a list of grievances to officials.

Mayor C. E. Sampson met the Negroes and ordered them to disperse. The Negroes then began walking in a group toward the courthouse six blocks away, apparently to register to vote.

Sampson then ordered Police Chief Curtis Lary to break up the demonstration and arrest any who refused to obey the order.

Police met the group before it reached the courthouse and dispersed the crowd with the help of a dog.

By noon, the streets in the center of town were deserted by Negroes. A number of whites stood in groups around the courthouse where police and firemen stood guard.

Some FBI agents, here to investigate Tuesday night's shooting and a number of previous incidents, were recognized by newsmen as they watched the march on the City Hall.

Greene claimed he was turned down because of his race but university officials said he was denied admission because his academic record was unacceptable. The case is still pending in the courts.

George Greene, 19, a voter registration worker and brother of Dewey Jr., said the shots were fired from a car which followed him home.

"I hadn't been in the house more than a few seconds when the shots were fired," George said. The high school senior said he had been driven home by a friend about 10:45 p.m.

"I didn't get a look at the car, but there was more than one person in it," he said.

Police Chief Lary today said only that "we're investigating."

Officers reported they found "11 holes in the front screen and nine buckshot in the far wall of the house."

George said occupants of the house included his father and mother, three sisters, two nephews and a niece. Three children were sleeping in the room where the second blast hit.

10 SNCC WORKERS JAILED IN GREENWOOD;
POLICE DOG USED ON NEGROES

GREENWOOD, MISSISSIPPI, March 27 - Ten voter registration workers from the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) - including the anti-segregation group's Executive Secretary, James Forman - were arrested here and charged with "inciting to riot" and "refusing to move on" after Greenwood police turned a dog loose in a crowd of 150 Negroes on their way to register to vote at the LeFlore County Courthouse.

The jailed workers, in a statement from city jail, decided to remain in jail until the charges against them are dropped. And from the jail, SNCC Executive Secretary James Forman issued a call to "every Southern protest group to send workers into Greenwood until law and order become reality here."

Forman said in a telephone conversation from the jail that "the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee workers in LeFlore County are determined to stay until every eligible Negro is registered to vote!"

In jail are: Lafayette Surney, Lawrence Guyot, Curtis Hayes, James Forman, Robert Moses, Willie Peacock, Bobby Talbert, James Jones, Charles McLauren and Frank Smith. Also jailed was an elderly Negro man who has been active in the SNCC vote drive.

Guyot was arrested first, at 11:00 o'clock this morning. He and SNCC worker Forman were leading 150 Negroes from Wesley Chapel Methodist Church here to the courthouse. Forman was arrested then also, and according to eyewitnesses, Greenwood Mayor Charles Sampson ordered a police dog loosed on the crowd.

SNCC's Bob Moses, director of the group's Mississippi project, was bitten once on his leg. Another man, Matthew Hughes, was also bitten by the dog and required treatment at a local hospital.

The crowd of Negroes, dispersed by the dog, re-grouped at the church. They were entering cars to make a second try at registration when Greenwood police, with their guns drawn, arrested eight other SNCC workers and the elderly man in front of the church.

Forman said that he didn't know what charges had been lodged against him. The others were charged with "inciting to riot."

In Atlanta, the SNCC office protested the arrests and "intimidation of propective Negro voters" to the United State Department of Justice, the Civil Rights Commission, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and with several U. S. Congressmen.

The Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee has been conducting voter registration drives in Mississippi since 1961.

Several attacks against SNCC workers in LeFlore County have been reported in the past two months. The group mounted an all-out vote drive after one field secretary was almost fatally wounded when three white men fired into his car.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:

Why is it the people in Washington believe only one side of the Southern disturbance stories? Why are they so blind to the other side of these stories?

I am not alone in wishing these questions could be answered. How many persons in Greenwood or any place else in this country for that matter can call the Justice Department and get instant action that the SNCC and NAACP do?

I have jus finished reading your story about the fire that broke out in the SNCC office Sunday night. I see nothing so spectacular about that fire except that someone got a chance to send a teleram to Washington.

How many times does a fire in a community make national headlines?

Shooting on the part of some people and arson on the part of other people will never solve anything.

There are trouble makers in every community and society, but it seems that we in Greenwood are overrun with a few extras from other parts of the country with absolutely nothing better to do than to stir up trouble.

If all these organizations continue their disorderly corruption of the American way of life, what will become of the American way of life?

One word creeps into my mind-COMMUNISM.

A Disturbed Citizen

Dear Sir:

Though we won't accept it we all know that the Negroes to our Federal Government and its propaganda, have approximately the immunity of Ceasar's wife, but it is hard to realize that one Nero comedian can set the policy of the Federal Government.

Sincerely,
R. N.

Young Republicans Setting Stage For Battle on Strategy in Dixie

WASHINGTON—All Republican politicians agree on the current political forecast that the party's presidential candidate in 1964 must win the largest number of Southern electors since Reconstruction as offsetting insurance against the potential majorities for Mr. Kennedy in the big-city states elsewhere. But both the professionals and amateurs in the party are split over what their candidate's Southern strategy should be. And the hottest public argument is between two groups of young Republicans in, or fresh out of, the colleges.

Each group publishes a more or less periodic magazine. Advance is a product of graduates of Harvard University who generally support the brand of "liberalism" for which Governors Rockefeller of New York and Scranton of Pennsylvania are the leading advocates among the conceivable Republican nominees for president. Analysis, a publication by the Eleutherian Society of the University of Pennsylvania, describes itself as "the first conservative college magazine on the East Coast." There are other Young Republican periodicals of both types. But recent articles in these two sufficiently define the dispute over Republican Southern strategy.

Noting the campaign positions taken by those 1962 Southern Republican statewide or congressional candidates who overcome huge, embedded Democratic majorities — or almost did —, Advance expressed concern that a number had opposed, equally with Democratic candidates, racial desegregation and the mounting federal judicial decisions which proclaimed it the law of the land. The inference to be drawn, it said, was that to carry the South the Republican Party is "hitching its wagon to the falling star of segregation," and its nominees were to be "more segregationist than the segregationists." If so, the national party was in danger of perpetual exile from power.

Analysis challenged these assumptions in toto. In the March 1963 issue of Analysis, Allan C. Brownfield, a law student at William and Mary College, wrote as follows:

"It is safe to say . . . that not one Republican was elected because he advocated segregation. Instead, Republicans were elected because they told Southern voters that it was their Democratic opponents who supported the New Frontier philosophy of Medicare, deficit spending and big government; that it was they, the Republicans, who have advocated a more reasonable and constitutional approach to government. The issues were a matter of political and economic philosophy, and were not racial. Try as they may, the liberal Republicans cannot change this fact."

This raises the larger question which is troubling the Republican professionals as well, not only with respect to Southern strategy but to national strategy as embodied in the choice of its 1964 candidate for president andd of the platform on which he will stand. This question is, what substitute there is, except restriction of the New Frontier's welfare state philosophy, that has a chance of producing national victory in 1964?

Birmingham News Leflore City

Greenwood rolled with punch—and won

BY GEORGE METZ
News Mississippi Bureau

GREENWOOD, Miss., April 27— "The city officials stood together. When we decided on a policy, everyone stood behind it."

In these few words lawyer Stanny Sanders, former district attorney, told the strategy by which Greenwood resisted one of the most intense voter registration drives and publicity assaults ever leveled against a Mississippi City.

Object of the strategy: Ride with the punch. Prevent violence at any cost.

Sanders was one of the architects of city strategy, drawn up earlier this year when it became plain Greenwood was in danger of big racial trouble.

THE FUSE HAD been sputtering for some time. It was lighted last August when the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee began a stepped-up voter registration drive among Negroes, which at first was a peaceful enough affair.

In all Leflore County only about 100 Negroes were registered to vote. The SNCC set out to boost this number with registration classes, meetings.

The first explosion came unexpectedly in November when the Board of Supervisors dropped the county's participation in the Department of Agriculture free food program. The board charged abuses in the program, which, said supervisors, was hurting the business of county merchants.

SNCC SECRETARY Sam Block fired off a charge that the action was taken in retaliation for registration attempts. His statement gained national publicity. Racial tension rose.

A series of violent acts — shootings, assaults — racked the area until March 27, when the first registration march was launched by 11 Negroes, all of whom were arrested.

Police were given strict orders: No organized groups or marches, either white or Negro, were to be permitted to form on the streets. But absolutely no interference must be made with orderly vote registration.

Two incidents early in April brought the pressure near boiling point: (1) The Federal government filed for an injunction to halt "interference" with vote registration; (2) Negro comedian Dick Gregory arrived in town and took charge of the marching.

BUT WITHIN A WEEK the government withdrew its injunction. The city held up its charges against arrested marchers. And Gregory left town—after a week of being either ignored or laughed at by police.

For its efforts since last August the SNCCgained: 370 Negroes registered, bringing the county total to 470; and 1,136 applications for registration, which have not been acted on.

Greenwood citizens are jubilant about their victory over the SNCC campaign. They still talk about Gregory and how he was laughed out of town. The city is rapidly returning to normal.

But there are ominous signs Greenwood—indeed, the entire Mississippi Delta—is not yet out from under the gun. In this rich agricultural area there are armies of unemployed Negroes, victims of farm automation, living on the free food program, now reinstated and financed entirely by the federal government.

EVERY TIME a plantation is automated with cotton pickers and flame cultivators, the horde of unemployed is swelled. One county has 60 per cent of its population on the free food rolls. And the situation is due to get worse.

The Mississippi Employment Security Commission estimated last week cotton chopping jobs will be 10 per cent fewer in the Delta this summer. This means the loss of 2,600 jobs.

Mayor C. E. Sampson says Greenwood is back to normal, whatever "normal" might be.

The city was one of the few in Mississippi to voluntarily comply with Justice Department directives calling for the books to be displayed openly.

TODAY, SAMPSON and Police Chief Curtis Lary—the two officials here most thrown in the forefront of Greenwood's handling of marching demonstrations, credit cooperation of the city's citizens in permitting tolice to handle a potentially-explosive situation with its eventual peaceful outcome.

Lary, 53, has spent 37 years with the City of Greenwood. He says its the only job he's ever had. A slender, slightly gray man, he speaks slowly and gestures continuously with hands as he talks.

Lary, like most others here, refers reporters to Sampson.

But Sampson is easily available to the press. And throughout the demonstrations the mayor issued a series of statements, as many as two and three on some days.

SAMPSON, WHO appeared on the Hugh Downs "Today" television show in New York, is thinking seriously of entering the North District Public Service Commission race this summer.

Friends say Sampson was flirting with the idea of running for lieutenant governor even before the demonstrations here tossed him into the state and national limelight. Sampson himself does not deny that he plans to seek some state office this summer.

Now that Gregory and news media attracted by his visit have left voter registration activity of the SNCC has simmered down to the normal 10 to 15 applicants per day which were being brought to the Leflore County Courthouse prior to the outburst of demonstrations.

Mrs. Martha Lamb, Leflore circuit clerk, refers all questions to her attorney, Hardy Lott, also city attorney and generally considered the master strategist behind the city's policy of non-violent resistence to non-violent agitation, a policy which apparently has won for Greenwood a peaceful settlement of a dangerous racial problem.

LOTT CLAIMS THE volume of applicants has "slowed down" within the last few days. This possibly is due to the fact that most SNCC workers in the Delta area have gone to a committee school, said being conducted at McIntosh, Ga.

The citizens of Greenwood generally feel jubilant. The attitude is "we've licked them hands down."

But the SNCC hasn't departed by any means. It has merely switched the tactics from political to economic sphere.

Negro March Leaders Jailed

Police Disperse Crowd Which Tried To March On City Hall

Police arested 11 Negro men on disorderly conduct charges after a march on the Leflore County courthouse by a group of Negroes today.

Following a prayer meeting in a church, the Negroes marched en masse to the city hall and then started to the Leflore County courthouse.

Police tried to disperse the crowd. They said the 11 men kept urging the crowd on. A police dog was used to break up the crowd.

Officers said the crowd was asked to disperse because they were blocking traffic in the downtown business section of Greenwood.

Arrested were James Foreman of Atlanta, Ga.; Lawrence Guyat, of Chicago; Charles McLauren, Jackson, Miss.; Lafayette Surner, Ruleville, Miss.; James Wilson Jones, Jackson, Miss.; Robert Moses, New York City; Curtis Hayes, Summit, Miss.; Frank Smith, Atlanta, Ga.; Willie Peacock, Charleston, Miss.; Robert Talbert, McComb, Miss.; and Henry Smith, Greenwood.

The Negroes said they would seek legal help from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The 11 arrested Negroes were singing in city jail a song which seems to be the keynote at all their rallies: "I Ain't Gonna Turn Around No More."

After police using the citys one police dog dispersed the crowd a block south of the Lefloe Theatre on Fulton, the Negroes, minus the arrested leaders, went to the courthouse by twos and threes. Some 50 of them gathered on the steps of the courthouse and sat there for about an hour and a half Shortly before noon Chief of Police Curtis Lary and a group of officers ordered them to leave.

They formed up two abreast and left the courthouse, walking south on Cotton Street under the direction of an unidentified leader.

The Negro leaders were arrested under a state law against committing acts which cause or might tend to cause a breach of the peace.

By 1 p. m. today city police had barricaded Market Street in front of the courthouse to motor traffic, but were allowing pedestrial traffic through.

Police Probe Shooting In City

Police today were investigating the firing of two shotgun blasts into the home of Dewey Green Sr. - the third recent report of shooting at Negroes in this Delta town where a voter registration drive is in progress.

The FBI was notified.

No one was hurt in last night's shooting which sent buckshot tearing through the front door and front bedroom window of Green's home.

Green, who has one son seeking admission at the University of Mississippi and another working in the vote registration campaign, was at home with his wife and seven of his children.

Six children were in the bedroom that was fired on.

Two white men and a boy were arrested after a previous shooting in which a Negro registration worker was wounded while riding in a car near Greenwood Feb. 28.

On March 6, gunshots shattered the windows of a car carrying four Negro registration workers in Greenwood. The shots didn't hit anyone but three were treated for cuts from flying glass.

Earlier this week, a fire flared in a Greenwood office used by the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, which is spearheading the vote registration drive

Fire Chief J. C. Evans said his probe, though not complete, had uncovered no evidence to back a Negro leader's charges that arsonists broke into the building to retaliate for the vote registration drive.

The FBI has joined state and city officials in the fire investigation. John Doar, assistant U. S. attorney general in the civil rights division, was in town Tuesday.

Police said the buckshot that hit the door and the window of Green's home went through dead center. The house sits about 25 feet from the road.

Police found 11 pellet holes in the front door screen and nine buckshot smashed the bedroom of the living room.

Twelve pellet holes were left in the bedroom window screen. The bbuckshot smashed the bedroom window ripped through a shade and curtain and lodged in a wall.

Green, a painter, said he, his wife and son George were in other parts of the house. They said they thought they heard a car passing when the shooting ocurred.

George Green was working in the voter registration drive. Dewey Jr., another son, ho was not home, tried to enroll at the University of Mississippi for the spring semester.

The registrar turned down his application but he has appealed to a higher university authority.

IN WELFARE INCIDENT

Investigation Asked Of Delta 'Corpsmen'

State Welfare Commissioner Fred A. Ross said today he had asked the FBI to check on claims of three Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee representatives that they also represent the "Domestic Peace Corps."

The Washington County welfare agent in Greenville, Ross said, reported Peace Corps membership was claimed by three Negroes who came to her office to make inquiries about the commodity distribution program.

The report said James Foreman of Atlanta, Charles Cobb of Springfield ,Mass., and Jesse Harris of Jackson told the welfare agent, Mrs. Lena Gail Wood, that they represented the Student Non Violent Coordinating Committee and that they also were "a part of the Domestic Peace Corps."

Ross said that so far as he knew and could learn, Congress had never authorized the establishment of a Domestic Peace Corps. For that reason, he said, he had sent a copy of Mrs. Wood's report to Federal Bureau of Investigation Director J. Edgar Hoover, with an inquiry as to whether or not these individuals can legally represent themselves as being a part of the U S. government's "Domestic Peace Corps," if no such agency exists.

Ross said he had also turned copies of the report over to Albert Jones, director of the State Sovereignty Commission, since the report indicated that "some of the recipients of commodities have been shipping the commodities to Detroit, Chicago and Memphis."

Ross added that "there would be action taken on these cases because the policy was that if a person: were not using the commodities themselves and did not need them, he was ineligible to receive the commodites."

Mrs. Wood reported to Ross that the three Negroes came to her office and asked what reasons she could give fr "Leflore County's situation." When she told them she could not speak for Leflore County they started asking questions about the Washington County commodity program, Mrs. Wood reported.

The trio told her, Mrs. Wood reported, that they had been giving foods to people to encourage registration for voting and they knew there were possibly people receiving food from them and also from the commodity program. Mrs. Wood said she agreed that this could be so.

When they told her they represented the Student Non Violent Coordinating Committee and then said they were a part of the Domestic Peace Corps, "this made me wonder," Mrs. Wood said.

POLICE DOGS AGAIN HALT NEGRO PUSH

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 28 (UPI)—A group of 50 chanting and singing Negroes was dispersed by police using dogs Thursday shortly after the Negroes completed voter registration applications.

It marked the second time in two days that officers scattered a marching group of Negroes in this racially tense north Misissippi city of 20,000. No arrests were reported.

Witneses said a police dog on a long leash bit Rev. D. L. Tucker, pastor of a church where Negro voter registrations rallies have been held, as the crowd broke up Thusrday.

THE GREENWOOD area has been the target of an intensive voter registration campaign among Negroes in recent weeks. One registration worker was wounded last month by gunfire from a moving automobile and two shotgun blasts were fired into a Negro home earlier this week.

Thursday, the group of Negroes went to the Leflore County Courthouse in twos and threes, were received politely in the circuit clerk's office and given vote application forms to fill out.

After completing the forms, the Negroes gathered on the courthouse lawn, then started their march away from the building.

Police ordered the marchers to disperse.

When they refused, one of the three dogs held by police was turned loose in the group. The Negroes scattered and crowds of whites began forming on street corners.

and was seen hobbling down the street supported by two Negroes.

Police confiscated a motion picture camera belonging to CBS newsman Fred Perez after charging that his car was blocking traffic. Perez said he was told by the officer that his camera would be returned to him at the police station. He said he retrieved it "without the film."

ANOTHER photographer was jostled by a crowd of whites as he stood on the side of the street taking pictures. He was not injured.

Wednesday, a group of about 100 Negroes marched to the City Hall to present a list of grievances to city officials, was turned away and then started marching toward the courthouse, where some members of the group said they planned to register. They were dispersed by police before reaching the courthouse.

Negroes plan new rally amid rising tension in Greenwood

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 28—Tension rose higher in this violence-torn Delta city today as plans were announced for another Negro vote registration rally tonight.

Demonstrations and registration drives already have touched off a series of shootings and arrests. What began as a local cancellation of a free federal food program has exploded into a nationally-publicized voting rights battle between Negro organizations here and segregationists.

Events here caused the Massachusetts Senate Wednesday to pass a resolution calling for abolition of poll taxes. Sen. Joseph D. Ward of Fitchburg, Mass., told the Senate:

"In a Mississippi community 100 Negroes attempting to register were dispersed by white police officers who alleged they blocked traffic.

"We are making a magnificant gesture but it is not an empty gesture, for when this amendment is adopted by the President's own state it will encourage other states to take similar action."

WARD APPARENTLY referred to the Wednesday arrest of 11 Negroes in a crowd of about 100 which marched on the Leflore County Courthouse.

As vote registration workers prepared for the rally tonight, a Negro minister told a Greenwood audience Wednesday night: "We plan to change the political structure of this county and this town."

The Rev. James Bevel of Cleveland—a town 35 miles from here—urged them to again attempt to register to vote.

"White people are afraid of Negroes, especially here in the South," Bevel, a representative of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told a rally of some 250 persons jamed into a Negro church.

The Wednesday arrests were the latest in a series of explosive incidents in this cotton-growing area where Negroes outnumber whites 2-1.

The Justice Department was keeping a close watch on the touchy situation.

IN WASHINGTON, a department spokesman said the federal government was "preparing to take whatever action is appropriate as soon as possible."

Meanwhile, Greenwood City Council charged "racial agitators" with promoting trouble in this city of 25,000.

The council and Chief of Police Curtis Lary, issued a statement accusing outsiders of causing the trouble which has led to three shooting incidents.

Police used a trained dog to disperse Wednesday's marchers.

A Negro spokesman said one man was nipped and another had his trousers torn by the dog's teeth. Police wouldn't comment on the charge.

The marchers first went to City Hall and then to the county courthouse—about five blocks away.

THE DEMONSTRATION formed some 10 hours after two shotgun blasts of heavy buckshot pellets were fired into the home of Dewey Greene Sr.

No one was hit.

Greene has one son seeking admission into the University of Mississippi and another working in the SNCC drive.

While the marchers were being dispersed, an elderly Negro woman employed in City Hall took a dim view of the proceedings.

She told newsmen. "I wish these people would get out of here and leave us alone. All us folks here just want to live in peace and we don't want these people down here messing around."

"They're going to make it bad, real bad, on all of us," she said. "No you can't have my name," she added, shaking her head.

GREENWOOD IS the county seat of Leflore. Both are named after Greenwood Leflore, son of a French trader and Choctaw Indian princess who became a political leader more than a century ago in Mississippi.

The Yalobusha and Tallahatchie Rivers meet in the city to form the Yazoo River, which empties into the Mississippi at Vicksburg.

The Justice Department says only a few hundred Negro voters are registered in the county, although 30,000 of Leflore's 46,000 residents are Negroes.

But county officials maintain Negroes can register if they want to. Leflore opened its vote registration books to federal inspection voluntarily several years ago, one of the few counties to freely do so in Mississippi.

GREENWOOD HAS in excess of 2,000 industrial employes. But the principal commodity is cotton.

A cotton cooperative, which the city bills as the largest in the world, handles 60 per cent of all the cotton raised in the Mississippi Delta area, plus cotton from Louisiana and Arkansas.

The city is also state headquarters for the arch-segregationist Citizens Councils.

and was seen hobbling down the street supported by two Negroes.

Police confiscated a motion picture camera belonging to CBS newsman Fred Perez after charging that his car was blocking traffic. Perez said he was told by the officer that his camera would be returned to him at the police station. He said he retrieved it "without the film."

ANOTHER photographer was jostled by a crowd of whites as he stood on the side of the street taking pictures. He was not injured.

Wednesday, a group of about 100 Negroes marched to the City Hall to present a list of grievances to city officials, was turned away and then started marching toward the courthouse, where some members of the group said they planned to register. They were dispersed by police before reaching the courthouse.

Judge Jails Negro, Charges Contempt

Trial Continues For March Leaders Arrested By Police

A Chicago Negro was cited for contempt of court in city court here today.

Judge O. L. Kimbrough, after warning Lawrence Guyat to quit interrupting Chief of Police Curtis Lary's testimony, ordered the Negro returned to his cell in city jail and declared him in contempt of court.

Kimbrough's action came in the second of a series of 10 trials he was scheduled to hold on charges against 10 Negroes who led a protest march to city hall here yesterday.

The Negroes marched on city hall, and after being ordered to disperse they attempted to march on the courthouse. They were then dispersed by police, one who was handling a police dog, and the leaders of the march were jailed.

The trial of ten of them began this afternoon. Charges were dismissed against one.

Guyat was the second Negro to go on trial. He lists Jackson as his home, but identification taken from him at police headquarters yesterday shows he is from Chicago.

Chief Lary was the first witness called to the stand by City Prosecutor Gray Evans.

As Lary tried to testify, Guyat continually interrupted him.

"If you don't stop interrupting the witness, I will cite you for contempt of court," Judge Kimbrough warned Guyat.

When Guyat kept breaking into the testimony, the judge ordered him back into his cell in a contempt action.

Guyat's trial had started after Judge Kimbrough allowed James Foreman, of Atlanta, executive secretary of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, a delay in his trial when Foreman said he had a lawyer coming to town by 4 p. m. today.

He told the court his lawyer is Wiley Branton. Foreman was returned to his cell to await trial.

The third to go on trial was Robert Talbert of McComb was found not guilty by Judge Kimbrough.

Next on trial was Willie Peacock. He pleaded not guilty but was found guilty. The court postponed his sentence until the end of the series of trials.

Only one Negro, Guyat, was arrested immediately when yesterday's demonstration was dispersed. The rest were taken into custody by officers as they were found in the vicinity of the spot where the march began at the Wesley Methodist Church on Howard Street.

The court action came about two hours after city police under the command of Chief Curtis Lary turned back a group of some 40 Negroes marching down the last sidewalk on Howard Street.

The group was broken up at the corner of Market and Howard as officers used the one police dog which was used to break up yesterday's march.

The dog is owened and was trained by Patrolman James Switzer who handles him when he is working.

Witnesses saw the dog bite one Negro, the Rev. D. L. Tucker, pastor at Turner Memorial Chapel on Walthall Street. Tucker, in a religious habit, was one of the leaders of the marchers.

Police Commissioner B. A. "Buff" Hammond told newsmen the Negro definitely was not bitten.

He was examined by police at the scene then hustled away.

No arrests were made of the marchers today. Police merely dispersed them.

The demonstration came after several carloads of Negroes had gone to the courthouse separately to apply to register to vote. They weren't interferred with as long as they traveled to the courthouse by normal means.

Events today were preceded by a rally at Tucker's church last night in which a series of speakers urged some 350 Negroes who attended to go to the courthouse today and register.

Another rally was scheduled for tonight with James Farmer, national director of CORE billed as the featured speaker.

At the meeting last night the Negroes were told that "Dr." Martin Luther King and Jackie Robinson are gong to visit us in Greenwood soon."

This morning City Prosecuting Attorney Gray Evans dismissed the charges against Henry Smith of Greenwood for lack of evidence. The other 10 arrested after yesterday's demonstration began to go on trial about 1:30 p. m.

They were charged with violating a state law which makes it a misdeamenor to commit acts which cause or might tend to cause a breech of the peace. It is the law which was used to arrest so called freedom riders in Jackson and other cities.

Hinds County officers last night met with city police, and sheriffs from other counties, to consult with them on demonstrations.

Jackson's methods worked out during the freedom rider incidents was explained in detail.

So far city police have called in only auxiliary policemen to handle the situation. Outside officers are acting only in a consultative capacity.

Sheriff John Ed Cothron's force has stood by in case they were called on for help by city police and have helped in patrolling at the courthouse.

Memoranda Of Agitators Are Exposed

EDITOR'S NOTE — Paid, outside racial agitators have been active in the Greenwood, Miss., area for several months. These invaders have stirred up racial friction, provoking acts of violence. Luckily, thus far the violence has not been of a serious nature.

Acting under the guise of obtaining surplus commodities for the Negroes of the area, outside agitators showered the nation with propaganda, prompting Washington politicians to restore surplus food distribution via an ultimatum to the Leflore County board of supervisors. Now that the surplus food program has been restored, racial agitation has been intensified instead of lessened.

What do outside agitators do when they descend upon a city such as Albany, Ga., or Greenwood, Miss.?

The Jackson Daily News has considerable correspondence and information about how these agitators operate. Herewith is published a sample of their activities, contacts and goals, all in the words of the agitators themselves. For ease in reading, a number of typographical skimps and jumps, etc., have been corrected. Otherwise, the reports are verbatim. They are published to provide the public with information and insight into the story-behind-the-story at Greenwood:

(LETTER FROM BOB MOSES TO SAMUEL BLOCK AND WILLIE PEACOCK)

Sam and Willie:

Sorry I missed you. The Freedom singers are in the state and will be here until next weekend. If you are able to get a place for them we can have them in Greenwood next Sat. or Sunday.

Willie, I haven't been able to get over obviously, to see the two fellows from Charleston. I will be back in Greenville by Monday. You and Sam should come over Mond. night to help with the program there. We are going to have a sing, etc. Then we can probably get to Charleston Tuesday morning. I'm leaving $40.00 to tide you over until next week when I hope we will get some word from Wiley. Spend it spare there's not much more.

We need detailed accounting of the effects of the denial of the commodities, based on personal interviews with those denied, containing quotes, etc.

(REPORT OF WILLIE PEACOCK)
DAILEY REPORT
JAN. 15, 1963

This morning Sam and I went to the barber shop on East McLaurin. Which is owned by Mr. Golden. He is one of our aces. He cuts most of the professional peoples hair in town. He seems to be pretty well informed. I would say above average, according to Mississippi standards. He cuts our hair free of charge. And we talk about the issues of today, and kick around a few general ideas. This morning he seemed to be optimistic about the future guberanterial race in Mississippi. In his opinion, former governor J. P. Coleman will be the next governor of Mississippi. In his talking he emphasized the point that Coleman isn't likely to obligate himself to the White Citizens Council of Mississippi. However, I differed with him on that point, but I remained mute. However, I think I shall discuss this point with him further—and bring out a few facts.

This evening I sent, rather, mailed a registered letter to Mr. John Doar of the Justice Department. The clerk at the post office was fairly decent (according to Miss. Standards). Of course, he didn't let me get by with anything. He saw to it that everything was in proper mailing order; such as the letter being properly sealed, and outside Signature of sender in proper place. He was quite helpful. The only thing I disliked was the time factor involved. For each adjustment, I would have to return to a desk, make the adjustment, and return to the end of the line. In the meantime Samuel Block was in the car at a parking meter; and this wasn't helping his patience at all.

Sam and I went over to Greenville, Miss. to see Hodding Carter (of the Delta Democrat Times) to check on an open letter that we had released to UPI. We were also in hope of contacting the gentlemen (two) of the Civil Rights Commission, to give them some information we had written up for them. We also stopped by the office to have a little chat with the office person. We returned to Greenwood by 6:30 P. m.

I am spending the rest of the evening getting out a financial report—which I hope will be completed to perfection.

Jan. 15, 1963—A Negro man was struck down a truck this evening in the down town area Just as he was getting out of his car breaking both arms and legs. He died in the ambulance enroute to the hospital.

Jan. 14, 63—I spent most of the day trying to type couple of letters (I am learning). Sam was out until noon with the photographer from Greenville, Miss. (Lasgle Heges). There are two of these photographers stationed in the city of Greenville, Miss. (the other being Yves McCaires). They sell stories and photographs to Times, Life, and a french magazine. They have taken some pictures which I think will reflect the true condition of the people in Greenwood and Leflore county. We are very optimistic of the future bearing these photos will have on the Leflore County situation. We are to go over Friday to view the pictures.

Sam and I attended a meeting in Clarksdale, Miss. which convened at 8:00 p.m. The constituents of this meeting made up the Mississippi Council of Federated Organizations. Charles McLaurin was choosen (as a substitute in the abscence of Bob Moses) as project director. Of course, other things were discussed. And we drew up some duties for the project director, which gives him discretionary power in a few instances.

Well. I'll see you next time around. May the future beings be conceived in Freedom.

SAMUEL BLOCK REPORTS

Monday evening about 3:30 the United States Civil Rights Commissioners came in as I had asked. We talked about 1:30 concerning the denial of surplus food to Leflore County Negroes. We then went out to see Father Nathaniel at the Catholic Center. He was glad that the Civil Rights Commissioners had made it in and that He was very eager to do something about the denial of surplus foods.

We went in to the discussion as to whether or not the denial of surplus was based on the voter registration activities in Leflore County. It was said by 2 local white citizens who are very liberal; that they didn't think negroes were to be denied any kind of surplus food or clothing at any time for any reason weather it was voter registration or not.

We also talked to farther Nathaniel's secretary for a long time and by talking to her we found out that she was born in the North and was only working in the south for a short while. She gave her view on what she thought about negroes being denied food and clothing, she did not see how some of the poor people was going to really make it because the cotton season here was verry, very short and no one had any money to buy anything with. We stayed there till about 6:30 or 7:00, we then left going to the public library here to find some copies of the old papers that carried the artical on the denial of suplus food that was written by the Commonweath Editor, I went as far as up town with them and then I turned and went another way because I was not allowed in the Pubelic library here. (Pubelic).

At about 10 after 7 we left for Clarksdale to a COFO meeting. (Willie told what happen at the meeting in his report).

Tuesday morning we left for Greenville to see Harden Carter the III (3) to talk about the aryical that they want to write concerning the surplus food, Mr. Carter was still ready to write anything that we want him to write in his paper his circulation runs from 15,000 to 20,000 papers afday plus the fact he is a very liberal fellow about 25 years old. after getting about so slowly we decided that we better move back toward Greenwood, Mississippi. After arriving here about 4:30 we ate our snack for the day and went up around Dr. Reddicks drug store and talked to him about what happened during the day thank God it was nothing again. By the way Dr. Reddick is the man that we go and borrow money from when we really need it bad.

Wednesday morning we ate early we left for Cleveland, Miss we learned that Bevel was holding his first meeting in Mound Bayou Mississippi a small town not far from Cleveland which is an all negro town. We got back here about 11:30 the Justice Dept. boys had Just made it in, they wanted to talk to Mr. McSwine about the police brutality what his son had suffered from, they went over along and found that Mr. McSwine was very afread to say or do anything and during the meantime I pick up a few names of people in need for food and clothing.

Thursday was very beautiful day for anything that your heart may have desired to do begaining Thursday morning I got up and cooked breakfast for Peacock and My-Self after eating I went out to make some phone calls to people who had left word for me to call them and after calling them I found that people was ready to go up and register if I had food and clothing for them in case they loose their job's, I did not promise them anything but I told them if anything happen to I could get the Help right away, they said well good we will be willing to go and try even if we don't pass, I promised to carry them up Monday morning but I want be able to make it up there I will be out of town I hope.

the SPECTATOR

A report from Mississippi

JAMES TRAVIS, 20-year-old student who is recovering from a bullet in the neck inflicted by Mississippi racists, says he is going back to Mississippi to work on voter registration. "I want to make my home in Mississippi," he said. The consideration which is sending him back is this:

"If I stop now, the segregationists will say, 'Okay, we'll shoot a couple more and the rest of them will quit.'"

Travis was in New York recently, his first time out of Mississippi, to promote public support for a food and clothing drive to aid sharecroppers dropped from surplus food rolls as a result of voter registration activity. He and another Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee field secretary, Sam Block, victim of a second shooting in Greenwood, who came to New York with Travis, will also campaign for federal protection of voter registration workers.

Block, who has gone down to 120 lbs. from 142 during his nine months in Mississippi, has been arrested 13 times and has several court cases pending. One is for violating the midnight curfew in Clarksdale ("I was arrested at 12:01 on the highway leaving Clarksdale for Greenwood," Block says); another involves a charge of distributing literature without a permit in Sunflower County. The law enforcement officer who arrested Block in Sunflower (the home of Sen. James O. Eastland) called him a "goddamn outside agitator." Block was born and reared in adjoining Bolivar County.

BLOCK WAS ARRESTED in Greenwood Feb. 22 and was subsequently found guilty of a "public utterance calculated to provoke a breach of the peace." He had told UPI the day before that he thought the burning of four buildings in a Negro business district had been an attempt to burn the SNCC office. At his trial he was told that his six-month sentence would be dropped and his $500 fine reduced to $250 if he would leave town. He rejected the offer. The same offer was made in return for Block's conducting himself in a "lawful manner." This, he was told, meant no civil rights activities. He refused and was released on appeal bonds of $500 cash and $10,000 property.

Travis, who has been working on voter registration in Orangeburg, S.C., has just one arrest to his credit. He spent two weeks in Parchman State Penitentiary in Mississippi with the Freedom Riders in July, 1961, after he had participated in a Walgreen's drug store sit-in when the Freedom Riders were being arrested in his home town of Jackson. "If people who were free—to a certain extent [he added parenthetically with a smile]—could come to Mississippi, the least I could do was do something for myself," he said.

On Feb. 28 Travis was shot in the neck and shoulder when three white men in an untagged car opened fire on the auto Travis was driving near Greenwood. The next day when Block was attempting to arrange for Travis' removal from a hospital in Greenwood to one in Jackson where the bullet could be removed, he ran into a typical example of the Southern Way of Life. The ambulance driver insisted on payment in cash in advance. A friend provided a check made out to Mr. Sam Block. A bank teller told Block he could not cash the check without identification. He scratched off the "Mr." and said the writer of the check was a "damn fool." When Block asked why the teller had made marks on the check if he couldn't cash it, the teller replied: "Boy, get on out of here."

BLOCK HAS BEEN TOLD to "get on out of here" more than once. He was expelled from Mississippi Vocational College for "political agitation." He told one sheriff who ordered him to leave town that he was tired of being trailed and planned to notify the Justice Department. The sheriff replied: "Hell, I don't give a damn about no Justice Department." That time Block was arrested for reckless driving after he denied the sheriff's accusation that he had gone through a stop sign, and had been driving 35 miles an hour. Block said he had been driving 15. The sheriff told him to "shut up or I'll knock your damn teeth out." Block has posted a $100 appeal bond.

The night of that arrest an untagged car pulled up in front of the SNCC office, and its occupants fired into an auto in which Block and three other voter registration workers were sitting. Block and two others were injured by flying glass.

A little more than two weeks later, at midnight March 24, the SNCC office was destroyed by fire. (The police called it a SNCC plot). Files, two typewriters and a mimeograph machine were wrecked by flames. The loss of this hard-come-by equipment is heart-breaking to SNCC workers—almost as bad as the breakdown of a car used in the voter registration drive (though in the Mississippi Delta even that problem was solved for a time when SNCC workers rode mules from farm to farm to talk to people about registration).

Block and Travis will be back at work in Mississippi soon. Both said that the shootings have brought larger and larger numbers of people to mass meetings, and about 300 are attempting to register each week. Travis commented: "They have decided now that they are going to register."

Focus On Greenwood

Greenwood, indeed all of Mississippi, knows that national attention is focused upon it.

The memories of Oxford are still vivid.

This is as the outside motivators of disturbance have planned it. They call themselves "non-violent." But their method is to probe a particular sore spot until there is an outcry of pain, and a rebellion against it. The response in Oxford was violence. It could happen again in or around Greenwood. It must not.

Why? That should be obvious. Mississippi knows there are constant efforts to goad it into an outburst of pent up emotion. Already condemned by so many outsiders, it will find itself further pushed into a corner.

Leflore County has a good case, if it uses restraint in presenting it.

THE COMMERCIAL APPEAL has long advocated the literacy test as a guideline to intelligent exercise of the voting privilege.

Even now there is too much misuse of the ballot by illiterates. Politicians manipulate such blocs like puppets.

It is not too much to require that a voter be capable of answering the same questions that are put to an alien applicant for American citizenship. If the Federal Government demands evidence of knowledge and intelligence as a condition for citizenship, a born citizen should be able to pass a like test as a prerequisite for voting.

Such a test should apply equally to all persons, of any color or race.

The Leflore issue is the literacy test for voting. This is not clearly understood by those who read news reports in other sections of the country, and the good Delta people must remember this. The world is informed that a Negro voter registration drive is being conducted there, and that Negro marches and demonstrations are occurring, and that Negro leaders have charged white persons with violence or attempts at violence.

Whatever substance these claims of attack have is bound to hurt Mississippi and to increase outside demands for action.

Law enforcement is a vital factor in this situation. Even The Wall Street Journal, in an item about Greenwood events, tells only that "Negro demonstrators marching on the courthouse . . . were routed by police," and that the "Negroes were protesting recent racial violence in the area."

No mention is made of the legal requirement of literacy in voter registration, or of the fact that Negroes are being schooled for the literacy test by outsiders whose sole purpose is to incite trouble. The "cramming" method, as any educator will tell you, is no substitute for study and knowledge.

Greenwood stands in an awkward position. The national press, including radio and television, is peering down. The Federal Government is watching. The smallest incident will be magnified, and big trouble could be catastrophic.

The social and voting problems underlying this situation demand temperance on both sides, and a realization that wounds should be healed instead of gouged open. Time is the best healer.

Greenhouse

Dear Greenhouse:

I wish some one would ask me, "Do you agree with people who say New York is a wonderful place to visit but a heck of a place to live—or vice versa?" because I have the answer.

It is simply—visit New York as if you lived there—and I suppose the other side of the coin is equally true—live there as if you were visiting. The native could play tourist at home indefinitely, changing his pattern with the seasons.

Truman Capote started me on this train of thought in his "House on the Heights" which is about his living in Brooklyn. When he mentioned walking around to the Antique Emporium of Knapp, world traveler and buyer, whose place was filled with, and emptied of, treasures with the regularity of ocean tides, I knew I must go, even if it meant braving the Brooklyn subway.

I asked my sister who lives in "the Village" if she'd go with me. She said, "We don't have to, he has moved about four blocks from here." We went. So I want to thank Capote vicariously through you, as you gave me the book.

Knapp pastures carousel horses, shelters de-niched statues, brasses from China, India, Persia and England. He cloisters wandering saints and broken angels.

"But look," my sister cries out, "he can't sell that statue! It has no hands." Victorian hobnobs with Louis XIV. Golden slippered, dusty slacked girls with chalky lips and khol-lined eyes, nimbly catfoot it around rococco frames and threatening spears; their lank hair sweeps dust from carved chests and temple dogs as they come up topside again triumphantly holding a small pitcher whose million duplicates reside in all "dime" stores.

A hemp-haired, trim-cut matron coils her words out like a yo-yo, knowing they'll return to her for future use—"Quite pleasant, this type of dragon, isn't it?"

Federal Action At Greenwood Hit By Mayor

Criticism Of Voter Inquiry Comes After Officers Disperse Marchers

By JAMES KINGSLEY
Staff Writer

GREENWOOD, Miss., March 28. — Mayor Charles Sampson late Thursday accused the Justice Department of following a one-way investigative street on voter registration cases in Leflore County.

"We have given every co-operation to the FBI and the Justice Department investigators since last summer, but the Justice Department has refused to co-operate with us in any manner," he charged.

His comments came after police dispersed a short "mass march" by about 45 Negroes after some of them had filled out voter registration application forms at the courthouse.

In City Court, Judge O. L. Kimbrough heard the cases of 11 Negroes arrested Wednesday during two other marches. Three were dismissed, seven were convicted and one case was postponed.

And, in Atlanta, integration leader Martin Luther King appealed to President Kennedy by telegram to "personally intervene" in the Greenwood situation.

Mayor Sampson charged the Justice Department with using "just another one of their intimidation schemes" in taking down the tag numbers of automobiles parked near the city hall and courthouse during the Thursday afternoon trials.

The mayor then praised police handling of incidents here and urged both white and Negro citizens of Greenwood and Leflore County to continue to let officers handle the situation.

James Farmer, national director of the Congress On Racial Equality, and other Negro leaders spoke to a rally Thursday night. They said another march is planned for Friday.

The Negroes drove to the courthouse Thursday morning to apply for voter registration. They were given forms, but most left before they completed the examinations to take part in the march.

The march was broken up within about 10 minutes by several policemen and a police dog.

The Vicksburg Police Department has sent a dog and his officer-handler here to aid Greenwood police and several sheriffs from other Mississippi counties are on hand to offer help if it is needed.

Judge Kimbrough announced he will hand down sentences for Lafayette Surner of Ruleville, Miss., Robert Moses of New York City, Frank Smith of Atlanta, James Wilson Jones of Jackson, Miss., Willie Peacock of Charleston, Miss., and Charles McLauren of Jackson, Miss., at 1 p.m. Friday. They were found guilty of disorderly conduct. Each could receive a $200 fine and four months in the county jail.

Mississippi Police Halt Negro March

By JOHN HALL

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP)—A Negro voter registration march was broken up Thursday as police kept a tight grip on a potentially explosive civil rights struggle.

A Negro minister who led about 50 marchers said he was bitten by a police dog during the confused action, a block from the courthouse. No arrests were made.

The brief skirmish between marchers and police highlighted a day of tense calm. Street barricades in front of the courthouse were raised and then removed a few minutes later.

Police said the marchers, who strode along the sidewalk, posed a threat to normal traffic. Negroes who arrived at the courthouse in smaller groups were not stopped.

Civilian volunteers, armed with riot clubs and wearing yellow Civil Defense helmets, rode with the police in squad cars.

6 CONVICTED

In a City Court trial, six men arrested during Wednesday's demonstration were convicted of disorderly conduct. One man was released, two cases dismissed, the trial of James Forman, Atlanta, was postponed and Lawrence Guyat, of Chicago, was held in contempt of court.

Maximum punishment on the charge of disorderly conduct is a $200 fine and four months in jail. Sentences will be pronounced Friday.

Guyat was cited for contempt when he interrupted Police Chief Curtis Lary's testimony to object to Lary's opinion that the demonstration posed the threat of "a race riot or anything else."

NIGHT VIOLENCE

The voter registration drive in this delta plantation country, where Negroes outnumber whites 2-1, has been spurred by several flashes of night violence—including bullets.

One Negro registration worker is recovering from .45-caliber bullet wounds. The FBI and the Civil Rights Commission have had investigators in the area for weeks.

Urged on by their leaders, Negroes stood in line outside the courthouse registration office. They were admitted one by one to take the qualification test.

The registration march led by the Rev. D. L. Tucker of Greenwood was the second in as many days.

Officers said the minister was faking when he fell and clutched his ankle during the uproar of shouts and dog barking.

Police Commissioner B. A. Hammond said the Rev. Mr. Tucker was examined and definitely was not bitten. Dr. Mabel T. Garner of Greenwood said she treated the minister for "several severe bites" on his left ankle.

The city council said the tense situation was due to "outside agitators" who were not satisfied with anything less than racial strife.

County officials contend Negroes can register as voters without difficulty if they qualify under state law.

The Justice department's most recent survey of LeFlore County —the only official source available —said about 470 Negroes were on the registration list.

Of the county's 46,000 residents, 30,000 are Negroes.

Cops Break Up Negro Parade But Miss. Vote Drive Goes On

Greenwood, Miss., March 28 (AP)—"We plan to change the political structure of this county and this town," a minister told fellow Negroes.

The Rev. James Bevel of Cleveland—a town 35 miles from here—urged them to attempt again to register to vote.

"White people are afraid of Negroes, especially here in the South," Bevel, a representative of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told a rally of about 250 persons at a small Negro church last night.

About 100 others stood outside, listening to Bevel and other speakers on hastily rigged loudspeakers.

A crowd of praying, hymn-singing Negroes had marched on the Leflore County Courthouse a few hours earlier. Police dispersed them and arrested 11 persons.

Whites Outnumbered

This was the latest in a series of explosive incidents in this cotton-graowing area where Negroes outnumber whites 2-1.

See Editorial on Page 48.

In Washington, a Justice Dept. spokesman said the federal government is "preparing to take whatever action is appropriate as soon as possible."

The Greenwood City Council has charged "racial agitators" with promoting trouble in this city of 25,000. There have been shooting incidents.

Police used a trained dog to disperse yesterday's marchers.

A Negro spokesman said one man was nipped and another had his trousers torn by the dog. Police would not comment.

The march came about 10 hours after two shotgun blasts were fired into the home of Dewey Greene Sr. No one was hit.

Greene has one son seeking admission at the University of Mississippi and another working in the voter registration drive.

A Rehearsal For Caroline And a King

Washington, March 28 (AP)—Caroline Kennedy, in a pink dress, dropped in with her mother to watch a rehearsal of "Brigadoon" in the White House East Room.

For the President's 5-year-old daughter it was an enchanting moment of theater in her own home.

The cast of singers and dancers from the New York City Opera Company came to give a special 35-minute performance for visiting King Hassan II of Morocco after a White House state dinner last night.

"It's kind of an unusual dress rehearsal to have a First Lady watching," said Sally Ann Howe, singing star of the show.

Caroline and her mother stayed through the hour-and-a-half rehearsal.

Miss Howe, her producer-director husband Richard Adler, author Alan Jay Lerner, conductor Julius Rudel and director Jean Dalrymple were among the 136 guests at the dinner.

Also among the dinner guests were the Governors of Maryland, Tennessee, Indiana, Florida and Nevada and former Gov. Meyner of New Jersey.

FDA Blocking Prenatal Use Of Vitamin K3

Washington, March 28 (AP)—Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said today he has been told the Food and Drug Administration is taking steps to ban sales of a vitamin supplement, menadione, to pregnant women.

He said the FDA may try to pass off the action against the supplement, vitamin K3, as routine. But, he added:

"The fact is it has taken a behind-the-scenes battle of more than a year and a public airing of the situation to get the FDA to act decisively."

Humphrey, himself a pharmacist, is chairman of a Senate Government Operations subcommittee which heard Dr. John O. Nestor, a pediatrician on the FDA staff, testify last week that the use of the vitamin in prenatal supplements may result in some instances in "brain damage, spasticity and death" to the newborn.

Another Case

Humphrey also announced he has received further confirmation that another drug, mylicon, which he said Nestor had forced from the market as a "pediatric being sold for infant use" in the treatment of colic.

He said his subcommittee will not give FDA officials hearings until its staff has examined all the files on drugs criticized by Dr. Nestor, as well as on "certain other cases," and members have all the facts.

Nestor dropped something of a bombshell when he charged during his testimony that the FDA has permitted the sale of new drugs "imminently hazardous to the public health" by overruling expert medical opinion.

50 to 70 Products

He testified that menadione, an inti-bleeding supplement for pregnant women, was being marketed in 50 to 70 products, many of which can be purchased without prescription.

This was so, he said, despite the fact that it can cause jaundice in the mother and brain damage to a newborn child.

Nestor is in charge of evaluating applications to market new drugs for children's diseases.

Humphrey said the FDA will rescind last December's temporary extension of the manufacturer's food additive petition for the marketing of vitamin K3. The effect will be to black sales of products containing menandione, a subcommittee aia said.

Cape Canaveral Reports Successful Minuteman Tests

Cape Canaveral, March 28 (AP)—A Minuteman missile testing advanced components shot out of an underground silo last night and streaked more than 4,000 miles on a successful test flight.

The missile, an interim Wing 2 model, served as a testbed for many features to be included on the operational Wing 2 Minuteman scheduled for initial flights about mid-year.

Countdown Begins for 2 Space Shots

Cape Canaveral, March 28 (AP)—The Saturn super-rocket and the Explorer 17 satellite were on the pads for a space doubleheader launching today.

Saturn, the 165-foot-tall, 470-ton behemoth, was to blast off sometime before 5:30 p. m. on its fourth test flight. One of the rocket's eight engines was to be shut off deliberately during flight to determine the vehicle's ability to operate with a dead engine.

Explorer 17, perched atop a three-stage Delta rocket, is to be hurled into the sky between 9 p. m. and midnight. The 410-pound satellite is packed with instruments to measure temperatures, pressures, composition and density of the earth's atmosphere.

As on three previous Saturn flights, only the first stage was to be tested. Two upper stages and a nose cone were dummies.

The booster stage powerplant, most powerful known rocket in the world, was geared to develop 1,300,000 pounds of thrust and burn about two minutes. The spent Saturn then was to coast upward to an altitude of 77 miles before plunging into the Atlantic 229 miles southeast of Cape Cape Canaveral seven minutes after launching.

After 100 seconds of flight, inboard engine No. 5 was to be cut off by a timing device to simulate a failure. Saturn's entire system was designed to stop flow of fuel to the dead engine and distribute it equally to the other seven.

The Boxing Business (Contd.)

Ned Irish, president and general manager of Madison Square Garden, has voiced serene confidence that boxing will survive the latest storm created by the death of Davey Moore.

Speaking at a basketball jamboree in Asheville, N. C., Irish suggested that legislators who are now calling for outlawry of this commercialized blood-letting are generally "publicity seekers" who are just trying to get some headlines.

We do not begrudge Mr. Irish his right to defend the manly art of premeditated slaughter; many respectable citizens seemingly share his view. But surely there is crude lack of grace in his attempt to impugn the motives of those who contend that boxing is an obscene cultural lag in a society that prohibits bullfighting.

If the argument is to be conducted on an ad hominem level, we might be tempted to observe that the man who runs the Garden has a vulgar vested interest in perpetrating the so-called sport.

The sharpest condemnation of the "barbaric" boxing business has come from Pope John XXIII. We trust it will not be charged that his statement was dictated by a headline-hunting Vatican press agent.

Herbert Lehman's Day

In honor of Herbert Lehman's 85th birthday, Mayor Wagner has officially designated this as Mr. Lehman's day in our city. We warmly second the motion.

It is tempting to describe Lehman as the grand old man of Our Town. But the phrase would be a misnomer; it would imply that he had become sort of lofty emeritus, remote from the battles of the day.

What is in fact most striking about his life is that the passage of years has heightened rather than diminished his depth of humane conviction, his passionate concern for social justice, his fiery dedication to freedom. He was long a good Governor and a conscientious citizen; but it is actually in the last decade that his full resources of spirit have been most dramatically revealed—in the time of his lonely, valorous challenge to Joe McCarthy, and of his subsequent return to New York to lead the crusade against machine rule.

At a time in life when most men have felt that their major works were done, he had, it might be said, just begun to fight. This is the deep drama of the Lehman story, and one of the memorable sagas in the annals of U. S. liberalism.

Lehman is currently recovering from a fractured hip, but let his enemies take no comfort from this injury. He has upset all the form charts that bracket age with caution; his voice is sorely needed in both state and nation; it will be heard again.

New Depths in Mississippi

The shame of Mississippi reaches new, sickening dimensions.

In Greenwood yesterday, a group of Negroes engaged in the voter registration drive staged a peaceable parade protesting new shotgun assaults on the home of a member of their movement. This was the third such attack in recent days.

As they marched toward City Hall, the embattled Negroes met something new in Mississippi justice. The authorities called a police dog into action to help break up the parade.

It is not immediately clear whether the dog or the police had a bigger day. Two demonstrators were nipped: 11 were arrested, including officials of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee. Presumably they will be accused of having provoked the dog.

Mississippi's cold war against James Meredith has been gruesome enough. But the latest scenes in Greenwood touch new depths of degradation. They also underline the alliance between the racist mobs and the local police in the fight to keep Negroes disfranchised.

The challenge to the U. S. Justice Dept.—and the FBI—is bolder and uglier than ever. Plainly there can be no semblance of the rule of law in Mississippi without far broader, more effective federal intervention. What men have done is bad enough; the police dog's bark will be heard around the world.

It is time that those who are striving to carry out the government's avowed policy of voter registration received real protection. If the FBI's agents are not doing their job, let them be superseded. But let there be no repetition of yesterday's horror story.

Meanwhile, Up in Albany

Gov. Rockefeller's newest admonition to President Kennedy to adopt a "far more vigorous approach" toward the elimination of discrimination in federally aided housing had merit. But it also prompted us to take a look at what is happening to the Baker-Metcalf bill in Albany.

This measure, which has bipartisan sponsorship, would make statewide the fair housing practices now mandatory in the city.

Gov. Rockefeller favors the Baker-Metcalf bill. But that is not enough. What is he doing to insure its passage in the Senate, where Majority Leader Mahoney is dragging his heels, and where the word is out that the bill is in real trouble because of upstate opposition?

The sad fact is that President Kennedy and Gov. Rockefeller could both accuse each other of failure to fight hard enough for equal rights in dealing with their legislatures. And both would be right.

Referendum Vote

Your editorial of March 18 regarding the need for political, social and economic reform in Latin America clarified the role we must play there.

We should realize that representative democracy alone will not bring good government and economic equity to South and Central America and the Caribbean. Perhaps voting by means of a referendum will help to achieve participation of all the people in the government.

The Employer at Fault

Regarding the letter of James McElroy, of Local 246, Building Service Employes Union, stating his position on the licensing of mechanics, as president of the local representing the bulk of the automotive workers in the service and repair industry in greater New York, I oppose any notion that licensing of automobile mechanics would rectify the injustices done to the consumer in the car repair industry.

When Mr. McElroy calls for the licensing of mechanics to "protect the consumer," he is indiscriminately and loosely placing the blame on the mechanic. It is the employer of the auto mechanic, not the mechanic, who determines the repair cost to the consumer. The mechanic's sole function is to repair the car—not to establish the cost of repairs.

The following people did not vote, an abstention in this instance being tantamount to a negative vote: Assemblymen William C. Brennan (D-Elmhurst), Michael Capanegro (D-Flushing), George A. Boxing 'Justified'

The death of Davey Moore has touched off the anticipated reaction. But perhaps the abolition of boxing by legislation is not the answer. If boxing is banned, it will be no less active than it was years ago when such legislation was in force. We might just as well try to legislate out of existence the passion for conquest at any moral cost. We cannot legislate Vietnam off the map, nor even stop the sophistication of weapons of destruction so long as the shallow believe they can morally justify both.

A Magnificent Job

(An Editorial)

Mayor C. E. Sampson, in the accompanying statement, asks citizens of Greenwood and Leflore County to continue to let the city police department handle the situation we currently find ourselves in.

And well he might.

The job local officers have done — and we're including the county and auxiliary officers-has been magnificent.

It has certainly been no secret that the racial agitators in our midst have worked constantly for over ten months to draw federal intervention into Leflore County. The efficiency with which local law enforcement has attacked the crisis of this thrust-upon-it responsibility is one reason why we haven't seen direct intervention.

Another is the attitude of the bulk of our people, Negro and white.

There simply has been no excuse for direct federal intervention.

It may be something of a secret that certain Justice Department civil rights officials are fit to be tied because that excuse hasn't been handed them. They're counting on it, have been for some time, and are reported a trifle surprised that Leflore County hasn't played into their hands.

May their chagrin increase.

From the beginning the Commonwealth has taken the position that after the present crisis, regardless of its length, Leflore County will be substantially the same as before. Some of us may like to remember that though the agitators are making a lot of noise at their rallies, they aren't drawing least a dozen people he knew definitely weren't citizens of the county in that famous march from the courthouse yesterday.

When you can draw only 400 people out of a Negro population of 30,000, you aren't stirring many folks up.

And when your "demonstration" x crowd melts fro ma high of 150 to something like 50, including those from outside who are paid to take part, you haven's got much of a protest group.

That out-of-town reporter's count brings us to one final point.

Many of us, and with reason, wonder — when we see the news media invade en masse — why these folks don't spend their money and energies reporting the crises in their own backyards. But the Commonwealth takes the position that Greenwood should look on these newsmen as either friends or neutrals.

Mayor Sampson, Commissioner B. A. Hammond, Chief Curtis Lary and others have wisely decided to cooperate fully with the visiting press. There were some unfortunate incidents at first, but they weren't serious and have now been forgotten, we hope.

The official attitude should be reflected in the community as a whole. We feel it will be.

The treatment of the Greenwood story, with editorial and editorial cartoon, as well as a page 1 news story, in this morning's Commercial Appeal, we think, was fair to us .

The wise public information policy at city hall helped there. The policy will

Police Disperse Smaller Group Today, Keep Crowds Off Corners

City Judge O. L. Kimbrough slapped eight Negro Student Non-Violent Coordinating workers with the maxiumum penalty this afternoon.

Judge Kimbrough gave each four months in the county jail and levied a fine of $200.

The eight were returned to their cells in city jail and didn't announce immediately whether they will appeal. Kimbrough had given them 40 days to do so and set an appeal bond figure of $500.

They didn't announce to the court whether they would make bond.

Those sentenced were James Foreman, executive secretary of the SNCC based in Atlanta, Lawrence Guyat, Charles McLauren, Lafayette Surney, James Wilson Jones, Robert Moses, Willie Peacock, and Frank Smith.

None are from Leflore County.

As court opened, Judge Kimbrough found Guyat guilty of contempt of court and fined him $50. He also sentenced Guyat to one day in jail on the charge.'

Guyat, as the others, was found guilty of the first charge, disorderly conduct anc refusing to obey an officer, which grew out of his arrest in Wednesday's demonstration.

Kimbrough set an additional $300 appeal bond for Guyat on the contempt charge.

Today's court action followed a mild demonstration by the Negroes characterized mostly by excellent police work.

About 50 Negroes had begun to march toward the courthouse late this morning. Officers under the command of Chief of Police Curtis Lary met them at the corner of Avenue H. and McLauren using a loud speaker, Lary ordered them to disperse.

He told them to reform in smaller groups and walk to the courthouse by different routes, if they wished to.

One Negro was taken into custody by two patrolmen, James Woodard and W. R. Taylor, when he refused to go where the officers directed him.

Look After Your Territory, Negro Tells Kennedy

A Negro newspaper editor from Greenville today sent a telegram to Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, concerning the racial situation in Greenwood.

The Rev. Albert Jenkins, editor of the Negro Leader, a monthly newspaper published in Greenville told Kennedy:

Honorable Robert F. Kennedy: In statement previously made by Justice department, spokesman says we are getting a full report of what is happening in Greenwood, Mississippi and are preparing to take every action that is appropriate as soon as possible.

I'd like your department to consider this fact. That prepared leaders in the state of Misissippi can take care of the situation here. Therefore I'd like for you to consider this please:

Instead of sending people from other states to participate in the affairs of Mississippi, let your Dept. issue statement stopping the people from the slum districts from New-York, Chicago and other states from coming here - and we will assure you that the people of this state can get together and solve their own problems.

For I think that both Negro leaders and White leaders can do this without outside interference. For I know there is a segreation in the northern states. The people who are closer to you do not have all their rights and privileges, yet I know Mississippi is a good place for the administration to use for it's political

Slyter Goes To His Death

PARCHMAN, Miss. (AP) —Convicted murderer Kenneth Slyter was executed today at the Mississippi state penitentiary for killing a 15-year-old babysitter.

Slyter died in the gas chamber minutes after midnight for the death of Sandra Holderfield of Jackson.

Supt. C. E. Breazeale said the execution was carried out on the date as set by the state Supreme Court.

The state high court refused two weeks ago to review Slyter's conviction and death sentence.

Slyter picked up Miss Holderfield to baby sit after making arrangements by telephone last April 21.

He was arrested from a description of the car by her family.

The high court had previously upheld the conviction and set a March 15 death date, then postponed the execution date until today to give the court time to decide whether it would permit appeal proceedings.

Statement Of Mayor Sampson

I would like to take this opportunity of talking to the citizens of Greenwood and Leflore County in regard to the trouble we have been having with outside agitators.

I am pleased to report to you that the Greenwood Police Department has done a magnificent job in maintaining order and they will continue to do so if you, the citizens of Greenwood and Leflore County, will continue to leave it in their hands.

I plead with you, the white and colored citizens of Greenwood, to continue as you have. We are especially proud of our faithful colored citizens who have lived in harmony with us for so many years, and I assure you if you will only continue ignoring these outside agitators, the time will come again soon when we can resume our usual routine and work together for the future advancement of our beloved Greenwood.

At Least Some Of Billy Sol's Empire Was Built On Fraud

EL PASO, Tex. AP)—At least part of the Billie Sol Estes maneuvers in farm finance were fraud and not just a method of doing big business, a federal court jury decided Thursday.

Unless the appellate courts disagree, the chubby, round faced promoter could draw prison terms totaling up to 21 years. U.S. Dist. Judge R.E. Thomason said sentence will be passed in about two weeks.

The verdict, capping an 18-day trial, came just one day short of a year after federal agents arrested Estes at his costly Pecos home in West Texas. Since then his 30-odd firms dealing in grain storage, fertilier sales and cotton farming have collapsed. Now he's bankrupt.

Estes, outwardly unperturbed, gazed steadily at the jurors as the decision was read. He even managed a weak smile. His wife Patsy, occupying a front row seat in the courtroom, looked stricken.

As they left with Estes' three brothers, both declined comment on the conviction or their plans. Mrs. Estes, a comely blonde, clutched his arm tightly and murmured in a low, tense voice:

"He looks just as good to me today as he did yesterday."

Prosecutors claimed Estes bilked about 100 individuals and up to a dozen finance companies, including some of the nations largest, of about $24 million through phony mortgages on fertilizer tanks.

Specifically the jury convicted him on four counts of mail fraud and one of conspiracy, each carrying a maximum penalty of five years in prison. He was acquitted on nine counts and awaits trial on 13 more at Pecos.

Three co-defendants pleaded guilty earlier to five counts in the same indictment. They are Harold E. Orr of Amarillo and Coleman D. McSpadden of Lubbock, each sentenced to 10 years, and Ruel W. Alexander of Amarillo, six years.

Another jury convicted Estes on a state charge of swindling last fall at Tyler, fixing his sentence at eight years.

In the case here, the chief defense lawyer, John D. Cofer, asked the court to let Estes remain free under 3100,000 bond while an appeal is drafted. Judge Thomason granted the request, at the same time ordering a pre-sentencing report from a federal probation officer.

It took 49 hours and 45 minutes for the jury of 10 men and two women to work out a verdict. The panel advised Judge Thomason 21 hours earlier it was deadlocked but agreed to keep on trying to agree.

Those sentenced were James Foreman, executive secretary of the SNCC based in Atlanta, Lawrence Guyat, Charles McLauren, Lafayette Surney, James Wilson Jones, Robert Moses, Willie Peacock, and Frank Smith.

None are from Leflore County.

As court opened, Judge Kimbrough found Guyat guilty of contempt of court and fined him $50. He also sentenced Guyat to one day in jail on the charge.'

Guyat, as the others, was found guilty of the first charge, disorderly conduct anc refusing to obey an officer, which grew out of his arrest in Wednesday's demonstration.

Kimbrough set an additional $300 appeal bond for Guyat on the contempt charge.

Today's court action followed a mild demonstration by the Negroes characterized mostly by excellent police work.

About 50 Negroes had begun to march toward the courthouse late this morning. Officers under the command of Chief of Police Curtis Lary met them at the corner of Avenue H. and McLauren using a loud speaker, Lary ordered them to disperse.

He told them to reform in smaller groups and walk to the courthouse by different routes, if they wished to.

One Negro was taken into custody by two patrolmen, James Woodard and W. R. Taylor, when he refused to go where the officers directed him.

He was identified as Donald Harris, 22, of 5440 Mishoula Ave., New York City.

After the group was dispersed they straggled to the court house by twos and threes, and some went into the courthouse to apply to register to vote.

City and county officers kept order outside the courthouse, asking groups of white people who congregated nearby to move on. They coperated with the officers and soon about the only close by audience for the Negroes were crews of newsmen.

When the circuit clerk's office closed for the noon hour, the Negroes left the courthouse. They at first attempted to form up in a solid group, but when police told them to leave by small groups they did so.

While the Negroes were at the courthouse, some of those arrested in Wedsesday's march talked to a reporter in city jail this morning.

"We're going to wait for the federal government to get us out," the executive secretary of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee said his morning from the Greenwood jail.

James Forman of Atlanta, awaiting trial today on a charge of disorderly conduct stemming from a march Wednesday morning on the city hall and the Leflore County Courthouse, said the Negroes planned to wait in jail until the federal government comes in an gets them out.

Robert Moses of New York City. field secretary of the SNCC, said he did not plan to appeal his conviction yesterday in police court on the disorderly conduct charge.

Moses told a reporter he planned to take the sentence handed down by the court today. It was at this point that Forman broke in with his remark about the federal government.

During the trial yesterday of the ten Negroes arested Wednesday, an attorney, Arvid "Bud" Sather, of the Civil Rights division of the Department of Justice took notes of all the testimony given.

Sather said he was sent in from Washington along with another attorney, John Martin. Martin did not make an appearance in the courtroom, but was noticed outside the building during the trial taking license tag number of cars parked around the city hall.

Two men will be tried in the city courtroom today when the court convenes at 1 p. m. and six others are expected to be sentenced.

Awaiting trial today were James Forman who claimed when he was brought into the courtroom yesterday that his attorney, Wiley Branton, Negro of Atlanta was expected later in the day. Judge O. L.Kimbrough said he will continue the case against Forman today.

A second Negro, Lawrence Guyat of Chicago was cited for conttempt of court after he continued interrupting Police Chief Curtis Lary during his testimony.

Judge Kimbrough warned Guyat time after time that he would be cited for contempt if he didn't stop the interruptions.

The judge told the Chicago Negro: "you will be given an opportunity to speak your piece, but until then remain quiet while this witness gives his testimony."

Prior to the start of the trials yesterday Henry Smith, one of the 11 arrested, was released because of lack of evidence and charges were dismissed.

Two others were released yesterday. Robert Talbert of McComb, was found not guilty by the court. Talbert told the court that he had been arrested in Jackson, McComb and a number of cities on charges of breach of peace.

Curtis Hayes of Summit was also released when his case was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Those found guilty and awaiting sentence today were Robert Moses of New York, Lafayette Surner of Ruleville, James Wilson Jones of Jackson; Frank Smith of Atlanta and Willie Peacock of Charleston.

Meanwhile, Mayor C. E. Sampson told visiting newsmen at a press conference yesterday afternoon that officers may link members of the Negro groups in town to the fire of Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee headquarters here last Sunday night.

"It has been definitely proved that white men didn't break into the office as Sam Block claimed," the mayor said, "but reports will probablyy show that arson was committed."

When questioned by newsmen as to his meaning, Mayor Sampson said: "Yes, I mean the Negroes set it themselves."

The Rev. Albert Jenkins, editor of the Negro Leader, a monthly newspaper published in Greenville told Kennedy:

Honorable Robert F. Kennedy: In statement previously made by Justice department, spokesman says we are getting a full report of what is happening in Greenwood, Mississippi and are preparing to take every action that is appropriate as soon as possible.

I'd like your department to consider this fact. That prepared leaders in the state of Misissippi can take care of the situation here. Therefore I'd like for you to consider this please:

Instead of sending people from other states to participate in the affairs of Mississippi, let your Dept. issue statement stopping the people from the slum districts from New-York, Chicago and other states from coming here - and we will assure you that the people of this state can get together and solve their own problems.

For I think that both Negro leaders and White leaders can do this without outside interference. For I know there is a segreation in the northern states. The people who are closer to you do not have all their rights and privileges, yet I know Mississippi is a good place for the administration to use for it's political football.

But we aren't ready to catch it. I am hoping that you consider this matter and that you will do something about it.

U. S. Wants Direct Link

GENEVA AP) — The United States pressed the Soviet Union today for the establishment of a direct permanent communications link between the leaders of the two powers to avoid the risk of war by accident or miscalculation.

U.S. Ambassador Charles C. Stelle told the 17-nation disarmament talks the Cuban crisis demonstrated the need for improved continuous and reliable communications between the leaders of the two major military powers the United States and the Soviet Union.

He said the U.S. government "is prepared to act quickly" in setting up a permanent line which could be used both for teletype and voice communications.

He said the American end of the line would be in the National Command Center which maintains continuing contact with the President and his principal assistants.

U. S. Seeks Court Order To Tie City Police Hands

Appreciation

Greenwood policemen this morning expressed gratitude to citizens who have brought coffee, cakes, pies and other food to the police station during the past few days.

The city officers are on round-the-clock alert and the contributions of food have come in handy.

The officers didn't say so, but some more small gifts of food would probably go a long way toward relieveing the work load put on the officers and officials.

Some "part time" officials, incidentally, have gone more than fulltime during the present crisis. The two city commissioners B. A. Hammond and W. G. Mize have gone into full time service. Bobby Pittman, Greenwood Leflore Industrial Board manager, has added public relations for the city to his other chores.

There are plenty of others at city hall, to whom the Commonwealth feels sure Greenwood citizens will want to express their appreciation to.

A good way is to see that they don't go into an enforced diet because of the press of duties.

Prisoners Removed To County Jail

The eight Negro Student Non-Violent Coordinating workers sentenced yesterday in the city court were moved late in the afternoon to the Leflore County jail.

Greenwood police finished processing the men shortly before 5 p. m. and started transferring the prisoners one at a time.

City officials said the move was being made because of the limited facilities in the city jail located in the city hall.

Before the prisoners were moved they were each photographed and fingerprinted.

Each received the maximum sentence yesterday of four months in the county jail and a $200 fine.

Lawrence Guyot was also sentenced to one day and a $50 fine when he was cited for contempt of court by police court judge O. L. Kimbrough.

The eight stated yesterday through their Negro attorney Wylie Branton of Atlanta that they did plan to post a bond.

James Forman of Atlanta had stated prior to his trial that they would wait for the federal government to get them out of jail.

Meanwhile Mayor C. E. Sampson lashed out at the "professional trouble-makers who have invaded our city shedding verbal tears for the hungry umemployed Negroes in our community."

He gave these facts about the employment picture in Leflore County:

"Unemployment in Leflore County in 1962 ranged from a high of 5.6 per cent in February to a low of 1.6 per cent in September. This is well below the national unemployment average. These figures include both Negro and white citizens.

Hammond, Sampson, Evans, Lary, Frasier, Smith Are Defendants

The Justice Department Saturday asked for a federal court injunction to halt interference with Negroes attempting to register to vote.

The department, in a suit filed in U.S. District Court in Oxford, Miss., also asked that Negroes jailed after demonstrations in Greenwood Thursday be freed on their own recognizance.

Eight of them sentenced to four months in jail and a $200 fine on disorderly conduct charges yesterday after a vote march vowed to stay behind bars until the federal government acts.

The suit seeks an order against Greenwood and Leflore county officials forbidding them to interfere with the rights of Negroes to register to vote.

It asks that arrest, prosecution, and intimidation of Negro vote workers be stopped. The suit would prohibit use of force, police dogs, and other means to block the would-be voters.

A hearing for a temporary injunction was set for noon Monday at Aberdeen, Miss., before federal district Judge Claude Clayton.

Named as defendants in the suit were Greenwood Mayor Charles Sampson; Fire-Police Commissioner Buff A. Hammond; Police Chief Curtis Lary; City Prosecutor Gray Evans; Deputy Sheriff Wilburn Smith; County Attorney John J. Frazier, and the city of Greenwood and Leflore County.

Asked what his policy would be in the light of the suit, Hammond said, "Well take the same action we've always taken. There will be no policy change."

A Justice Department attorney said papers would be served on the defendants today.

Mayor Charles Sampson said "We were expecting it."

Sampson said "that has been their policy in other places in supporting these agitators who are in town."

"At the same time," Sampson said, "I dont see where they have any grounds for an injunction."

'I am not surprised that this is their policy, in supporting the agitators, which bears out in my release to the press yesterday,' Sampson said.

Sampson had charged that the Justice Department was helping "professional agitators' foment trouble in Leflore County in an attempt to win Negro votes.

Officers of the circuit court in Greenwood, where registrations are held, were closed today. They or normally open until noon on Saturday.

A freshly printed card stapled to the courthouses front door said, "All county offices closed on Saturday by order of the board of supervisors."

Some Negroes, who showed up this morning, turned around and left.

Negro leaders of the vote drive earlier said they had asked President Kennedy to go to the Mississippi Delta city and walk with Negroes going to the county courthouse in their bid to become registered voters.

"Because approximately 85 percent of our Negro citizens have agricultural backgrounds, Leflore County participates in an exchange program sponsored by the states of Mississippi, North Carolina and Florida.

"Approximately 400 Negro citizens of Leflore County are transported each summer to N. Carolina where they find employment in harvesting the tobacco crop. They remain in N. Carolina for an average of six weeks each summer.

"In the winter months—November - March—up to 1,000 of our Negroes are transported to Florida for agricultural employment.

"The State of Florida issued a call for 300 Negro agricultural workers this month.

"Only eight Leflore County Negroes found it necessary to leave this area for employment.

"Mississippi was unable to fill the order.

"Unemployment in Leflore County at the present time is approximately 6 per cent and the Mississippi State Employment Service attributed the temporary rise in unemployment to weather conditions and stated in its March Labor Market Report that the outlook for an increase in employment in this area is favorable. The beginning of good weather should show an increase in outside construction and agricultural employment."

"It is obvious to us that if only eight of our Negro citizens applied for employment in Florida they must be satisfied with economic conditions in Leflore County."

Canaveral color bars are bared

NEW YORK — President Kennedy has been urged to end "the continuing flagrant discrimination suffered by colored citizens in the Cape Canaveral - Cocoa area in Florida."

In a letter to the President, Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive secretary, said that the 1,000 colored persons employed in the nation's vital space effort in that area are denied opportunity for job promotions and refused access to decent housing while "as many as 300 FHA-financed homes stand vacant and unused in the Cocoa metropolitan area."

An affidavit charging housing discrimination, he told the President, had been filed by the NAACP with the new Committee on Equal Opportunity in Housing on March 15.

County officials given ultimatum

GREENWOOD, Miss. — When it became apparent that the Federal Government was determined that needy, some 22,000, Mississippians would receive surplus foods, the LeFlore County board of supervisors reluctantly agreed last week to restore the food distribution program.

The county had stopped distribution of foods under the federal surplus program last fall after James Meredith entered the University of Mississippi and teams of workers sought to increase registration of local colored non-voters.

At that time, the county gave as an excuse that there was insufficient money in the county to finance the distribution.

ORVILLE FREEMAN, Secretary of Agriculture, told the county last week that it could either reinstitute the distribution program with its own funds or the program would be financed by federal funds.

He said: "They indicated, as they always have claimed, that they did not have the funds for this, and if the funds were provided, they would do it.

ATLANTA — Catholic hospitals in the Archdiocese of Atlanta will no longer be operated on a segregated basis, it was announced Friday by Archbishop Paul J. Hallinan. The diocese embraces three hospitals in 71 north Georgia counties.

"No citizen, white or colored, can be in doubt about the church's teaching on racial justice in this Archdiocese, or her honest determination to carry this out in practice," the prelate said.

1,000 Va. students stage mass march

By SCOTT HENDERSON

PETERSBURG, Va. — More than 1,000 students from Virginia State College and Peabody High School marched to Police Headquarters Monday afternoon in an impressive protest demonstration.

They sang and prayed on the steps of the building while members of the Petersburg Improvement Association were having a conference with Police Chief Traylor.

The delegation which saw the chief included David E. Gunter, president of the PIA; Dr Leonard Terrell, the Rev. Grady Powell, the Rev. Milton A. Reid and Herbert Coulton.

Their complaint concerned police conduct during a Saturday student demonstration against non-admission to the downtown theatres.

During a four-hour period in the rain last Saturday some 200 students had participated in the theatre protest, being harassed, hooted and threatened by a mob of agitators.

Rep. Powell claims wiretap discovered on his office phone

WASHINGTON

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell last week told the Department of Justice that his office phone had been tapped. A Justice Department spokesman said Atty. General Robert F. Kennedy sent someone to interview the congressman.

The Harlem Democrat wasn't available for comment, but Edwin Guthman, Justice Department press information officer, said Powell "called . . . and said they had found a tap on the telephone."

Convictions of 373 students get review

WASHINGTON

South Carolina — and by extension no other state — can interfere with a citizen's right to protest and petition for the redress of wrongs by arresting them on "breach of peace" or other such charges.

This was the substance of the Supreme Court ruling last week which sent the convictions of 373 student protesters back to the South Carolina Supreme Court for review.

The protesters were arrested March 15, 1960 during a march on the business district in Orangeburg which protested the arrest of other students engaged in a march on the state capitol a few days before.

* * *

THEY WERE charged with disturbing the peace and were sentenced to 30 days in jail or a $50 fine. Court testimony revealed that the students were not disorderly. Officers stated, however, that the students' actions might have precipitated violence.

Circuit court and state supreme court appeals were fruitless -- the convictions were upheld.

The U.S. Supreme Court, in vacating the state court judgment, directed that the convictions be reconsidered in the light of a recent Columbia, S.C. case where 187

ORVILLE FREEMAN, Secretary of Agriculture, told the county last week that it could either reinstitute the distribution program or the Federal Government would.

The county commissioners consented with bad grace, saying the county, "was confronted with the proposition of accepting the offer of the Department of Agriculture to permit it (the county) to make the distribution at the sole expense of the Federal Government or to decline and subject the people of Leflore County to an invasion of federal agents and probably marshals."

In actuality, federal marshals would not have been sent to distribute surplus foods.

The county commissioners' mention of them indicates that the same kind of anti-federal law violence was contemplated as that which necessitated the sending of marshals into the University of Mississippi enrollment.

DESPITE THE SOUR report given by the county about the matter, a spokesman for the Agriculture Department said the "county board seemed happy" that program would be financed by federal funds.

He said: "They indicated, as they always have claimed, that they did not have the funds for this, and if the funds were provided, they would do it.

Cane-killer indicted; may seek change in trial site

William D. Zantzinger, a Southern Maryland tobacco farmer, was indicted for murder Tuesday by the grand jury here.

He is accused of striking Mrs. Hattie Carroll, 50, a grandmother and part -time waitress, with a wooden walking cane thereby causing her death.

The Criminal Court arraignment for Zantzinger is tentatively set for Thursday, March 28 before Judge Charles D. Harris.

The speculation is that Zantzinger will ask to have the trial moved from Baltimore to a county in Western Maryland.

In Maryland, a defendant who is under a murder indictment is entitled to one move. The state, however, decides where the trial is to be moved.

Tense three-day trial ends in acquittal for Army officer

BELAIR, Md.—Sgt. Lavell O. Green of Aberdeen Proving Grounds, was found not guilty of rape by Judge Stewart O. Day at the close of a three-day trial in a packed court room of the Criminal Court of Harford County Wednesday.

The 18 - year army career man, father of seven children, had been in jail in Bel Air since September 28, 1962 awaiting trial.

Mrs. Judith Ann Rom, wife of Pfc. John Rom, both natives of Milwaukee, Wis., had accused Sgt. Green of the crime.

She said it took place on the night of Thursday, Sept. 27, in her second floor apartment, in Baldwin Meadows, a service men's housing project near Aberden.

* * *

MRS. ROM, 22, claimed that she had watched a TV show, switched it off and gone to bed.

There was testimony that, she awakened in the darkness to hear a noise and to see a "big, bulky figure in a long light top coat" coming through the door of the living room in which she was asleep on a sofa bed.

She said she screamed, "as long and as loud as I could" when the figure approached her.

Mrs. Rom added that she was gagged and choked by the assailant, and she gave up struggling when she heard a Voice say that " if she was quiet, he wouldn't hurt her."

Mrs. Rom said she recognized the voice as that of Sgt. Green, whom she had met in the craft shop of the army post at Aberdeen Proving Grounds.

Here Sgt. Green directs a staff of eleven instructors and supervises the monthly servicing of approximately 5,000 servicemen, their wives and dependents.

SGT. GREEN testified that he had visited the Rom apartment around 8 p.m. on the evening of September 27th at the specific request of Mrs. Rom, and the door to her and food was available, and we brought them together. We were ready to do whatever was necessary to feed the people."

The cost of the program, to be borne by the Federal Government, will be about $15,000.

The department's ultimatum was presented to the county commissioners by James A. Hutchins Jr., a deputy director of distribution for the Agriculture Department, and Russell H. James, Atlanta area field supervisor.

* * *

BEFORE THE COMMISSIONERS scrapped the surplus foods program last fall, about 26,000 persons received aid. The county declared that only those persons certified as needy by the county welfare department would be eligible. This cut the number to about 5,000.

Various civil rights organizations accused the county of using the food cut-off as a means of retaliating against colored persons registering to vote and intimidating others.

About two - thirds of the county population is colored and most are untrained persons working in rural areas. Local planters, bankers and merchants exercise an economic squeeze against these people whenever a civil rights crusade is carried out.

Last fall, thousands were chased off the share-crop farms where they had lived and worked for many years. Owners said they were being replaced by automation.

* * *

THIS WAS NOT the only anti-rights step taken by county residents. In a period of less than a month, terrorists shot into cars carrying workers in the voting drive and also into the local campaign office. One worker, James Travis, was severely wounded by a slug from a 45 caliber sub-machine gun.

The drive is being carried on by the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee with assistance from other rights organizations. When the surplus foods program was ended the organizations banded together and solicited food and clothing from all over the nation for the victims of the squeeze.

The drivers of one of the first truck-loads of supplies to be sent into the area were arrested by county police and held "for investigation" for over a day before being released on bond.

They were charged with possession of barbiturates, although they had none in the truck. The medicine under suspicion was one to be used by expectant mothers.

* * *

SEVERAL HUNDRED pounds of food and clothing were missing, according to the drivers, when the police released the truck after searching it. Some of the food and clothing were rendered unfit for use by having been soaked with oil.

James Foreman, SNCC executive secretary, said that that the reinstatement of the surplus foods program was "a great victory for those seeking to bring democracy to Mississippi."

He said his group is now determined "to register every colored person in this county."

similar convictions were overturned.

Students in the case last week attend Claflin and South Carolina State Colleges — both all-colored schools.

Their arrest, the court said, was "a violation of Constitutionally protected rights of free speech, free assembly and freedom of petition."

TWO RESTAURANTS and a motel in Pine Bluff, Ark. have desegregated since a series of sitdown demonstrations began here Feb. 1. They are the lunch-counters at Woolworth's and Walgreen's and the Pines Hotel.

Another cafeteria desegregated earlier, one day after the protests began.

In the past month, stores in Durham, N.C. have hired 15 colored persons in non-menial jobs as a result of a fair employment campaign carried on by CORE and NAACP youth groups.

In Greensboro, 30 persons picketed City Hall because "We've waited some time for the Mayor's Committee to make some recommendations as to the solution of better relationships — and better jobs," according to John Hatchett, CORE spokesman.

IN LONG BEACH, N.Y., seven colored and six white persons were arrested in a demonstration which protested the refusal of a building superintendent to rent a vacant apartment to a colored couple.

In Edenton, N.C., three youths were arrested for picketing a jimcrow movie house without a permit. They were released on $50 bond.

Arrested were William K. Jordan, 20; Bernard Moye, 16; and Franklin Lawrence, 22. That night, about 50 young people congregated and sang the theme song of the sitdown movement, "We Shall Overcome," in front of the theater and in front of a drugstore owned by Mayor John A. Mitchner.

Sumter County (Ga.) officers detained two SNCC field secretaries and threatened them with arrest for "vagrancy." The pair, Donald Harris and John Churchville, have been in the County three weeks working in the voter-registration drive.

BECAUSE THEY tried to go to church in Talladega, Ala., 13 students must serve 90 days in jail and pay $100 fines. The students, who attend Talladega College, plan to appeal. The men in the group were sentenced to do others with trespassing. Their court hearing is set for April 3.

Complaining of "irresponsible police action" the PIA delegation submitted a letter to Chief Traylor charging that:

"Police dogs were allowed to maul and terrorize the peaceful demonstrators as they non-violently protested segregation in the city's theatres."

The letter pointed out that "During the three years of our existence, there has not been a single instance of violence or misconduct on our part dating from the library protests of 1960, throughout the sit-ins and many, many weeks of picketing at different intervals.

"You yourself, on several occasions, privately and under oath have stated publicly, that you had observed no disorder surrounding the various activities of the PIA and related groups."

The delegation made it clear that they had no quarrel with the police chief personally, acknowledging that he has always shown a "thoroughly professional attitude and care in the dispatch of your responsibility to maintain law and order."

BUT AS to some of the officers on the scene of the demonstration, the complainants declared that:

"We have documented evidence of patrolmen who set the dogs upon our peaceful demonstrators with a marked degree of relish and joviality.

"Their permissive attitude with the hoodlum element led to several incidents of mayhem against the protesters."

Chief Traylor expressed reregret about the situation; said if any specific officers could be identified as such offenders, they would be taken to task; and assured the group that no such incident would occur again.

FOLLOWING the conference with the police administrator, the mass demonstrators marched through the business district back to the campus and their homes in the city.

They were not subjected to any oppositional agitation at this time.

On Sunday night, some 700 aroused citizens had attended a meeting at Gillfield Baptist Church.

FEATURED speaker was the militant Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, former Gillfield pastor and now executive secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

He was introduced by another civil rights leader of the Petersburg community, Dr. Milton A. Reid, president of the Virginia area of the SCLC.

Mr. Gunter discussed the current theatre situation; Herbert Coulton spoke on voter registration; and H. E. Fauntleroy Jr., the schools.

Other program participants included Mrs. Sue Manson, the Rev. Jackson A. Brown, the Rev. Grady Powell, Miss Mattie Coles, Garfield Walker, Joseph Owens, Dr. L. C. Johnson and the Goodwill Choir.

THE YOUNG people arrested during the theatre protests included:

Vivian Tillman, Carol Johnson, Alvis Davis, Roland Sherrod, Allan Colon, Clinton Oliver, Rachel Bryant, John Jackson, Barbara Flemming;

Clarence Arnold, William Hicks, Paul E. Wright, Samuel Young, John Puryear, Harold Young, James Waller, William Simmons, James Cunningham.

WILLIAM MOORE
'Mississippi, here I come'

1,000 miles to Miss., walking all the way

BALTIMORE

As you read this story a a Baltimore mailman should be nearing the end of a 41-mile walk from this city to the White House in Washington with his own personal letter to President Kennedy.

In this note to JFK, postman William Moore will tell the Chief Executive of still another Freedom Walk - this next one to cover 1,000 miles from the White House to Mississippi.

Bill Moore, a tall blond 35 - year - old ex-Marine, left on foot for Washington last night with his letter to the President.

He wore two signs: END SEGREGATION IN AMERICA and EQUAL RIGHTS FOR ALL MEN.

The trip to the White House marks Mr. Moore's second Freedom Walk. His first covered 27 miles from Baltimore to the State capitol in Annapolis where he delivered a personal note to the Secretary of the Senate advocating that "we place human rights above property rights and abolish segregation in all forms in the state of Maryland."

His first walk came off during the Northwood theater demonstrations the week of Feb. 18.

IN HIS letter to Mr. Kennedy Bill Moore explained the purpose of this second trek:

"I am a mailman and this is the farthest I have ever walked to deliver a letter. Recently I walked from Baltimore to the State Capitol at Annapolis with an appeal for more effective civil rights legislation.

"It is not so much that I need the exercise as that I must do what I can toward achieving human brotherhood. Walking and letter delivering are my so-called "professional skills" as legislation and administration are yours - and we must do the best we can with the abilities we have."

Mr. Moore's note to the President also stated that "within the next month or two, I will start walking from the White House here, destined for Mississippi with these signs on my back . . . if I may deliver any letter from you to those on my line of travel, I would be most happy to do so." ... ...

The postal employee also explained to Mr. Kennedy that "two of my great-grandfathers from Mississippi fought for the South in the Civil War. I was raised for seven years in that state: relatives of mine live there and in Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida Arkansas and Texas.

"The South is like my second home. I used to think as they now think. But I have had the advantage of living most of my life in states with greater racial tolerance. I am employed in your totally integrated Post Office Department.

"I can see the harm to whites as well as to colored people where racial prejudice and denial of civil rights is the custom."

* * *

WHAT KIND of a man is willing to take 1,000 - mile walks in the name of civil rights and brotherhood?

Bill Moore talked to the AFRO on the eve of his hike to the nation's captial.

He is a tall mild-seeming fellow with a quick smile who dresses neatly but unpretentiously.

He talks easily about his beliefs with a low-key sense of humor. There is nothing saintly about him he is able to laugh at himself and others.

"It's true, I spent seven years as a boy in Mississippi. Then I moved to Binghampton, N.Y. After high school in Binghampton I served four years in the Marine Corps beginning in 1945.

"Then I did some studying here and in England and Spain. For the past four years I have been a mailman. In November of last year I got a transfer to Baltimore. I wanted a contrast. There is quite a bit of difference between Binghampton and Baltimore racially.

"There are about 300 colored families out of 150,000 back home and they are completely integrated.

"But by the same token, there is a lot of difference between Baltimore and Mississippi. Down there as a kid everyone took segregation for granted.

"Recently, because I am interested in world peace, I was getting quite a reputation in Binghampton as an oddball. Here I am not well enough known for that. My supervisors have never said anything to me about my Freedom Walks."

* * *

BILL MOORE does not mind being regarded as a screwball. He applies this label to himself in conversation but when he gets serious about his ideals the listener is aware of a man who knows just what he is doing and hopes to achieve.

The mailman already has the distinction of being the only adult non-student who went to jail in protest of the recently ended Northwood theater segregation policy.

Of this experience he said: "A night in jail helps a man's convictions on the racial problem. I knew of the trouble at Northwood so I went out to look. In the movie lobby I saw a group of colored girls in line and I went in and asked ' is this the line for tickets?' One of the students waiting in line said 'yes, you can go around us if you like.'

"The trespass law was read. None of the students moved. One of them said to me 'you don't have to be arrested' and I then asked him 'you mean you have to be arrested?'

"He said 'yes, for my dignity.'

"I figured if they could stand up for their rights I could stand up for mine, so to speak. It was a choice of two lines, you see, but I knew I couldn't enjoy the movie after this so I followed the line that led to jail."

* * *

BILL MOORE was asked if he considered himself a "rebel."

"Oh sure," he said quickly, and just as quickly flipped out a small key holder with a Confederate flag design. Such an emblem startled his questioner. He laughed.

"I consider myself a rebel with their spirit but not their ideology. Some people don't understand but I have a love your enemy approach to civil rights.

In Edenton, N.C., three youths were arrested for picketing a jimcrow movie house without a permit. They were released on $50 bond.

Arrested were William K. Jordan, 20; Bernard Moye, 16; and Franklin Lawrence, 22. That night, about 50 young people congregated and sang the theme song of the sitdown movement, "We Shall Overcome," in front of the theater and in front of a drugstore owned by Mayor John A. Mitchner.

BECAUSE THEY tried to go to church in Talladega, Ala., 13 students must serve 90 days in jail and pay $100 fines. The students, who attend Talladega College, plan to appeal. The men in the group were sentenced to do their terms at hard labor.

Arthur Shores, attorney for the group, filed notice of appeal and the students were freed on $500 bond each. The students were arrested last April at white churches in the city.

Talladega College President Arthur Gray later led a march protesting the arrest of the students.

attempting to arrest the couple.

Both are free on bail — $25,000 for Zantzinger and $600 for his wife.

THE ZANTZINGERS were arrested at the Emerson Hotel, here, where they were guests at the annual charity ball of the Spinsters.

Mrs. Carroll was working at the ball as a waitress when she was struck by Zantzinger.

During an earlier Municipal Court hearing, Mrs. Grace E. Shelton, 1900 block W. Mulberry St., and Miss Shirley Burrell, 1000 block Shellbank Rd., waitresses who were working with Mrs. Carroll at the time she was struck, were star witnesses.

Mrs. Shelton testified that Zantzinger called Mrs. Carroll a "black b—" before striking her with a cane.

He was reportedly angered because Mrs. Carroll did not serve him fast enough when he asked for a drink.

Miss Burrell said that Zantzinger "called us n—s and black this, black that all evening."

MRS. SHELTON said that Mrs. Carroll was stiff and her eyes glazed after the attack.

Mrs. Carroll lost consciousness after being struck and died at Mercy Hospital without regaining consciousness.

apartment was opened by Mrs. Rom.

The relentless cross examination of W. A. C. Hughes, chief counsel for the defense, brought the admission from Officer Clarence Foote of the Aberdeen Police Department that there were no fresh marks on the apartment door to indicate that it had been broken into.

Mrs. Rom admitted under the intensive questioning of Mr. Hughes that after the alleged attack she had gone to the window to make sure the Sergeant's car had driven away, then she had dressed, combed her hair and gone to knock on the adjoining neighbor's apartment door 1:30 p.m. in the morning.

Mrs. Juanita Jackson Mitchell, associated defense counsel, in her hour long argument to the court charged that the actions of Mrs. Rom were not those of an outraged honest female.

The defense had established, she stated, that none of the adjoining apartment neighbors had heard the alleged screams of Mrs. Rom, although the neighboring apartments were separated by thin wall board partitions.

Sgt. Green, who was examined immediately after his arrest at 3:45 a.m. on the morning of September 28th, bore no scratches which Mrs. Rom stated she had caused during the struggle.

Dr. John Carriere's medical examination of Mrs. Rom at the Harford Memorial Hospital at 3:00 a.m. found no evidence of rape, it was testified.

The two pieces of cloth which Mrs. Rom said Sgt. Green had used to gag her, were examined by the Maryland State Police Department at the request of the Aberdeen Police Department.

The examination disclosed the cloth had been "cut" from a sheet, and the Aberdeen Police were instructed to search the alleged victim's apartment for the sheet from which they had been cut.

Officer Foote admitted that no such search was ever made of the Rom apartment.

* * *

CAPTAIN E. J. KOLCUM, company commander of Sgt. Green, testified that there had never been any complaints of the soldier's conduct during the seven years he had been in charge of the crafts department where 80 per cent of the patrons were servicemen's wives.

Sgt. A. Pasquino produced his service record which revealed that he had won a number of battle medals, awards, and citations for superior service and a rating of excellent conduct.

Judge Day pointing to the numerous contradictions in Mrs. Rom's testimony and the inconsistencies in the state's evidence, declared that there were a number of doubts in his mind.

He commended the counsel for the defense and the state for their able and helpful presentation of the case.

The 'Not guilty" verdict of the judge was met with spontaneous shouts of "Hallelujah" and "Praise God" from the county citizens and service personnel who had crowded the courtroom.

Judge Day gaveled for quiet, gently urging the farmers and country people, who had not contained their joy, to celebrate outside.

The Harford County radio system had whipped up consiterable interest in the trial by its announcemennt of the trial, the nature of the crime, and the defense of Sgt. Green by "two NAACP Attorneys".

Witnesses called for the defense were John M. Handy, Robert S. Six, Pfc John R. Rom, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson Capt. E. J. Kolcum, Pfc Onno DeRuyter, Sgt. Louis Hickman, Sgt. Samuel Lacy, Morris Quickley, Roger Lervig and Mrs. Pauline Tasis.

cousin, Miss Joann Crum, 22, last April and Mrs. Barbara Ray, 18, last Jan. 26. They said he also admitted slaying a 12-year-old stepsister in Wichita, Kansas in 1960, but had been acquitted.

Lugrand admitted killing the two Detroit women when they resisted his advances, the officers said.

Police are also checking with authorities in Wichita on the 1960 slaying.

The latest slaying of Vernice Scott, occurred early Wednesday.

* * *

MISS SCOTT was stabbed to death in the apartment she shared with her twin sister, Mrs. Bernice Slegianes. Police said Lugrand also was staying in the apartment.

He made a formal statement to Detectives Robert Fulletton and James Haines and Assistant Prosecutor John Dodge.

Lugrand told police he and Mrs. Slegianes went to a bar after Miss Scott had retired for the night. He said he left Mrs. Slegianes at the bar and returned alone to the apartment about 12:30 a.m. Wednesday.

When Miss Scott resisted his advances, Lugrand stated, he got two knives from the kitchen and stabbed her. Thirty stab wounds were inflicted, an autopsy showed.

Mrs. Slegianes' two-year old daughter, Cathy, was sleeping in a bedroom at the time.

LUGRAND SAID he rejoined Mrs. Slegianes at Phelps Cocktail Lounge, and told her he'd been talking to friends in another part of the crowded bar.
